About

Several Winchester residents were among the officials umpiring the US Pro tennis matches at Longwood Cricket Club last week.

Past Chairmen of the New England Tennis Umpires Assocation Joan and Bill Bird headed the list of townspeople who are members of that association officiating at the championships. Others participating were Jack Whittier and Jim Stewart.

Though not present at Longwood, the associaton, which is an official organ of the New England Lawn Tennis Association and the United States Tennis Association, also boasts of members Lawrence Smith, Judy Wien and Nancy von Lazar, all Winchester residents.

William G. Lavelle, M.D. and Richard L. Elia, both of Winchester, have published the "Quarterly Review of Wines," a periodical which regularly reviews fine wines, serious wine merchants and the wine trade, and restaurants in the Boston-Greater Boston area. Some free copies are still available. Call 729-7132, or write "Quarterly Review of Wines," 797 Harrison ave., Boston, 02118.

Sarah Milburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Milburn of Winchester, has joined the U.S. Peace Corps.

Miss Milburn, a 1974 graduate of Winchester High School, completed her studies in philosophy at Yale University where she was a member of Trumbull College.

She is presently stationed at M'Baiki, in the Central African Empire, where she is receiving training in French and Sango (the local language) for work in the TEFL program (Teaching English as a Foreign Language).

She is with a group of Peace Corps volunteers preparing not only for the TEFL program but also for school construction, fish farming, public health and small-bore well digging activities.

Miss Milburn is following a family tradition begun by her uncle and aunt, Douglas and Virginia Dyer Stafford, formerly of Winchester, who directed Peace Corps work in Liberia and Ghana from 1964 to 1966, and continued by her late maternal grandmother, Jeanette M. Stafford, who was a volunteer for two years in the Philippine Islands from 1967-69 following her retirment from high school teaching in Watertown, N.Y.

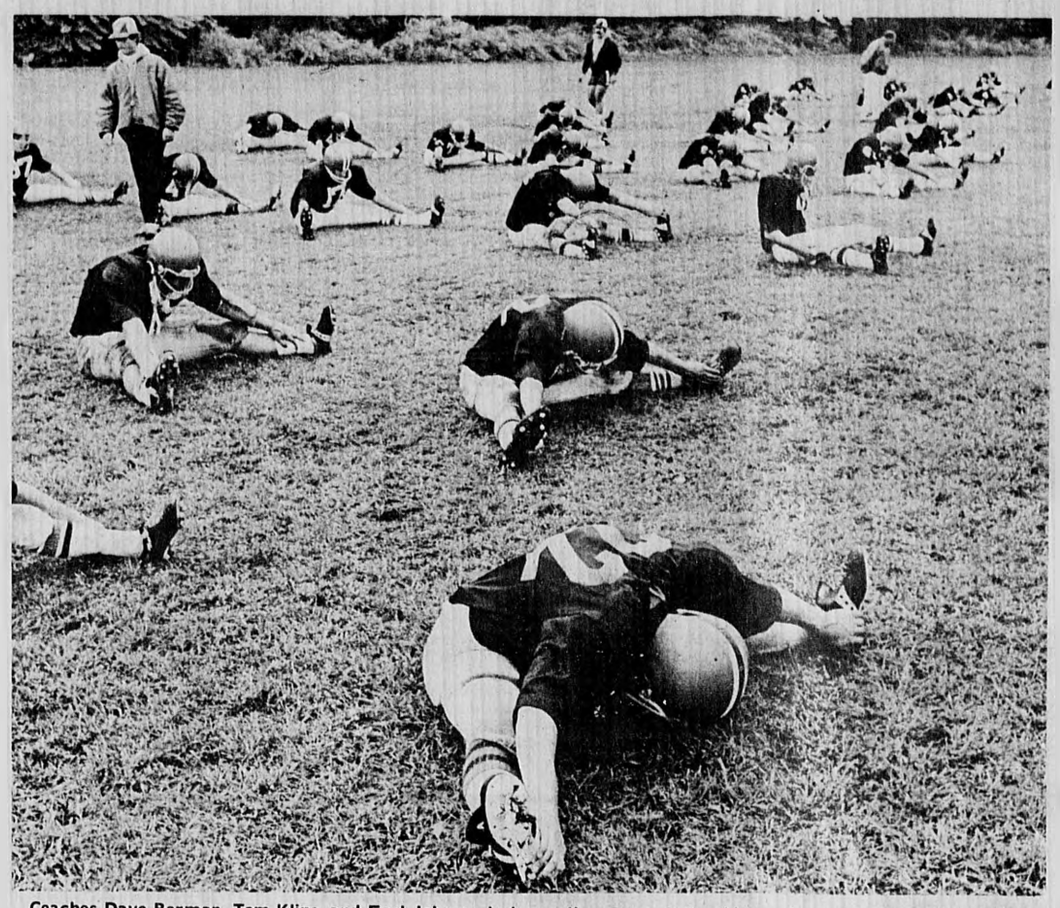
Back To School: How To Make It Up To Your Kid

Summer is officially with us for two more weeks, but for a kid, it's back to the classroom already. As a parent, there's a lot you can do to ease the vacation to rulers transition. From sand casting at the beach to playing miniature golf, treat the younger set to a dose of outright summery fun-for-its-own-sake.



Coaches Dave Berman, Tom Kline, and Earl Johnson look over the prospects for this year's varsity high school football team. Practices have been going on all week, with the first game of the season set for Sept. 16 at Natick. The first home game at Knowlton Stadium will be played Sept. 30 against Stoneham. Five accidents occur over holiday

The country was plagued with motor vehicle accidents over the Labor Day weekend and Winchester was no different. Between Thursday and Sunday, five auto accidents were reported by police, but only one resulted in personal injury.

John McGinness, of Burlington, received minor injuries Thursday when his car was involved in a collision at Highland avenue and Mt. Vernon street. He was treated at Lawrence Memorial Hospital and released.

Three accidents marred Winchester streets Saturday, two at the same intersection. At 11:30 a.m., Carol L. Hues of Arlington and Manuel J. Matias of Somerville collided at Wildwood and Cambridge streets. Eight hours later, Angela Sabatino, of 9 Pepper Hill dr., and Seekumar P. DeSai of Brookline, collided at the same intersection. Police report no injuries in both accidents.

At 9:45 the same evening, another accident at Main and Mystic Valley parkway tied up traffic for about an hour. Both vehicles, one driven by John R. Ciano of 30 Highland ave., and the other by Michael J. Oliveira of Somerville, were heavily damaged and had to be towed away. The two escaped injury, police report.

Another Highland avenue resident was involved in another accident on Sunday. Mark Berrerian, of 333 Highland ave., collided with Robert H. Cuff of Arlington about 10:15 p.m. at Bacon street and Mystic Valley parkway. Again, no injuries were reported.

In other police business, a Ravenscroft road home was burglarized between Aug. 30 and Sept. 4. The owners were away all summer, but a neighbor had checked the house on the 30th. Entering through a back door, the thief made away with a 19-inch television set valued at $400 and half (six pieces) a Rogers Brothers silver service, val7e unknown.

Costello Funeral Home, 177 Washington st. was recently ransacked, police report. Police said three bedrooms, the living room, a business office, and the dining room were searched for valuables. The Costellos had been away for vacation at the time of the break and a complete inventory of stolen materials is not available yet, but police said a stereo system is missing.

According to police, the point of entry was a back second floor window which was gained by climbing a nearby tree.

A 12-gauge shot gun was one of the items stolen recently from an Arlington street house. An air conditioner was pushed out of a window, onto the floor for the thief to gain access to the house. Other items taken include a $500 color TV, a $125 black and white TV, a $225 stereo and a $200 air conditioner.

Another color TV, valued at $400, was taken from a Pond street house recently also. A side kitchen door was used as the point of entry.

State, Voke disagree on extra payments to staff

A Sept. 11, 1975 vote is the center of debate in the tug of war between the state Department of Education and the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School over extra payments to five school administrators.

The department of education recently ruled that unless $13,599.23 in extra payments to the administrators are ratified by the voke school committee, the school must return the money to the state.

The school superintendent contends that a school committee vote of Sept. 11, 1975 has already authorized such payments and that the money should not be returned.

The payments, issued from overhead expenses of a $130,900 federal grant for the disadvantaged between Jan. 28, 1976 and June 18, 1977, included more than $6000 for school Supt. John Connolly; $2500 for school Business Manager Louis Sanville; $2300 for school Data Processing Manager William Lofgren; $1850 for Data Processing Programmer Dennis Holland; and $550 for school Treasurer Anthony Moschella Jr.

Moschella and Holland are sons of voke school committee members.

In a June 20 letter to school committee secretary and Stoneham representative Joseph Barry, the associate commisioner of the state Department of Education, division of occupational education, informed the school that its defense of the payments, namely the Sept. 11, 1975 vote, was not specific enough.

Minutes for the 1975 fall meeting were forwarded to the associate commissioner, David F. Cronin, by Connolly when the former requested extra payment authorization by the school committee.

The motion passed by the school committee on that date, which Connolly said allowed him to make the payments, reads as follows:

"Mr. Moschella moved that the committee authorize staff members who work on the special needs project proposal to be paid from state funds authorized for the special needs collaborative program. Mr. McCarthy seconded the motion. The motion was declared carried on a voice vote."

Cronin, in response to Connolly's letter of defense with the vote enclosed, wrote:

"Overhead charges are allowed for the costs incurred by the school district in administering the grant. However, it is noted that salaries were paid to employees of the school district, automobiles leased, etc., which are not allowed as appropriate costs charged to overhead as those funds should have been deposited to the account of the school district as payment for services rendered by the school district and not specific employees or auto leasin; costs."

Cronin continued, "I am uncertain after reviewing the motion versus the employees who received compensation that said expenditures should be considered, by this department, as being appropriate overhead costs chargeable to these grants and within the intent of the vote of the committee of Sept. 11, 1975."

As a result of Cronin's uncertainty, he further said, "I would appreciate clarification by the school district committee on the intent of their vote, the manner in which said charges were determined, and the propriety from their perspective on the use of overhead cost allowances to provide remuneration to district administrative support staff..."

Cronin said that he could more adequately determine the propriety of the payments and whether an audit exception should be sustained once he receives clarification.

At the last school committee meeting Aug. 17, Connolly tried to provide Cronin the needed clarification when he asked the committee to ratify the payments.

Although no vote was taken on the ratification motion, four members of the committee vociferously opposed such action. Winchester representative to the school committee, Gerard Donahoe, Wakefield Rep. Philip McAuliffe Jr., Melrose Rep. Thomas O'Donnell, and Chelsea Rep. John Dunn have said they have no intention of ratifying the payments.

The four balked at ratification because they said they were not only ignorant of payments being made, but that when they asked if such payments were being made, Connolly told them no money was being given to administrators.

Cronin said he does not know who would have to return the money if the school committee does not ratify them. He said he would have to seek the advice of the state's general counsel if the payments are not ratified.

Connolly also said he not only made the payments because of the September, 1975 vote but because bookkeeping procedures were different at the time of the payments.

Connolly, a former member of the State Department, said the state used to allow school discretion in dispersing overhead monies. Terry Zoulas, Cronin's spokesman, said the procedure for dealing with overhead money has always been the same, that the money provided for overhead costs from grants goes directly into the school's general fund. To take money out of the general fund, the school committee must vote specific allocations for specific reasons.

Cronin said that if money for overhead was intended for administrators, it would appear as a line item for administration.

He said it would be difficult to see how the money for the administrators could be billed to the grant if, as Connolly has stated, no log of hours and no list of duties worked by the administrators were kept.

CSA officers to meet committee

The school committee will meet the new officers of the Winchester Community School Association at the regular meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the Sanborn House.

Also on the agenda for the meeting are a review of the opening of schools and the first-day enrollment figures; reports on summer school and curriculum workshops; and routine personnel matters.

One from Winchester... ...and one from Boston

Two boys' paths cross during Six Week Adventure

Carl Hirschfeld and Emerson Blake are two boys who attended the Six Weeks Adventure Program in Winchester this summer.

Six Weeks brings together children from Boston and Winchester for a variety of cultural, educational, and recreational activities, with guidance and instruction provided by local volunteers.

Carl and Emerson were interviewed by Six Weeks staffers Lee Behnke and Maureen Boulanger, and the result is a pair of portraits which lend a little insight into the differences, and the common ground, in their lives.

Carl Hirschfeld

Carl Hirschfeld

My name is Carl Hirschfeld and I'm nine years old. I live at 47 Emerson rd., Winchester and I go to the Parkhurst School. Nine years ago I was born at the Winchester Hospital, so I guess that means I've lived here all my life.

There are four people in my family: my Dad works for G.O. Technical Engineers Inc. Mom works sometimes at E.D.C. as a teacher. My sister is 10 years old and likes to ride horses but she doesn't have one. We just have three cats.

For my hobby I do can-collecting. I'm not sure how I got started on it. My sister says she was the one who got me started on it, but I say I was the one.

In my spare time I hang around the house and ask my mother what I can do. That's because it's summer and it's too hot. In summer you just feel like staying home 'cause it's all hot and everything. I have a friend who has a pool. I use it a lot except for the last two weeks when it's been really hot and I have stitches. I sure wish I could have gone in!

My school, Parkhurst, is a big brick building with lots of turns. There are only 17 or 18 in my class. The school isn't on a busy street. It has a big playground, two baseball fields, a basketball court and a junglegym.

My favorite subject is math. I have it with a different teacher and some different kids. I have four different teachers. I don't love music unless it's a game or something because they never do what you want to do. But I really like art.

My favorite sport is baseball with a little bit of basketball. In fact, my hero is "Yaz" and my other hero is Jim Rice. I think the Red Sox have a good chance for the pennant this year...but when they play Kansas City, they're going to have a hard time.

To get back to my usual day at school, I get up at 7:30 a.m. I have scrambled eggs, toast, milk and orange juice for breakfast. I leave for school at 8:30: it's just a five minute walk up the hill.

Then I sit around while they take attendence then we do spelling, and science. Then we go outside to recess, come back in; do reading, and go to lunch. Some kids get lunch at school but I bring it. Usually I pack a meat sandwich, dessert and I buy the milk.

My teacher is nice but gets mad sometimes; like when you are pulling someone's hair, writing all over your desk or when you're cleaning it, making a big mess. But it doesn't happen too often. Most kids are pretty good, they behave; I behave. The principal is a man and he's nice. I remember once he got mad but usually he's pretty fair.

At 2:45 I go home and ask a friend over. My best friend is John Keene. We usually play "Three Strikes" at his house. This is a game we made up ourselves. There are five in his family: his dad is a doctor, his mother stays at home with the three kids.

I get $1 for my allowance. I have to help around the house. I clean up my room, vacuum, and dust. I don't know yet what I want to be when I grow up.

I was at Six Week Adventure this summer. It was a good program because it gave me something to do.

At the program I learned how to make paper, and lots of other things. The Boston kids are nice kids. I remember Mark the best because on the night of the pot-luck supper, he came over to my house first. He played my cello, my mother's guitar...blew bubbles and swung in our hammock. He rode my bike, he was nice.

Emerson Blake

I'm Emerson Blake. I'm nine years old and I live at 8 Hartwell Street, Dorchester. I go to the Mather School. I was born in the West Indies, at Monserrat. I'd like to go back someday to see the place I was born. I was only two months old when I got here so I don't remember much.

There are five in my family: my two sisters, Lorraine and Marie, me, and my mother and dad. Marie's 10 and Lorraine is 14.

My mother's hobby is selling pearls, at my house. She has parties and lots of people come to buy them. She likes to do it. My sisters only like to watch "One Life to Live" on T.V. My Dad likes to build ships as a hobby and also as a job. His job is working in a shipyard. I love to help him. I go to the stores to buy paint or whatever we need for the ship models.

For my hobby, I like to go places with my Dad to look at ships. He takes me places to study them then we go home and try to build them. Although the Mayflower is my favorite ship, we haven't built it yet. We just finished a pirate ship.

I don't have any pets. I like to help my mother cook. I like basketball and I like school. My school looks like the fire department, which is right next to it. It is red brick with an eagle. It's very, very old, the second oldest in Boston. It's close to Bunker Hill on a quiet street.

My favorite subject is math and I do a lot of times tables. I'm going into fourth grade. Last year I had two teachers. The teachers are usually nice. My teacher wrote all the rules on the board: no whispering, no fighting, no chewing gum. You chew gum, you wear it on your nose 'til you get home. Your mother has to call the school to say it's still on. If you whisper, you stand in the corner. If you're fighting, the principal gets mad and you have to be suspended in the auditorium.

My usual day starts when I get up in the morning at six, I think. I'm the first one up. I'm the one that's the best cook except for my mother...better than my sister. Even my other sister, she burns the pancakes. For breakfast I have pancakes, eggs, and juice. Then I go to the bus stop around seven. But we usually have to wait. The bus gets there late...they always have flat tires. Sometimes I walk a long way if the bus doesn't come. I buy my lunch at school.

All the kids near me go to this school on the bus. My best friend is Duane. We play football in the small kids' play yard. You don't go in the big kids' yard 'cause they'll throw you out. Duane's family lives far from me and I only went there once. After I came back from New York I couldn't remember where his house was.

Emerson Blake and friend Erin Stevens

I get $1 allowance. I have to work at home. I have to take the garbage out, clean the table, make my bed, obey my mother, help cook and vacuum. That's all.

My favorite sport is basketball. My hero is the Black Superman. I like him because he's strong and he fights against evil.

When I grow up I'd like to be a policeman. I don't want to be a policeman in Boston, I want to be a policeman in Winchester. I want to move here because the people are so nice. There are nice baseball fields. It would be a little harder to be a policeman here, though.

I had a good time at Six Week Adventure this summer. I learned how to swim, play the piano a little bit, and paint. The kids from Winchester are really nice. I liked Michael the best because I went home with him for the afternoon.

Carnival at high school to raise money for pool

It will be carnival time in Winchester Sept. 23 when the Winchestrr High School Parent-Faculty Association kicks off its campaign to raise funds for an indoor swimming pool for the town.

The high school field on Skillings road will be the setting for the rides, games and special attractions for all ages. It will run continuously from 10 in the morning to 10 in the evening.

A double-decker ferris wheel and a 100-foot slide lead the list of events for the more adventuresome. There will also be bumper cars, a tilt-a-whirl, the sizzler, a hurricane, and flying bobs.

A moon walk, merry-go-round, kiddie raceway, kiddie helicopters, umbrella rides and a fun house will also be featured activities, along with a bake sale and white elephant sale.

Games will include the monkey water game, basketball, a wheel of fortune and the newly popular challenge of "stand the bottle up." There will be cotton candy and refreshments for all.

The carnival will be staffed by members of the parent-faculty association, the high school student union, and citizens interested in building an indoor swimming pool at the high school.

This is the first fund raising event planned by the association, which will also be seeking private donations to help finance the pool. The parent faculty association believes that the indoor swimming pool," will become a great asset to all members of the community," and they hope to involve the whole town in their efforts to get the pool built.

Anyone interested in helping at the carnival is invited to contact any member of the parent faculty association board, whose president is Mrs. James E. Barger. Working with her are Mrs. Padmaker Lele, Mrs. Richard Pharo, Mrs. Noel Thyson, Mrs. James Aylward, Mrs. Robert Intravaia and Mrs. George Hunter.

Also working on the board and for the carnival are Mrs. John Heffernan, Mrs. Lane McGovern, Mrs. John Sutherland, Mrs. James Mawn, Mrs. James Grassi, Mrs. William Kennedy, Mrs. Vincent O'Reilly and Mrs. Robert Brosnan.

Jaycee-ettes' 10th annual flea market now being planned

Plans for the Winchester Jaycee-ettes 10th annual flea market are now underway. Mrs. Mary Brown, of 44 Myrtle ter., and Mrs. Mary Ellen Falcione, of 6 Brookside ave., are this year's co-chairmen

Once again, refreshments will be available at the chuckwagon being run by Mrs. Barbara Joyce and Mrs. Pat Franke. Mrs. Angela Catalano will be in charge of the salad bar.

Two new tables will be presented this year. Mrs. Ann Esposito is heading a crafts table and Mrs. Elaine Russo is in charge of a bake table.

Spaces at the flea market are rented to dealers or to anyone else wishing to set up a table and sell their wares. Spaces may be reserved by calling either Mrs. Falcione at 729-1332 or Mrs. Brown at 729-3260.

Recycle!

Recycle in Winchester at the town dump off Swanton street.

Materials should be separated into the following categories: rags, used clothing, cans, newspapers, and glass. Glass must be sorted by color — amber, clear, and green. Cans and glass should be rinsed out.

Last week's gray skies and rainy weather didn't stop the regulars from a daily run. (Staff photo)

Personnel changes made

There will be quite a few personnel changes in the Winchester School System this year, including the addition of eight teachers whose elections were approved by the school committee this summer.

There will also be several changes in coaching positions as a result of resignations. Five regular teachers have also resigned and several have been reassigned.

New teachers at the high school include:

— Benjamin E. Teel in the foreign language department. Teel graduated from East Carolin University and earned an MA from Trinity College in Hartford. He has attended the Sorbonne in Paris, the University of Aix en Provence in France, and the University of Barcelona in Spain. He will replace Nancy Gelowtsky, who is on leave without pay.

— Pamela J. Chadwick in the English department.

— Eleanor Galanis in the business education department, to replace resigned staff member Charlotte Turner.

— Stephen M. Tata, who will teach three-fifths of the time at the high school, one fifth of the time at McCall Junior High School, in the social studies department (he does not hold a full-time position).

At McCall, Robert P. Constantine has been elected to the guidance department to replace Elaine Rosen, who has been reassigned to the high school. Constantine graduated from the University of Massachusetts and earned a masters in education from Boston State College. He has been a teacher aide and a teacher associate in the Title I program in Winchester.

At the elementary level, the following staff have been appointed:

— J. Kevan Norris as elementary psychologist for the CORE evaluation team.

— Helen M. Parsignault as an art teacher.

— Caroline S. Lindeke as a half-time music teacher to replace the position left open by the resignation of John Beyrent. Lindeke graduated from Sarah Lawrence and earned her MME from Boston University. She has studied at the Aspen Music Festival and the Longy School of Music.

John F. Beyrent, appointed band director only last year, resigned to accept a position as music director in Springfield, Vt. Beyrent also taught music in the system. Priscilla Miller will replace Beyrent as band director.

Other resignations include Robert D. Glickman from the high school social studies department; William K. Wanamaker from the McCall social studies department; and Marie A. Pouliot from the high school math department.

Reelected to the Tit e VI program were Bonnie Poe Robbins, Sarah Sheehan, Sally Lee Weitzen, and Laraine A. Milauskas. All four will fill positions funded through Title VI.

Among those elected teacher aides were Lorraine K. Bradley, Marie G. Brunell, Charlotte S. Fixler, Gabriele L. Fryklund, Adele B. Grady, Ruth E. White, Susan E. Clewell, and Marta B. Sartori at the high school; John F. Collins, Mary E. Brown, and Susan Kajander at McCall; and Andrea M Louras at the Lincoln School.

Among the coaching changes, Patricia DiPietro, formerly assistant field hockey coach, will take over the head coach's slot; Christopher Scanlon will be head coach for girls' soccer; Donna Tanner will coach girls' JV soccer; Gary Nihan will serve as assistant coach for McCall football; David M. LaFauci will coach McCall soccer; and Glen Swain will coach Lynch soccer.

Dr. Amos Guarente was reelected school physician.

And at the senior high school, Eleanor Thistlethwaite has decided to return as faculty advisor to Los Companeros and Les Troubadours, the schools's two singing groups.

29 officers to serve as crossing guards

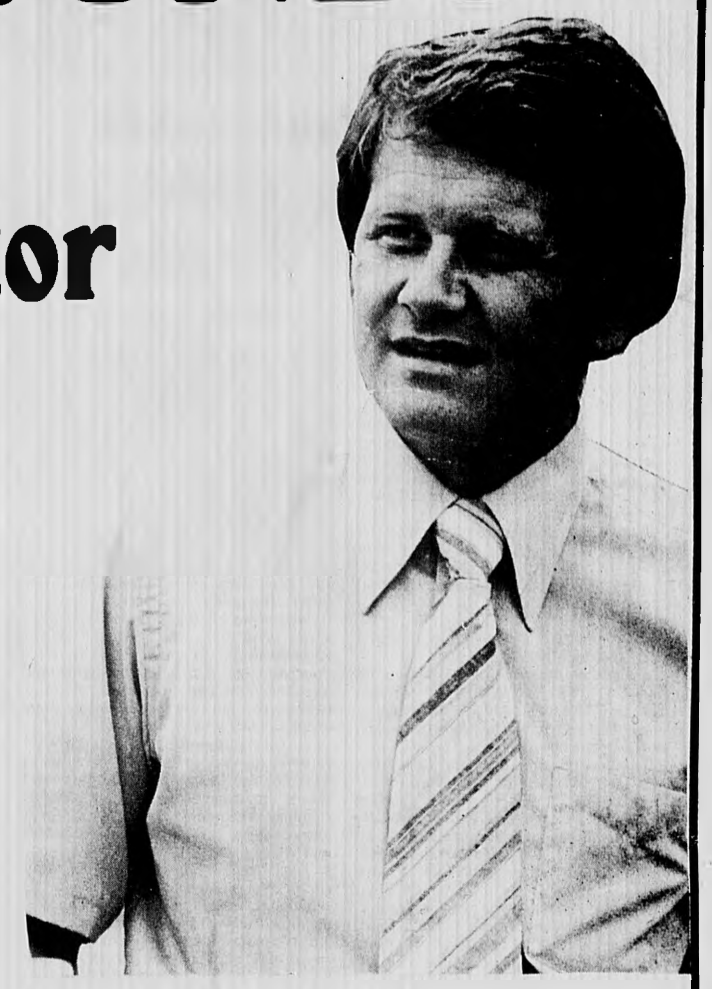
SAM ROTONDI

Legislator of the Year



THE MASSACHUSETTS
LEAGUE OF CITIES AND TOWNS and
THE MASSACHUSETTS
SELECTMAN'S ASSOCIATION

EACH NAMED YOUR SENATOR

SAM ROTONDI
Legislator of the Year

Why did two such distinguished groups choose only Sam Rotondi out of all the Senators in the entire state? Because their major concern is the same as yours -- taxes, and they were impressed with what Sam Rotondi did about taxes. Things like...the Court Reform Bill...the New Education Formula...the Elderly Abatement Bill...the Pension Reform Bill...Reducing the Meals Tax...Opposing Mandated State Programs.

But Sam Rotondi knows that this is not enough, that there are other problem areas which he wants to address, such as...reasonable spending cuts...a cap on state spending...zero-based budgeting...Sunset Legislation...full funding of state mandated programs.

Sam Rotondi has no magic formula for success, he just loves his job and works hard at it. He is honored by these awards, but what pleases him most is that it brings honor to you, the people he represents...Because you are the reason he's running.

Brooke, Nelson, taxes

Massachusetts is a paradoxical place.

Everybody complains and complains about taxes, yet the people always elect and re-elect the big spenders. And then they pay for it. And pay and pay. There are complaints, rhetoric and revolts, but, inevitably, more taxes.

Why do we do that?

One reason is that Massachusetts' voters are skillfully manipulated into believing the definition of "liberal" is "good." And somehow any other political label is something less than good.

This is the first step in winning an election because the word "liberal" is generally used in the press to describe economic and social philosophy. If the politicians are successful in defining the word "liberal" as "good," then a lot of explanations about positions on issues are easier to avoid.

After all, if liberal means good, then no one will be able to conclude that a liberal economic and political philosophy means higher taxes. Higher taxes are bad and liberal is, of course, good. Right?

Wrong

Liberal economic and social philosophy ALWAYS means higher taxes.

Then why does Massachusetts re-elect the two most liberal Senators in the United States Congress time and time again? This brings us to the second most important key to getting elected: the Independent vote.

As a liberal candidate, you first concentrate on reinforcing the "liberal means good" definition by talking about "getting more for your tax dollar" while carefully avoiding any mention that more means, of course, more taxes. And you never talk about tax cuts - "reordering priorities" is a safer slogan.

Next you emphasize putting party designations aside and voting for the man. Someone should start an organization called Independents for Individuals. What a group that would be; no ties to party philosophy or platform and so progressive and anti-politician sounding that everybody and his uncle would join. Get the Independents behind you and you're unbeatable.

Does it really work? Ask Ed Brooke. That's how he first got elected and he's trying the same formula in 1978 as he looks forward to 18 continuous years in the U.S. Senate. That's another six years of an endless stream of votes to spend money on more and more economic and social programs which raise taxes, fuel inflation and delpete your spendable income.

In simplest terms, the theoretical difference between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party is that the Democrats believe in the "cradle to grave" theory of government involvment in the daily lives of every American while the Republicans don't.

Republican philosophy is centered around the belief that "the less government the better" and the support of more individual freedom and reward for personal initiative.

To be sure, there are Democrats whose views encompass varying degrees of this Democratic political philosophy and to a great extent some Southern Democrats are more oriented to the Republican viewpoint. And some Republicans are more "liberal" than others. But it is all too clear where Sen. Brooke stands.

In Massachusetts this September, Republican Primary voters face a clear-cut philosophical choice. Sen. Brooke votes over 90 percent of the time on major issues with Sen. Ted Kennedy. Sen. Kennedy is the most liberal Democrat in Congress. He is the man by whom all other liberals are measured. No one is more liberal or more Democratic than Ted Kennedy.

So where does this put Ed Brooke? So far out of Republican philosophy that it is understandable his main renomination campaign thrust has been an appeal to "retain the only statewide elected Republican official" as Brooke himself stated at a meeting in Arlington a few weeks ago.

He presumes no other Republican can win statewide in Massachusetts, therefore the party regulars should renominate him so that he may go on to glory again in November. He believes this because in the past he has been very successful in convincing the public that "liberal" Republican meant good and convincing the Independents that he would be all things to all people in the true liberal tradition.

This year Sen. Brooke's image has been severely tarnished by admitted misstatements (lies to ordinary people) on his divorce papers, doubtful information on his Senate financial statement (which is under investigation), and lack of knowledge of over $50,000 in fradulent Medicaid claims by his mother-in-law, even though he managed her financial affairs. But the main issue is not one of personal integrity. It is one of philosophical integrity and whether or not he has abandoned Republican principles.

He faces a very strong challenge from Avi Nelson, a mainstream Republican who believes in tax cuts to stimulate the economy and not more social programs to spend dollars the government doesn't have.

Nelson has also spoken critically of the two major labor bills which the AFL-CIO tried unsuccessfully to push through the last Congress---common situs picketing and the so-called "reform" package which would have forced many workers to join unions in order to hold jobs.

It is significant that Sen Brooke has received the endorsement of five labor unions including the Teamsters. Strange bedfellows indeed for someone in this Republican Primary, but understandable in view of his anti-business, pro-labor votes on these bills and others.

Sen. Brooke has rejected the wave of conservatism sweeping the country in reaction to rampant inflation, decline of the dollar on the world market and the excessive burden placed on individual taxpayers to support expanding government programs. He opposes such property tax limitations as California's Proposition 13 and objects to the Kemp-Roth tax cut bill in Congress.

Avi Nelson is clear on all revenue issues. He is a fiscal conservative and has not equivacated in his stand against government attempts to solve social problems by spending more and more tax money.

Nelson strongly supports the Kemp-Roth tax measure which would reduce personal and corporate income taxes by 30 percent over three years, stimulating investment to make the economy grow and returning substantial revenue to individual taxpayers.

Nelson says the Kemp-Roth proposal would have the same effect that similar large tax cuts did under President Kennedy in the early '60s: an upswing in the gross national product and more actual individual purchasing power---prosperity without excessive inflation.

Ed Brooke, on the other hand, voted last year for a $227 billion increase in Social Security taxes over the next 10 years, the largest single such tax increase ever.

Avi Nelson also takes traditional Republican philosophical positions on the other major issues of the day. He is against busing to achieve racial balance, against further federal gun controls, the Panama Canal turnover without compensation, and racial quotas in employment and higher education. He favors capital punishment, the development of peaceful uses of nuclear energy and the B-1 bomber. Sen. Brooke is on the opposite side on all these issues.

Avi Nelson is bright, energetic, well-educated and extremely articulate. His campaign is reflecting the current mood of the American people. Everywhere fists are being clenched around the few remaining coins of a hard-earned dollar and people are banging the table with a resounding NO to more government spending and higher taxes. Ed Brooke is turning his back.

For Republicans who believe in the basic tenets of their party's philosophy, Avi Nelson is the only choice in the Sept. 19 Primary Election.

Medical 'benefits'?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The reader who repeatedly stumps for a national socialized medical program on these pages should live in Great Britain where she could enjoy the "benefits" of the 30-year-old National Health Service.

These "benefits" would include a shortfall in financing, antiquated hospitals, worn-out and out-dated equipment, doctors leaving the country to practice in a more rewarding and less-restricting atmosphere and a nation that once led the world in medical research but lost that leadership.

Britons increasingly are turning to private care, paying their way rather than joining the thousands waiting for operations.

Americans still enjoy the best medical care in the world and don't need more government control over their lives.

Good manners

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing this in regard to our small fry and their manners today.

In my day, the kids wouldn't dare give you a lot of their lip if you spoke to them.

For example, I went into the store down town to get some food. A boy, about 11 years old, had his new bike across the doorway. A lady couldn't get out, so I moved his bike so I could get in.

When this kid came out, I said a lady almost threw your bike down and he said if she did he would throw her down. Then he proceeded with a lot of mean talk.

What kind of an adult will this kid make? Manners begin in the home and some of our kids today do not get any discipline at home and talk to their parents this way also.

Too bad when so much good could come of good manners.

Hope our parents start preparing these kids for decent adults soon. I pity our poor teachers if they have to take this abuse from 11 or 12 year olds.

Thanks for signatures

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Through the pages of The Winchester Star, I would like to thank the numerous citizens who recently signed my nomination papers and were so kind to my workers in my campaign for Middlesex County Register of Probate.

The acts of the Register require an Independent candidate like myself to gather 2 percent of the vote cast in the last gubernatorial election in nomination signatures. In Middlesex County, the largest and most populous in the state, this means 9,400 names had to be certified. In all, many dedicatted workers - my wife and family included - gathered close to 16,000 signatures in 28 citties and towns.

The people of Winchester once again proved that a candidate must not only work hard to understand the problems of the electorate he serves, but also, he must not be afraid to take a stand as I have done in all my political life. The obtaining of these signatures is an instructive case in point.

On behalf of my family and my fellow workers, a big thanks for everything, and the promise that it will make me work even harder for the position of Register of Probate in the months to come.

Sincerely,
Robert V. Campo

Walk for ERA

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On a dreary cloudy Saturday morning, folding tables and chairs were unloaded from a van at the Boston Common near the State House. Soon they were surrounded by men and women checking in to start their walk earning money for the ERA battle. It was woman's day 1978. Barbara Ackerman, Margaret Dinneen, Paul Tsongas, pledged their support for equality and the walkathon started.

Winchester's Walker functioning as a marshall and with the lead group quite a distance before the others, was hailed by a Metropolitan District Police officer. The MDC police had come out in force, three patrol cars were waiting for us at the Harvard Bridge.

"Where are your people?"

"They are coming."

"Is this all? We are ready to control the masses with horses and everything!"

Pointing at the marshall's sash, Winchester Walker told the officers that Boston NOW was a very disciplined organization and that the marshalls were keeping order in the ranks. The police were visibly disappointed with our numbers.

We reached our first check point at Memorial drive, decided not to make any stops for drinks or food until we hit Carmen's Place in Harvard Square.

Meanwhile, behind the scenes NOW members were working hard, relocating folding tables and chairs, getting water and first aid basics to all check points, keeping an eye on walkers.

And then, Harvard Square. But we never got that drink. Carmen's Place was closed. We were consoled by cheers as we reached the second check point. We were half way at the Cambridge Common. Some walkers had their blisters taken care of, others got some strength from clear cool water. From then on it went down hill.

Muscles started to act up, but we weren't going to show anybody that we were in discomfort. Massachusetts Avenue brought us cheers from passers by and after the third check point a few of us started an attempt to cross Harvard Bridge jogging. Halfway across we decided it was better for us to continue our walk leisurely and resume our interesting conversations. You see, we almost never have so much time to spend on just talking. Sheer will power got Winchester's Walker over the Arlington Street footbridge and to the State House.

She was ready to callapse there. But the others kept walking and she decided to take it one step at a time. At the entrance to the Public Garden she was still with them. Winchester couldn't give up. Not after telling the sponsors that the town's only walker needed their support as a matter of local pride. And so with cramps in both legs, a grimace instead of a smile, Winchester's Walker arrived at the Stone Lantern, the finishing point of the Walkathon where she and all those who had raised more than $100 received a free foot massage from Ananda. After that she could smile again.

Winchester's Walker's sponsors are:

R. B. Nickerson, Whitney Smith, Ann Blackham, Henderson Stationery, The Winchester Star, Faythe Benson, Linda Lancaster, Bernadine Cassell, Office Skills Unlimited, MLS Of Winchester, Topsy Turvy, Osco Drug, Beverly Azonon, Gloria Stevens, and Delia Alonzo.

With many thanks to all of them.

The biggest banana split

By The Observer

Members of the Winchester Special Day Camp recently built and ate the "largest banana split in the history of Winchester" at Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Parlor on Main street.

The eight-foot long float was built on a table on the sidewalk outside Baskin-Robbins, who donated the ice cream and toppings. Thanks to Ted Judge's idea, a member of Winchester's camp, nine of his camp friends, plus counsellors and Belmont Special Day Camp members treated themselves to "The Winchester Ark," as some members called it.

Bananas and strawberries for the split were donated by Purity Supreme Market and the boat was given by Down East Home Improvement Co., of Arlington.

The camp members ate the three gallons of ice cream, four pints of strawberries, and 38 bananas. It was the biggest float the participants have seen, but their stomachs were bigger.

Whenever news stories are written about potentially volatile situations, some points of the story are often misinterpreted due to sentence structure, word arrangement, or grammar. Such was the case recently when The Star reported that a man was waving a gun at persons gathered on his Cross street property after a fight between a white man and a black man. Mrs. McEwen, mother of the white man involved in the fight, said the report in The Star made it sound like it was her son waving the gun when actually it was a neighbor who wielded it. We are sorry that any misinterpretations resulted from the story and we will try to be more clear in the future.

The Star recently reported that Susan E. Earlam, of 91 Highland ave., was named to the dean's list at Bentley College for the spring semester. Ms. Earlam tells us that she graduated in February and could not have been on the dean's list for the spring. The Star receives names of local students from public relations departments of several schools, and, although we try to check the validity of most announcements, it is impossible, due to lack of time, to check them all. Let this item, then, serve as Ms. Earlam's graduation notice!

Citizens are invited to submit graduation and dean's list notices to The Star provided a school telephone number accompanies the announcement. On the rites of mobility

By DAVID K. FUNKHOUSER

(This letter came across my desk recently, apparently a missive home penned by a foreign visitor, and it seemed appropriate to the season.)

My Dear Burundi,

Though it has been but two weeks since I came to this great land, I have already become familiar with some of America's most unusual customs.

You will recall, my friend, how we as schoolmates studied the great migrations across the sea to the New World; and how we learned of the spread of the American immigrants westward across the land. And we have, in more recent years, heard much talk of the "mobile society" in the United States.

I can assure you all this is true, for nowhere else on earth do the people put so much of their efforts into laying asphalt and cement across the earth for their highways (and to think how many lives have been spent over the centuries in battle over the soil!).

However, there is one custom we were never told about in school. It appears that not only are these Americans a mobile society; indeed, they have developed elaborate rituals centered around the concept of mobility. And the most astounding of these rituals is called "Moving Day."

There does not seem to be a prearranged date set for this holiday, though it tends to be seasonal, occuring most often in the weeks immediately preceding the autumnal equinox. September 1st is a particularly popular date for the ceremony; however, my friend, these Americans are well-known for their ability to improvise, and the ritual may last for weeks.

In keeping with another great American custom, the special roles to be played during the ceremony are exchanged every few years; the main characters are played by one family or set of people once every five or seven years, probably depending upon which sect they belong too — for there are some things which remain a mystery to even the most astute observer.

The actual "Moving Day" may be preceded by weeks of elaborate preparation, during which time the participants go without sleep and partake of a ritual diet of what they call "fast food." All the belongings of the persons who are to "make the move" are carefully wrapped and placed into special boxes. One curious custom related to this part of the ritual: the shops selling food and alcoholic drink leave enromous stacks of these boxes outside their stores, perhaps as their donation to the beleaguered celebrants.

As with most things in America I have seen, all may participate — students are especially fanatical, perhaps belongin; to their own separate sect. However, not everyone will actually lay hands on their possessions for the actual move. Some of the upper classes make great offerings to their branch of what I call the Church of Moving, and in return, the brothers of the church perform the actual ritual.

But as you will recall from earlier letters, my friend, these Americans are great populists. Most prefer to perform the ritual themselves.

One key to the ceremony is the vehicle in which the goods are transported. There are dealers spread across the land, and if the talk I hear is accurate, are not unlike the camel merchants I wrote you about from Cairo. The most popular vehicle is an orange and silver model, and participants wait for hours to obtain one — reservations are made even weeks in advance. Those who are not so fortunate to obtain the orange one may choose from several other colors of lesser distinction. Some, alas, can not afford to make the necessary donation to the church and must cram their own with their posessions.

I am particularly animated today, because I have had the honor of being invited to participate in one of the rituals by an aquaintance here. I hope to gain further insight into the American character, and I understand the celebration following the ceremony is most exhilarating, accompanied by the consumption of great quantities of the drink-of-a-thousand-names, beer.

So now I must go, my dear Burundi, but I will write again soon. I am just beginning to learn of another ritual of mobility practiced here, called divorce, and I will tell you all I can next time.

May the blessing of the Buddha be upon you,

Raj

The stories reprinted here were taken from old editions of The Winchester Star and were compiled by Henry Simonds, local historian. By and large these articles are taken from the same month they appear here, 50 years ago.

The funeral of Miss Agnes D. Ross 71, who was accidentally killed last Saturday evening, September 15, by a shot from a revolver which fell from a shelf at her home, 1 Carter street, was held Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 18, in the chapel at Mt. Auburn Cemetery where the interment was made. Miss Ross made her home with her neice Mrs. Agnes Marchant, and lived in Winchester about a year.

According to the police account of the fatality the shot which caused Miss Ross's death was fired from a revolver sometimes carried by Arthur W. Marchant, her niece's husband, who is a civil engineer and well known here as a Boy Scout executive.

Marchant had returned to his home on Carter street shortly before 9 o'clock from an automobile ride on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Marchant and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Lawson of 92 Cross street. When getting out of the car Marchant left his revolver in it's holster in the machine where it was seen by Lawson who got out after the first named.

Lawson picked up the gun and took it into the kitchen where he laid it upon a shelf. Besides the Lawsons and the Marchants the two children of the latter, Francis, aged 14, and Muriel, aged 4, were in the kitchen, Muriel being held upon the lap of Miss Ross who was sitting in front of the kitchen table.

In some way the revolver fell from the shelf and as it struck the floor, discharged, the bullet entering Miss Ross's body just above the left hip bone and penetrating her lungs, passing out through the front of her right shoulder and lodging in the ceiling over the kitchen door. Still holding her little grandniece, who had miraculously escaped being struck by the bullet, Miss Ross pitched forward and slumped to the floor. Dr. Charles R. Baisley, who was hastily summoned by Marchant, found that she had died almost instantly. Associate Medical Examiner Fred S. Piper of Lexington was notified and viewed the body. After hearing the story of those present he pronounced the death accidental.

Meanwhile, Police Headquarters was notified and Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy with Patrolmen James E. Farrell and Henry P. Dempsey was soon at the Marchant home. Sergeant Cassidy took Marchant's revolver, a 38-caliber Smith & Wesson, to Police Headquarters where it was found that there was but one empty chamber. No further investigation was made by the authorities.

James Fitzgerald was presented with a gold watch last week at the close of the Cape Cod League. The time piece was suitably inscribed and was the gift of many admirers who enjoyed his fine playing during the summer. He closed his season with a batting average of .411.

Favors Right to Life Legislation

Jim Lyons will fight for legislation which prohibits the use of our tax dollars to pay for abortions.

THE INCUMBENT

Opposes Right to Life Legislation

Rotondi has voted to spend $1.3 million of your tax dollars to pay for abortions. (H6596; H6420; H3237; S1618)

Jim Lyons believes that all people, regardless of their age or physical condition, deserve our care, concern and protection.

The most important standard by which our state government must be judged is its level of concern for those who are least able to care for themselves.

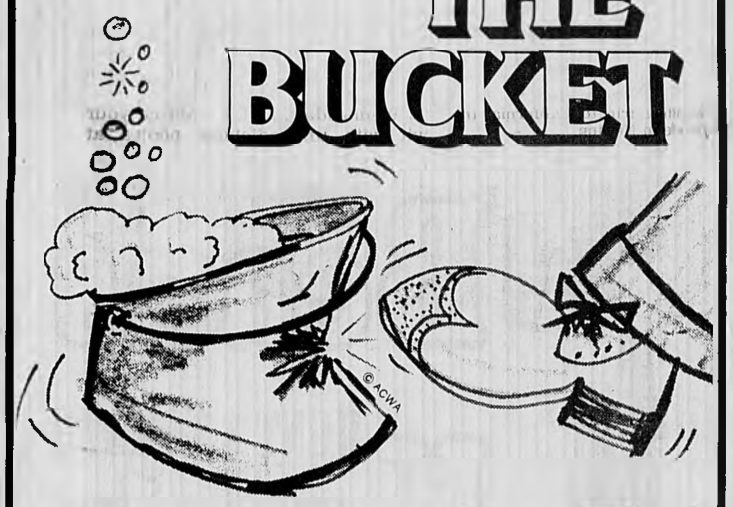
KICK THE BUCKET



Weekly professional washings at our Carwash will actually make your car last longer. And the longer your car lasts, the longer you can wait before investing in an inflationary priced new one.

So kick the brush and bucket habit and get into the habit of having your car washed weekly. By professionals. You'll save time. And your car will be washed more thoroughly and efficiently.

Tests prove that hand washing scars and scratches your car, the result of dirt and trapped sand particles* The professionals at our Carwash will get all the soot and mud and grime off the outside and all the dirt and dust out of the inside. And we'll apply protective chemicals to preserve your car's finish and seal the paintwork. Rust, corrosion and the action of harmful chemicals will actually be blocked out.

CAR WASH

Carwash. We make your car last longer so it trades in higher.

Mr. & Mrs. Thomas F. Manganaro

Carol Algeri weds Thomas Manganaro

Carol Ann Algeri and Thomas F. Manganaro were married recently at an eleven o'clock ceremony at the Sacred Heart Church, Waltham.

Miss Algeri is the daughter of Mrs. Carmelo Algeri, of Newtonville, and the late Marrion (Berry) Algeri. Mr. Manganaro is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank X. Manganaro of 95 Thornberry rd.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and a reception, following the ceremony, was held at the Sheraton Tara, Framingham.

Matron of honor was Mrs. John Fontecchio, a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kathy Barry, Dayna Butler, Donna Manganaro, and Martha Morgan. Lisa Marie Fontecchio, the bride's Godchild, was the flower girl.

Best man was Mr. Ron Manganaro, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Paul Albiani, Butch Algeri, Jay Bradley, and Chip Gilbert. Matthew Barry, a cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

The bride graduated fr Newton High School and Framingham State College. She is a fourth grade teacher at the MacArthur School in Waltham

The bridegroom is a graduate of Winchester High School and Northeastern University. He is a research lab technician at Massachusetts General Hospital and the Shrine Burn Institute.

After a wedding trip to California, the couple will reside in Newton.

Margaret Hopkins, John Mongiello Jr. marry Aug. 6 at Wayside Inn

The Martha Mary Chapel at the Wayside Inn in Sudbury was the setting for the wedding of Margaret Thompson Hopkins of Wellesley and John N. Mongiello Jr. of Winchester on Aug. 6.

The bride and bridegroom rode to the chapel in a horse and buggy where a candlelight ceremony, written by the couple, was performed by Rev. David DeRogatis of the Wellesley Hills Congregational Church.

The matron of hono4 was Judith Thompson Barr, sister of the bride, also of Wellesley. Kristin Lynn Hopkins, daughter of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid.

James Mongiello, brother of the bridegroom from San Jose, Calif. was the best man. James Mongiello Jr., godchild of the groom, served as the junior usher.

Ken Trevett, of Winchester and best friend of the groom, read from the scriptures as part of the ceremony.

Robert Casey, a teaching colleague of the bride at Burlington High School, was the soloist. Mrs. Rebecca Graham, also a fellow teacher, was the organist.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Jane Thompson and the late Mr. Paul W. Thompson of Plainsville, Ohio, attended Bowling Green University where she received a BS in education and a master of education in counseling. The bride presently teaches English and journalism at Burlington High School

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Mongiello of Winchester, attended Suffolk University where he received a BS and an MBA. He is presently a partner for Bio-Mec Co., Framingham.

Mr. & Mrs. John N. Mongiello Jr.

Mystic Lakes road race for floating hospital

A five-mile road race circling the Mystic Lakes will be held Sunday, Sept. 24, to benefit the Boston Floating Hospital, pediatric unit of New England Medical Center Hospital.

Kennedy's will be the sponsor of the event, which has been organized by the hospital's employee council; the department of athletics, Tufts Universitty, and members of the track team there.

More than 700 runners from throughout Metropolitan Boston are expected to enter the race, which has been sanctioned by the New England Amateur Athletic Union. It will start at 11 a.m. from the parking lot of Sandy Beach in the Metropolitan District Commission park on Mystic Valley parkway, and conclude there at 1 p.m. Its route will pass through the suburbs of Medford, Arlington and Winchester.

Applications are available at the Starting Line Shops in all 11 Kennedy's locations.

Net proceeds from the race will go toward a multi-million dollar building pr9gram to replace inadequate facilities of the Boston Floating Hospital, founded in 1894. The hospittal derives its name from providing services for sick children on vessels in Boston Harbor for 33 years. BFH has been land-based since 1927 when its last ship burned to the waterline. In addition to 96 new beds, the development project will provide new radiological facilities and ambulatory services and replace and centralize outmoded surgical facilities and clinical laboratories for both children and adults.

Runners will leave Sandy Beach south on Mystic Valley Parkway, bearing right at the foot of Lower Mystic Lake and then to Rte. 3. They will proceed right on Rte. 3 to Everett avenue; turn right on Bacon street along the northern end of Upper Mystic Lake on to Mystic Valley parkway and south to Sandy Beach.

A water station will be set up at the route's half-way point. Timing teams will be at the two, three and four-mile points. First Aid service will be provided by the Tufts Sports Medicine staff.

Applications due for junior tennis tournament Sept. 8

The annual Juniors Town Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Department and the Winchester Tennis Association, will be held the weeks of Sept. 11 and 18 at the Packer Courts.

Open to all juniors, there will be two age divisions, 15 and under and 12 and under in each of the girls and boys singles and doubles events.

Applications may be picked up at the Winchester Sport Shop, the recreation department, from Everett Grey or Mrs. Marlene Rothmann, tournament director.

Youth soccer intramurals set to start Saturday

The Winchester Soccer Club's fall intramural youth soccer season will start Saturday.

Teams will be announced and shirts distributed at the following fields at 9 a.m.

Girls born in 1967 and 1968 report to Lynch Junior High School Field; all other girls report to Leonard Field.

Boys born in 1963 and 1964 report to the high school field; 1965 and 1966 repo4t to McDonald Field; 1967 and 1968 report to West Side Field; 1969 and 1970 report to McDonald Field; 1971 report to Muraco Field.

Prospective coaches and referees are urged to attend the soccer referee's clinic in the high school cafeteria tonight from 8-9:30.

All coaches are asked to attend a coaches clinic Saturday at 11 a.m. at McDonald Field.

Any parents or high school juniors or seniors who are interested in coaching or refereeing in the fall soccer program should contact Jim Earlam (729-8782) or Delip Bokil (729-8727).

Eunice Reardon, R.N., (center) of Winchester, received certificate marking completion of six-week course at New England Institute for Rehabilitation at the New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn. Also among the graduates, Maureen Farrow, R.N. (left), Burlington; and D. Jean Johnson, R.N., of Reading. Reardon and Johnson are on the staff of the Winchester Nursing Home.

Mary Bigelow-Vasel was assistant to the late Harriet Hoctor in her Winchester School for many years prior to taking over the school in 1974 at Miss Hoctor's request. She has danced professionally throughout New England as a soloist and with the Harriet Hoctor Dancers. She has also danced with the Boston Ballet Co., and in 1968, performed at the White House for the late Lyndon B. Johnson with 3 other members of the company. Her dancing talent helped her win the title of "Miss Massachusetts-World" that same year. She has also taught at the Boston School of Ballet and once headed the dance program at Carol Nashe Model Agency.

Big Bigger BIGGEST
Why not? Have your ad set in larger, darker, bolder attention-getting type! Yes, it does cost a little more. You can save a few little cents on your ad and lose many big dollars in sales. Now that really isn't economy, is it? It is especially important to have a big attractive ad if the items you are selling are perishable or have a short season. Call us at 643-7900 to place your CPI Classified ad. Remember, one call places your ad in all three of our publications.

Employment

THINK TWICE ABOUT HIRE II

If your business is expanding, you need skilled workers. Call your Division of Employment Security HIRE II representative. HIRE II is designed to meet your employment needs with qualified veterans. DES will do the recruitment and screening. You do the hiring and training.

HIRE II will reimburse you for up to 50% of the cost of training these new employees. HIRE II provides for on-the-job training of veterans. This means while your new employees are learning, they are also producing. You do the training, you build a skilled workforce to your own specifications.

BUT THINK FAST!

All contracting on the HIRE II program is targeted for completion by September 30, 1978. Any qualifying private-for-profit Massachusetts firm is eligible. There is no restriction on the number of HIRE II employees. Training programs must take no longer than six months. Starting wages must be at least $3.50 an hour.

CALL HIRE II AT 1-800-392-6136 TODAY
(or contact your nearest DES Job Center)

An Equal Opportunity Employer

September 1978. Work on a project you'll remember in September 1982.

This is what it's like to be an Arthur D. Little secretary. Working with creative people solving problems that often have worldwide impact.

This September our consultants may be analyzing a possible wheat shortage in a foreign country. Reorganizing a city's public transportation system. Advising a pharmaceutical company on a packaging problem.

Governments and industries all over the world call us. We say hardly anything is none of our business. We make what we're doing our secretaries' business, by solid orientation and the chance to move from project to project.

This is an excellent place to shape your career. Informal atmosphere. Fast pace. Would you fit? Are you more than a skilled secretary? Can you type 65-75 wpm? Have you had secretarial experience? Flexible, personable, used to pressure, responsible — with intellectual curiosity and a desire to be involved?

We should talk. Our excellent benefits include tuition aid, three weeks' vacation, profit sharing, and much more.

Call 864-5770 and speak with Helen Taverna, ext. 2204, or Kathy Semple, ext. 2205.

REAL ESTATE

by Ann Blackham

BE SMART FROM THE START

A homeowner has a big investment. When the time comes to sell that home, it's mighty, mighty important that you sell right...to make sure the investment has been a good one.

If pocketing a broker's commission tempts you, ask yourself if you can afford to let an amateur manage a transaction that involves thousands of dollars: Your dollars! When you want a job done well, you call a specialist. This is standard practice for successful businessmen: why buck success?

Some people try to sell their own property, fail and then list it with a Realtor. In the meantime, they've let the best prospects slip through their fingers.

Believe me. List your home with a Realtor from the start and you'll realize as much if not more profit and fewer problems from the sale than if you try to do it on your own. Statistics have proven this over and over again.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Fall programs at YMCA

Non-physical courses

The North Suburban YMCA is continuing its successful non-physical courses this fall, beginning the week of Sept. 25.

Courses are run once a week for eight consecutive weeks, and are geared for youth beginning at the first grade level.

Baton twirling: Instructed by National Baton Twirling Association, teacher and judge, Elaine Gangi. Basic, intermediate, and advanced level twirling skills, as well as a parade routine to participate in local parades will be taught. Gracefulness, coordination, and physical fitness are some of the benefits of baton twirling lessons. Children also have the excellent opportunity to compete and perform.

Photography for youth: A beginner course in photography for youth. There will be an opportunity to take pictures, develop them, and perhaps even a chance to enlarge them. Participants will also learn about pinhole cameras.

Arts and crafts workshop: Lessons and demonstrations will be given along with allowance for free individual work. Skills will include basic drawing, painting, clay work, weaving and macramae and collages.

Folk guitar: Learn the fundamentals of singing and playing folk music with guitar. There will be special instruction in advanced techniques such as strumming styles and how to transpose any sheet music. Registration will begin Sunday, Sept. 17, at 1:30-4 p.m.

For further information on non-physical programs or other youth classes, call or stop by the North Suburban YMCA at 137 Lexington st., Woburn, 935-3270.

Disco dancing

You don't have to wait for Saturday night to go dancing: TThe North Suburban YMCA introduces beginner disco lessons. This class will teach you "rhythmic flexibility and body movement" emphasizing development of one's own free style form and eventually advancing to partner dancing.

Open to singles and couples of all ages, an open house will be held Thursday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m. The instructor is Kathy Jannino.

Registration begins Sunday, Sept. 17.

For further information call 935-3270.

Youth swimming

Continue your child in swimming lessons at the North Suburban YMCA. The National Y Program has six levels of achievement. polliwog is for the non-swimmer. Minnow works on crawl, stroke, and backstroke. Fish works on breaststroke. Flying fish works on butterfly. Shark works on lifesaving skills. Porpoise works on advanced watermen skills.

All levels work on endurance, lifesaving, and safety skills. Classes run once a week for eight weeks in 45 minute classes.

Registration for fall classes begins Sunday, Sept. 17 from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

For further information, contact the Y at 935-3270.

Aerobic dancing

Learn to Swing N' Snap and tthe Suzy Q. Dance to Cha-Cha, Waltz or Rock at the North Suburban YMCA. Everyone wins with this total exercise program created by Jackie Sorenson. You'll have more energy...and still more energy, a better figure, and trimmer figure.

The seven-week course will begin Tuesday, Oct. 10.

Registration begins Sunday Sept. 17.

For further information, call the Y at 935-3270. Open to members and non-members.

Unitarian Church gets music director

Dale Shifler of Boston has been appointed director of music of the Winchester Unitarian Church where he will be organist, director of two choirs, and in charge of musical activities

Originally from Hagerstown, Md. Shifler is currently a candidate for master's degree at the New England Conservatory of Music where he is a student of Yuko Hayashi

Before moving to Boston, he received degrees in organ performance and English literature from Oberlin College Conservatory of Music

A recipient of several awards for his playing, he has given recitals throughout the Northeast. Recently he received a scholarship to atttend the Choate Organ Seminars in Wallingford. He has also had extensive training in choral conducting

Before accepting the Winchester position, Shifler was director of music at the First Unitarian Church in Belmont.

Publicity guide free at The Star

Free copies of a Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at the The Star office, 5 Church st.

The booklet has information regarding the preparation and submission of press releases and pictures and explains a little about how the newspaper goes together.

Wellesley chorus begins season

The Wellesley Choral Society will hold the first rehearsal of its 31st season Monday at 8 p.m. in the Wellesley Junior High School Choral Room (Donazelle st.).

SUPPORTS
for
MIDDLESEX COUNTY

ATTY. GUY A. CARBONE, Watertown Selectman is seeking the Democratic nomination to the office of DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY. I have known Guy since the fall of 1958 when I appointed him to the faculty of the Civil Engineering Department at Tufts University. He taught structural engineering until he left Tufts to return to M.I.T. In the fall of 1962 to continue his graduate study. He was a very successful teacher.

Following his education at M.I.T. he entered the construction industry and from 1966 to 1974 he was Chief Engineer for the Government Center Commission. I had professional contact with him during this assignment and I found him not only an excellent engineer, but also a fine administrator.

He has since been admitted to the Bar and is presently the Senior Counsel and Prosecutor for the State's Department of Labor and Industries, currently on unpaid leave of absence, campaigning full time for the office of DISTRICT ATTORNEY. He is married and living at 60 Knowles Road, Watertown.

I am supporting Guy in this endeavor because I have known him personally and because he is qualified, experienced and possessed of a solid reputation for honesty and dedication.

Accordingly I urge you to join me in supporting ATTORNEY GUY A. CARBONE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY. The Primary election will be held on Tuesday, September 19, 1978.

Since there is no candidate for the Rupublican nomination to the office of DISTRICT ATTORNEY, the successful candidate in the Democratic Primary will be elected in November. I urge all independents to vote for GUY A. CARBONE for DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Local resident charged by IRS with tax evasion

A Winchester upholsterer has been indicated by a Federal grand jury and charged with income tax law violations, US Atty. Edward F. Harrington said.

John A. Wilson, 65, of 45 Hutchinson rd., owner of Wilson's of Winchester, an upholstery firm was charged with three counts of income tax evasion. His case was presented to the federal grand jury by Asst. US Atty. Charles Chase.

Wilson allegedly reported taxable income of $5,089 with taxes of $786 in 1972 rather than $23,751 with taxes of $4,616; no income and no taxes for 1973 when it should have been $18,656 with taxes of $3,609. On the 1974 count, he reported taxable income of $858 with taxes of $120 instead of $19,227 with taxes of $4,399.

Mistreatment of police dogs leads to arrest, fines

Winchester Police Chief John P. McHugh has distributed a notice regarding a new addition to the law regarding mistreatment of police dogs and horses.

Persons who willfully injure or interfere with police dogs or horses may be arrested and punished pursuant to Chapter 287 of the Acts of 1978, which adds the following section to Chapter 272:

"Whoever willfully tortures, torments, beats, kicks, strikes, mutilates, injures, disables or otherwise mistreats, a dog or horse owned by a police department or police agency of the Commonwealth or any of its political subdivisions or whoever, willfully by any action whatsoever, interferes with the lawful performance of such dog or horse shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $500 or by imprisonment for not more than two and one half years or both.

"Persons violating this section may be arrested without a warrant by any officer qualified to serve criminal process provided said offense is committed in his presence."

Bulldozers have begun digging out a foundation for the new nursing home to be built on Swanton street, just below the Parkview Apartments. Groundbreaking ceremonies should be within the week, reports owner Gershon Salter.

Building department plans to enforce parking by-law

With the end of the summer recreational season close at hand, the Winchester Building Commissioner's office has issued a reminder concerning two pertinent sections of the zoning by-law.

These sections, 5.4 and 5.5, deal with the parking and storage of major recreational equipment and unregistered motor vehicles upon residentially zoned land. The regulations are presently being enforced on a town-wide basis, reports the department, and are here reprinted in their entirety.

Any questions regarding the applicability and enforcement of these regulations may be answered by calling the building department office at 729-0510.

Section 5.4: No major recreational equipment shall, except as hereinafter provided, be parked or stored on any lot in residential and SCI districts except in an enclosed building or in the rear yard, provided, however, that such equipment may be parked anywhere on residential premises for not to exceed 24 hours during loading and unloading.

For purposes of these regulations, major recreational equipment is defined as including boats and boat trailors, travel trailers, pick-up campers or coaches (designed to be mounted on automotive vehicles), motorized dwellings, tent trailers, and the like, and cases or boxes used for transporting recreational equipment, whether occupied by such equipment or not.

No such equipment shall be used for living, sleeping, or housekeeping purposes when parked or stored. Where, by reason of unique conditions, the strict application of these regulations would result in peculiar and exceptional practical difficulties, the board of appeals may issue a permit to allow the parking or storage of major recreational equipment within a front or side yard.

Section 5.5: Unregistered motor vehicles shall not be parked or stored upon any residential zoned property other than within completely enclosed buildings.

Unitarian Church to hold tryouts

Winchester Unitarian Players will hold tryouts for their fall play, "Ten Nights in a Barroom" Sept. 17 at 4 p.m. and Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Metcalf Hall, Winchester Unitarian Church.

The play, a musical comedy version of the famous temperance drama, will be directed by Robert Storer and performances are scheduled for Nov. 9, 10 and 11.

The contemporary version of this classic melodrama has been described as a "hilarious off-beat production" and the musical numbers capture the simple joys of the gay nineties era.

Many roles are available. There are places for seven men of all ages one of whom is a typical nasty villain. A part is available for a youngster who plays the role of a shoeshine boy trying to earn an honest living.

Five ladies will brighten the stage, including a dance hall girl with a heart of gold and a young girl described as an "angel child." Production opportunities are open for those interested in backstage work and everyone is invited to the tryout sessions.

Library films on Prince Edward Is., Madrid this week

A program of travel films will be shown Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. and an afternoon showing Sept. 15 at 2 in the Meeting Room of the Winchester Public Library.

"Madrid" is another in the series of touring great cities which was begun last spring. It will include a visit to the famed Prado Museum and of course some of the wonderful sidelights of bull fighting.

A scenic film of Prince Edward Island will also be on the program. It is called "Come in from Away" and shows the harmonious blend of the new and the old way of life on this island.

There will be a film program on Thursday evenings and Friday afternoons until the end of September.

Chief McHugh attends crime prevention seminar

Nearly 200 police chiefs including Winchester Police Chief John McHugh, and municipal administrators from about 125 communities recently attended a crime prevention orientation program in Brookline and Auburn. The sessions inaugurated the Commonwealth's new statewide crime prevention program known as "The Massachusetts Crime Watch."

Chief McHugh said he was "quite impressed" with the program which kicked off a state-wide crime prevention effort designed to educate police administrators on the goals of the program. The chief said the intent of the program was to encourage collaborative police work instead of "regions working against regions and large cities working against large cities." The chief said the new program is trying to reduce duplication of police work.

He said crime prevention has been addressed in the past "but it still needs more attention." The state-wide program is similar to local programs like "Neighborhood Watch" but educates police on how to educate the public on how to prevent crime.

Plans call for the selection and training of local crime prevention police officers, who will educate citizens in how to protect themselves and their property from criminals. Interaction between the police and the public was encouraged at the conference. The Mass. Criminal Justice Training Council instructed the crime prevention officers in its new facilities at Pine Manor College, Chestnut Hill.

The Municipal Police Institute, located in Berlin, provided informational materials and assistance through its Massachusetts Crime Prevention Bureau. The "Crime Watch" program will include units on home and business security, crime and the elderly, fraud, rape prevention, shoplifting, crimes against business, car theft, checks and credit card abuses, and vandalism.

The crime prevention program in Massachusetts was established by the Committee for Criminal Justice, and funded by a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, a federal agency.

Among the speakers at the orientation programs were Charles V. Barry, Mass. Secretary of Public Safety; Comm. Joseph M. Jordan, Boston Police Dept., and Chief John J. Hanlon, Worcester Police Department.

Discussing the need for increased crime prevention programs Darrell Joy, director of the Texas Crime Prevention Institute, said: "The statistics tell the story. A violent crime is committed every 32 seconds in the United States. Someon3 is murdered every 28 minutes. A woman is raped somewhere every 97 minutes. Someone is robbed every 75 seconds. And an aggravated assault takes place every 64 seconds.

"For the past 150 years the law enforcement community has reacted to crime 'after the fact.' This has not been effective. Nationally, less than 20 percent of the crimes committed in the country are cleared. 'Before the fact' prevention is the only new avenue left open to law enforcement.

"Crime prevention is potentially the most important innovation in law enforcement since the development of fingerprinting to identify criminal offenders."

A good, broadly based crime prevention program strengthens affirmative police-community attitudes, Joy stated. "Crime is not a police problem," he continued. "It is a community problem. There are few crimes committed against the police!"

The Massachusetts Crime Prevention Institute will make available an "Operation Identification" brochure to law enforcement agencies, for distribution to the public in September. Under the Massachusetts "Crime Watch" program, residents will be encouraged to engrave their valuables with an identification number, display an "Operation ID" sticker, and record descriptions of their marked property. This helps police return stolen property to owners, and has dramatically reduced burglary in communities where the majority of citizens have participated.

"Neighborhood Watch" programs and "Security Surveys" of homes and businesses may also be offered by local police.

Marauders win men's basketball summer league

The climax of the summer men's basketball season came the evening of Aug. 30 when the Maurauders held off Off-the-Hill 75-69 to win the championship of the recreation department's summer league.

The Marauders started fast and held a 46-30 halftime lead. Andy Stoeckle and Tim Porter each tallied points in the first half. Stoeckle initiated a Marauder surge by scoring a two-handed dunk on a fast break.

Carl Smith kept Off-the-Hill in the game with 10 first half points. Off-the-Hill, led by Nick Smyrnios' 18 second half points, rallied back to a six-point deficit with two minutes to go when Mike Heffernan fouled out.

As Off-the-Hill tried to take the lead, the Marauders fed Bobby McCabe, who used his 6'10" frame to its fullest advantage. McCabe was the game's high scorer, with 22 points, 14 of them coming in the second half.

Off-the-Hill was not able to overcome the six point stretch, despite the efforts of Vin Sollazzo (17 points), Nick Smyrnios (20 points), Carl Smith (12 points), and Steve Migliorini (10 points).

Leading scorers for the Marauders were McCabe, 22; Stoeckle, 20; and Porter, 17. Rick Maidrano, Joey Mozzicato, and Mike Heffernan ran the fast break to perfection and left the scoring to the big men.

League of Women Voters questions county candidates

There is quite a bit of political activity on the county level this election year, with candidates running for four separate offices: treasurer, commissioner, district attorney, and register of probate

So far The Star has carried the announcements of 12 county candidates, including seven running for county treasurer In order to help voters sort out the prospects, the Arlington League of Women Voters has prepared a questionnaire for the area describing briefly what the jobs entail, how much they pay, and who is running for them Each candidate is asked a single question about how they would perform their duties.

District attorney

Four-Year Term — Salary: $36,203

Prosecutes all criminal and civil cases within the district that come before the Superior Court, if the Commonwealth is a party or interested. Enforces laws and may initiate investigations Names his own assistants.

QUESTION: In view of the increased pressure for the elimination of county government and its impact on local property tax, which of the services provided by the office you are seeking could be reduced, eliminated or performed by other levels of government?

Guy A. Carbone
60 Knowles Road, Watertown

Present Occupation: Senior Counsel, State Department of Labor and Industries (on unpaid leave of absence)

Education: three degrees MIT (BS 1957, MS 1958, Civil Engineer 1963) JD, Suffolk University Law School, Graduate U.S. Army Command and General Staff College

Preparation for public office: four university degrees; Watertown School Committee, 12 years; Selectman, three years; Special Asst. Attorney General; Special Asst. District Attorney, two counties; extensive experience - criminal prosecutions.

Funds for the maintenance of the office of District Attorney of Middlesex County come from three sources, the state, the county and from federal grants. The assumption by the state of court costs should help relieve the property tax burden if local elected officials cooperate to hold public spending within present tax revenues and if the Legislature stops mandating programs for cities and towns without providing the necessary funds.

The office of District Attorney provides two essential functions in support of the criminal justice system: 1. state police assigned to the office of the District Attorney investigate criminal activity. 2. prosecution of defendants charged with committing crime.

With all prosecutors serving full time we will fix accountability and limit the caseloads of the prosecutors; we will also screen and assess felonies and serious misdemeanor cases. These procedures will increase the conviction rate and diminish the rate of appeals on points of law by the defendants. Thus the ratio of real convictions to tax dollars spent will decrease, thereby substantially benefitting the taxpayer.

Also by identifying those cases that should be handled on a priority basis, we hope to bring to bear as much fresh and probative evidence as possible with a minimum of lost time and loss of wages to witnesses and to victims who are called. To the extent that we can increase the effective conviction rate to 70 percent in the Superior Court and the district courts we should save the taxpayer real dollars.

By co-operating with other agencies in the state and federal governments such as the FBI, IRS, Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Attorney, Attorney General, state and local police and other district attorneys we will decrease duplication of effort in a coordinated and organized attack on criminal activity; again insuring a real savings in tax dollars. Prudence must govern strict economy. All administrative positions will be reviewed and those found to be unnecessary will be eliminated. Emphasis will be placed on retainng dedicated and experienced prosecutors based on merit.

John J. Droney
328 Broadway, Cambridge

Present Occupation: District Attorney

Education: Suffolk Law School, later obtained a Master's Degree in law.

Preparation for Public Office: In 1956 — appointed Assistant District Attorney; 1957 — Special Aid to First Assistant; January, 1959 — Appointed First Assistant; Oct. 14, 1959 — Appointed District Attorney.

In response to your question about the pressures to eliminate County Government due to the impact of its cost on local property taxes, at the outset, attention must be focused on the recent passage of the so-called Court Reform legislation (Chapter 478 of the Acts of 1978) which goes a long way toward eliminating the role of County Government in the criminal justice system.

It consolidates numerous separate county court budgets into one state court budget and shifts the District Attorney's budget from the county to the state. This law may produce savings to the taxpayers simply by enabling the courts and the District Attorney to engage in scientific budgetary planning free of the political intrigue of the county government system.

In terms of the services performed by the Middlesex County District Attorney's office, it would be possible to reduce costs in one important area if the Legislature would enact legislation I have drafted and filed in each of their sessions eliminating the trial de novo system in our district courts. This system, which unfortunately is preserved in part by the recent court reform law, results in many unnecessary trials in the district court which in turn serve to drain the limited resources of my office. This antiquated system also wastes valuable police officer time and imposes an undue hardship on the victims of crime who must appear in court more often than is necessary.

In other areas, however, the public should be aware that law enforcement costs are increasing because of the added demands that have been placed on prosecuting offices, especially in cases involving abused children, battered wives and violent sexual assaults. With challenges such as these to meet which threaten to destroy the very fabric of our society we cannot possibly consider the reduction or elimination of prosecution services.

Scott Harshbarger
1540 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge

Present Occupation: Candidate

Education: Harvard College - BA, 1964; Union Theological Seminary — 1964-65; Harvard Law School-1968, LLB

Preparation for Public Office: Chief, Public Protection Bureau, Department of Attorney General; Deputy Chief Counsel, Massachusetts Defenders Committee; Director, Criminal Justice Project, Lawyers' Committee; Associate, Goodwin, Proctor and Hoar

County government is generally obsolete, wasteful and duplicative of many local and state functions. The existing inefficiencies of the Middlesex County District Attorney's office, however, stem much more from antiquated methods of administration and under-utilization of available resources than from the office's county-wide organization.

Despite recent enactment of long-overdue and beneficial court reform legislation, the Massachusetts court system — and the District Attorney's office — will continue to operate on a county basis for the foreseeable future. Given this fact of political life, the District Attorney's office, therefore, faces the distinct challenge of providing law enforcement and prosecutorial services county-wide in a professional economical manner.

The District Attorney's office by its very nature must perform prosecutorial functions which cannot be delegated to other levels of government. There is, nevertheless, considerable room for implementing new policies designed, without any increase in cost to the taxpayers to have a positive effect on the quality of life in the county. These changes would include:

—organizing a professional legal office, responsive to the needs of citizens, functioning under clear policies and out of a sense of fundamental fairness and justice, rather than patronage or favoritism.

—creating a cost-efficient administration using modern management techniques;

—realizing the potential of the office to attack street crime, white-collar crime, consumer fraud, political corruption, organized crime, juvenile crime, domestic violence and drug abuse;

—making the district courts truly the people's courts, rewsponsive to community needs; using this critical court level as a major vehicle for reducing inefficiency and delay, and for innovative, cost-efficient approaches to the problems of criminal justice.

The possibilities for the office are unlimited. So long as the Massachusetts court system continues to be organized around counties, the challenge to the Middlesex District Attorney's office will be to modernize its approach and to maximize its potential to see justice done.

Commissioner

Four-Year Term — Salary: $10,355.16

The commission administers county property and the management of county business. It has charge of erection and repair of court houses, jails and other public buildings within and for the use of the county; quasi-judicial function with respect to such matters as land-takings for county and town highways, certain tax appeals, and minor parole matters. It appoints minor county officials.

QUESTION: In view of the increased pressure for the elimination of county government and its impact on local property tax, which of the services provided by the office you are seeking could be reduced, eliminated or performed by other levels of government?

William C. Chisholm, Jr.
18 Oakland Street, Newton

Present Occupation: Contractor

Education: St. Charles High School, Waltham; Newman Prep, two years

Preparation for Public Office: Democratic City Committee - Newton; Mayors Citizens Advisory Committee on Housing; Member (former) Board of Directors, Newton Community Service Center, officer in many youth sports groups.

Which ones to reduce, etc., can best be determined by an honest approach of the best informed people namely the County Commissioners.

Almost all functions of county government could be handled by state or local, city or town, government. The state is now going to get the court system (county) and probably can do a better job of administration.

I find the real question is what is county government? I strongly suspect it is just a budgetary agency of the state, rife with patronage, nepotism and back room decision making to please those who are well connected.

I hope to open the window on county government for all to see whatever there is to see. I have no political baggage and I am running an almost no cost campaign. We only hear about county government at election time, after November it sinks back into obscurity in every way except cost.

Michael T. Cunningham
1 Woodhill Road, Burlington

Present Occupation: Insurance Broker

Education: Northeastern University Insurance and Business

Preparation for Public Office: I have held public office since I was 18 serving on Council On Aging, Democratic Town Committee, and presently Chairman of the Burlington Board of Health

Before any worthwhile change can be instituted in the present system there must first be a board of commissioners that can work together with some degree of continuity.

For far too long the County of Middlesex has either been represented by individuals using the office as a stepping stone, or as an arena where a game of "tug of war" has recently broken out among the present board with the taxpayer footing the bill, paying for legal fees incurred when one of the commissioners accused the other two board members of holding private meetings without his knowledge.

Ill-fated, scandal ridden projects like the Cambridge Court House approved by a board of Commissioners of which the present incumbent was a member of at that time, has done little to reaffirm the voters belief in the Middlesex County system.

Overall county government hasn't worked as well in Massachusetts as similar systems have done in other parts of the country. When it should be directly responsible to the cities and towns within its boundaries it isn't, instead it is nothing more than an unwanted ward of the state.

Once it gains its independence from state control, the county system can be operated on a sound fiscal basis. An overall cut of 20 percent of the personnel staff directly responsible to the commissioners can result in a savings of almost $100,000.

The adoption of a no hire no fire program of county workers can substantially reduce your property tax dollars and a strict policy of keeping the county out of the building business will prevent more of your property tax dollars from being spent on costly courthouse buildings.

The people of California have made their wishes known throughout the country. I feel that it's about time we start throwing a few things overboard to lighten the load.

I do not agree that the county system should be completely abolished. Now that the state is taking over the operating costs of the court system, I believe the county will be in a better position to serve the needs of the local communities in areas such as cooperative waste control, cooperative purchasing (regionalized), etc.

CPR course

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation in a basic life support procedure for victims whose lungs and heart have ceased to function effectively.

The most common cause of cardiac arrest is heart attack, but it also may be caused by airway obstruction from choking. Basic cardiac life support instruction involves prudent heart living, risk factor identification and modification, early warnings of heart attack, care of the possible victim and CPR.

The course will be offered Oct. 9, 16 and 23.

LWV questions county candidates

Treasurer

Six-Year Term — Salary: $20,786.08
The treasurer has charge of receiving, holding and disbursing county funds according to law. Acts as county paymaster.

QUESTION: In view of the increased pressure for the elimination of county government and its impact on local property tax, which of the services provided by the office you are seeking could be reduced, eliminated or performed by other levels of government?

Rocco J. Antonelli
63 Swan Road, Winchester

Present Occupation: Certified Public Accountant
Education: Somerville High School; Tufts College, BS, magna cum laude; Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration, MBA; Suffolk Law School; New York University Tax Institute; University of Miami Tax Institute; Bentley College (CPA Review); LB.M. (Computer Training).

I want to make my position forthright and clear. "The elimination of county government requires analysis." There are "pros" and "cons" on this issue.

Accounting, dispersing, payroll payments, tax collection, and other routine treasuer's functions can be transferred and assumed by the state. Many of these functions can be further computerized. The transfer or elimination of the County Retirement System and funds could present a deluge of problems with employees in the system, retirees receiving payments, and the philosophy of fund investments. Labor disputes could result because of benefit determinations and changes in administration.

Sufficient problems exist related to the State Retirement Fund without compounding the issue with the assumption of County Retirement Fund administration. If a reduction of county services occurs, a tremendous transition problem would be created, and extremely capable handling would be required.

These latter comments only substantiate my contention that in-depth surveys and analyses of the problem are necessary; a competent County Treasurer at this point of time can be extremely helpful in implementing cost reductions, maintenance of adequate services, management and personnel studies, or whatever functions county or state officials may mandate. Actions of the House and Senate actually dictate what County officials can and cannot do, because of budget appropriations.

Rather than recommend any firm or specific course of action, I would prefer to thoroughly analyze the situation after being elected, utilize my wide experience and abilities, and install or recommend procedures in order to give the people of Middlesex County the services which they need for the least possible cost.

My past accomplishments as a Treasurer and a Certified Public Accountant attest to my qualifications to reorganize governmental agencies, reduce taxes, and implement sound financial administration policies.

James F. Brennan
91 Prescott Street, Medford

Present Occupation: President Treasurer - Brennan Insurance Agency, Inc.
Education: Medford High School; Northeastern University (nights) Business Mgmt., two years; Noval School of Accounting
Preparation for Public Office: Long time student of government - emphasis on Administration and Finance; Served as Executive Secretary and Former Somerville Mayor; Served - Executive Secretary - - Budgetary control and general administration.

The operation of the county treasurer's office and the services it provides goes far beyond those usually provided by a treasurer's office.

For example, Middlesex County does not have an auditor. Because of this it is necessary that the treasuer's office, in addition to its usual services, perform those functions that are normally provided by an auditor. Most important of these functions is the establishment and maintenance of effective controls over the budgets, bill rolls, contracts and payrolls of the various agencies within the county government structure.

Additionally, the treasurer's office is charged with administrating the affairs of the County Retirement System.

As long as county government exists, therefore, it will not be possible to reduce, eliminate or delegate to others the services provided by the County Treasurer's office. The staff necessary to provide these services can and should be reduced, however, as the various facets of county government are phased out.

Thomas F. Coughlin

Present Occupation: Insurance Agency - owner
Education: St. John's High School, Cambridge; Attended Boston College
Preparation for Public Office: Business man for past 20 years in present occupation. Former First Assistant and Acting Registrer of Deeds at East Cambridge Court House.

In my opinion at the present time the function of the treasurer office could not be further reduced, eliminated or performed by any other level of government. The Retirement Board (a function of the Treasurer's office) at the present time has a responsibility for approximately 10,000 members of towns and districts whose funds are handled by that office for the benefit of its members. The treasurer office has only a minimal staff for the handling of county payrolls and expenditures, a major effort for one of the largest counties in the U.S.A.

Present Occupation: Treasurer of Massachusetts Correctional Institute, Concord
Education: Boston University BS 1958-1962; Bentley College of Accounting and Finance (night school 1966-70), Boston State College - Master Degree Candidate in Public Management (1974-76)
Preparation for Public Office: School Committee - four terms; experienced accountant; proven ability directing large staffs; versed - motivational techniques; knowledge - innovative accounting and management systems; federal gran5s writer; certified teacher.

The functions of the county system can be transferred in entirety to the state without any loss of service. However, this is a legislative decision as was the recent legislative reform to transfer the judicial process of the county to state auspices. In the eventuality of state take-over, duplicated positions should be eliminated by attrition.

While we do have the county system, the most efficient and effective use should be made of it. The county must provide services that are useful and meaningful to the constitutent cities and towns of the County. As this is applicable to the Treasurer's Office, services, such as offering consolidated payroll and accounting systems for the towns of the county, may indirectly reduce the cost of town operations.

Finally and more directly, the budget of the Treasurer's Office (1978-79) has been reduced by 25 percent while most other county offices have been expanded. I would be reluctant to suggest any further reduction until the impact of the reduction is fully evaluated in the light of the recent budgetary changes.

Present Occupation: Self-Employed Public Accountant
Education: Graduate of Bentley College
Preparation for Public Office: Experience - City Manager, Treasurer and Collector of Taxes, Assistant Treasurer, State Municipal Examiner, Municipal Accountant - various seminars, workshops and courses in municipal government.

Taxpayers everywhere want to trim government to manageable proportions. I believe that a County Treasurer should take the initiative to evaluate every county program to assure the taxpayer that every dollar spent by the county is returning needed cost effective services.

A strong financial management system would tell the people and their elected officials, particularly the County Advisory Board of local officials and the County Commissioners how efficiently each program is operating. The management system would enable decisions to be made to eliminate ill advised programs, to transfer programs to other levels of government for more efficient delivery, and to strengthen programs that are best operated at the county level.

In other words, I recommend that we carefully plan and justify every expenditure, and I believe that I bring to the position of Treasurer the training and experience to implement a responsible, cost conscious evaluation system

It is my intention to:

1. practice attrition in t ose departments that, through modernization, could afford a reduction in personnel, coupled with a reduction in areas where a duplication of effort exists. The philosophy of my candidacy is to consolidate county government where possible limiting bureaucratic growth.

2. comprehensively review all programs being financed by pre-auditing all expenses and by clearly defining the objectives of these programs emphasizing economy and proficiency.

3. consistently review the established banking practices to ensure the best return possible on monies invested.

4. the institution of a competitive managerial attitude similar to that of private industry designed to curtail rising costs.

However, the terminology of your questions implies that you, as a representative body, are sympathetic to the proposals for the elimination of the county system through consolidation with that of the state. I have not made a determination. Numerous variables are to be considered and I am not entirely convinced that the legislation will lend itself to less bureaucracy, more responsiveness, a higher degree of proficiency and lower costs as it relates to reduction of property tax as a primary source of county revenue.

I have chosen to remain objective pending a closer study of the mechanics of such a proposal and an opportunity to review the system presently functioning in Connecticut. Although county government in Massachusetts is not as significant as it is in most other states of the country, I am not convinced that by adjusting the state bureaucracy to eliminate and absorb that of the counties is the best feasible alternative.

Possibley we should seek alternative sources of revneue rather than sacrificing a system that we can indeed control. I am skeptical of any proposals that give legislators more money and authority, this has been done in the past and it has not particularly achieved a higher caliber of government proficiency and representation.

Preparation for Public Offic Office: Priest, Attorney, Teacher, Mayor of Somerville for four terms, Middlesex County Commissioner for past six years.

During my first two years as county commissioner with Paul Tsongas, we reduced the county budget substantially. Payrolls were curtailed; the county hospital eliminated its deficit for the first time in its history; Walden Pond was turned over to the Department of Conservation; the County Training School was closed; a central purchasing department for the county was established.

When Paul Tsongas was elected to Congress, I became the minority member of the three person commission. During the past four years in this capacity, I have spoken in protest at the return to old ways of patronage and extravagance. As a result, many important issues have been resolved privately to prevent my scrutiny, and the decisions have been forwarded to the treasurer's office for payment.

If elected, I shall continue to monitor county government in the public interest, and I shall require not only that all bills be verified, but that all county business be transacted in public and after full public discussion.

My policy with county bank deposits will be to maximize income to the county and minimize interest payments paid by the county. With reference to the County Retirement System, I am committed to making this secretive and haphazard system run openly and efficiently.

My general commitment to public service is to exercise authority firmly, humbly and unhindered by personal or private self interest.

Many of the duplicate county-state services now provided by the county, such as those in the County Highway and Public Works Department, and in the county hospitals should be eliminated, as these services are already being supplied by the state. I would work toward the elimination of these duplicate services including any duplicate services within the Treasurer's Office.

Register of probate

Six-Year Term — Salary: $32,000.00
Supervises the maintenance of records and the execution of court rules for probate court, of which there is one in each county: wills, divorce actions, other petitions, bankruptcy cases not under the jurisdiction of federal courts.

QUESTION: In view of the increased pressure for the elimination of county government and its impact on local property tax, which of the services provided by the office you are seeking could be reduced, eliminated or performed by other levels of government?

Edward J. Bishop, Jr.
232 Bouchard Avenue, Dracut
Present Occupation: Court Officer, Ayer District Court
Education: Graduated Dracut High School, Law Enforcement Courses at University of Lowell
Preparation for Public Office: Present Chairman, Greater Lowell Regional School Committee; Present Moderator, Dracut Water Supply District

The foregoing question does not apply to the office of Register of Probate because the Probate Court and all of its personnel and functions are funded entirely by the commonwealth and are part of the state budget. The Registry of Probate is not part of county government and its activities have no impact on local property taxes.

The question is further complicated by the fact that on July 1, 1978 the Probate Court of which the Registry is an integral part has become a Department of the Trial Court of Massachusetts and is subject to the supervision of the Chief Administrative Justice of the Trial Court who will be named by the Supreme Judicial Court in September. This was brought about by the Court Reorganization Act (Court Reform Act) enacted in July of this year. The function of the Probate Courts and the financing of the same will be directed by the Chief Administrative Justice.

Notwithstanding the above there are two areas to which I shall give special attention. The first relates to rendering the Family Service Function more effective. The second would be to put an end to the patronage oriented practice of the appointment of Guardina Ad Litems wherein a favored few lawyers are named to review accounts of estates and trusts allegedly to protect the interest of children, the elderly and persons under guardianship or conservatorship and who receive large fees which are taken away from the funds which are intended to benefit these unfortunate people.

The Probate Court is really a Family Court and a Domestic Relations Court, and its purpose is to render service to people with essentially human problems. The great increase in the number of broken families due to divorces and separtions has created a greater need for the protection of the rights and well being of children and a more efficient system for the collection of Support Orders.

The latter will help reduce the welfare burden borne by the taxpayers. The more effective use of the Family Service Office of the Probate Court can prevent many unfortunate instances of child neglect and child abuse and greatly increase the amount of Support money collected. The family Service Officers can also perform the duties now done by the Guardian Ad Litems without extra cost to anyone.

Robert V. Campo
7 Cypress Street, Somerville

Present Occupation: Chairman of the Somerville Board of Assessors
Education: Somerville Public Schools; Continuing Ed. at UMass and MIT
Preparation for Public Office: As a six-year Somerville Assessor and current Chairman, I have acquired the necessary skills as an administrator for the office I seek.

The Registry of Probate renders many essential services not duplicated by any other government agency. The Acts and Resolves of the General Court pertaining to the Probate are among the oldest statues of the Commonwealth and together make up a separate branch of the judiciary.

At the same time, the office of the Register of Probate gnerates revenue, returned to the General Fund where it may off-set costs in other areas. Therefore, to reduce services might prove counter-productive.

However, I do believe there is a need for an active Register to update some of the more archaic features of Probate and to improve the efficiency, over-all, of this arm of government. A program to educate the public in various aspects of Probate law and practice would be among my goals if elected.

So it is with special interest and pleasure that I respond to your brief questionnaire, for it is through civic-minded groups, for example, the League of Women Voters, that such progrmas can be brought effectively to the people.

Education: Gradute: Medford High, Suffok Univ. (A.B.), Suffolk Law
Preparation for Public Office: 19 years Practice of Law; Former State Representative; Present Register - Trained by: Profession, Education, Experience.

Recently enacted Court Reform will help court systems perform more effectively as well as more efficiently.

Middlesex County Register of Probate and entire staff are, and, have been State Employees and as such will not be directly affected by Court Reform.

As tenants in county building and sharing both in state budget for salaries and county budget for operating expenses Registry will save many tax dollars by operating now under state budget only.

Leonard F. Deacon Doyle
4 Frothingham Road, Burlington

Present Occupation: Superior Court Assistant Law Librarian
Education: Cambridge Latin High; Seton Hall
Preparation for Public Office: Former Chairman of Selectmen, Town of Burlington; Democratic Town Committee Chairman; Superior Court Ass't Law Librarian for past 11 years.

Under the Court Reform Act recently signed into law by the Governor, the Probate Court system as heretofore existing, becomes the Probate Court and Family Department of the Trail Court of Massachusetts. The court is headed by an Administrative Justice, who will be assisted by the Register of Probate in providing a forum for domestic and estate matters, the principal business of the Probate Court. This administrative structure is operated and funded on the state level, county government providing only the buildings which house the court.

As a result, the reform and reduction which I will propose will be within the Register's office itself, rather than in its relation to County government. There are many areas where internal savings can be effected, both in procedural reform and in more efficient use of personnel. Although my proposed cost reductions will not effect County assessments, they will be reflected in an overall savings to the taxpayer by reducing the Probate budget on the state level.

Ralph R. Hogan
43 Seventh Street, Lowell
Present Occupation: Division of Environmental Management, Commonwealth of Mass.
Education: Lowell Public Schools, University of Lowell
Preparation for Public Office: Member, Lowell Conservation Commission

The Register of Probate is the chief administrative officer of the Probate Court. This court has jurisdiction over estates, divorces, adoptions and guardianships among other matters.

The Court Reform Bill, recently signed by Governor Dukakis, has several effects on the Probate Court. While raising the salary of Register to an unconscionable $33,000 per annum, the bill does start the process of transfering the costs of operation of the Court to the state.

I am sure that the citizens of Middlesex recognize that meaningful reform is more than a state assumpton of costs. The Omnibus Probate Bill has made some progress toward reducing costly and archaic practices. No Fault divorce has also assisted in reducing the time consumed in the courts by lawyers, litigants and court personnel.

The services provided in the Probate Court are both too few and too costly. That Court has become increasingly important in many areas of law. For example, "Right to Die" cases are heard in that court. New legal issues are coming before a Court that is seriously overburdened. The 54 cities and towns of Middlesex County have grown rapidly but court services have not expanded commensurately.

It would be improper to pretend that massive cuts in services are possible. Costs can, however, be reduced.

Computerization of the docket would be one example. With terminals in major urban areas of the county, lawyers could schedule matters in light of the known case load. Clients would not spend many hours waiting to be heard.

Even this simple step requires forethought. In the second generation, all the Courts of the Commonwealth will probably be on a single computer hook-up. This second-generation of electronic administration must smoothly mesh with my more limited proposal.

Efficiency is my first priority. Costs can be controlled, while services improved.

John R. Harvey enters probate race

John R. Harvey

John R. Harvey of Wilmington has announced his candidacy for tthe office of Register of Probate for Middlesex County.

"The high work load of the Probate Court demands full-time participation on the part of the register. If I am elected, I will give my undivided attention to the job," Harvey said.

Harvey said that he felt it important to eliminate the backlog of cases in the probate court. He said that he would work to speed up the transactions of the court. He further said that a more efficient operation of the office of register would result in a reduction of costs and thus a savings to the taxpayer.

A resident of Wilmington for 32 years, Harvey is an inspector on the Wilmington Police Department. Appointed to the department as a special officer in 1955, he has been a permanent officer since 1961.

As a part of his law enforcement career, Harvey has studied statute law and substantive law, attending both Merrimack College and Middlesex Community College.

Harvey pointed out that he carries full qualification for holding the office of register. Harvey is seeking the nomination in the Democratic party.

Travel Along with:

Mavis
Located in the western Mediterranean between Minorca and Iviza, 1,405 square miles around, lies Majorca (also spelled Mallorca), Spain. It is the largest of the Balearic Islands, and with beautiful mountains strung across the northwest coast which rise to 4,741 feet in Puig Major and thereby shelter the island from northerly winds, Majorca is a popular tourist spot. The climate is mild, the vegetation luxurious, and it abounds in olives, vines, almonds, citrus fruits, and limestone caves. In the 19th Century the notorious French writer George Sand spent a long winter there with Frederic Chopin, and wrote a famous travel gulde called "A Winter in Mallorca".
This is an enchanting Island. No matter where you travel, come to MCGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn for your reservations...Majorca is an incredibly beautiful island which is no more expensive than the overcrowded playgrounds closer to home. Call 935-0600. Open Monday-Friday 9-5 Saturdays and evening by appointment.

LWV quizes Senate candidates Lyons, Porter, Rotondi

Two weeks ago, The Star ran a questionnaire directed at the three candidates for Senate from the Fourth Middlesex District. This week another questionnaire appears, sent out by the Arlington League of Women Voters on behalf of all the local League groups in the district.

Two-Year Terms — Salary: $16,072.68 (plus $100 per month for office expenses, and also travel expenses on days when the legislature is in session. Chairmen of standing committees receive an additional one third salary.)

The Senate and the House of Representatives make up the Great and General Court, the lawmaking body of the Commonwealth. The General Court enacts laws dealing with such matters as state appropriaions, finance, public welfare, taxation, conservation, public works, housing, and education. Money bills must originate in the House. The House has the power of impeachment, the Senate tries impeachments.

QUESTION: In view of the increased demand for tax relief, what alternative sources of state revenue would you support to provide local property tax relief? What programs would you reduce or eliminate? Explain.

Lyons

James J. Lyons, Jr.
21 Russell Street, Arlington

Present Occupation: Full-Time Candidate

Education: Arlington Catholic High School; Brandeis University, B.S. Political Science

Preparation for Public Office: Arlington School Committee; Massachusetts Assn of School Committees; Arlington Town Meeting Member (1972-75); Co-Chairman, Arlington Vandalism Committee; Executive Director, Fidelity House Community Center; Businessman.

It is evident that one of the overriding concerns of the people of Massachusetts is the question of property tax relief. Politicians have been talking about tax reform for years, yet the tax rate continues to soar. Clearly, the voters are demanding substantive proposals rather than the same old empty promises.

There are certain principles which must be adhered to if property tax relief is to have a real and lasting impact. First, the state legislature must refuse to pass any additional state mandated programs which increase the burden on property taxpayers. Second, local aid which is allocated by the legislature must be delivered with "no strings attached." Local officials should decide how this money is to be used, not statehouse bureaucrats.

Third, the legislature must be certain that local aid is permanently available to communities for the purpose of property tax relief, not just during election years. Fourth, and most importantly, the taxpayers must be guaranteed that a reduction of local taxes will not be accompanied by an increase in state taxes.

Our state's budget is currently an astronomical $5 billion. There certainly is enough revenue in a budget of this size to provide direct and substantial property tax relief, without increasing state taxes. At the same time, most, if not all, of this state's bureaucracies could eliminate the waste from their budgets without a significant reduction in the services they provide.

The experiences of other states indicate that tax reduction does not force state and local agencies to cut back services drastically. Rather, such a reduction forces those agencies to become more cost conscious, as well as, more attentive to the needs of both the taxpayers and the beneficiaries of state services.

Finally, a reduction of taxes would give our state a much needed economic boost by attracting business (and employment opportunities) to the area. This increased economic activity would, in turn, provide the state with additional tax revenue and reduce the load on many of the state's relief agencies.

Porter

Diane R. Porter
393 Lincoln Street, Lexington

Present Occupation: Wife, mother of three, homemaker, D.C. Heath Publishing Co., Marketing Division

Education: Brookline Public Schools, Bridgewater State College, Hickox School.

Preparation for Public Office: Eighteen years political activity - Watertown Republican Town Committee; Watertown Womens' Republican Club; Lexington Republican Club; Bridge School PTA; campaign worker.

To provide meaningful, long lasting property tax relief is a goal which is finally within our grasp. If the proper steps are taken, no additional taxes will have to be levied against the already over burdened taxpayer.

First, we have to pass the CLT amendment to the Constitution, which would put a limit on the spending and taxing authority of the state government.

Next, we trim some flab off of our overweight, patronage swollen state bureaucracy, and try to dilute the power of the special interest lobbies on the hill who press for special legislation and then send us the bill.

After that, we take a hard look at every existing state budget and peel off the layers of waste and duplicity. Then, we re-create an economic climate which would be favorable to business - such as has been done in New Hampshire and Connecticut - which would broaden the tax base, create more jobs, and bring a rennaissance to our economy.

Most important, we must realize that we have become too dependent on the government. We can't demand services and then complain when we get the bill for those services. Gradually, we have to unplug ourselves from the false belief that Government can solve all of our problems, because government itself has become our biggest problem.

Yes, there may be painful local readjustments due to temporary decreases in government services, but surely, for the people on fixed incomes and for those middle class citizens who have always paid everyones' bills, the fact that they will have more money in their pockets can only have good results.

Just remember, as registered voters, you are the largest lobby in Massachusetts. Now is the time to make your voice heard. You may never have another chance like this.

Rotondi

Samuel Rotondi
54 Sunset Road, Winchester

Present Occupation: Massachusetts State Senator

Education: Winchester School System, Brown University, Suffolk Law School

The state's surplus supplied the funds this year which will provide local property tax relief. I supported the use of these monies for the state take over of the court system, thus, removing court costs from local property tax. A majority of the surplus was funneled into an increased commitment by the state to local educational costs, thus reducing again the burden on local property tax.

I am the co-author of the new law which increases elderly abatements as well as setting new standards of eligibility which will bring much needed relief to many elderly property taxpayers who are on fixed incomes.

The use of surplus money to directly alleviate the burden on property tax is more desirable than using alternative sources of state revenue which in effect means relying more heavily on other taxes.

Cutting taxes and putting reasonable limits on taxes is a better approach than simply shifting the burden from one tax to another. I will support a reasonable limitation on the property tax, and have already supported a cap on the State Budget.

"The most feasible way to reduce or eliminate programs would be through Sunset Legislation which I support. Also, I support a new approach to state budgeting, zero-based budgeting, which would constantly reexamine the efficiency of all programs."

I support increased policing of our welfare system to rid the system of fraud, and a change in the concept of the program from the present which perpetuates generations of welfare recipients to one that will help those in need to a point where they were able to help themselves.

Lastly, the establishment of a local aid fund to encourage full funding of mandated programs will serve to further alleviate property tax burden.

Lifesaving courses

The North Suburban YMCA is offering an eight-week course in Red Cross advanced senior lifesaving to start the week of Sept. 25.

The course imparts swimming and lifesaving skills needed to save one's own life or that of another person. Student must be at least 15 years of age and have a knowledge of the crawl stroke, breast stroke and [illegible] stroke.

Basic aquatic safety is offered to teach life preservation, basic non-contact rescue, [illegible] to prepare the student for advanced aquatic safety and senior lifesaving through fundamental skills and water safety knowledge. The course is the pre-requisite for YMCA advanced aquatic safety and [illegible] lifesaving to be offered during the winter session.

Registration for these courses will start Sunday, Sept. 17 at 1:30-4 p.m. For further information, contact the North Suburban YMCA at 935-3270.

Inter-community bloodmobile scheduled for Tuesday in Woburn

An inter-community blood donor day is scheduled for Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. in the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Forest Park Road, Woburn. This will be the ninth year that the church has hosted this annual blood donor drive.

Volunteer telephone recruiters are now contacting donors, from more than 15 communities, who have registered during the past two years, in order to schedule appointments. For an appointment call Mrs. George Garland at the church office 933-4600 from 9 a.m. to noon. Mr. K. B. Woodworth, 245-5388, may be called at any other time. If unable to make an appointment, come and give blood anyway (the earlier the better) - the life you save could be your own.

With blood supplies particularly low after the vacation months, and with the increases in accidents, injuries and illnesses, the need for donors is urgent.

A spokesman for the Woburn Red Cross Chapter emphasizes, "Blood is one of the doctor's most valuable aides. Many people are alive today because blood was available when they needed it. The Red Cross does not need blood - people do."

Red Cross, the intermediary, relies completely on volunteer donors to keep a constantly sufficient supply of blood on hand. Blood comes from only one source, healthy people who are willing to give of themselves.

All healthy persons, from 17 years old (with parental consent) to 66, are asked to participate in Tuesday's Blood Donor Day.

A human body contains from 10 to 12 pints of blood and the donated pint is quickly replaced. A donor may safely give a pint of blood every eight weeks.

The actual donation itself usually takes less than 10 minutes - the whole procedure, from medical history taking to light refreshments following the donation normally takes about 30 minutes.

Before a donor gives, his medical history is checked, his temperature is taken as is his blood pressure, pulse, and hemoglobin level. A drop of his blood is typed and tested for diseases which might be transmitted to the receiving patient or patients. This mini-physical can be of benefit to the prospective donor for, if any of the tests indicate a need for medical attention, it is an "alert" to consult a physician.

Some units of blood are broken down into components to assure maximum utilization. In this way as many as four patients may be helped.

Because whole blood must be used within 21 days of donation and some of the components within hours, there is a continuing need for fresh supplies of blood to be donated.

Music academy to hold registration

The North Shore Academy of Music is a new music school offering instruction to residents of the communities north of Boston, including Winchester.

The Academy will hold registration and auditions for scholarships Sept. 14, 15 and 16 at its teaching location, Trinity Church, 131 East Emerson st., Melrose (near the Melrose railroad station).

The fall semester of lessons and classes will begin Sept. 20.

The academy's program for the fall includes Orff Kodaly classes and ABC's of Music for children, fundamentals of music and development of music history for adults, and individual and ensemble lessons in voice and most instruments, covering the standard concert repertoire, jazz and early music. The faculty of performing musicians is drawn from the communities which the academy serves, and includes Winchester residents Susan Shao and Allen Hill.

To introduce the academy to the public and to raise funds to help support the school's first year, the North Shore Academy of Music will present a benefit concert by faculty members Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the G.A.R. Hall at Memorial Hall, 590 Main st., Melrose. Among the performers will be Shao and Hill who, joined by Priscilla Ford of Melrose, will play a trio sonata for recorder, violin and harpsichord by Telemann.

Horticulture society lists winter, fall schedule

More than 100 courses, events and tours will be offered by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in the fall-winter of 78-79, according to Margaret Shean Ris, M.H.S. educational coordinator.

Ris says a catalogue of activities is available without charge by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: COURSES, Mass. Horticultural Society, 300 Mass. ave., Boston 02115. Pre-registration is required for all classes.

Highlights include a beginning indoor gardening series, a hands-on approach to acquaint the garden enthusiast with indoor plant basics, pests and problems and plant families.

Other courses offer instruction in greenhouse gardening and gardening under lights.

There's a solar greenhouse series, co-sponsored with the Boston Center for Adult Education, and a tour of one of the leading examples of solar greenhouse design.

Specialized studies and techniques offered by the non-profit society range from home orchid growing and african violets to indoor ferns and begonias.

In addition, the society is again joining with Northeastern University to co-sponsor a series of accredited courses in botany. Also offered is an accredited course, Introduction to Horticultural Therapy, in association with Mass. Bay Community College.

Free tests for Diabetes Sept. 14

As part of the United Way's "Roaring Twenties" Campaign Kickoff, the Greater Boston Diabetes Society will be conducting free Diabetes Screenings Sept. 14, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Boston City Hall Plaza.

The screenings will be conducted in the society's new mobile detection unit van, and the test itself, done by the capillary blood sugar method, is quite simple involving a drop of blood taken from the testee's finger placed on a specially chemically treated stick which is then inserted into a meter which immediately registers the individual's blood sugar level. The whole process takes between two and three minutes.

Appointments are necessary, so call the Greater Boston Diabetes Society at 731-2972.

Widow's program offered locally

Programs for Older Widows are offered through Family Service Association of Greater Boston, 34½ Beacon st., Boston.

The Service to Older People Department provides individual counseling, information and referral, educational workshops and support groups for recently widowed women age 60 and over.

The next 10-week workshop for recent widows will begin Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 27. The group is designed for older women who have lost a spouse within the last few months. They will have the opportunity to meet with other widows to share their concerns and learn about the processes of recovery.

Family Service Association of Greater Boston also offers a monthly support group for older widows and Family Life Education in assertiveness training, aging, and personal growth. For more information about programs for older widows, call Mrs. Marjorie Glassman at Family Service Association 523-6400.

TOWN OF WINCHESTER

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Winchester BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING at 7:30 P.M. on WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1978, in the BOARD OF HEALTH CLINIC ROOM of the TOWN HALL on the following matters:

(1) PETITION NO. 2401 — That of KATHRYN J. CARD, 632 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA., by LAWRENCE M. MURRAY, ESQ., for a Special Permit in accordance with Section 3 34 of the Zoning By-Law so as to convert a portion of the premises numbered 632 MAIN STREET, currently being used for the retail sales and service of pleasure boats and marine equipment for use as a facility for a resident manager. Both uses are presently non conforming. This property is located within the RB (Apartment House) residential zoning district and consists of 11,567 S.F.

(2) PETITION NO. 2402 — That of MARGARET GRANFIELD, TRUSTEE of GRANFIELD PROPERTY TRUST, concerning the premises located at 14 KENDALL STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1 of the Zoning By-Law so as to permit the addition to an existing porch that will be located within the required twenty (20) foot front yard setback. This property is located in the RG (General Residence) zoning district and consists of 4,563 S.F.

(3) PETITION NO. 2403 — That of JOSEPH E. and ROSE MARINO, 93 CHURCH STREET, WINCHESTER, MA., , in appeal of the determination of the Building Commissioner that found that a portion of the premises at 93 CHURCH STREET was established as a law office subsequent to the effective date of the new Zoning By-Law and has no status as a non-conforming use.

Alternatively, the petitioner seeks a Special Permit in accordance with Section 4 4 - 41 of the Zoning By-Law that would allow the continued maintenance of a portion of the premises for an attorney's office. This property is located within the RDB (Single Family) residential zoning district and consists of 33,398 S.F.

(4) PETITION NO. 2404 — That of ALBERT R. and SHARON L. TURCO, concerning the premises located at 28 PIERREPONT ROAD, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioners seek a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1 of the Zoning By-Law so as to be permitted to complete an addition to the dwelling that will be located within the required fifteen (15) foot side line setback requirement. This property is located within the RDB (Single Family) residential zoning district and consists of 7,802 S.F.

NE Repertory opens season

New England Repertory Theatre, the Worcester-based theater company, recently announced its 1978-79 season. The five plays on this year's Rep calendar are: "American Buffalo" by David Mamet; "The School for Wives" by Moliere; "A Doll House" by Ibsen; "Oedipus Rex" by Sophocles; and "The Strange Case of Dr Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" by Robert Litz.

Jon Knowles, artistic director of the rep, commented on the shape of the company's new season: "We're putting together a terrific season of classic, contemporary, and original works. The mix is designed to be exciting for the performers and designers who seem to have no doubt that this will be our most exciting season to date."

"American Buffalo," which opens the Rep season Sept. 23, won the Drama Critics' Circle Award for Best American Play (1977) during its lengthy stint on Broadway. It had previously won an Obie for Best American Play.

Mamet's play holds a hotline to the sounds of the American street. Its vigorous and colorful off-color language is as accurate and explicit as it is funny. Since all seven dirty words will be used, some people may find the language unsuitable for children and other television viewers.

Moliere's comedy, "The School for Wives," (November-December) and Ibsen's "A Doll House" (January-February) follow "American Buffalo." For a limited run in early spring, the company will revive its much-acclaimed production of Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex." "Oedipus Rex" is a highlight of the company's growing repertory. Local interest in the revival was stimulated by the rep's slide and objet d'art display at Worcester's St. Spyridon Church during the Grecian Festival. Word of mouth coupled with out-of-town bookings contributed to the decision to revive the show for this season.

The rep concludes its resident season with a world premiere of "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a new play by Robert Litz, the rep's playwright in residence. Litz developed the new play, based on Robert Louis Stevenson's novel, exclusively for the rep ensemble. The rep production of "Dracula," which played to sold-out houses for its entire run last year, whetted the appetites of the players and audience for another thriller.

The rep also announced a few changes in its performance schedule for 1978-79. There will be performances every Sunday afternoon at 2 and weekday group matinees by special arrangement, in addition to the regular Thursday, Friday, and Saturday night performances.

The first Sunday performance of "American Buffalo" will be Oct. 1.

Season subscriptions are now on sale. Student and senior rates are once again available for all performances.

New England rep has its own playhouse on Crown Hill near downtown Worcester, at the corner of Oxford and Chatham streets.

O'Meara named

Peter H. O'Meara, formerly of Swanton street, has been named assistant superintendent for Pennhurst Center, the welfare department's facility for 1100 mentally retarded clients in Chester County, Penn.

O'Meara will direct all program efforts and a staff of more than a thousand professional and para-professionals. He is widely known as a liaison with citizen groups in Chester, Bucks, Berks, Philadelphia, Delaware and Montgomery counties where the majority of the center's residents come.

"Peter brings with him a wealth of experience and a personal committment to the rights of the developmentally disabled. He is highly respected by both consumers and professionals in the field. Pennhurst is fortunate to have tthe services of a man with a strong background in administration and program development as well as concern for individual clients," a welfare official said.

An employee of the welfare department for 10 years, O'Meara started as a volunteer at Pennhurst and has steadily risen to positions of greater authority, ranging from social worker to unit director of several living areas to assistant director of program services. In this capacity, he was responsible for all special projects, including tthe opening of the 10 ranch-type modular homes on Pennhurst's upper campus in 1975 and compliance with federal life safety-codes.

O'Meara was recently licensed as a nursing home administrator and has worked in a number of human services agencies in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. He received his undergraduate degree at Villanova University in 1968 and resumed his education at Boston College to earn a master's degree from its graduate school of social work in 1972. He has also complete post-graduate studies at the University of Pittsburgh and Widener College.

He is a member of tthe American Association of Mental Deficiency, the Chester County Intermediate Unit Task Force and the residential services committee of the Montgomery County Association for Retarded Citizens.

O'Meara and his wife, the former Susan LaMantia of Indiana County, live in Hereford, Penn.

Rainey named

Peter M. Rainey, son of Mr. Harold Rainey and the late Dorothy S. Rainey of 47 Harvard st., has been named arts and health counsellor, Harvard University, Office of Career Counselling and Off-Campus Learning.

Peter graduated with honors from Bard College where he was a Wilton J. Lockwood Scholar and Senior Marshal, and holds graduate degrees from Colgate University and Simmons College. He also received a Fulbright Fellowship to India.

Previously, he was associated with Dartmouth College, the New York Public Library, and Keene State College.

New addition to DeCordova

Work is underway on a new gas kiln at the DeCordova Museum School in Lincoln that will allow ceramics students to work in oriental glazes and learn reduction firing techniques.

The new kiln will increase firing capacity and give students a wider range of clays and glazes to choose from.

This fall the school is offering 17 different ceramics courses for students of all ages, both beginners and more advanced students.

Special topics include a course on porcelain, making your own glazes, ceramics for teachers and intermediate-advanced ceramic forms.

Classes begin Sept. 25th.

Come to the DeCordova's "Open House," Saturday, from 1-5:30 p.m., tour the studios, watch facultty demonstrations, and register fr the class of your choice.

Douglas Jordan, right, and Joe Osgood spent much of their time working out in the sandbox last season at the Methodist Nursery School.

Orientation program scheduled at Methodist Nursery School

An orientation program for Methodist Nursery School children and parents of the school children will be held Sept. 18 and 19 at the school.

Regularly-scheduled classes will begin Sept. 20.

Morning school children will attend from 9 to noon this year; afternoon, from 12:15 to 3:15 p.m. An opening in the afternoon session has become availabie. If interested in registering a four or five-year-old child, contact the Methodist Nursery, 34 Dix st., for an application.

For further information, call 729-5212 between 10 and 11 a.m.

Resident's search for roots is time-consuming

A Winchester resident has just completed a unique two-week course at Brandeis University, but it might take her a lifetime to do her "homework."

Mrs. Phyllis M. Stearns, of 5 Fernway, was one of 42 men and women from across the nation enrolled in a seminar on New England family history that has prepared them to continue genealogical research and eventually write their own roots-like histories. Most who attended live in New England, but many others share a New England heritage.

Sponsored by Brandeis University and the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the seminar is the only one studying family history in New England, America's birthplace.

The program was geared to students with a special interest in local and family history of the area. Itt was described as "advanced" in nature by Dr. James B. Bell, head of the seminar faculty and director and librarian for the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

"I would say that the majority of this year's participants - perhaps as many as 90 percent - had started family history records before Alex Haley's 'Roots' came out," Dr. Bell said. "But 'Roots' certainly helped motivate them."

And, as Dr. Bell indicated, the work necessary to write a history requires a "highly-motivated" person.

"For some of the participants in the seminar, it will take a few years to write the family histories they are investigating," he explained. "For others, it will take a lifetime of research."

Students in the seminar were chiefly concerned with research subjects and methods for study, all covering New England history between 1620 and 1900. They were aided by a nine-member teaching staff, including Brandeis history professor John Demos, authors, librarians, scholars, and guest lecturers.

The 42 students explored key themes related to genealogical research. Among them were use of research libraries, archives and record offices; identifying problems in manuscript materials such as handwriting and dates; examining problems and resources of vital statistics and such records as census, probate, land, church, military and educational; considerations of methods to evaluate material wealth of families; lectures on European genealogical sources, origins of surnames and heraldry; and overcoming obstacles students will face when they gather, organize and write their own stories.

Dr. Bell said that students in the New England Family History Seminar have "moved beyond the begat stage" - who belongs to whom - in their genealogical explorations. "They now want to know more about the total life experience of the family - migrations, sicknesses, employment history, and the like."

While research in libraries and classroom lectures took up much of the students' time, opportunitties for rest and relaxation were plentiful.

Evenings were free for students to exchange research questions with the faculty at Brandeis, or to enjoy the varied cultural offerings of Boston. A day long trip to Plymouth, and visits to the Mayflower II and Plimoth Plantation helped students unwind, and faculty and students ended their seminar by indulging in one of the area's most popular summertime rituals, a traditional New England clambake.

"The program is a great success," said Dr. Bell. "In three years, people from all over the country have come to study various aspects of New England family history and in that time not one person has dropped out. In the process, they have come to a richer understanding of the area, themselves, and their heritage."

Emissions test now available

Inspection and Maintenance is the name of a program that the Middlesex-Cambridge Lung Association hopes will reduce air pollution caused by automobile emissions. The program was demonstrated at a clinic conducted recently at the Sears Automotive Center at the Burlington Mall.

The IM test is being suggested as a regular part of the state's mandatory inspection process. An instrument is inserted into the tailpipe of an automobile that measures the gaseous and particulate emissions. The entire test takes less than a minute and it indicates whether or not a tune-up or carburetor adjustment is necessary.

"It is the least disruptive way to fight air pollution," said Andrea Okun, coordinator of the project. "and it has the added benefit of helping drivers to run their cars more efficiently and more cheaply."

Visiting the clinic site was Jim Shannon, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives from the 5th Congressional District. "Air pollution is a very serious problem that we must face here in Massachusetts. The 1977 Federal Clean Air Act Ammendments spell it out: either we do something about air pollution or face restrictions on industrial growth. I do think the IM program should be considered seriously as a reasonable course of action."

Back To School: How To Make It Up To Your Kids

Illustrations by Deborah Taylor

Before the kids become enmeshed in the hectic round of after-school sports, ballet and music lessons, treat them to a retrospective dose of outright summery fun-for-its-own-sake.

By Harriet Webster

The kids are back to the halls of academe this week. That may be fine and dandy for parents, but it's a genuine down for a lot of reluctant students. So hide your glee and determine to do something nice for your children, something that shows you empathize with their plight. To work up the empathy, conjure up your own feelings on returning to work after your annual two-week reprieve. If you don't work, then dig far back into your memory and try to recall your own sentiments on having to return to school each fall. It may have been fun to buy the spiffy new notebooks and the classy duds, but the fun was short-lived.

Summer, to most kids, symbolizes freedom. School represents structure and organization, a subtle form of incarceration, if you will. And there is no gentle transition. One day they're romping half naked on the beach, and the next morning they're expected to sit in rows and raise their hands to speak. As a parent, there's a lot you can do to ease the switch.

First of all, remember that summer is officially with us for another two weeks. Take advantage of that. Think back to last June, and all the promises you made to yourself to spend time with the kids. If you are like many of us, you may be shocked to realize the degree to which your plans were thwarted by unexpected houseguests, humid weather and the like. Now is a good time to do all the summer things that fell by the wayside in July and August. Before the kids become enmeshed in the hectic round of ballet and music lessons, girl scouts and boy scouts and after-school sports, now is the time to renew your relationship by treating them to a retrospective dose of outright summery types of unstructured fun-for-its-own-sake.

Back To The Beach

You might begin with beach activities. If you have avoided family day trips to the seaside because of the crowds and the heat (not to mention the greenheads), now is the right time to make the pilgrimage in peace. Many communities drop the parking fees after Labor Day. You'll have plenty of space to spread out your blankets and play paraphernalia, to indulge in whiffle ball or frisbee without fear of infringing on anyone else's precious sand space. In many cases you will find that concessions have closed for the season, so it's a good idea to bring along a picnic lunch or supper of your tribe's favorite edibles.

Since it's too late to worry about getting the perfect tan, you can really devote your time to the kids. Here are a couple of artistic projects to initiate. Work as a collective, or let each child work on his own project. Sand sculpting is a lot of fun. Conditions are best at low tide. Choose a spot somewhere between the water's edge and the high-tide line. You don't want the sculptures to wash away ten minutes after completion, but you do want to work in fairly wet sand. Although everyone has a favorite technique, it sometimes helps to make a great mound of wet sand before beginning the actual sculpting. Try to make it twice as big as you want the finished creation to be. This way you can sculpt away, rather than trying to build up sand. Really, it's easier. Shovels and buckets and any available rigid forms (milk cartons, coffee cans, paper cups, etc.) are helpful tools.

Sand casting is an alternative beach project. It demands a bit of advance preparation, but leaves each artist with a tangible remembrance of the summer sliding so quickly away. Buy a bag of Plaster of Paris at your local hardware store, and assemble a bucket and a thermos or jug of fresh water. Now you're ready to hit the beach.

Ask each child to collect beach treasures — stones, shells, feathers, bits of seaweed, twigs. Have each kid dig a hole in wet sand, imbedding the treasures in the sides of the hole. The final sand casting will be the circumference of the hole, so don't make it too huge. Explain that the part of the treasures sticking up into the hole will be encased in the plaster, but that the parts sticking down into the sand walls will be the parts that actually show in the final stage. Try to keep the parts sticking up into the hole as free of excess sand as possible, so that they will adhere firmly to the plaster. Mix plaster according to directions on the bag, using the fresh water you brought along for that purpose. Pour the plaster into the hole and permit to dry thoroughly. If you like, insert a small loop of rope in the back to serve as a hanger. Twenty minutes to a half-hour later, unearth the finished sand casting. So much for the beach.

Miniature Golf And Other Diversions

Perhaps you have taken some family car trips this summer, steadfastly repeating, "No stops enroute or we'll never get there!" Why not take an afternoon or Saturday or Sunday while the weather holds to wander the highways without a destination? Now, this is not as crazy as it may sound. Look at it this way. Instead of ignoring the nagging and whining that emanate from the back seat, indulge the complaints just this once. That's right, give in before the battle begins. Since you haven't planned to get anywhere by any particular time, you don't have to worry about getting lost or being late.

Think of the recreational delights you and your little ones are likely to discover while plumbing the depths of MetroBoston's asphalt ribbons. How long, for example, has it been since you last played miniature golf? Remember those blasted plywood windmills that always boomeranged the ball back to start? What about the horrendous water traps? Remember, too, the sheer joy of scoring a hole-in-one on the 18th, thereby winning a free game! Miniature golf usually runs $1 a game these days, but a game lasts 30 to 45 minutes. It's a satisfactory pastime that toddlers, teenagers and even parents take pleasure in.

Another diversion you are likely to encounter in roaming the highways is the batting range, which is often found adjacent to the miniature golf course. At most of these places, 25 cents buys you seven pitches. You can usually choose between two or three pitch speeds but take heed — fast really does mean fast. A tip to former baseball greats among the parent generation is in order here. If you would like to avoid making a fool of yourself, do not boast about your prowess before entering the batting cage. Many a rugged Sunday afternoon adult player has stepped into the protective enclosure full of bravado, only to stand astonished as the first five pitches whip by, untouched by the ubiquitous baseball bat in hand. Little leaguers and sandlot players will get a real kick out of these set-ups, but warn them too to start easy. If you have one, bring along a batting helmet. Hardballs are very hard. It's also a good idea to bring your own bat for the kids, as lightweight models seem to be a rarity at most batting ranges.

Another treasure awaiting discovery, certainly a rarer one than those mentioned above, is the go-kart track. Here, kids get to propel themselves around a figure-eight-shaped course on a gasoline powered machine, which bears an uncanny resemblance to a lawn mower with a seat and steering wheel. The sides of the course are normally lined with old tires to cushion the inevitable collisions.

Go-kart facilities usually have minimum age limits for drivers, but children too young to drive themselves can travel as passengers with an older driver. No one need be left out.

Sweets

Your highway wanderings can't help but produce hunger, but that's no problem. Our strongest advice is to stop at a candy house. These establishments are stuffed to the gills with tooth-rotting savories like fresh chocolates and brittles and fudges that melt in your mouth. Candy made on the premises (you often get to watch the procedures) is a whole lot different than candy produced in a factory and stored away on warehouse shelves for months at a time. Candy houses even smell fat.

Some of the candy houses have added pleasure of make-it-yourself sundae bars. This is pure heaven. Purchase a few scoops of ice cream in your favorite flavors, and then embellish them according to whim. Chopped nuts in four species, sprinkles galore, banana slices, strawberries, chunks of pineapple, whipped cream and marshmallow fluff, maraschino cherries (you like them? Take three.), butterscotch and hot fudge sauce — you name it, it's there. Spare nothing. Your kids won't. By the end of the afternoon, you'll be able to "read" the kids' concoctions from the stains on their t-shirts. Dress appropriately.

Maybe you'll drive past a drive-in movie as dusk falls. So stop and see the flick. Drive-ins are sticky, grubby places. In fact, you probably promised yourself you'd never go to a drive-in once you could afford babysitters and the expensive downtown movie theatre tabs. Wash away your resolve for the moment. What could be more summery than an evening at the drive-in, craning your necks for a better view of the screen, fiddling with the stubborn speakers? If it's not too crowded, try placing one speaker in each side of your car so that you can enjoy the soundstrack in static stereo. Okay, so the kids want to sit on the hood or the roof. You work that problem out together. Drive-ins are an American cultural phenomenon not to be missed. Also, they are often a bona fide entertainment bargain, charging admission per carload rather than per person.

Home Sweet Home

By now you must be exhausted, eager for the comfort of your own backyard hammock. Well now, home need not mean boredom. You can give your kids a taste of summer pleasure after school without leaving home. Scurry on down to your local department or sporting goods store and check out the leftover summer recreational equipment. It's all on sale now, giving you a splendid opportunity to pick up that badminton or croquet set the kids have been badgering you to buy all summer. Roast marshmallows in the backyard while you knock the wooden balls through the wickets. Tell your youngest to "act cute" when he goes to fetch the stray birdie from your neighbor's yard for the third time.

The moral to be learned from all this is that there are specific ways a parent can show empathy for kids prone to the back-to-school blahs. Even children who are eager to get back to the grind can't help but be a mite wistful for the freedom and simplicity of summer. So let them know you understand. Take them to sit in the Fenway Park bleachers as the Red Sox wind up the season. Rent a rowboat. Go fishing. Whatever it is you haven't done with your children this summer, do it now. Sooner than we like to admit, the first cold blasts will be upon us, signifying the start of the "serious" part of the year, the time for learning and working and generally acting responsibly. Do your best then to make the most of these last precious summer weeks.

Notes:

Miniature golf courses, batting ranges, and go-kart tracks specialize in highway locations so you probably will have no difficulty finding your own. Here are a few suggestions just for starters:

Food | The Bocages

Recent visits to both branches of Le Bocage, in Watertown and Cambridge, revealed some delicious surprises at reasonable prices.

By Judith Barrett

A controversy over liquor licenses has forced an old Cambridge favorite to divide and conquer: now there are two versions of the restaurant Le Bocage, one in Watertown and one still in Cambridge, serving superior food at reasonable prices with considerable style and a highly personal touch.

It all started in Cambridge, where brown bagging has been the life line for scores of storefront restaurants that can't afford or can't obtain a liquor license. It's long been the custom for kindly cops to look the other way and let diners carry along their own beer and wine to restaurants.

But in the last year, a bitter controversy erupted when some Cambridge residents decided that the French restaurant Le Bocage on Huron Avenue was an undesirable neighbor. They took Bocage to court and managed to make brown bagging temporarily impossible. They've also made the future uncertain for more than 40 small restaurants that may have to move or shut up shop.

While the sparks were flying and before any axes fell, Le Bocage decided to make a move. The result is a new Le Bocage in Watertown, complete with a liquor license. The original restaurant remains, for the time being, but it's now serving Northern Italian cuisine.

Le Bocage has always been known for its straightforward style and attention to detail. Recent visits to both restaurants revealed some delicious surprises as well as some familiar similarities that have weathered well the moves and transitions.

Both restaurants have short, fixed-price menus offering just three or four selections that change daily. What's fresh and in season is what you'll find — with no heavy sauces or fancy-schmancy service. Dinners include an appetizer, an entree with rice, vegetable and a green salad, dessert and coffee.

The now-distinctive storefront windows at both locations are embellished with interior shutters and greenery. Plain painted walls, track lights and white linen-clad tables dressed up with flower-filled mustard crocks make for soothing understated atmospheres. And for both, a "no reservations" policy persists, which means that on a busy Saturday night, you'll find at least a dozen hopeful diners lined up on the sidewalk, waiting. As it turns out, it's worth the wait.

The original Cambridge restaurant is the smaller and more modest of the two. It seats about 32 and has an outdoor garden in the rear. The front door, unfortunately, opens directly into the dining area, and it's woe to those who sit in its path.

The transformation of the old Bocage into an Italian restaurant has entailed a simple change-of-chef. But educating the public about Northern Italian food hasn't been so easy. "People still expect two meatballs and a plateful of sauce," says Mrs. Enzo Denesi, who, with her husband, owns both Bocages. That's precisely what you won't find there. Instead, you'll discover delicately prepared dishes with fragrant distinguishable flavors, and desserts worthy of a fine Bolognese pasticceria.

Our meal started out with a complimentary order of caponata, a cold combination of large chunks of eggplant, green peppers, onions, celery and green olives cooked in a light tomato sauce. It was a gracious, tasty touch that made me feel good about the place right from the start.

Appetizers included a cold spinach soup, melon with prosciutto, marinated mushrooms, baby eggplant stuffed with a delicately flavored veal filling and topped with thick, almost sweet tomato sauce, and linguine dressed in a sauce that was generously garlicky and studded with seafood and bits of fresh whole tomatoes. The linguine was cooked perfectly, and was certainly some of the best pasta to be found in a restaurant in Boston. (Except for some Friday nights when pasta is listed as an entree, there is only one pasta dish offered daily, and it's always an appetizer.)

There were four entrees to choose from, including a bluefish sauced in hollandaise with capers, and a filet of beef in a vegetable sauce. A thick veal steak wasn't the tenderest I'd ever eaten, but was well seasoned, thickly breaded and crisply fried without the slightest trace of grease. The serving of lamb with garlic sauce was sliced from a boned leg that had been over-cooked. In spite of the pungent sauce, the meat was dry and tasteless.

All entrees were served with zucchini slices sauteed with garlic, and rice, cooked in chicken broth and tossed with fresh minced parsley and dill. A plate of crisp greens followed, a welcome arrival to a palate somewhat stunned by garlic.

For dessert, a refreshing goblet of raspberry, blackberry and lime sherberts was appealingly tart and richly colored from the fresh fruits. A walnut peach torte consisted of a nutty tart shell filled with lightly glazed, sliced peaches, topped with coarsely chopped walnuts. And an airy two layer hazelnut cake came filled with a satiny-smooth vanilla buttercream.

The new French Bocage in Watertown is everything the old one was, and more. The restaurant itself has more space — it's actually the size of two storefronts instead of one — and more tables. The walls are white instead of beige, which tones the place up, and most important, there's an entranceway separated from the dining area. The noise level was uncomfortably high on the night we ate there, but I've been informed that changes to solve that problem are in the works.

The food, prepared by the owner and chef, Enzo Denesi, is every bit the honest French fare the former place served. With the exception of desserts, which were faint-away quality, nothing we tasted was truly great or ingeniously new, but most everything was very good.

The appetizer list sported four choices, including cold creamed summer vegetable soup and the familiar marinated mushrooms from the Cambridge menu. A salade de fruits de mer was a disappointing fish salad (possibly leftover bluefish from a previous night) studded with black olives, held together with flavorless mayonnaise and garnished with shredded carrots and lemon. It wasn't up to Bocage's usual standards. Carpaccio, paper-thin slices of very lean raw beef, arrived with a tarragon mayonaise. Though the meat was tender, the sauce did border on bland.

Here, only three entrees were offered. The gigot avec pistou translated into deliciously rare slices of leg of lamb in a fragrant fresh basil and garlic sauce. The filet of beef with a brown sauce (a variation of the Italian beef filet with a vegetable sauce in the other restaurant) was astonishingly tender and tasty. The third unsampled choice was a stuffed lobster.

Rice and vegetables were seasoned more lightly than their Italian counterparts. The string beans were bright green, lightly buttered and perfectly steamed with the crunch left in them; the rice flavorful and well-cooked. The crisp green salad came well-dressed in a tangy mustard-vinaigrette.

Portions were small enough to leave plenty of room for dessert — which was fortunate, since the pastries were simply staggering. The chocolate cake with buttercream to match proved intensely rich and chocolatey. A blueberry almond tart — a confection of flaky rich pastry and glazed almond filling, all topped with the freshest, biggest blueberries — was out of this world.

Service at both Bocages is attentive and efficient. There is a more than adequate and reasonably-priced wine list at Le Bocage in Watertown, as well as a self-styled wine steward on board to take your order and serve the wine.

Prices for dinners ranged from $12 at Bocage in Cambridge for the bluefish, to $16 at Le Bocage in Watertown for the lobster. Most dinners are in the $13 to $14 range. Carpaccio cost $1.50 extra, but everything else was included in the price of the meal.

Horse Show
The annual 1747 Horse Show is back today and tomorrow, with equitation drills, hunters, jumpers and an array of Arabians, Morgans, ponies and much more. The show is at the 1747 Horse Show Grounds on Wellesley Street, in Weston, just down the road from Regis College. Beginning at 8 am September 9 and 10, the show goes both days until all events are completed. For a complete run-down on both day's activities, call 891-6717. Admission is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.

Suffolk County Fair
Everything you've always wanted to know about pumpkins, including how to grow, carve and cook them is available to you at Franklin Park, in Boston today. There's even a pumpkin-costumed person to entertain the kids. The fair also has everything from fried chicken dinners to home grown vegetables. The fair is on from 10 am till dusk today and tomorrow. Admission is free. For more information call the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at 536-9280.

Back Country
Back Country, a musical adaptation of Synge's classic play, The Playboy of the Western World set in rural middle America at the turn of the century, opens tonight at 7:30 at the Wilbur Theatre, 252 Tremont Street, in Boston. After tonight the performance schedule is Monday through Saturday at 8 pm, Wednesday and Saturday matinees are at 2 pm. Tickets range from $6 to $16.50. For more information call the box office at 423-4008.

Great Pretenders
The Great Pretenders, at Lucifer tonight through September 24, really are great pretenders. They neither sing, nor do they play musical instruments. Their talent lies in their ability to lip-synch to the accompaniment of Fifties records, and a slide show is coordinated to their gyrations. Shows are at 10 and 11 pm nightly. Members are admitted free during the week, nonmembers pay $1. Weekends members are $2, nonmembers get in for $3. Lucifer is at the Kenmore Club, Kenmore Square, in Boston. 536-1950 gets you more information.

The Big E
One of the biggest events in the west this week is the Eastern States Exposition, running today through September 24, right off Route 147 in West Springfield. About 175 acres are devoted to a midway, an avenue of States, with buildings housing state exhibits, a better living center and various arenas. The Royal International Circus opens the festivities today and stays until Sunday; The Starland Vocal Band appears on the 18th, and country singer Mel Tillis comes for a visit on the 19th. All this is further complemented by daily stunt car exhibitions, the Budweiser Clydesdales, and, to top things off, the Eastern States Championship Horse Show, September 20 to 24. Fair grounds open at 8 am each day, close at 11 pm (except on Sunday, when the opening time is 1 pm); admission is $3 adults, $2 ages 13 to 17, $1 for all ages six to 12 and over 60, and free for those under five. For more particulars on it all, call (413) 732-2361.

El Golden
Rafael Ferrer, by happenstance Jose Ferrer's brother, is an artist who specializes in creating "environments" whenever he shows. Today his El Golden nightclub, replete with seedy hotel room, opens for the viewing at the Institute of Contemporary Art, 955 Boylston Street in Boston. Also on display are his sculptures.
As an added bonus, Ferrer himself gives a lecture/performance at the Museum tonight at 7:30; tickets are $2. The ICA's regular hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 am to 5 pm, Sunday noon to 5 pm, Wednesday nights until 9. Admission is $1, 50 cents for students and those over 65.

Poor Yorrick
The tragedy Hamlet, featuring Ophelia and the rotten things in Denmark, opens the Boston Shakespeare Company's season, tonight at 8 in the company's new theatre in Horticultural Hall, 300 Mass Ave in Boston. It will play every night until September 16, when it goes into repertory with As You Like It. Thereafter, and until November 11, Hamlet is scheduled for Thursday and Saturday evenings at 8 (7:30 pm on September 21), while As You Like It runs Wednesday and Friday nights at 8. Tickets for either show are $6, $5 and $4 Wednesday and Thursday, 50 cents more Friday and Saturday, and can be charged with as Mastercharge or Visa card. For reservations and all the specifics, call 267-5600.

Deals | The Arts For Less

The aim of Arts Boston is to turn the once-in-a-lifetime arts goer into a full-fledged addict.

By Marcia Parker

What's your excuse for not going to the theatre, the ballet, the opera? These days, there's one good excuse for everyone: it's just too expensive. But Arts Boston can solve the dilemma of the pocketbook with its voucher program, now in the fourth year of operation. Union members, high school students, senior citizens, and technical and clerical workers can all reap the benefits of a low-priced arrangement with more than 70 participating arts groups. $7.50, which usually buys just one seat, will get you five, and that's a deal.

All you have to do is sign on with Arts Boston, an organization dedicated to the cultivation of new audiences for the lively arts. Anyone in one of the four categories can join, and there is also a broad slot reserved for exceptions, in case you don't quite fit squarely into one group. What Arts Boston wants, in short, are the hardcore non-attenders. And those people, it appears, primarily belong to one of the four groups mentioned above. After a survey done by the participating arts groups of their audiences, it was discovered that these people were least likely to come.

The program, in fact, is catching on fast. According to staff member Susie Prien, there are about 3,000 active voucher holders right now; to say nothing of the 21,000 vouchers redeemed to 61 performing groups last year.

Along with a voucher, participants are eligible for advance ticket discounts, group discounts and a colorful Boston On Stage newsletter/calendar, which highlights the latest arts happenings. In addition, Arts Boston offers voucher holders Arts Extra tickets, which get you into a preview performance for half the usual cost. Voucher holders can buy one or two sets of vouchers, which can be renewed when the last coupon is used up.

The aim of all this is clear — to turn the once-in-a-lifetime arts goer into a full-fledged addict. The theory is that he or she, once introduced to the arts, will pay full price and attend performances often. But that's not all. The voucher system also works out well for the various performing arts groups who are members. Besides the free publicity and audiences, the groups receive $2.50 for every voucher redeemed. Arts Boston also supplies statistical information on the voucher holders, so the performers can better understand their current audiences and prepare for future ones. Not bad, considering that the groups don't pay a membership fee for the service.

This summer, the agency ran a special summer program for social service agencies in the Greater Boston area, which was aimed at exposing folks to the arts and was entitled "Operation Curtain Call." It was specifically designed for those who hadn't gone to the theatre or any live arts performances, and included both in its agenda. Now, the organization is waiting to see if the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, which partially funds Arts Boston, will provide another grant for a similar endeavor next year. Another tentative project is "Bostix," which would be a ticket and information center at Boston's Quincy Market. It would provide arts lovers with half-price, day-of-performance tickets, and may appear next spring.

Notes:

To find out if you or your group are eligible, and to start saving money right away, call the Arts Boston office at 742-6600, or drop them a line at 73 Tremont Street, Suite 820, Boston 02108.

Opportunities

● Perhaps you already have several college credits, but your full-time job has prevented you from completing your degree. Or maybe you don't have a single credit, but you know that sooner or later – despite your job or other responsibilities – you'll want to get a college degree.

In either case, you would do well to find out how to get your degree through any one of over 50 part-time programs offered by Northeastern University.

Have you considered the advantages of Part-Time Programs at Northeastern University?

Wide Choice of Courses

Included in Northeastern's more than 50 part-time programs are some 1,400 undergraduate courses to meet your interests and objectives. Basic areas of study are as follows:

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
HEALTH PROFESSIONS
LAW ENFORCEMENT
LIBERAL ARTS
THERAPEUTIC RECREATION
SCIENCE
ENGINEERING

Campuses Convenient to You

To make higher education easily accessible, Northeastern offers its main campus in Boston, the suburban campus in Burlington, and eight branch academic centers in Brockton, Framingham, Marshfield, Milford, Norwood, Reading, Revere and Weymouth.

Simplified Admission

Knowing the constraints on your time, Northeastern has made admission, registration and enrollment uncomplicated. We counsel you on career objectives, minimize red tape, and in many cases we allow full credit for courses taken previously at accredited institutions, and for life experience, by examination. You may be admitted to part-time degree programs in University College and Lincoln College without making formal application. You may matriculate as a degree candidate . . . or select individual courses to meet particular needs. You may register by mail or in person at any Northeastern location. Registration dates are September 5-14. Check schedule or call for specific dates at each location. Classes begin the week of September 25.

University College: 437-2400 (Business, Health, Law Enforcement, Liberal Arts, and Therapeutic Recreation)
Lincoln College: 437-2500 (Engineering, Science and Technology)
Burlington Campus: 272-5500

The Distinction of a Northeastern Degree

Since its founding in 1898, Northeastern has been committed to helping working men and women attain the benefits of higher education – by offering degree programs that can be tailored to the needs of people with full- or part-time jobs.

Your degree program at Northeastern can be spread out or accelerated to meet your specific circumstances. In University College you can earn an Associate's Degree in as little as two years . . . and a Bachelor's Degree in four. A Northeastern degree is nationally recognized as a symbol of excellence in higher education. Many executives, engineers, educators and other professional leaders got their start at Northeastern University.

If you're going to invest the time, effort and money in your continuing education, do it at Northeastern where your degree will really mean something.

Movies | A Woman At Her Window

The movie has much of the implied terror and suspense of Z and* State of Siege, *but less of their actual violence.

A Woman At Her Window
Directed by Pierre Granier-Deferre. Screenplay by Jorge Semprun and Pierre Granier-Deferre, from the novel by Pierre Drieu La Rochelle. With Romy Schneider, Philippe Noiret, Victor Lanoux, and Umberto Orsini. At the Exeter Street Theatre, Boston.

By Maggie Hall

A Woman At Her Window is billed as a romance with political overtones. Romy Schneider plays Margot Santorini, one of those international beauties (half-French, half-Austrian, married to an Italian, living in Greece) who is always the center of attention. Margot's husband Rico, attached to the Italian embassy in Athens, is played by Umberto Orsini, who in dinner clothes, with his hair slicked back, looks like an elegant Sinatra. In tweeds, in retirement, he looks the way Lord Peter Wimsey ought to have looked, but didn't, in Masterpiece Theatre.

The film is also a political thriller with romantic overtones. Victor Lanoux plays Boutros, a Communist activist on the run from the Metaxas regime, which in 1936 had dissolved Parliament and installed a military dictatorship with the king as a figurehead. Margot sees Boutras from her window, rescues him (with the complicity of her husband and friends) and eventually runs away with him (ditto).

Her politics are not as deep as her passions, and her love for the brutish Boutros is for the most part unexplained, inexplicable. She talks of her dreams: she is always seven years old, always running. One never gets the feeling that she's "sick of all this", her wealth, her position, or that she had heard in her heart a call to Moscow; rather, she knows vaguely that something has to change.

Allusions to the Odyssey, the Oedipus Rex, and the Antigone are thrown out — Margot and Boutras stand in the amphitheatre at Delphi and make sidelong conversation about literature and archaeology, but they are really talking about something else. The thread of classical tragedy is picked up and knotted when Boutros' daughter, at the end of the movie, learns how he died.

The screenplay is by Jorge Semprun, and the movie has much of the implied terror and suspense of his earlier works, Z and State of Siege, but rather less of their actual violence. Gastone Moschin plays the villian Primoukis, an agent of the regime, and it is hard to imagine a nastier specimen. He looks like a shark.

A Woman At Her Window is photographed in nice color by Aldo Tonti, and is constructed by director Pierre Granier-Deferre out of flashbacks and memories. It takes a little reflection to pull the pieces together, just as the characters in the film try to sort things out for themselves.

Movies | Short Subjects

Animal House
Brought to us by the folks at the National Lampoon, Animal House is sometimes sophomoric, sometimes freshman-iacal. John Belushi, the pudgy psychopath from Saturday Night Live, is Bluto, principal animal of the worst house on campus, at war with the other frats, the college administration, and the local government. Not every slapstick moment is a scream, but most are. It's a very funny movie. With Tim Matheson and Donald Sutherland. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Chestnut Hill, Danvers, Framingham, Hanover, Lawrence, Woburn.

Bread and Chocolate
Nino Manfredi plays Nino Garafoli, introduced as a sort of vulgar klutz, a misfit in his purple shirt and perfectly awful tie. Nino is an Italian worker who, like so many of his compatriots, has left behind the land of sun and song to find his fortune in Switzerland. The dream of all these workers is to make enough money to import their wives and children, or to return home as heroes. Some live for their dream, some live on it, some lose track of reality altogether. The theme of nostalgia, the real ache for the homeland, is diluted with slapstick and satire. Manfredi has a few moments of quiet desperation: he can't seem to decide whether to be Mastroianni or Chaplin. He doesn't break our hearts, but he's a likeable guy in a likeable movie. Beacon Hill.

The Buddy Holly Story
Not just another nostalgia movie. Though the story line is thin and glossy, Gary Busey delivers a command performance as the Fifties' rock wizard. Not only does he look like Buddy Holly — he's got a voice and guitar work to match, and is backed by a rhythmic band of Crickets. Together, they do ample justice to Holly's classics, which are, all by themselves, worth a trip to the flick. Peabody.

The Eyes of Laura Mars
A modern, overdone murder-mystery, Eyes features Faye Dunaway as Laura Mars, a successful fashion photographer noted for her very chic and very macabre portraits. She is in telepathic communication with someone who is murdering her colleagues. To complicate matters still further, the intrepid cop in charge of the case (Tommy Lee Jones) becomes her lover. Oddly the two of them, as well as everyone else in the cast, don't seem particularly fearful — it's more as if they have stomach cramps throughout. Still, the culprit is not exposed until the very end, and the movie is never boring. Irvin Kershner directed, Jon Peters produced. Paris; Brockton, Burlington, Chestnut Hill, Lawrence, Peabody.

Foul Play
Goldie Hawn and Chevy Chase star in this suspense comedy written and directed by Colin Higgins. Chase's famous pratfalls are limited to a tolerable few, and he and Hawn share an engaging kookieness. Hawn, who plays a librarian named Gloria Mundy (a Thurber steal), is the target of a pair of hitmen; Chase, as a police lieutenant under a cloud, assigns himself to protect her. Incidentally they find True Love. Dudley Moore, still happily beyond the fringe, and a bantam Burgess Meredith steal the show. With Billy Barty, Rachel Roberts, and members of the New York City Opera. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Circle, Danvers, Framingham, Woburn.

Grease
Entertainment and that's all; or rather, television director Randal Kleiser's idea of entertainment, the kind we've been insulted by for years. This isn't to say that the musical numbers aren't energetic, that John Travolta isn't charming, that Stockard Channing isn't proficient as the high school bad girl. But where is the heart behind the monster? And what in heaven's name is this fascination with the Fifties? Cinema 57; Brockton, Circle, Dedham, Hanover, Natick, Peabody.

Heaven Can Wait
Heaven Can Wait should have been good — but this is entirely Warren Beatty's film: he not only took the starring role (as a man who dies before his time, and comes back as someone else), but also wrote the script with Elaine May, directed the film with Buck Henry, and produced the project as well. He has overextended himself. Although Henry, James Mason, Julie Christie, and Dyan Cannon turn in fine supporting performances, the direction lacks the charm and sophistication to pull off a complex tale. Still, Heaven Can Wait has flashes of good comedy and fine action. It's close, but no heavenly encounter. Cheri; Burlington, Circle, Danvers, Dedham, Framingham.

Hooper
Burt Reynolds has been kicked around before but in Hooper, his film about a team of Hollywood stunt men working on a multi-million dollar "disaster" movie, he really gets beat up. There's a lot of self-parody, humor and nifty stunts woven into this pleasantly surprising picture. Directed by Hal Needham, Hooper is aided by a good supporting cast: Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field, and Brian Keith as Sally's father. Robert Klein is cast perfectly into the role as the demanding movie director. Hooper might not be remembered by the time the Academy Awards roll around next year, but it takes its audiences for one hell of a ride. Savoy; Braintree, Brockton, Framingham, Woburn.

Hubley Bubbley
A collection of animated works by John Hubbley, who began his creative life at the Disney studios in the Thirties, and then branched out on his own. Included in Hubley Bubbley are: Fuddy Duddy Buddy (1949), A Date with Dizzy (1956), with soundtrack by Dizzy Gillespie and his Quintet, The Moonbird (1960), and others. Off the Wall.

The Inheritance

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest
Ken Kesey's psycho-drama of men in an insane asylum won a well-deserved Academy Award for Best Picture in 1975. It stars Jack Nicholson as a maverick trouble-maker who leads his fellow inmates to pinnacles of sanity they never dreamed possible. Louise Fletcher plays the hard-nosed nurse who challenges Nicholson's defiance every step of the way. Charles.

Revenge of the Pink Panther
Peter Sellers has sworn that this is his last go at Inspector Clouseau. Meanwhile, producer Blake Edwards has squeezed out another Panther movie. What began as a pleasant conceit, the bumbling cop, his nervous boss, and some belly-laughs, has been disintegrating, over the years, into more and more of a ho-hum. Still, Sellers is talented, and co-star Dyan Cannon seems to have found a niche as a comedienne. Between pitfall and pratfall, you'll find a few chuckles. Cinema 57; Braintree, Danvers, Framingham, Lawrence, Woburn.

Who'll Stop the Rain
Adventures in the scag trade, circa 1971, that eerie time when everyone and everything seemed to be falling apart. Nick Nolte is a disturbed and disturbing ex-Marine in this film by Karel Reisz, based on the novel Dog Soldiers, by Robert Stone, who also, with Judith Rascoe, wrote the screenplay. With Tuesday Weld and Michael Moriarty. Gary; Brockton, Dedham, Lawrence, Woburn.

Dance | Square Dancing

Square dancing, happily, is going to come to you almost as easily as shoelace tying and eating with a spoon.

By Gary Provost

Not so long ago, square dancing was so regionalized in its steps and its terms that an expert dancing couple from West Texas and an equally adept couple from East Texas could listen to the same call — and gracefully crash into each other. A single call could mean different things in different places.

Fortunately, square dancing has been standardized in recent decades. The 1000 or so square dance movements have been whittled down to the 85 Mainstream Movements of square dancing. Of them, only 50 are considered the basic movements of square dancing for newcomers to the activity. Now you can go anywhere in the world, square dance and not have to worry about cracking heads with somebody of another culture.

Of course, beginners will always be clumsy at almost anything they try, so there is a certain amount of unscheduled body contact at area square dances. But considering that the body you contact usually belongs to somebody of the opposite sex, that's all part of the fun.

If you're one of these people who likes to "really get into" things, you could jump into square dancing all the way up to your eyeballs. There are, after all, those 1000 moves, plus over 900 of the round dances usually found with square dances these days. There are dozens of books on the subject, more than 600 magazines and newsletters in this country alone devoted to square dancing and over 12,000 square dance clubs in the United States. Upon mastering all the steps, reading all the literature and attending the national square dance convention (which attracts as many as 25,000 people) you could even enroll in the Colorado Springs Cheyenne Mountain School for callers, and become one of 9000 square dance callers working today.

On the other hand, if you're a plumber from Winchester and all you want to do is have some fun next Friday night, you can do so even if you've never danced a step in your life. The steps you'll be learning are descended from dozens of old European folk dances and the music you dance to will be waltzes, polkas, rhumbas and others, with heavy emphasis on American country music, spanning everything from Oh, Susannah to Gentle on My Mind. Best of all, the experienced dancers in the group will not have the advantage they once had of knowing every step in a set before it is called. Only in America does the caller extemporaneously choose the steps and create the dance pattern as he goes along.

All of this, happily, is going to come to you almost as easily as shoelace tying and eating with a spoon. Today's square dancing, found at churches, schools, YMCAs, and under the roof of virtually every type of social and fraternal organization, is not aimed at the aficionado. Rather, the focus is on the man or woman who hasn't do-si-doed since grade six, and even then never looked a partner straight in the eye. If there is an assumption floating around at area square dances, it is that you don't know how to square dance but you're going to have a lot of fun learning.

A typical square dance these days goes something like this: A bunch of people, preferably half of them male and half female, get together and form a lot of squares or "sets." A set is made up of four couples in a square, which accounts, as you've probably guessed, for the name. (Similarly, the "round dancing" which you'll also be doing begins with all of the couples forming a large circle.)

A caller, who is as knowledgeable about square dancing as you are ignorant of it, takes a partner and slowly demonstrates the first step he'll ask you to do. The caller, who comes equipped with a fiddle, a band, or a phonograph, probably calls a dance once a week. He's well aware of your incompetence, and usually has some amusing patter to put everybody at ease about it. His first instruction will probably be something simple like having facing couples take four steps forward and four steps back. After the caller is certain that everybody knows how to count to four and can distinguish a left foot from a right, he'll show you a few more steps. Finally, he'll string them into a pattern which will put everyone back where he started from. The series will be repeated until you know it well.

This learning process is by no means a preliminary. It is very much a part of the evening's pleasure, for as soon as you can put together six moves without landing in a knot on the floor, the caller will teach you a seventh. Of course, these instructions are not being recited to you like something out of an army manual. Along with its vast musical heritage, square dancing has a vocabulary richer than that of any sport or trade. You'll be dancing joyously not just to the fiddle and the dulcimer, but to calls like "rope the cow, brand the calf. Swing your honey once and a half," or "Turn right around and go back through. Tie that knot like the cowboys do." There's a strong flavor of frontier life in the tunes. Lately, though, modern technology has made its mark on square dancing too, and calls like "slip the clutch" have entered the square dance language.

Incidentally, there's a good deal of implied, albeit good-natured, sexism in the language of the dance. Females are often "honeys," "gals" or "ladies," and if you bristle at calls like "Meet your honey, pat her on the head. If she don't like biscuit, give her cornbread," perhaps you'd better go bowling instead.

There are a lot of interesting messages in the calls. In that last one, for example, "biscuit" is an intimate waist swing, while "cornbread" is a more distant one which you might save for the wife of a jealous fullback.

While square dancing as a whole creates complicated geometric patterns, the individual moves are quite simple. The fact that the people in your square will occasionally get entangled like a sack full of paper clips is all the more reason you will promenade home glowing with anticipation of your next square dance. Perhaps more than anything else, square dancing is an elaborate courting ritual, a chance to flirt shamelessly and to establish meaningful eye contact with someone new every 30 seconds. In fact, because callers reform the squares several times in a night, and often call "mixer rounds," which involve constantly changing partners, you will have talked and danced with every other person at the dance by evening's end.

If you get hooked on square dancing you can join a square dancing club, learn the other 85 steps and get yourself some proper clothing.

Obviously, the couple who wants to attend just that occasional church square dance is not going to run out and buy satin shirts and gathered skirts with ribbons and ruffles. Any casual dress is fine at an informal square dance, with dungarees, plaid shirts (long sleeved), and circle skirts being particularly appropriate. Street shoes or slippers are best for the feet, and men who are just beginning should forgo the traditional boots, to avoid crushing the toes of a dozen honeys.

And remember, too, that there is nothing square about square dancing. It is an intelligent, enjoyable pastime that appeals to people of all ages and viewpoints. If you like music, if you like motion, if you like holding hands with the opposite sex, you're going to love square dancing.

Notes:

Hundreds of square dances are regularly scheduled for the public. However, some are for intermediate and advanced dancers only, so it's wise for a beginner to call the sponsoring clubs or associations and find out which is which. Usually, a non-club dance, or "fun dance," is your best bet. A complete roundup of dances can be found in a copy of the New England Square Dance Caller. Pick one up or get it by mail from PO Box NC, Norwell 02061. The Caller's telephone number is 659-7722.

Most square dance clubs around the state offer lessons, starting in September. To get a jump on things, we've listed a few of the clubs for you.

In Weymouth, there's Kramer's Hayloft, at 455 Union Street, which can be reached at the office (335-1884) or at the barn (335-9699). The Spares 'N Squares operate out of Milton, at the St. Pius X Hall, Big Blue Drive off Truman Highway (327-2995). Fairs 'N Squares, on the other hand, meets in the drill station behind the police station in downtown Framingham, and the Durfees (875-6964) hold all information. The details on Norwood's Curly Qs are at 326-0367 or 326-4777. North Andover boasts the Turkey Town Trotters, and Lloyd and Barb Bruce know all about it (686-9834). Squares in Focus resides in Peabody, meeting at the St. Thomas Hall, Margin Street. Bernie or Janet Carey (598-5670) can supply dance information.

The new Newbury.

(How to retire, how to run a business, how to foil a thief.)

In our Division of Continuing Education, you can learn how to plan a rewarding retirement; how to manage a business so you get the most out of it; how to get into the booming Security and Loss Prevention field. There are about six dozen "how-to" courses here; all of them make learning a richly satisfying experience. Most all classes are held evenings, at a campus near where you are now. The best walking tour of Boston is 740 feet above the ground.

That's because our whole tour of Boston begins and ends in the Hancock Tower Observatory on the 60th floor, atop the tallest building in New England.
See the most spectacular view of Boston there is, with 60 miles of breathtaking scenery. Then experience the Boston of 200 years ago through our unique multi-media exhibits. Like a photorama of Massachusetts' rich historical heritage. A show about Boston in 1775, featuring a 20-foot scale model. And a lot more.
The Observatory is open Monday through Saturday from 9am to 11pm, and Sundays from 10am till 11pm, every day except Thanksgiving and Christmas. Admission is $1.50 for adults, 75¢ for children 5 through 15. Group and Convention rates are available: call 247-1976. Our ticket office is located on St. James Avenue opposite Copley Square.
Visit the Hancock Tower Observatory. It's a walking tour of Boston that's pleasing to the eye—and easy on the feet.

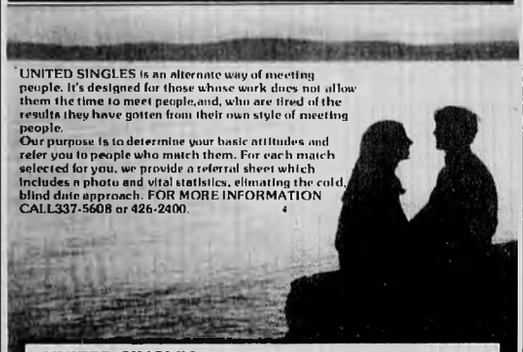
DATING



UNITED SINGLES is an alternate way of meeting people. It's designed for those whose work does not allow them the time to meet people,and, who are tired of the results they have gotten from their own style of meeting people.
Our purpose is to determine your basic attitudes and refer you to people who match them. For each match selected for you, we provide a referral sheet which includes a photo and vital statistics, eliminating the cold, blind date approach. FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL337-5608 or 426-2400.

Walks start at 9:30 am and cost $12 for members, $15 for non-members. The walks start from Great Woods Rd, just off Lynfield St, in Lynn. For all the details call 745-1876.

De Cordova Open House-Demonstrations of paper-making, silversmithing, sculpture and more. Tour the studios and speak with instructors and students to get an ideal of the courses the museum offers. There's a magic show for kids, too. September 9, starting at 1 pm at the De Cordova Museum, Sandy Pond Rd, in Lincoln. Admission is free. For more information call 259-8355.

Canoe Trip-An all-day challenging beginner trip on the Assabet River in Maynard to Concord at the Old North Bridge. September 9 at 9 am. Bring a lunch. Cost is $12.50 per person, or $25 per canoe, $4 per person if you bring your own canoe. The trip starts from the Charles River Canoe Service, on Rte 30 just before Rte 128, in Auburndale. Reservations are required. Call 527-9885.

English Contemporary Clothing-Meet Lord Charles Spencer-Churchill and see his new line of clothing at a fashion show in the men's department of Filene's Chestnut Hill store, September 9 at 1:30 pm.

Boston Flea Market-Over 100 exhibitors from the Northeast will sell antiques, collectibles, arts, and crafts, and exotic food at Waterfront Pk, in Boston. This 3rd annual event takes place September 10 from noon-dusk. Admission is free. For details call 742-6760.

First Night '79-That's right, it's being planned already, and artists' proposals are being accepted for the event through September 15. If you've got an idea for Boston's New Year's celebration, be it for music, dance, theatre, poetry or some other form of entertainment, write up a proposal of 1,000 words or less and send it to: First Night, Inc, 633 Statler Office Building, Boston 02116. For some suggestion of the details first, call 262-2640.

HUB

Bob the Chef–604 Columbus Avenue, Boston, 247-9773. Soul food eating at soul-pleasing prices. Arrive before 2 pm for eggs and grits, otherwise, settle for steaks in gravy, black-eyed peas, turnips. Don't miss out on the sweet-potato pie. Open Tues–Sat, 11 am–9 pm. No credit cards, and no liquor, but reservations are accepted.

Cafe Cybele–South Market Building, Quincy Market, Boston, 367-1324. Downstairs in the South Market, Cafe Cybele is an intimate escape from the hubbub of Faneuil Hall. The kitchen is a combination of French and North Italian: spinach turnovers, pâtés, chicken Anastasia. Prices are moderate, and the place is very small, so reservations are a good idea. Full bar. Hours: Mon–Wed, 11 am–9 pm; Thurs–Sat, 11 am to 11 pm; Sun, noon to 8 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

The Chart House–Long Wharf, (next to the NE Aquarium), 227-1576. Lodged in the former Gardiner Building, which was put up in the late 18th century, the Chart House has a good old American menu: beef, lobster, shrimp, with teriyaki touches. Prices are on the steep end of moderate. Hours: Mon–Fri, 4–11 pm; Sat, 4–midnight; Sun, 3–midnight. Full bar. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Durgin Park–30 North Market St, Boston, 227-2038. Durgin Park is an institution. Be prepared to stand in line (unless you can dine before 6), to share a table, and match wits with the grouchy waitresses, who are part of the tradition. A generous seafood plate, roast duck, and roast beef are among the specialties. Prices are moderate. Hours: Mon–Sat, 11:30–9 pm. Full bar. No credit cards, no reservations.

Harvest–44 Brattle St, Cambridge, 492-1115. The crop is continental and international, an extensive and ambitious menu, with prices to match. Duckling, tournedos au Roquefort. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am–3 pm, and 6 pm–midnight (no dinner after 10:30 pm). Reservations are a good idea in general, although they are not accepted for dinner Fri–Sat. AE, BA/V, MC.

India Restaurant–1780 Mass Ave, Cambridge, 354-0949. A flurry of curries: lamb, chicken, beef, seafood, and vegetarian. Full-course dinners at reasonable prices. No liquor. Hours: Daily, 5 pm–10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Joseph's–278 Dartmouth St, Boston, 266-1502. Under the aegis of the estimable Locke-Ober, Joseph's offers an elegant setting and a continental kitchen: Rack of Lamb, Sole Marguery. Expensive. Joseph's is closed on Sun, other days the hours are 11:45 am–11:00 pm. Reservations accepted. AE, BA/V, MC.

Joseph's Aquarium–100 Atlantic Ave, Boston, 523-4000. On the menu here, fish outnumbers meat dishes by about five to one, which is at it should be, given the pier-side location. If you can avoid lobster, the prices are moderate. Hours: 11:30 am–10 pm, Mon–Sat; until 9 pm, Sun. Full bar. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Ken's At Copley–529 Boylston St, Boston, 266-6149. Good delicatessen food, including a long list of big sandwiches, is the order of the day at Ken's. The prices are moderate, the atmosphere informal. The line can be long, but moves along quickly. Gaze upon the dessert cases while you're waiting. Hours: every day, 7 am–2:45 pm. Beer and wine available. No credit cards, no reservations.

Locke-Ober–3 Winter Pl, Boston, 542-1340. For more than a century, Locke-Ober has been a bastion for local politicians and businessmen. Even today, ladies may feel more comfortable upstairs. Continental cuisine: everything is a la carte; impeccable service; expensive but not extravagant. Hours: 11 am–10 pm, daily except Suns. Full bar, reservations. AE, BA/V, MC.

Scotch and Sirloin–77 N Washington, 723-3677. Menu specials include shrimp in ale batter, King Crab. Another special sporting events at the Boston Garden, from which they are across the street. Full bar. Hours: Sun–Thurs, 5:30–10:30, until 11:30 Fri–Sat. Reservations are accepted. AE, BA/V, MC.

Stella of Boston–74 E India Row, Boston, 227-3559. Parlate Italiano? Never mind, the menu is subtitled. Veal is a specialty: Scaloppine di vitello al Marsala, alla Zingarella, al Limone, al Francese . . . you get the idea. Hours: 11:30–midnight, every day. Full bar, moderate prices. AE/BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Truffles–55 Congress Street, 523-6080. The only place we know of that compares crepes to Rosencrantz and Guildenstern. Also, a large variety of sandwiches, pasta, pizza, dinners de Sade, and flying frappes. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon.–Fri., 4:30–midnight; Sat.–Sun., 3 pm–midnight. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Union Oyster House-41 Union St., 227-2750. Boston's oldest eatery, the place is aptly named: oysters and other marine life star on the menu. Full bar. Hours: Sun.-Thurs., 11 am-9 pm, until 9:30 Fri., until 10 Sat. AE, BA/V, DC, MD.

NORTH

The Easterly Restaurant-87 Atlantic Rd., Gloucester. American and Continental cuisine, with New England specialities, and food for your eyes, too: a terrific ocean view. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Fiske House 1798 Restaurant-1 Billerica Rd (at Rte 129), Chelmsford, 256-4464. A registered National Historic Site, serving American food with some continental accents, like Veal Spaulding, scampi Trabucco, and filet of sole Lafayette. Moderately expensive. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, MC.

Hardcover-15A Newbury St, Danvers, 774-1223. American favorites like sirloin and shrimp, accented with French touches like crepes. Moderate prices. Full bar. No reservations Fri-Sat, but at other times, they are not a bad idea. Hours: Mon-Thurs, 5 pm-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm; Sun, 4 pm-9 pm (5-10 in the summer). AE, MC.

Labadini's-165 State St, Newburyport, 465-9642. Small and informal, this family-owned eatery offers steaks, chops seafood, and Italian specialities, at moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-10 pm; Suns and holidays, 4 pm-10. No credit cards.

The Landing-At the Town Landing, Marblehead, 631-1878. Right on the harbor, a mostly seafood menu: Marblehead scrod, seafood casserole, fisherman's platter and some landbound specialties as well. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: From 11:30 am Mon-Sat, from 10:30 Sun, until 10 pm weekdays, 11 pm weekends. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Lyceum Restaurant-43 Church St, Salem, 745-7665. The Lyceum is housed in the building in which Alexander Graham Bell made the first public demonstration of the Telephone. The menu is extensive and continental: cuisses de grenouille Provencal, veal Zurichoise, duckling a la Montmorency flambe. The prices are moderate, and there is a full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am until after 10 pm. Reservations are recommended Fri-Sat evenings, and for Sun brunch. BA/V, MC, house charge.

Michael's House-26 Atlantic Ave, Marblehead, 631-1255. The house predates the restaurant by nearly two centuries. At lunch, try the quiche du jour, or the open steak sandwich. Seafood is a specialty any time. Prices are moderate. Open daily, 11:30-2, and 5:30-midnight. Full bar, wine list. AE, MC.

Proctor House-373 Lowell St, Peabody, 531-1598. In 18th-century surroundings, the menu is Yankee con brio, American and Italian specialties. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: 11:30 am-10 pm, til 11 Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Roselio's-18 Seward St, Marblehead, 631-9886. The cucina here is North Italian, the surroundings warmly Victorian. Veal Sorrentino, shrimp Luciana. Open daily, 11:45-2:30, and 5:30-10 pm. Reservations are advised for dinner. Fully licensed, no credit cards.

Woodman's-121 Main St, Essex, 768-6451. Highly informal, this place is seafood city. Clams, scallops, sole, shrimp, lobster: an ocean of fish. It's inexpensive, and in the winter, not too crowded. Full bar, but no credit cards, and no reservations. Hours: daily, 11 am-9 pm; Fri-Sun, til 10 pm.

WEST

Cafe l'Orange-Thoreau St, Concord, 369-8700. Upstairs in the Concord Depot, the Cafe is low-key, contemporary, and the cuisine is French: boneless rack of lamb, coquilles St. Jacques, duckling. Prices are moderate, reservations are accepted. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-2:30 pm, and 6-9, ('til 10 pm Fri-Sat), closed Suns. AE, MC.

Charley's Eating and Drinking Saloon-In the Mall at Chestnut Hill, Rte 9, Newton, 964-1200. Also in Braintree and Boston. Good food: crab-stuffed shrimp, London broil, and excellent service, in an active, Victorian room. Full bar and moderate prices. Hours: 11:30 am-2 am; Sun 4 pm-2 am. AE, CB, DC, MC.

The Deli-Shopper's World, Framingham, 872-4442. A nice self-explanatory name, and a nice spot to take a break from shopping. Complimentary cole slaw and pickles. Beer and wine only, reservations not required. Hours: opens daily at 7 am; Mon-Thurs until 10 pm; Fri-Sat until 1 am; Sun until 8 pm. BA/V.

The Every Day Gourmet-Mill & Speen Sts, Natick, 653-8010. Not quite everyday, actually, it's only open on weekends. The menu from this teaching kitchen changes all the time. Make reservations, and bring your own things to drink. Hours: Fri-Sat, noon-3 pm; Sun, 10 am-2 pm. No credit cards.

Legal Seafoods-Rte 9, in the Chestnut Hill Shopping Centre, 277-7300. Legal's outpost on the western front is sometimes less hectic than the Cambridge branch, especially if you are willing to eat early or late. Otherwise, the set-up is pretty much the same: the crowds, crowds, crowds are offset by the fish, fish, fish. Reservations for large parties. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. AE, and personal checks.

Sabra-45 Union St, Newton Centre, 527-5641. Israeli and Middle Eastern specialties, in gustatory harmony. Specialties include hamin on Sats, and shakshuka for Sun brunch. Not expensive, either. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Tues, 11 am-11 pm; Wed-Sunday, 11 am-midnight. AE, BA/V, MC.

Upper Crust-At the Sheraton-Tara Hotel, Framingham, 879-7200, and Braintree, 848-0600. Steaks and fish, chicken Hongroise, and the Tom Jones Dinner, a massive feast that requires two days notice. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Fri, 5 pm-10:30 pm; until 11 Sat; Sun, 3:30 pm-10 pm. Lunch, 11:30 am-3 pm, Mon-Fri. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

SOUTH

Barnside Tavern-Assinippi Corners, Rte 3, Hanover, 878-9814. Sprawling and always crowded, it's Americana from the word go: prime rib and shrimp are among the favorites. Salad and dessert bars. Fully licensed. Open daily from 11:30 am-10 pm, 1 pm-9 pm on Sun. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Ben White's-31 Providence Hwy (Rte 1), Norwood, 762-6740. Elegantly continental, with a greenhouse to enjoy along with things like chicken Jerusalem, veal Viennoise, and a full range of potables. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-9:45 pm; Sat, 5:30 pm-10:45 pm; Sun, noon-9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Casa Berrini-Main St, Marshfield, 834-8765. Continental embellishments on a traditional menu: veal, prime rib, seafood, and Salad Gazebo. Moderate prices, full bar. Open daily except Mon, 11 am-1 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Country Fare-1217 Main St, Hingham, 749-2260. Wildlife from land and sea among the entrees: King Crab casserole, roast duck. Moderately expensive. The premises are fully licensed, and reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sat, 11:30 am-9 pm; Sun, 11:30 am-8 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Ken's Fish House-218 Dedham St, Norfolk, 384-8152. A fish house, with steak and chicken, too, for landlubbers. Moderate prices. Full bar. Reservations are required on holidays. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-10 pm. AE, DC, MC.

Plaza Inn-Rte 1, Wrentham, 384-2800. "The pleasures of the table are of all time, and all ages, of every country and of every day." Entrees, which are French, Italian, and American, start at $5.95. Full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am. AE, MC.

The Victorian-583 Linwood Ave, Whitinsville, 234-2500. Whitinsville may be off the beaten track, but if you're in the area, or even if you're not, The Victorian will reward you with period decor and a menu that is mostly French, with continental and American accents. Closed Mons, otherwise, Tues-Fri, 11:30-2:30; Tues-Sat, from 5:30 pm onwards, and Sun, noon-8 pm. Fully licensed. BA/V, MC.

Winsor House Inn-390 Washington St, Duxbury, 934-2548. The Winsor House is grandly Federalist without, warmly panelled within. Continental menu: Saltimbocca, coquilles St. Jacques, sole Jacqueline. Moderately expensive. Fully licensed. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm; Tues-Sat 6 pm-9 pm, Fri-Sat 6-10 pm. Reservations are a good idea for weekend dining. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

An Historical Dining Experience

The 1798 Fiske House

RESTAURANT

Majestically overlooking the Chelmsford Common is the Fiske House . . . admired for its architectural beauty since the 18th century, and enjoyed as a tavern in the 1800's, it was later bought by the Fiskes to become their home. The Fiske House is a registered National Historic Site, almost entirely in its original form. Today, the building remains one of the most stately houses in Chelmsford with its prominent place in the center of this beautiful New England Town. The area, history, and unique architecture of the building vividly express America's past.

The Fiske House invites you to relax and partake of sumptuous cuisine in the romantic atmosphere of our six eighteenth century dining rooms, each complimented by a fireplace and candlelit tables. The Fiske House is truly elegant dining for the discriminating gourmet.

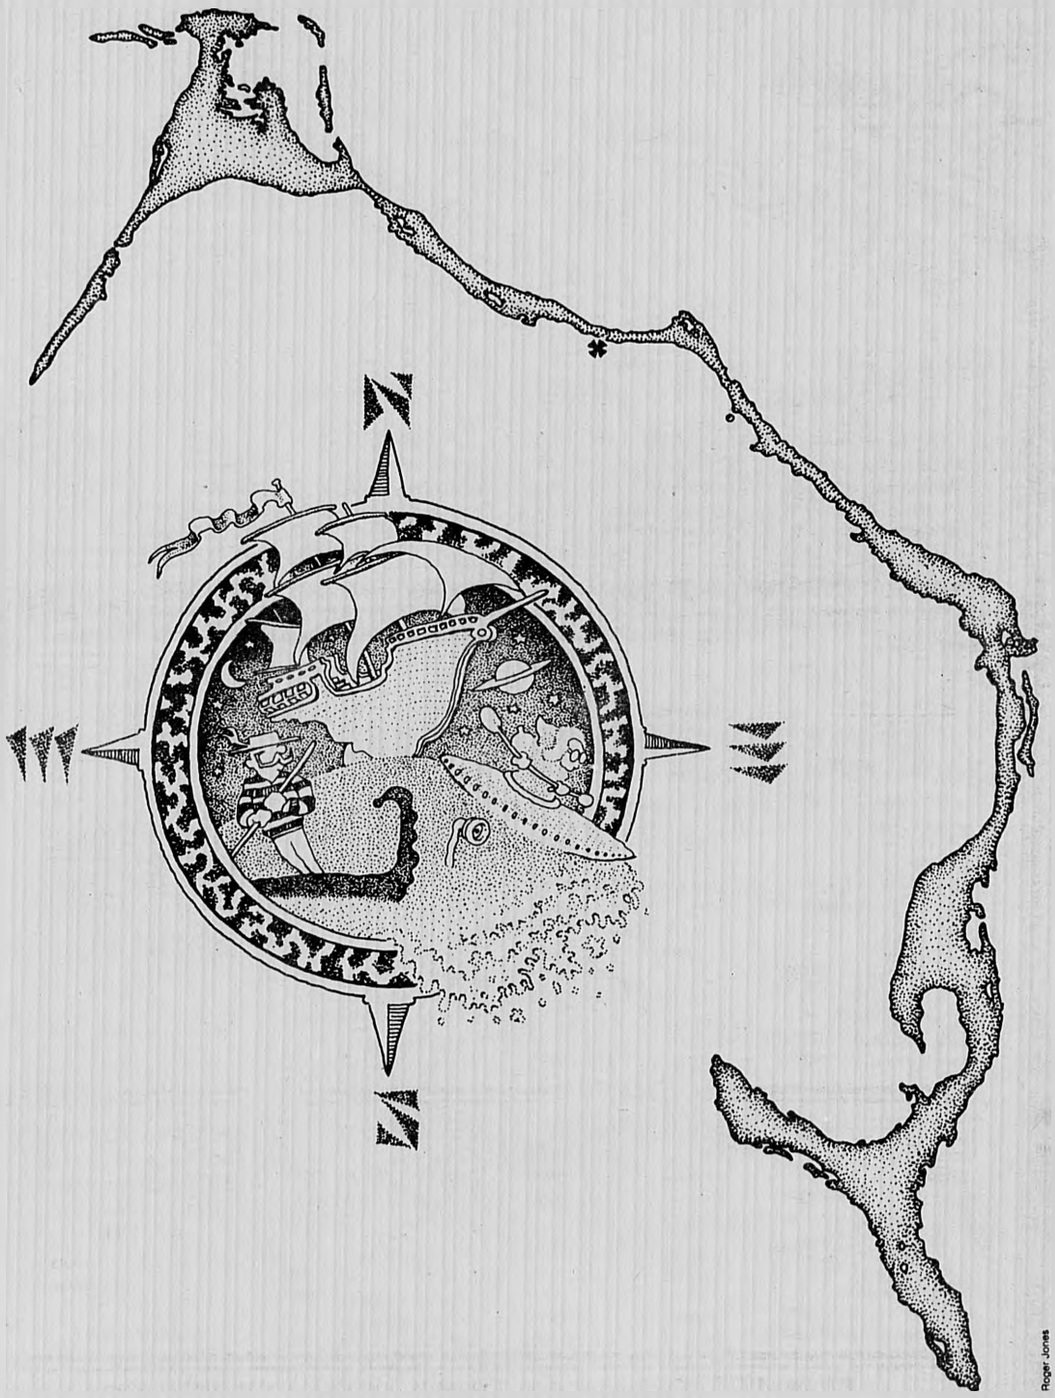
Puzzle #44
It's a Small World
By Don Rubin

They say that pirates once inhabited this remote stretch of land. Of course that was back in the eighteenth century. All we know is that our travel agent recommended it — even gave us this map — and then swore by his tattoo that we'd have a wonderful time.

The total surface area of the earth (land and water) is approximately 196,938,800 square miles, give or take. And while we've pinpointed a fairly precise location on it, you can be as general or specific as you like in your identification. We'd guess the smart money is riding on being as specific as humanly possible — at least just a little more specific than some other puzzler.

We'd like the name of the land mass, for openers. The rest is up to you and your atlas.



Roger Jones

Rules of the Game
From now on, the answers to and winners of any given puzzle will appear TWO WEEKS after the puzzle runs in METROGUIDE. Note that the deadline has also been extended.

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a tearsheet of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Ch'i Ch'ae Pan #42
Rumor has it that the mail strike was averted due to the increased revenues collected by the Post Office — thanks to the overwhelming number of replies to Puzzle #42. Whatever the reason was, we're glad so many of you seemed to have had such a good time completing this puzzle. The number of correct answers was astounding. We'll just have to make them more difficult in the future.

September 19th is Primary Day

Tuesday is Primary Day, and Winchester voters will be going to the polls to select the candidates they would like to see run for office in this year's November elections.

There are quite a few candidates to chose from this year, and The Star has prepared a special section with pictures and final campaign statements from local and county candidates; a sample ballot so voters can see how the names will be set up before they get to the voting booth; a list of polling places; and a Senate candidates' questionnaire prepared by Common Cause.

To help you sort out who's who in the 1978 Primary Election, turn to the second section of today's newspaper.

Inside today:

-- Town tennis results, pp. 10-11
-- High school gym schedule, p. 11
-- Senate questionnaire, p. 1B
-- Candidates' final statements, pp. 2B
-- Sample ballots, pp. 3-5B

The Boston and Cambridge Centers of Adult Education

Where The Learning Is Easy

Education can be a traumatic experience -- but it needn't be. At the Boston and Cambridge Centers of Adult Education, the emphasis is on low-stress learning, and there are, between the two, over 700 courses to choose from. Whale watching, disco dancing, middle Egyptian grammar and pottery classes are just a few.

About town

Dr. Frank Virnelli of 15 Dix st., will be the guest speaker at this year's first membership meeting of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, to be held Monday at 1 p.m. at the hospital's School of Nursing, 170 Governors ave., Medford.

Dr. Virnelli, who is an assistant clinical professor at Boston University School of Medicine, will present a slide show and speak on platic and reconstructive surgery.

Refreshments will be served, and the public is invited to attend.

Local piano students were honored recently by the National Guild of Piano Teachers for presenting programs of 10 or more memorized pieces in guild auditions for three or four consecutive years. Three year winners are Allison Buckner, Christopher Byrne, Beth Frank, Leslie Lien, Elizabeth Wechsler, and Daphne Zervogios. Four year winners are Eric Fieleke, Charlotte Hartunian and Michelle Stolow.

Le Bellecour, a French restaurant on Muzzey street in Lexington, has been taken over by Lorena road residents Mita and Frans Berkhout. Frans, who is a native of the Netherlands, graduated from the Hotel School in The Hague; Mita, a Californian, was educated in Switzerland. They say they will concentrate on French Haute haute-cuisine and a few Dutch dishes.

The Berkhouts came before the selectmen here not long ago, looking to open up a restaurant in Winchester. But, alas, it's too soon to obtain a liquor license here, and what's a French restaurant without good wine? So they ended up elsewhere; let's hope when the liquor law comes through for Winchester, there will be more offers of the same quality.

School's back in session, with 4321 of Winchester's children back in the classrooms after a long summer. Enrollments were down 242 from last year. (Staff photo)

Projections off by 118

Enrollments down 242 on first day of school

Winchester school children returned to the classrooms this past week 4321 strong as the 1978-79 school year got off to a smooth start.

As of the first day of school, there were 118 more students than had been projected last spring; however, there are 242 fewer children in the schools this year than there were last year.

Enrollments across town varied in both directions from the projections, following no particular pattern. A careful eye was being kept on the elementary schools to see how their numbers fell. The school committee has approved extra staffing for most of the schools over the past few months, and board members were waiting to see if the enrollments justified the additions.

Depending upon who you talk to, they did and didn't. Board Chairman Constance Papas, who opposed most of the staffing additions last spring, said some of the schools should have gotten the extra teachers and some shouldn't.

"Muraco, Ambrose and Parkhurst all deserved some kind of staffing because of the special situations there," she said. However, Mrs. Papas felt extra teachers for Vinson-Owen (where enrollments were below projections), Washington, Mystic, and Lincoln were not justified.

The school board approved an extra teacher for Muraco last week at a special meeting held the evening of the first day of school. Mrs. Papas voted for that addition.

Superintendent William C. MacDonald agreed with Mrs. Papas that "there's no question that the increased enrollments at three schools (Muraco, Parkhurst, and Ambrose) can justify additional staff." MacDonald added, "Mystic and Lincoln came out as we expected; V-O is down by about 15 kids."

The superintendent noted that "you always have some classes that are lighter and some that are heavier than you'd like to have. The fact is, however, the buildings are staffed on a ratio," so while there may be a class or two with more than a 25:1 student-teacher ratio, there are others with much lower ratios.

Of the start of school, MacDonald commented, "I think it's the finest school opening I've seen. The number of problems was very small." He said he has visited all but three of the schools, and he plans to get to those by the end of the week.

One problem he did point out was a Spanish 1 class at the high school which has 31 students enrolled and four more waiting to sign up. The school board will meet again this Monday to consider that and other staffing problems in the secondary schools.

Said Mrs. Papas, "We haven't even looked at the secondary numbers. . . we could be facing some greater needs there than in the elementary schools."

School board member Catherine Alexander, who favored most of the extra staffing requests for the elementary schools, said she felt "very comfortable in all of my decisions."

Added she, "I'm glad we had the opportunity to hire staff in June to be able to keep some of the most talented for the system. . . Even though I admit it was perhaps a bit generous with staffing, I would rather be generous along those lines. . . I do not consider staffing frills."

One other adjustment made by the committee was to add a half teacher aide at the Lincoln School kindergarten at a cost of about $2000. There are 30 children in the kindergarten at Lincoln and the staffing formula calls for a half teacher and half an aide for that many students.

Budget in the red

The recent actions by the school committee adding staff for Muraco and Lincoln bring the 1979 school personal services budget

Monday at Town Hall

Public hearing on charter changes

A raft of changes to the town's charter and by-laws some minor, some not so minor, have been proposed by the town's government regulations committee with the help of local boards and interested citizens.

The changes were presented to the board of selectmen Monday night, and, with some exceptions, most were approved by the board.

A public hearing on the changes is scheduled for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the board of selectmen meeting room. A second public hearing has also been called for Sept. 28.

Chairman of the regulations committeee, David Mortensen, of 142 Highland ave., told selectmen Monday that he would like to "encourage debate and public discussion" on the proposed changes.

Mortensen steered his committee through 15 meetings during the summer months to complete the report before the fall town meetinu where the changes will be rejected or ratified by town meeting members

He said the committee's "greatest frustration" was not hearing back from sources which would be most affected by the changes. "We notified all the necessary persons, but we never heard anything from some of them," Mortensen explained.

"We want to make clear that we do not intend to ignore them," he said.

Selectmen referred the proposed changes to town counsel, Douglas Randall, who will check the legality of some changes before the public hearing.

Under state law, amendments to the charter must be adopted by the voters in the spring elections in addition to town meeting approval. The by-laws, on the other hand, need town meeting approval and subsequent approval of the attorney general.

Prior to 1975, various groups in Winchester studied form of town government and recommended adoption of a home-rule charter, as permitted by the state Constitution. This process resulted in the election of a charter commission which presented its report to the town in 1975. The report was overwhelmingly supported and adopted by the voters at the annual spring elections in 1975 and became the Winchester Home Rule Charter.

The proposed charter, at that time, was presented to the voters as a complete package, without opportunity for amendment.

Many residents were anxious to see that the changes accomplished by the charter became effective smmoothly and, therefore, refrained from proposing amendment changes until the process could have a fair opportunity to work.

Now that the system has been in operation for three years, various boards and citizens have insisted that this is the time to permit

Interviews with candidates . . .

Rotondi vs. Lyons: issues argued, charges aired in Senate race

State Sen. Sam Rotondi is being challenged in the Democratic Primary on Tuesday by James Lyons and several issues have developed during the course of the campaign.

Misleading statements by some campaign supporters and carefully worded advertising which tells only part of the story has resulted in charges and counter-charges regarding where each candidate stands.

Both candidates were asked to clarify their positions and comment on each other's statements. The interviews were set up at the request of Lyons who asked the newspaper to look into charges he made in his ads attacking Rotondi. At Lyons' insistance, the interviews were tape recorded so that there would be no possibility of misquoting.

Sen. Samuel Rotondi

Rotondi welcomed the opportunity to talk about some of Lyons' campaign statements and raise some questions of his own.

Shortly after the newspaper's questionnaire on issues was printed two weeks ago, there was a flurry of reports in Arlington that Lyons supporters — particularly police and firemen — were claiming he was misquoted on the issue of binding arbitration for public employees.

Binding arbitration for police and firefighters, which takes control over wages and benefits away from Town Meeting, has been a hot issue in Arlington for five years. The Town Meeting voted in 1973 to urge local legislators to defeat the first binding arbitration bill. But the bill passed — by one vote — when Arlington Rep. Joe Daly switched his position and voted with the unions. Daly was soundly defeated in the next election, primarily because of this vote.

In 1977, a townwide "advisory" referendum showed the Arlington voters decidedly against binding arbitration, despite combined campaign effort by the police and fire unions to win public support.

Asked why reports were being spread that Lyons would support extending the binding arbitration law if elected, he replied, "I have no control over what other people say, I stand 100 percent by what I said in the paper."

Lyons added, "My father has been a policeman for 33 years; I've got a lot of friends who are police officers. Those people want to see me elected because they are my friends."

He took a strong position against binding arbitration for police and firefighters without local control in his original statement and in the interview, but opposed the recent legislation which limited binding arbitration for MBTA employees.

Asked if the present police and fire binding arbitration law were before him today how he would vote, Lyons said, "To be consistent in my stand, I'd have to vote against it."

He said he personally felt that the police and fire unions "need something like that," but that as a State Senator he would vote against binding arbitration unless the law contained a provision for local control and "was passed at a referendum or at town meeting."

Reminded that Arlington already had a referendum and voted against binding arbitration for public employees, he said "Right, I'm well aware of that; that's why local control is the answer." But on the recent bill which required the arbitrator to take the ability of the taxpayers to pay into consideration in MBTA union awards, Lyons said he would have voted against it.

Rotondi said Lyons' position on this bill is "absolutely inconsistent." Rotondi favored the bill, which is now law, and not only requires the arbitrator to weigh the communities' ability to pay but also ended the perpetual quarterly cost-of-living raises, requiring them to be renegotiated each contract term.

Lyons explained that he felt the automatic cost-of- living raises were negotiated at the bargaining table and should be taken away there, not by the legislature. But in his questionnire answer he said he supported requiring the arbitrator to take taxpayer ability to pay into consideration.

"You can't have it both ways," the newspaper asked for this interview. "Rotondi had to vote on the bill as it was written. He had to weigh one thing against another. If that bill was before you and had both of those provisions in it, how would you have voted on the bill?" Lyons was asked.

"I just told you," he replied — in favor of the MBTA union and against the ability of the taxpayer to pay.

Sen. Rotondi has charged that Lyons' position on the recent court reorganization bill represented a similar attempt to take both sides on an issue.

In his newspaper statement, Lyons charged that the court reform bill was "fiscally irresponsible" and attacked the provisions for $5 million in pay raises for judges and court employees which were included as part of the consolidation of the courts into a state system. But in his ads he said he "enthusiastically supports legislation which prrovides the people of Winchester with $355,500 and Arlington, $589,600, in permanent property tax relief through the immediate funding of county courts by the state."

Sen. Rotondi says he is incredulous at this contradiction.

Rotondi, who helped write the court reorganization bill, was recently cited by the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns and the Massachusetts Selectmens' Association as "Legislator of the Year," in part for his efforts in bringing about major local property tax relief through the court reform bill. "My opponent is totally inconsistent. He has clearly taken two stands on the court reform bill."

Rotondi said the major portion of the raises contained in the bill were to bring District Court judges up to the pay scale of Superior Court judges, about a $9,000 increase, because their duties would be the same. He favored phasing this raise over eight years but agreed on the two-year compromise which eventually passed.

Lyons said he believed that the legislature could have separated the issue of judges' raises and court reorganization and voted on them separately. Rotondi pointed out that this was the most significant piece of legislation before the session, that it was the result of four years of work and the product of many compromises. And the conference committee's report could not be amended, "it was a yes or no vote on court reform."

Asked "How would you have voted on this same bill which included both the raises and the court reorganization?" Lyons said "I would have voted against it." In so doing he would have voted against the $355,000 tax relief to Winchester and the $589,600 to Arlington, a direct reversal of the position taken earlier in his political ads in both newspapers.

Lyons said "For the state legislature to tell us that they have to give $5 million in pay raises to take something off our tax rate, then in my opinion, that's just a lot of talk. They could have eliminated those pay raises and also put through the comprehensive court reform bill."

Rotondi replies that it was only the result of many compromises and public pressure that any bill was finally passed. He said it would not have been fair to ask the District Court judges to take on similar responsiblities of Superior Court judges, give up "home court" assignments and continue to receive about $32,000 a year which is less than the pay of the average lawyer in Massachusetts.

Lyons is basing the main thrust of his campaign on the "right to life" issue but his position on abortion differs with Rotondi in only one area, state funding for welfare cases Lyons is against state funding of abortion for anyone while Rotondi sees the cutting off of all such medical payments means that only those who can afford hospital treatment will get proper care. "It's a Constitutional right whether you agree with it or not and the legislature cannot take away constitutional rights," Rotondi says.

Both candidates have issued strong personal statements against abortion. Rotondi also takes credit for working with the Catholic Conference to revive a pregnancy maintenance bill, amend it to the satisfaction of Gov. Dukakis, and get it into law. This bill established an education program and clinics to promote carrying pregnancies to full term.

Lyons is "totally opposed" to all abortion and state funding. Rotondi says "I take an oath as a State Senator to uphold the Constitution of the United States and presently that Constitution gives a woman the right to elect for an abortion under certain circumstances. While I disagree with it, I don't believe I have the right to limit her Constitutional rights but only the right to work to change the Constitution for everybody. As the father of three, and one of 13 children, I oppose abortion, and that is my position."

Lyons, while recognizing that the Supreme Court has ruled abortion in certain circumstances a matter of constitutional right to choose, points to another Supreme Court decision which says that states do not have to provide abortion funds through their welfare systems if they decide otherwise. Massachusetts passed a compromise bill this year which allows welfare payment of

"Feed Your Family for Less!"

Ever since early last summer when beef prices started going up, I've been jotting down ideas that can help you feed your family for less. I've also been listening to some of your thrifty tricks for stretching food dollars which I think are really clever. So, I've put these together in one "big" list! Some are geared to your shopping, others for cooking. Even if you don't try them all, if you adapt a few, you Will be making your money go farther.

WHEN YOU SHOP:

- *Meat Choices........ Substitute less expensive cuts when possible, such as shoulder pork chops for center cut cut chops, round steak for flank steak, beef liver for calves or chicken liver, chicken legs and thighs for breasts.
- *Take advantage of chicken ..... A very good buy, especially the larger birds with more meat relative to bone. Use at different times...thaw partially for easy cutting. Cut off legs, thighs and wings for braising. Thinly slice breast perpendicular to bone to use as cutlets. Cook remaining carcass for chicken and noodles, soup or other casseroles.
- *Save bones............ Freeze bones, poultry necks and giblets until you have enough to cook for soups and stock.
- *Cheese.................. When buying sliced, choose the package without individually wrapped slices...select chunks to shred your own rather than buying the more expensive shredded.
- *A good milk buy.... Is nonfat dry milk...for tasty drinking mix half reliquefied nonfat with half fluid whole milk.
- *Margarine choices...Sticks are more economical than the tub or liquid.
- *Lettuce variety....... Often romaine, escarole and endive are lower in price than Iceberg — less when you compare ounces or pounds — they're more nutritious, too.
- *Cut down on your frozen food expenditures .... By buying chopped styles of certain vegetables rather than the whole (broccoli, asparagus, etc.) and plain vegetables rather than sauced.
- *Know coffee comparisons .... Cup for cup, freeze dried and instant cost less than regular, with instant being the lowest.

- Nabisco Premium Saltines 16-oz. pkg. .... 59¢
- Durkee Brown Gravy Mix .... 5 pkgs. $1
- Hanover Vegetable or 3-Bean Salad 2 14½-oz jars $1
- Keebler French Vanilla Cookies 16-oz. .... 89¢

September 19th is Primary Day

Tuesday is Primary Day, and Winchester voters will be going to the polls to select the candidates they would like to see run for office in this year's November elections.

There are quite a few candidates to chose from this year, and The Star has prepared a special section with pictures and final campaign statements from local and county candidates; a sample ballot so voters can see how the names will be set up before they get to the voting booth; a list of polling places; and a Senate candidates' questionnaire prepared by Common Cause.

To help you sort out who's who in the 1978 Primary Election, turn to the second section of today's newspaper.

The Boston and Cambridge Centers of Adult Education

Where The Learning Is Easy

Education can be a traumatic experience -- but it needn't be. At the Boston and Cambridge Centers of Adult Education, the emphasis is on low-stress learning, and there are, between the two, over 700 courses to choose from. Whale watching, disco dancing, middle Egyptian grammar and pottery classes are just a few.

School's back in session, with 4321 of Winchester's children back in the classrooms after a long summer. Enrollments were down 242 from last year. (Staff photo)

Projections off by 118

Enrollments down 242 on first day of school

Winchester school children returned to the classrooms this past week 4321 strong as the 1978-79 school year got off to a smooth start.

As of the first day of school, there were 118 more students than had been projected last spring; however, there are 242 fewer children in the schools this year than there were last year.

Enrollments across town varied in both directions from the projections, following no particular pattern. A careful eye was being kept on the elementary schools to see how their numbers fell. The school committee has approved extra staffing for most of the schools over the past few months, and board members were waiting to see if the enrollments justified the additions.

Depending upon who you talk to, they did and didn't. Board Chairman Constance Papas, who opposed most of the staffing additions last spring, said some of the schools should have gotten the extra teachers and some shouldn't.

"Muraco, Ambrose and Parkhurst all deserved some kind of staffing because of the special situations there," she said. However, Mrs. Papas felt extra teachers for Vinson-Owen (where enrollments were below projections), Washington, Mystic, and Lincoln were not justified.

The school board approved an extra teacher for Muraco last week at a special meeting held the evening of the first day of school. Mrs. Papas voted for that addition.

Superintendent William C. MacDonald agreed with Mrs. Papas that "there's no question that the increased enrollments at three schools (Muraco, Parkhurst, and Ambrose) can justify additional staff." MacDonald added, "Mystic and Lincoln came out as we expected; V-O is down by about 15 kids."

The superintendent noted that "you always have some classes that are lighter and some that are heavier than you'd like to have. The fact is, however, the buildings are staffed on a ratio," so while there may be a class or two with more than a 25:1 student-teacher ratio, there are others with much lower ratios.

Of the start of school, MacDonald commented, "I think it's the finest school opening I've seen. The number of problems was very small." He said he has visited all but three of the schools, and he plans to get to those by the end of the week.

One problem he did point out was a Spanish 1 class at the high school which has 31 students enrolled and four more waiting to sign up. The school board will meet again this Monday to consider that and other staffing problems in the secondary schools.

Said Mrs. Papas, "We haven't even looked at the secondary numbers. . . we could be facing some greater needs there than in the elementary schools."

School board member Catherine Alexander, who favored most of the extra staffing requests for the elementary schools, said she felt "very comfortable in all of my decisions."

Added she, "I'm glad we had the opportunity to hire staff in June to be able to keep some of the most talented for the system. . . Even though I admit it was perhaps a bit generous with staffing, I would rather be generous along those lines. . . I do not consider staffing frills."

One other adjustment made by the committee was to add a half teacher aide at the Lincoln School kindergarten at a cost of about $2000. There are 30 children in the kindergarten at Lincoln and the staffing formula calls for a half teacher and half an aide for that many students.

About town

Dr. Frank Virnelli of 15 Dix st., will be the guest speaker at this year's first membership meeting of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, to be held Monday at 1 p.m. at the hospital's School of Nursing, 170 Governors ave., Medford.

Dr. Virnelli, who is an assistant clinical professor at Boston University School of Medicine, will present a slide show and speak on platic and reconstructive surgery.

Refreshments will be served, and the public is invited to attend.

Local piano students were honored recently by the National Guild of Piano Teachers for presenting programs of 10 or more memorized pieces in guild auditions for three or four consecutive years. Three year winners are Allison Buckner, Christopher Byrne, Beth Frank, Leslie Lien, Elizabeth Wechsler, and Daphne Zervoglos. Four year winners are Eric Fieleke, Charlotte Hartunian and Michelle Stolow.

Le Bellecour, a French restaurant on Muzzey street in Lexington, has been taken over by Lorena road residents Mita and Frans Berkhout. Frans, who is a native of the Netherlands, graduated from the Hotel School in The Hague; Mita, a Californian, was educated in Switzerland. They say they will concentrate on French Haute haute-cuisine and a few Dutch dishes.

The Berkhouts came before the selectmen here not long ago, looking to open up a restaurant in Winchester. But, alas, it's too soon to obtain a liquor license here, and what's a French restaurant without good wine? So they ended up elsewhere; let's hope when the liquor law comes through for Winchester, there will be more offers of the same quality.

Monday at Town Hall

Public hearing on charter changes

A raft of changes to the town's charter and by-laws some minor, some not so minor, have been proposed by the town's government regulations committee with the help of local boards and interested citizens.

The changes were presented to the board of selectmen Monday night, and, with some exceptions, most were approved by the board.

A public hearing on the changes is scheduled for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the board of selectmen meeting room. A second public hearing has also been called for Sept. 28.

Chairman of the regulations committeee, David Mortensen, of 142 Highland ave., told selectmen Monday that he would like to "encourage debate and public discussion" on the proposed changes.

Mortensen steered his committee through 15 meetings during the summer months to complete the report before the fall town meetinu where the changes will be rejected or ratified bv town meeting members

He said the committee's "greatest frustration" was not hearing back from sources which would be most affected by the changes. "We notified all the necessary persons, but we never heard anything from some of them," Mortensen explained.

"We want to make clear that we do not intend to ignore them," he said.

Selectmen referred the proposed changes to town counsel, Douglas Randall, who will check the legality of some changes before the public hearing.

Under state law, amendments to the charter must be adopted by the voters in the spring elections in addition to town meeting approval. The by-laws, on the other hand, need town meeting approval and subsequent approval of the attorney general.

Prior to 1975, various groups in Winchester studied form of town government and recommended adoption of a home-rule charter, as permitted by the state Constitution. This process resulted in the election of a charter commission which presented its report to the town in 1975. The report was overwhelmingly supported and adopted bv the voters at the annual spring elections in 1975 and became the Winchester Home Rule Charter.

The proposed charter, at that time, was presented to the voters as a complete package, without opportunity for amendment.

Many residents were anxious to see that the changes accomplished bv the charter became effective smmoothly and, therefore, refrained from proposing amendment changes until the process could have a fair opportunity to work.

Now that the svstem has been in operation for three years, various boards and citizens have insisted that this is the time to permit

"responsible discussion of revision" to the charter and by-laws.

The spring 1977 annual town meeting commissioned the government regulations committeee to undertake a study of the proposals of all interested groups, to hold at least two public hearings, and to report to the town meeting

Committee proposals

Amendments to the charter and aooroved by selectmen include:

— Increasing the period from 30 to 40 days between the cutoff date for submission of warrant articles and the date of the town meeting;

—Empowering the selectmen to remove an acting town manager from office for cause;

—Allowing temporary or part-time appointments made by the town manager to become effective immediately.

Amendments to the by-laws and approved by the selectmen include:

—Establishing a procedure for declaring a town meeting seat vacant for non-attendance;

—Incorporatinq the capital planning committee into the by-laws

Supported in principle by selectmen were:

—Allowing the town meeting to establish the length of time which an individual speaker at town meeting may have for an extension of time. (Selectmen's initial reaction to this proposed change is that there should be a certain amount of flexibility in this area. " There's merit in flexibility," Selectmen Barbara Hankins said.

—Establishing and incorporating the human services council into the bv-laws. Selectmen approved this change "subject to exact wording."

Changes oroposed bv the committee and not supported by selectmen include:

—Spelling out some of the selectmen's duties regarding Wildwood Cemetery. Selectmen have "grave problems" with this proposed change because, as one selectman put it, "I don't like anybody telling us what to do;"

—Placing before the town meeting three proposals, each designed to increase the size of the school committee to six, seven, or nine members. The committee prooosed this article because "no one on the committee has the expertise to determine a school committee's size," Mortensen said. He said he would like to hear town meeting members' views on the subject, but selectmen said they should aoproach the town meeting with one proposal.

Changes proposed by selectmen and not submitted by the regulations committee include:

—Establising the number of signatures needed for submission of warrant articles consistent with state law.

Other proposals to be considered by the upcoming town meeting will suggest that the public works function of the town be overseen by an elected board rather than by the town manager answerable to the selectmen. This change represents a fundamental change to the structure of town government and will reguire an amendment to the charter.

School board debates proposed charter changes

Speaking of charter changes, the school board hashed over several proposals at their meeting Monday.

They voted 3-1 to support adding a sixth member to the school committee, a proposal brought up by past chairman Mary Pronski. Those in favor say there's too much work to be done for five and that six members will give the board broader representation. That's certainly a laudable notion: at the moment, all five members live on the west side of town.

But Connie Papas, board chairman, said she is against the sixth member. "I think five works well," she commented, speculating that people rarely vote for someone according to where they live

Although the board would like to be able to present their own version of the school budget to town meeting, they decided to give up the fight for now. Said Mrs. Papas, "I don't think it has a prayer."

There was some disagreement about when board members should take office. One charter change proposal would have newly elected members take office after town meeting, to allow the old members who have worked on the school budget to present it to town meeting.

New members are at a "considerable disadvantage," notes Mrs. Papas, in dealing with the meeting. But the other side of the coin is that new members get a good introduction to school committee business through town meeting and the spring term at school.

Cathy Alexander was adamant about the proposal. She felt the committee should push for a compromise that would allow old members to at least sit with the new committee at town meeting.

★ Schools

The school department has already realized $67,440 in salary differentials, a sum traditionally used to cover staffing adjustments after school opens in September. However, this year the committee took $60,000 out of their budget to account for the expected differential, so less than $7000 of that figure can be applied to pay for the extra staffing. Other sources include unused sabbatical money, unallocated funds, subsitute costs and overtime.

Fallon said "it would take just about everything falling right for us" for the deficit to be made up this year. "It would be very fortuitous."

Fallon noted that the budget was based on enrollment projections prepared by school board member Heinrich Holland, finance committee member James Lane, and data processing director Arthur Sarno. Those "revised" projections came out 118 below the actual first day enrollments.

A more accurate projection was made earlier last year by Sarno, using what he calls a "retention ratio" method. This method accounts for various types of changes in the system and turns these variables into a formula to be applied from one year to the next to enrollment figures.

Sarno's total was 4235, off the actual figures by 78. The revised total of 4203 missed by 118.

Supt. MacDonald said that the 118 difference could mean another $8-9000 in other expenses for those children, which would put further pressure on the budget. "It's a pure guess" as to whether or not the deficit can be made up, MacDonald said. "It's not going to be easy."

Workshops on environment set Sept. 23

The Mass. Audubon Society, the Mass. Association of Conservation Commissions, the Mass. Conservation Council, the Mass. Environmental Coalition, and the Mass. Forest and Park Association are sponsoring a conference on Massachusetts environmenttal agency programs Sept. 23 from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. at the AMC Cabot Auditorium at 3 Joy st., Boston.

Twelve workshops will be held on the regulatory, management, construction, and other state programs affecting the environment. Attendees will receive program fact sheets for those workshops they have signed up for.

The workshops will focus on the basic mission of each agency, the budget available for the work, how the money is being spent, how the programs are being administered, what problems need solutions, and what programs need special support.

There will be an hour break for a bring-your-own lunch. Coffee will be provided. For further information, contact any one of the following:

Wilma Frey or Alecia Agan, Mass. Forest and Park Assoc., 742-2553; Deborah Howard, Mass. Audubon, 259-9500 or 367-1026; or Gregor McGregor, Mass. Conservation Council, 227-7289.

You must register by this Monday to attend the workshops of your choice.

Rotondi, Lyons on issues

★ Interview

abortion costs only in cases of rape or incest but implementation of this law is being held up by the Federal Courts.

Lyons charged that Sen. Rotondi took two different positions in two different towns regarding the Proposition Two-and-one-half, quuoting from the Woburn Times in a June interview and the Lexington Minute Man in a July interview. In the first case the quote has Rotondi saying he favors the bill and the second case he's quoted as against it, telling the voters in two different towns, different things.

Sen Rotondi says Lyons is raising a false issue. He says the Woburn Times called him the day the Senate voted to suspend the rules to admit the late-filed bill and all Senators but one favored admitting the bill for discussion. Rotondi says he favored only immediate admission of the bill and noted that it would come before his Committee on Taxation for hearings.

The Lexington Minute Man interview was a month later, after hearings were held, and Rotondi said it was clear the proposed tax cut bill would impose severe restrictions on local budgets, cutting Arlington's budget by over 40 percent. And that's why he opposed the bill.

Sen. Rotondi counter-charged that Lyons has been intentionally telling people in different communities different things because he has not been running his anti-abortion ads in Lexington but has in Woburn. Rotondi says, "He charges me with forum shopping and saying different things in different communities. Those statements were made in interviews where the newspapers sought my reaction to events. They sought me out. My opponent is consciously forum shopping when he runs different ads in different communities."

Asked about his stand on the Proposition Two and one-half, Lyons said "I support the concept of cutting taxes . . but I don't support laying off all kinds of people and cutting the budget by 50 percent and all that."

There appears to be no difference in their positions on the bill. Asked about selective placement of different ads in Lexington, Lyons said he was not well known there so he was trying to emphasize his picture and his background rather than his position on the issues.

While Sen. Rotondi has supported the so-called bottle bill which would require a deposit on cans and bottles and ban nonreturnable containers, Lyons opposes this bill.

Lyons says he favors instead a litter tax on manufacturers. "The program that was set up by the (bottle) industry that have charged the business community to be responsible for their litter. . ."

Asked "Who is going to clean up the streets? You mean you favor using those taxes to hire people to go around and clean up bottles?" Lyons replied, "To clean up some of the problems. Right. I think it would have a better effect on the overall environment. That's my belief about the bottle bill, I just don't see it as a good means of controlling litter "

Sen. Rotondi says that the bottle bill has worked extremely well in Vermont and other states as an answer to the litter problem. He says the small businessman actually favors the bill because he makes 17 cents per case profit as a collection service fee for the bottles and cans. He says a bottle deposit bill "would be infinitely more effective than hiring people to go around and pick up bottles."

Another point Lyons makes is that when Sen. Rotondi ran two years ago he issued a statement against mandatory sentencing of criminals but this year voted for mandatory sentencing in capital cases.

Rotondi replies, "He is talking about apples and oranges.I noted two years ago that Harvard University did a study of the mandatory sentence aspect of the Bartley-Fox gun law and found it wasn't working because judges were finding ways to get around it. I voted for mandatory life imprisonment for certain classes of capital crimes this year because the Supreme Judicial Court ruled that capital punishment under the Massachusetts Constitution is unconstitutional."

The Senator adds that he strongly favors capital punishment and a Constitutional amendment to permit it in Massachusetts. He supported mandatory life sentences only as an alternative until an amendment was made to permit capital punishment again.

"I have a letter from the MDC police association supporting me for my capital punishment position," says Rotondi "I have become more conservative on criminal law issues over the past two years, there is no question about that — Massachusetts has become more conservative, especially when it comes to hardened criminals. There is nothing inconsistent in that."

Squirrel causes blackout

A half-hour blackout Saturday evening on the West Side is being blamed on a nosey squirrel which apparently put its nose in the wrong place.

According to Edison Co. officials, the squirrel "somehow got between a live transformer fuse wire and a ground wire and was zapped." The electrocution caused the fuse to blow and residents of Berkshire drive were without electricity for 33 minutes.

William Jones, Edison area manager, said the transformer, located on a telephone pole on Berkshire drive, was replaced by a company crew at 8:07 p.m., 25 minutes after the first report to Edison of the blackout.

Winchester police reported several telephone calls inquiring about the incident. About 50 or 60 homes were affected by it, Jones said.

Chief of Police John McHugh said several alarms were activated in public and private buildings as a result of the blackout. He explained that when there's a dramatic drop in voltage to the town, alarms are tripped when the full current is restored.

The Legislature: a very big year

Senate

Sen. Samuel Rotondi, Democrat of Winchester, has worked hard on behalf of legislation that will help control MBTA costs and keep a handle on state-mandated programs. His substantive approach to government costs is far more effective in the long run than the slashing approach of his primary opponent.

The Arlington Advocate

The Arlington Advocate, Thursday, August 31, 1978

On August 22nd, 1978 the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns and the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association each named Senator Sam Rotondi 1978 Legislator of the year.

In jointly announcing this award, the presidents of these groups stated, "this award is made to a legislator who has actively and aggressively promoted legislation to benefit municipal government and the tax-payers and citizens whom they represent. Senator Rotondi has a substantial record of involvement on behalf of municipalities in his whole term in office."

a special kind of senator.

George Rotondi, 58 Sunset Rd. Winchester

THE WINCHESTER STAR

ving The Community For Over 95 Years

Second to none !

State Sen. Sam Rotondi of Winchester has an outstanding record of accomplishment for the communities he has served during the past two years.

He helped write and was a strong supporter of the court reform bill which was the single most important piece of legislation passed by this Legislature. It resulted in a $355,500 savings to Winchester and a $589,600 savings to Arlington, money which otherwise would have had to be raised by the property tax.

Sen. Rotondi co-sponsored the bill to help elderly people retain their homes by increasing the property tax abatement from $350 to $500 for persons over 70 with limited resources. But more important, the value of the home itself is no longer considered in determining net worth for eligibility.

Homeowners over 70 with a net worth of $17,000 or less or couples with a net worth of $21,000 or less may now apply for the $500 abatement. And what is most significant is that Sen. Rotondi was successful in convincing the Governor to allocate $12 million in surplus revenue to fund this program. So the abatements won't have to be picked up by others in increased property taxes.

Sen. Rotondi, working with State Rep. Jack Cusack of Arlington and Arlington Town Treasurer John Bilafer, sponsored a bill to allow for local funding of municipal pension plans, the first progressive approach to this problem ever in Massachusetts. It is known across the state as the "Arlington Bill" and it means towns may establish investment funds to earn interest to pay off pension liability rather than taking it directly out of current taxes. In a few years, as communities build up their local pension funds, this will have a substantial effect in leveling off the pension burden fluctuation from year to year.

Sen. Rotondi and Rep. Cusack, in the final days of this legislative session, rushed through a special bill for Arlington which allows the town to refund its school building bonds if interest rates drop over the next few years. This will save Arlington many thousands of dollars in conjunction with its $10 million high school renovation project.

In the same area Sen. Rotondi was successful in changing the law which reduced state school construction aid by back-charging to the cities and towns an amount equal to 75 percent of the interest earned by short term investment of bond proceeds while a new building was under construction.

The Governor and the Department of Education originally opposed Sen. Rotondi's bill but he worked the State House corridors for six weeks building support and pushing it through the House and Senate. Both Arlington Reps. Jack Cusack and Eleanor Campobasso helped this effort. Finally the administration agreed with Rotondi that it was unfair for the state to grab 75 percent of the bond interest earned by cities and towns and the Governor signed the bill. The conservative estimate of savings to Arlington alone is over $200,000.

For these and many other reasons, Sen. Sam Rotondi was the first freshman Senator selected jointly by the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns and the Massachusetts Selectmens' Association as Legislator of the Year, 1978. It is a well-deserved honor.

Sen. Rotondi's opponent in the race is basically a one-issue candidate. He is sincerely dedicated to opposing state funded abortions for moral and religious reasons as are many people. Sen. Rotondi, while personally opposed to abortion from a moral standpoint, believes that a Constitutional right as determined by the U.S. Supreme Court ought not to depend on one's ability to pay.

Sen. Rotondi has the courage to stand up and vote for the legal principles in which he believes. Whether or not you agree with him on this one issue, you should judge his performance as a whole. And that record is second to none.

Get out and vote

Judging by all the bumper stickers, candidate coffees, charges and counter charges, sloganeering and endorsements, the old game of politics hasn't changed much over the years.

But there are a couple of issues which intensify this year's campaigns. Taxes is, of course, the big one. With all the pressure to reform the system and save a buck for property owners, the ways in which various candidates would go about cutting those taxes deserve close scrutiny.

There's a long list of candidates for county offices, and the choices to be made there ought to be given serious consideration. County government is something we all pay for but rarely see. With its past record of patronage, padded budgets, and disregard for the wishes of the county advisory board, Middlesex County could use a good overhauling.

And finally, there's the old favorite, "honesty in government." The drawn-out scandal involving state legislators, past executive officials, and the McKee-Berger-Mansueto firm make it quite clear that our choices at the polls can cost us a lot of money.

Tuesday, Sept. 19 is Primary Election Day, and the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Take this one seriously, go down to the polls, and exercise your constitutional right to vote.--DKF

Letters from readers

Unfair

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your editorial on Senator Brooke (The Star, Sept. 7) was manifestly unfair. Using as guideline a judgment of the American Conservatives to determine whether Sen. Brooke voted correctly on specific bills is not using a Repbulican guideline, but reflects the bias of only one portion of the party. You will find that certain Southern Democrats got very good scores on that scale of conservatism.

The official organ of the Republican National Committee, in First Monday, on the other hand, gave Sen. Brooke the cover story and high praise for his achievements. His concern for young people trying to buy homes, and for elderly pepole trying to stay in their homes has been reflected in the legislation he has sponsored. Why is he senator of the year to the senior citizens? And where were the Conservatives in sponsoring home care to keep the elderly out of nursing homes?

The truth of the matter lies in the fact that he is the only Republican who has been elected to st$te wide office in the past four years. If he is not renominated this year, we will simply yield our seat in the Senate to another Democrat and whether it is Tsongas or Guzzi, he will be far more liberal with the taxpayers' money than Brooke.

Free speech?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

That was a well written editorial you published last week on the Brooke-Nelson campaigns, although I imagine the good citizens of Winchester will not welcome the candidacy of a young, inexperienced disc jockey, or to give him a more euphemistic title, a talk show host. For that matter, both are Republicans and will probably run into hard going in the campaign.

I hardly dare comment on either of them, as you have stated unequivocally that you will publish no controversial political letters as per the attached notice.

This of course in the tradition of our much proclaimed free speech, or, in other words, freedom of the press.

Okay for you— taboo for the rest of us, eh?

J. Macneill
31 Palmer st.

(Ed. note: Our policy is to allow each candidate three press releases prior to an election, along with a picture. They are free to write a letter to the editor, or to have someone else write one on their behalf, as one of their three releases. We do not allow additional letters of endorsement— or criticism— in order to avoid being deluged by those friends of candidates who happen to have fast typewriters. And, of course, Star readers are welcome to write in and comment on any particular issue that is of concern to them and the voters of Winchester.)

Appreciation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The members of the Board of the Six Week Adventure Program would like to take this opportunity to express their appreciation to all the people in Winchester who supported the program this summer.

The financial aid provided by local organizations, churches, and individuals, the enthusiastic work of the daily volunteers, the special programs provided by townspeople of diverse talent, and the generosity of local merchants enabled us to offer the children an exciting and challenging program.

We believe that the program has demonstrated that Winchester is firmly committed to fostering an improvement in relationshps between blacks and whites.

We thank you for your support in making the program a success this summer, and we look forward to your continued support in the future.

Lend a hand

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your article on volunteer staffing in Winchester schools was worthwhile, but it understated the need for such volunteers.

Having been part of the effort to find volunteers for the past two Septe.bers, I assure you these people are in chronic short supply.

At the Muraco School, Mrs. Carol Double has given approximately 20 hours per week to the library's operation. If she were to leave, Muraco's library would not be the useful educational tool it has been.

Please point out that if someone can't give half a day every week, there are needs which can be met on a bi-weekly or monthly schedule. These tasks are not difficult and a corps of volunteers who take school seriously sets a desirable example for the students. This work is important; it is not frivolous.

I want to say to anyone who has the time available to listen to children read, or staff the libraries, or help the enrichment program, try it, you might like it.

Wanted: plants

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I hope that all the good people who read my last letter on this subject took my suggestion and started rootings, cuttings, graftings, seedings, etc., of hundreds of exotic plants to bring down to the center for my committee to sell at our Seniors' Fabulous Fall Fair and Fun Fest to be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 4 and 5, at the New Jenks Senior Center. You bring 'em down, and we'll sell 'em! Lots of bargains for you too!

Please remember to bring down all your surplus diamonds, pearls, rubies, emeralds, old, worthless gold coins, and all that there! Also, hand knitted sweaters, scarves, afghans, gloves, mittens, etc., etc. Dolls, homemade stuff - so bring it!

Furthermore, kick the kitchen door shut and give the little wife a day off. Join all your friends and neighbors at our seniors' supper, to be held at the new K of C building, courtesy of the Winchester Knights of Columbus (lazagna mit meat balls, yet! - muy delicioso!). If you have not yet seen their beautiful new building, this is your opportunity. All your friends will be at the fair, so don't stay at home alone. Come one, come all - we'll have a ball!

Naturally, it costs money to keep a center like ours in operation from day to day. This annual fair is one of the ways by means of which we hope to raise some of that necessary money. With your support and cooperation, we hope to be able to run the center at no cost to the taxpayer. See you down there!

Clarence Borggaard

P.S. Look up in your attic. If you find any old dustry pictures signed Rembrandt, Van Gogh, Velasquez, Goya, Mark Twain, Whistler, etc., bring 'em down. Maybe we could find a buyer for them and pick up a buck or two with a litte luck.

Thanks kin

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The President of the United States dedicated Sunday, Sept. 10 — the first Sunday after Labor Day — as Grandparents Day and Mr. and Mrs. John Shields were honored by their grandchildren, John, Ellen Marie, Robert and David DellaGrotte at the 7:30 a.m. Mass by receiving Communion and then taken out for breakfast at a nice restaurant.

It's great to have such nice children that think that much of you. Many thanks to all of them.

Nana and Papa Shields

The Star welcomes letters to the editor of interest to the citizens of Winchester, written by Winchester residents.

Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and no longer than 250 words. They must also be signed and accompanied by the author's printed name, address, and telephone number, in order that we may verify letters.

Names and addresses will be withheld on request.

Town watch...

Some can't wait to go

By The Observer

Before the fictional belly aches, the splitting head aches, the stomach butterflies and other school blues symptoms set in, most youngsters, especially those going to school for the first time, kindergarteners, anxiously await school's opening. Some, after the first day, "can't wait" to get back to school the next day. Besides, if you can remember back that far, kindergarten is a lot of fun.

When The Star visited Muraco School recently, a group of kindergarteners gathered around one teacher to listen to a fairy tale. What a life! Across the way, several first and second graders scurried around getting ready to leave for the day. When one of these first graders was asked what her favorite subject was, Liana Ewald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric . Ewald of 3 Holton st., replied "coloring."

Shelley Olivadoti, said she liked reading and writing. When we asked her what her address was, she said "Winchester, Massachusetts." She lives at 312 Cross st.

And while first grader Kim Adelsberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adelsberger of 34 Tufts rd., was waiting for her friend to walk home together she spent at least a minute with us making sure we spelled her name correctly. While we wrote it down, she dictated "A-d-e-l-s-b-e-r-g-e-r." We hope we got it right, Kim.

Bonnie Ripley, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ripley of 12 Wedge Pond rd., is a fourth grader at Lincoln School. Bonnie recently dropped by The Star office to tell us about her first days at school this vear. She said her favorite subject is science because "it's interesting." She said she also likes social studies because "we learn about terrariums" and that "big, gigantic word—ah-oh, what is it—ah,oh. oh, I know, it's envirament." Bonnie explained that environment is "a place where people and other things live."

Mike Connolly, fire!fighter and member of the government regulations committee looking into possible charter changes, has joined TMMs Vincent Carroll and Clara Hewis in sponsoring an article for the fall town meeting proposing the creation of a DPW board.

Most of the proposed charter changes have been cooly received by the government regulations group, and the DPW board idea is no exception. The article proposes a five-member board (that may be changed to three) to oversee the operation of the department of public works, performing many of the functions once carried out by the water and sewer board, the cemetery commission, and the selectmen.

The committee is not expected to endorse the proposal; but Connolly said he may write a minority report for the town meeting in November.

Without the help and patience of some town employees, The Star would have great difficulty in reporting town issues. Recently, one of our more pleasant sources of information was transferred to another department in town, away from a very busy place known as the town manager's office— an office where many Star stories generate from.

Marie Campbell, of 19 Nathaniel rd., spent her last day Friday as town manager secretary. Since Tom Groux is often very busy, Marie has helped us tremendously, giving us selectmen dockets and explaining often confusing issues. She has a tremendous amount of patience and is a pleasure to work with.

Marie now works with Jake Ciarcia in the town engineer's office. Jake, a neighbor of Marie's, is fortunate to have Marie join his staff.

We only hope that whoever replaces Marie will be as helpful to us as she has been. We wish Marie the best of luck in her new assignment.

In last week's League of Women Voters Candidates' Questionnaire, we (and they) inadvertently left out some significant information about Rocco J. Antonelli, a Winchester resident running for county treasurer.

What was left out was his preparation for public office, which includes: serving as city treasurer of Somerville; serving as executive secretary-CPA of the Massachusetts Board of Public Accountancy; acting as consultant to cities and towns in computer and data processing matters; acting as consultant on rate setting matters for various public agencies; and appearing as an expert witness on state public accountancy regulatory law before federal agencies and state legislatures.

Lois Pines, candidate for secretary of state, will be in Winchetster Sunday evening. The candidate has been invited to the home of Lydelle and Michael Pittas at 30 Mt. Pleasant st. from 6 to 8 p.m.

Wine and cheese will be served guests.

It's the 125th anniversary of the Middlesex Canal this year, and you can get a first hand look and feel of what it must have been like drifting down between the locks back in the early 1800s by heading up to Woburn for a ride on the Colonel Baldwin, an exact replica of the packets which used to haul freight and passengers back and forth between Boston and Lowell.

The boat is named after Col. Laommi Baldwin, an engineer and one of the major forces behind the creation of the canal, which first opened in 1803. The canal was quite a feat for early American engineering and included several aqueducts which actually carried the canal over streams and rivers at strategic spots.

The canal served as a major trade route linking Boston and New Hampshire for 50 years, until the advent of the railroads. Now the Middlesex Canal Commission and local historical societies have had a portion of the old canal restored, and visitors can ride the horse-drawn Col. Baldwin Sun-ays beginning at 1 p.m. between Baldwin's landing, next to the Baldwin Mansion, just north of the intersection of routes 128 and 38 (Main street), to a point just below Nichols Bridge in North Woburn.

Come on and take a ride!

There's a bit of a scrape lining up at Town Hall over whether or not the town should have a separate water revenue account.

Mike Connolly has pointed out that the by-law calls for such an account to be set up. He ought to know, he and former comptroller Jim Costello wrote the section.

Connolly says the idea is to set up an independent account which will allow the water system to be self-sustaining and keep water revenues out of the rest of the DPW budget.

Comptroller Alphone Faggiano doesn't like the idea; he says it will ultimately cost the town a lot of money in accounting procedures to figure out just how much is spent on the water system and where it comes from. It's not so much that the separate account is a bad idea. The question is whether the town wants to go to the expense and trouble of setting one up.

Town Manager Thomas Groux is in the middle— sort of. "As far as I know, we do have a water revenue account, but I don't know if it's in the form Mike wants it in," Groux said. As part of the program budget, the DPW tries to account for what it spends on the water system. Groux said he'd rather leave the form of accounting up to the comptroller.

The by-law has been around for three years now, and Connolly feels something should be done about it. Soon.

The figures below give the registration of the schools on Wednesday, Sept. 12, one week after the opening of the schools. Against this are given the figures for registration about this time a year ago. The High School shows a larger registration than last year. The Highland School has a few less than a year ago. The Linco n School remains about the same. An increase has taken place in the Mystic School. The Noonan School has about the same registration as a year ago. There is a slight dropping off in the Wadleigh School. There is a distinct increase in the George Washington School. The Wyman School is registering almost as many as it did last year at this time.

Patrolmen James E. Farrell and Robert White of the Police Department interrupted a card game which was in progress Sunday morning at 2:15 in the home of Frank H. Frotten of 19 Salem street. Upon gaining entrance to the house the police state they found a small still in operation and with it a quantity of mash was seized and taken to Headquarters. Four men were present in the Frotten home when the police entered and three of them were arrested, one making good his escape.

Besides Frotten, those taken into custody were Owen Malloy of Woburn and Joseph Delorey of Winchester. They appeared at Woburn Monday morning where they were charged with drunkenness and being present where gaming implements were found on the Lord's Day. An additional charge of illegally manufacturing liquor was lodged against Frotten. All were found guilty and the last named was sentenced on the manufacturing charge to serve six months in the House of Correction with sentence suspended. The cases against Malloy and Delorey were filed.

It was about a year ago that Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey of the Police Department qualified as a expert cow-boy, or rather horse-boy, by roping and delivering in good condition three horses which were terrorizing householders by roaming at large on Highland avenue during the evening hours. Now he is sporting a second star upon his distinguished service medal.

It seems that Tuesday night at 11:15 Police Headquarters was notified by a somewhat disturbed resident of Marion road that a horse was running about through his garden and doing the plot no particular good. The householder was anxious to have something done by the authorities and recalling Patrolman Dempsey's particular bent for apprehending equine wanderers from the home stables, Lieutenant Harrold dispatched the former to Marion road with instructions to leave no stone unturned in his effort to halt the horse's depredations.

Officec Dempsey notified his superior that the horse had attended to turning up the pebbles but further than that he was able to carry out his instructions to the letter. The wandering animal was taken in tow and returned without incident to his accustomed habitat; the Bryer farm on Washington street.

The stories reprinted here were taken from old editions of The Winchester Star and were compiled by Henry Simonds, local historian. By and large these articles are taken from the same month they appear here, 50 years ago.

To Norman Simons

House certificate presented

The Winchester Town Seal was affixed on a new type of document recently when a "house certificate" was presented by the Winchester Historical Commission to Norman Simons, owner and occupant at 85-87 Church st., one of the houses stludied in the old house survey being undertaken by the commission.

Through a federal grant, the historical commission is researching 200 homes in Winchester built before 1916. The project has been funded with a matching grant-in-aid from the US Departtment of the Interior's Heritage, Conservation, and Recreation Service (formerly the National Park Service) under the provisions of the National Preservation Act of 1966.

Simons helped out in researching the history of his house; he submitted historical information which he had gathered through tracing his deed back to the original owner of the house. Other information about his house came from former owners, neighbors, old newspaper articles, or records he found in his attic.

The house at 85-87 Church street was, as the house certificates states," ...constructed in 1854 and first owned by M.D. Maxwell. This documentation having been filed with he Winchester Historical Commission, the structure may now properly be referred to as the Maxwell House."

What good is all this information? The commission's research will provide similar histories for 2000 Winchester homes, and, says Archivist Susan Keats, "In the future, the town will be able to use its knowledge of the past to plan for the future growth of Winchester."

Anyone interested in helping out with the research or any related work should contact the Winchester Historical Commission or the Winchester Archival Center, 729-3063.

Ground broken

Nursing home to open on Swanton street

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday morning on Swanton street for a new, 123-bed nursing home to be built by Gershon Salter, owner of the Winchester Nursing Home.

Located at 184 Swanton st., the new Aberjona Nursing Home will be a three-story facility with all single and double rooms for level II and III care patients. Each floor of the skilled nursing facility will have dining and sitting rooms, said Salter. In addition to a large recreational room, there will be accomodations for physical and occupational therapy, physicians' examining room, a hairdresser salon, and conference rooms.

A professional staff of registered and licensed practical nurses will be supplemented by a physical therapist, occupational therapist, recreation director, dietician, and social worker.

Salter has set the opening at about one year from now.

Salter has been owner and licensed administrator of the Woburn Nursing Home for 22 years and the Winchester Nursing Home for two years. He is on the board of the Mass. Federation of Nursing Homes and is a past president of the Middlesex-Essex Chapter of that federation. His wife Edyth is also a licensed nursing home administrator.

In charge of nursing at the new home will be Mrs. Mildred L. Holland, RN, of Reading. Presently supervisor of nurses at the Winchester Nursing Home at 223 Swanton st., she was head nurse of the Winchester Hospital Continuing Care Unit for four years.

Fall roundup for Troop 506 Monday evening

On Monday, Troop 506 will conduct its fall roundup.

Any boy interested in joining the Boy Scouts of America, who is 11 years of age or older or has completed the fifth grade is welcome to attend this troop meeting. Troop 506 meets at the Unitarian Church, corner of Mystic Valley parkway and Main street, Monday evenings from 7-8:30 p.m.

Troop 506 has a full schedule planned for this year with at least one camping trip per month. Some of the trips scheduled include Cape Cod, New Hampshire, Western Massachusetts, and Vermont.

For further information contact Jim Kent, Scoutmaster, at 729-7089, or Gordon McIntosh, Assistant Scoutmaster at 729-7738.

WHS Carnival next week

By next week the trucks will arrive and the machines will be getting set up for the high school parent faculty association's carnival.

Complete with ferris wheel, bumper cars, 100-foot slide, and a fun house, the carnival is set to go Sept. 23 from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Proceeds from the event will kick off a fund-raising drive to build a town pool next to the high school.

Games to test your skill are being devised by association members Mrs. Lane McGovern, Mrs. Richard Pharo, and Mrs. Robert Brosnan. There will be penny candy and ice cream to eat while the litttle ones ride the merry-go-round and the kiddie cars, along with other food and drink and baked goods. Rain date for the carnival is Sept. 24 from noon-11 p.m.

The association reports response to the idea of privately raising money for an indoor swimming pool has been "fantastic." Anyone interested in helping out should contact Mrs. James E. Barger, president of the asso iation, or any board member.

Troop 503 plans 60th open house for new scouts

Boy Scout Troop 503 will hold its 60th annual open house meeting for interested new scouts on Tuesday night at the First Congregational Church. The meeting starts at 7:30 and is open to all boys 11 years of age or older.

Troop 503 is devoted to outdoor activities, and three weekend campouts are scheduled for the fall. Additional campouts, including canoe trips and mountain climbing, are planned for the winter and spring.

Lynch parents plan programs for 78-79 year

The Lynch Junior High School Parents' Association has planned its program for the 1978-79 school year.

Sept. 5, the associattion held a welcome-back-to-school lunch for the teaching staff.

Two discussions of curriculum have been scheduled. Sept. 27 at 9:30 a.m., members of the English department will discuss the junior high school English program and its goals. Math and science curricula will be examined during a meeting in March.

Open house at Lynch will be held the evening of Oct. 17.

Board meetings will take place the first Tuesday of each month at the home of the president of the association, Mrs. Carolyn Gunby. Interested parents are invited to attend.

Flea market September 23

Final preparations are being made for the 10th annual Jaycee-ettes Flea Market, to be held Sept. 23 in the Town Hall parking lot.

This Flea Market provides the Jaycee-ettes with the necessary funds to carry on their work throughout the year.

A total of 70 dealers will provide many varied and interesting items for the public to inspect.

A few spaces are still available. Reservations can be made by calling 729-3260 or 729-1332.

Literature group to meet tomorrow

The first meeting of the Literature Group of the Winchester College Club will be held Friday at 9:15 at the home of Pam Boerner, 419 Highland Ave.

The topic will be The Sibyl by Par Lagerkvist, and interested new members are invited to attend. Call 729-8987 for further information.

LWV coffee

The LWV of Winchester is having a membership cofee Sept. 29 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Stanley Ruta, 9 Ridgefield rd.

Everyone is invited; no other invitation is necessary.

Donations needed for seniors fair October 4th, 5th

Three weeks remain before the Winchester Seniors' Association Fall Fiesta Fair, and articles are still needed for the various tables.

Donations are needed for the children's table, the boutique, the silent auction, the white elephant table, the Christmas table, and the plant table. Costume jewelry and knit goods are also in demand.

Ken Cullen, with a team of 10 men, will introduce this year a new men's table for early Christmas shopping. Although they have collected many items, more articles such as wallets, leather goods, other things that appeal to men are needed.

The annual fair dinner will be open to the public and will be served at the Knights of Columbus Hall continuously from 5-7 p.m. Oct. 4. If you have not yet gotten tickets, contact the office of the Council on Aging, 729-2111. Plans have been made to serve about 400 dinners during the two-hour period. Reservations to date indicate that those who delay may miss out on the lasagna meal.

The fair itself will be open Oct. 4 from 4-9:30 p.m. and Oct. 5 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center. A snack bar will be open throughout the fair.

Volunteers young and old are needed to work two or three hour shifts. If you can help, call 729-2111.

Explorers to hold orientation night at Unitarian Church

Explorer Post 505 will hold an open house orientation night Tuesday at 7:30 at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main st.

The Explorers group is co-ed and open to any girl or boy attending grades 9-12. Meetings are held every other Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Unitarian Church under the supervision of adult advisors Mrs. Huberta Lewin and Chairman Warburton VerPlanck.

Activities, organized by the students, range from silk screening to square dancing. In addition, trips to the mountains, white-watering down the White River in Vermont, a February vacation ski trip to Canada, and a "summer super trip" are planned.

Anyone interested in the Explorers is invited to the meeting Tuesday. For further information, call 729-5977.

Lewis promoted

Dolores Carol Lewis, 12 Charles rd., has been promoted to branch manager, retail banking at the First National Bank of Boston.

Since joining the bank in 1971, Lewis has served in several positions as teller prior to her promotion, in 1973, to the management training program. Her most recent position, which she assumed in 1976, was as officer in charge, branch office.

Lewis has participated in courses at Framingham State College and at the American Institute of Banking. She is active in the Boston Urban League, the Boston Urban Bankers Association, the NAACP, and the National Association of Bank Women.

Lewis has two children.

Olivier at Coop School

Anna E. Olivier of Winchester has been named teacher at the Unitarian Cooperative Nursery School, 478 Main st. She will teach the afternoon pre-kindergarten class when the school year beings Sept. 18.

Mrs. Olivier holds a B.A. and a Masters Degree in Education from Hunter College, New York City. She has taught at the Children's Own School and the Hunter College Campus School, New York. Last year she was employed as a substitute teacher in the Winchester School System.

Mrs. Olivier resides with her husband James and their three children, Jim, Lisa and Peter.

The Unitarian Cooperative Nursery is a non-profit, non-sectarian school in which parents and children participate in a cooperative learning experience.

Mrs. Jean Mortensen is director of the school, and Mrs. Leslie Fre,ch is the 1978-79 president.

Selectmen approve civil defense plan

Less than two months ago, William Conlon was appointed the town's civil defense director and in that time he has updated and developed new sections to Winchester's emergency operations plan.

Monday night, the board of selectmen unanimously approved the plan and Conlon is "overjoyed." He said he now has to deliver the plan to area civil defense headquarters in Tewksbury.

Conlon said once the plan is approved in Tewksbury, the plan must be delivered to the regional civil defense headquarters in Framingham for approval. Target date for ultimate approval is Oct. 1, the date the national civil defense fiscal year begins.

Selectmen Chairman Edward F. O'Connell said at the board's weekly meeting that he is "very, very pleased with the way you've (Conlon) taken hold of this area." He said the board has "great confidence in your continued work."

The plan's approval was first delayed by the slectmen two weeks ago when they said they would like more time to review it. At Monday's meeting, the selectmen approved it before Conlon could enter the room to answer questions. "I'd prefer it that way," Conlon said, referring to having it approved without any questions.

Presently, Conlon is distributing 42 copies of the 18-page plan to local authorities, such as the town manager, police, and fire department officials, and to the school department, health department, the hospital, the Red Cross and other facilities.

According to Conlon's plan, the mission of civil defense operations is to "insure maximum survival of people and preservation of property in the Town of Winchester in the event of natural or man-made disasters"

The authority of the plan is contained in the state's Civil Defense Act, Chapter 639, Acts of 1950 as amended.

The plan is divided into 15 sections and lists a chart of organization, concept of operations, plan activation, mission assignments, special requirements, and maps.

Under organization, the town manager, or his legal successor, has direct control over all departments under a state of emergency as proclaimed by the governor. The civil defense director, as the agent of the town manager, is responsible for day-to-day pre-disaster planning.

During a state of emergency, the civil defense director coordinates all civil defense activities subject to the direction and control of the town manager.

The concept of operation is divided into three areas, an increased readiness phase, an emergency phase and actions, and recovery phase and actions.

A copy of the plan is available at The Star office,5 Church st., for citizen inspection.

School committee notes

New coaches

Winchester High School has a new varsity hockey coach as of Monday night, when the school board appointed former Lynch Junior High hockey coach Michael C. Houghton to that post.

Houghton was JV hockey coach from 1966-69 and head coach at Lynch from 1969 through last year. He is also an assistant football coach at the high school. He will receive a $2147 stipend for his new postion.

Another varsity position was filled Monday: Robert B. Tufts was appointed head wrestling coach at WHS. Tufts student taught in Winchester in 1973 and has been an elementary physical education teacher since then. He has taught wrestling in several schools and was a varsity football coach at Northeastern University, Somerville High School, and Belmont High School.

Neither coach faces a particularly easy task. Houghton will take charge of a team that lost every game it played last year and had nearly as dismal a season the year before. But a new crop of players and a new coach may provide just the spark that's needed to put Winchester back in the running in the Middlesex League. Of course, after last year, there's only one way to go.

Jean A. MacDonald was appointed acting assistant field hockey coach at WHS to assist the acting head coach, Patricia DiPietro.

A masters candidate at BU, MacDonald has been a physical education teacher in the Malden Public Schools since 1974, played field hockey and lacrosse at UNH, and coached lacrosse at Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire.

Personnel changes

A half-time aide was added to the staff at the Lincoln School by the school committee Monday night at a cost of $1980. The aide was requested because there are currently 30 students in the single-session kindergarten at Lincoln.

The staffing formula for kindergarten calls for one-half teacher and one-half aide for 26-30 students in a class.

Margaret M. Sexton was elected to fill the position. She taught grade 1 at Noonan from 1963-68, was a special needs instructor here in 1975-76, and served as a teacher aide last year for grades 2 and 3 at Vinson-Owen.

In other personnel matters, the school board elected several new staff members and teacher aides.

Pamela E. Brooks will teach social studies at Winchester High School. A Simmons college graduate, she earned her MA from Lesley and has taught in New York City, Cambridge, and Boston. She worked from 1976-78 as admissions counselor at Simmons. She will replace resigned staff member Robert Glickman.

Patricia M. Murray will teach math at the high school part time. She received an AB from Regis College and an MEd from Boston State. She taught at Maynard High School for five years.

Noon art teacher Helen M. Parsignault has resigned from her part time position for personal reasons.

New teacher aides include Suzanne Boyer, who will work in the primary level learning disabilities class at Parkhurst; Peter A. Constance, who will teach in the Lynch SEEM class; Catherine A. Grant, who will work in the Washington SEEM class; and Nancy P. Rodriguez, who will work half time with the high school English department.

Police Officer John McKinley was elected school attendance officer.

Mr. & Mrs. David W. Hooper

Janet Larson, David Hooper wed Aug. 25 in Arlington

Miss Janet Martha Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gustave Larson of 28 Pilgrim dr., and David William Hooper of West Roxbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gately Hooper Jr., of Wilmington, were maried Aug. 25 at the Park Avenue Congregational Church, Arlington.

The Rev. Milton Shadegg, the bride's uncle and godfather, officiated at the candlelight double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Karen Elisabeth Larson, Winchester, was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Suzanne Ayvazian, Winchester; Nancy Hooper, Wilmington; and Jennifer Jamisen, Newmarket, NH.

The groom's brother, Matthew Paul Hooper of Danbury, Conn. was best man. Wayne Haselton, Dover, NH; Sean Kelly, Dover, NH; and Kenneth Larson, Arlington, ushered.

The bride was dressed in a white qiana gown with pleated skirt, cap sleeve and Queen Anne neckline. Silk venise lace trimmed the bodice, bottom of skirt and train. Her fingertip veil was also trimmed with matching lace. She carried a round bouquet of pink and white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids all wore floral print gowns with white eyelet trimming and hats to match. They carried white baskets with small and large pink carnations, baby's breath, and hanging ivy.

After a reception at the Towne Lyne House in Lynnfield, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Poconos.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper are now residing at 7 Maplewood st., West Roxbury.

Cynthia Louise Cummings

Cynthia Cummings engaged to wed Brian R. McNutt

Mrs. Virginia Cummings announces the engagement of her daughter, Cynthia Louise, to Brian Richard McNutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McNutt of Winchester. Cynthia is the daughter of the late Whitney A. Cummings Jr.

A 1976 graduate of Winchester High School, Cynthia is employed by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. and is attending Boston University.

Brian, also a 1976 gradauate of Winchester High, is employed by The Winchester Country Club and plans to attend the University of Massachusetts.

An August wedding is planned.

Miss Twaddell to wed Gregory Sacca

Dr. and Mrs. Donald N. Twaddell of Embreeville, Pennsylvania announce the engagement of their daughter, Emily Nosworthy to Gregory John Sacca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory F. Sacca of Winchester.

Miss Twaddell graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. in 1977 and is attending Lesley College, Cambridge, in the masters program in special education.

Mr Sacca, also a 1977 graduate of Trinity College, is a member of the Wheelock-Malden Teacher Corps Project as a prospective masters program graduate in May 1979.

The wedding will take place in November.

Players choose melodrama

Winchester Unitarian Players have chosen an exciting melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," for their fall show. They will present Fred Carmichael's adaptation of this famous old temperance drama by William Pratt Nov. 9, 10 and 11. Direction will be by Robert Storer. This updated version was first presented in 1968 and it features several well known songs of the gay nineties

Tryouts for the production are scheduled for Sunday Sept. 17 at 4 p.m. and Tuesday Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Metcalf Hall at the church.

There will be roles available for all ages. Seven men and five women are needed for the typical meodrama parts, including a villain, a dance hall singer, and the angel child, Little Mary.

Course offered at St. Mary's in parenthood

St. Mary's adult education department is sponsoring "Evenings for Parents," a four-week program offering ideas and insights to parents which can be integrated into their own relationshps with their children.

This is an invitation to the parents of Winchester to share their own experience of parenthood with others, to become more conscious of the importance of their role and of how well they are doing as mothers and fathers.

The program begins the evening of Sept. 27 at 7:30 at St. Mary's on Washington street.

Parents are welcome to one session or all four.

Seeds true to form

Town tennis tournament goes to quarter finals

By JAMES R. STEWART JR.

Backed by an incredibly efficient crew form the Winchester DPW under Dickie Tofuri and Norm Doucette, the 49th Annual Winchester Town Tennis Tournament got off to a spectacular start this past weekend. The DPW personnel worked long and hard to ready four new surfaces at the William S. Packer courts and by 9:30 last Saturday, the new courts were in playable condition after only two day of preparation.

Form was the order of the week-end, as almost all seeded players and teams survived the schedule.

Seventy-four men entered the singles competiton, headed by Bill Macneill, the number one seed. By the end of Sunday's play, Macneill was joined by David Raucci, Jim Phillious, Lee Schlorff, Barry Reeves, Richard Scheinberg, Chad Carpetner, Parker Gray, Tad Bannister, Carmen Ello and Neil Hurley. In the upper bracket, the schedule for Saturday embraces all quarter final matches, while in the lower half, two third-round matches will be followed by that section's quarter finals.

Women's singles competitoin, with 24 entrants, completed their quarter final pairings. Top seeded Sue Cowen, followed in the draw by Stella Gallant, Dawn Hudson, Dee Dee Cunningham and newcomer Meg Harris. All won their way through last week-end's matches and will be vying for the top spot starting next Saturday afternoon.

The men's "senior" singles event (45 years and older) finds number one seed Charlies Watson, number 2 seed Bob Horne and number 3 seed Jack Corf still in the running after Sunday night's closing, with Horne already into the finals, awaiting his opponent among Watson, Corf, and John Meade.

Only 50 entries were received for the men's doubles event, usually the largest contingent of championship aspirants. Here, through the week-end, six out of the seven seeded teams passed their court tests to reach the quarter finals.

Top choice Carmen Elio and Wil Aldrich were sorely tested to reach their pinnacle by Don Ellis and Jim Phillips, Sunday, having to go three sets to emerge victorious, and reach the semi-finals.

Macneill and partner Parker Gray lost te first set in the quarters against B. Johnson and B. Ferry before they survivied. Hank Skehan-Jack Noble, Jack Wiseman-Bill Cunningham teams, unseeded, also reached the quarters.

Fifty teams entered the mixed doubles competition, featuring seeds in order of Cynthia Daley and K. Hirshman, Lucy a,d Ted White, Peggy and Jack Wiseman, Ann and Bill Ferry, Stella and Bob Gallant, Dawn Hudson and Jack Corf, Pinky and Al Samoiloff, and Leslie and Vandy French.

By the end of last Sunday, only the number three and five seeds had fallen by the wayside as this event is almost into the semi-finals. The feature matches were tough three-setters.

Hudson-Corf played into darkness to finally eke out a victory over Calista Keaveney-Leo Lauretano 7-6(5-1), 2-6, 7-6(5-2); Paula DiOrio-John Meade outlasted Peggy and Jack Wiseman (who had a three-setter in the second round also) 6-1, 2-6, 6-3 while Lynn and Don Robinson survived over the Gallants (who also ran into a three-setter in their second round) by scores of 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Women's doubles drew 21 entries and at the end of Sunday's matches, all four seeds were still in the running, including, order of seed, Dee Dee Cunningham-Sue Cowen, Peggy Wiseman-Cynthia Daley, Ann Ferry-Marlene Rothmann and Marilyn Lane-Ann Estabrook.

High school gym program to start 6th year Tuesday

The Winchester Community Use of Schools program will begin its sixth season this Monday. The program is open to all residents, male or female, anyone who wants to keep fit, exercise for enjoyment, meet new townspeople, get a night out, get more from your tax dollar or simply enjoy yourself.

The gym is open to residents only, and some type of positive ID must be shown before a membership card will be issued. Residents may, however, bring an out-of-town guest with the following restrictions:

1. On any day one resident may bring in one guest only.
2. The guest must pay the daily fee.
3. If the gym becomes overcrowded, guests will not be allowed.
4. All guests must be signed in.

There is a fee for using this 12-month program to help defray costs of supervision, equipment, heat, and electricity. An option is given of paying a daily fee or an annual fee. This is the same fee structure as last year. You are asked to bring a check or cash with you the first time you use the gym.

The gym schedule for 1978 — 1979 will be as follows:

MONDAY	6-10 pm	Adults Only
THURSDAY	6-10 pm	Adults Only
FRIDAY	6-10 pm	(9th grade & older)
SATURDAY (begin. Oct. 28)	1-7 pm	(9th grade & older)
SUNDAY (begin Oct. 29)	1-7 pm	(9th grade & older)

In addition to this basic schedule, the gym will be open during school vacation weeks daily from 1-7 pm for those of high school age.

Many activities are possible at the high school gym. While basketball has been the most popular sport, many residents participate in weight training, volleyball, paddleball, jogging and wrestling. Basketballs, volleyballs, and paddle rackets are available at the gym for everyone's use.

The number of people using the gym has always been impressive. On most nights all the courts are used; but, since the gym is so spacious, seldom must anyone wait long for court space. This is an "open" program, so there are no reserved courts or scheduled games — all courts are filled on a "first come-first served" basis. This has presented few if any problems, supervisors report.

Although more than 1000 residents have used the gym, there are still many in Winchester who have never visited the gym complex. Program Director Fran Lane or either of the supervisors, Wayne Dimetres or Mike Marino, would gladly show anyone around the building during the open gym sessions. Anyone seeking a good place for exercise should drop in at the gym and see what is available there.

The lockers and shower room are open only during the Monday and Thursday evening sessions. Soap and towels are not provided. Also, you are asked not to leave money or other valuables either in the lockers or in the gym — please leave them with one of the girls at the desk.

The gym is open only to boys and girls at least of high school age. Those not of high school age may not use the gym unless they are accompanied by an adult family member also using the gym, and on weekends only. Monday and Thursday evenings are for adults only, and no one under 18 will be allowed in for any reason. The gym becomes too crowded to allow younger people full use of the gym times.

The only entrance to the gym will again be from the rear, and parking will be in the rear parking lot. This is the entrance off Nelson street near the playing fields and railroad tracks.

All are encouraged to use the gym. Many residents have commented as to how much they appreciate being able to use this gym, and how they like seeing a town building fully utilized. People from many neighboring towns envy our building and programs. It's a great opportunity to get in shape or stay in shape. Become one of the regulars — it'll be good for you.

The Norfolk Wallpaper Ad of Sept. 7th should have read 30 percent to 40 percent.

Limited enrollment open at Northeast pre-school

Forty-eight pre-school children, ranging from three to five years of age, will be accepted to participate in the Early Childhood Laboratory School at Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School this fall.

The children will be given a two-hour program three days each week, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, under the supervision of an instructor who will be training high school juniors and seniors in a nursery-Kindergarten Aide Program. There will be a small weekly charge to cover cost of materials.

"The nursery-kindergarten aide program not only trains high school girls to take their places alongside the nursery or kindergarten teacher as most necessary and valued helpers, but also provides an opportunity to 48 young children living in the district to receive an enriching early school experience," Mrs. Charlotte Scott, director of health and community occupations, said.

"Our students need the actual experience of working with young children from the outset of their training. I'm sure there are many parents of pre-schoolers in the district who would gladly enroll their youngsters in a program that would benefit both them and the school."

Mrs. Scott further explained that the number of preschoolers is limited to 48, for a maximum of 24 children to participate in the morning and afternoon sessions.

Since there are only 48 openings available and many times that number will probably apply, Mrs. Scott said that selection would be made on a random basis to avoid problems.

Allocation of spaces for the pre-schoolers will be made on the same quota system which governs admissions of high school students from the 12 communities. Preference will be given to those children who were not enrolled in this program in previous years, however, all applications are invited.

Parents wishing to enroll a pre-school child in the three to five year old age group must send to the division of health occupations at Northeast the following information on a sheet of plain paper: date of application, the child's full name, age, sex, exact date of birth, parent's name, address, and telephone number, and whether the morning or afternoon session is preferred. The applying child must be no younger than three nor older than five years on Sept. 5. This information must be in writing and will not be accepted by telephone.

Deadline for application is Sept. 22 at 3 p.m.

The names of applicants will be placed in a container and drawn by lot. Acceptance to the program will be made according to the community in which they live and the number allowed by quota.

Following the random selectio, of pre-schoolers, the parents of those children whose names are accepted will have an interview at school, and will be given specific details regarding the program. Parents of participating youngsters will be required to provide transportation for the youngsters to and from Northeast for the duration of the program.

High school update

Sophomores get first taste of new school

By LAURIE GURRISI

There was a very successful orientation for the new sophomore class at Winchester High School on the first day of school Sept. 6.

The sophomores began their day with a welcome from Principal Vincent Larocco and Student Union President Donna Farrell. They then proceeded to their home rooms and commenced with the various registration formalities.

At 9:45, with poster and map-covered walls made by Donna Farrell, Nancy Hicks, and Don DiRocco, the student union began their part of the orientation. The bewildered sophomores were then given an hour tour of the building, followed by a half hour period for questions and an outlook of the school and it's policies from a student point of view.

A half hour lunch period wrapped up the morning, then the sophomores attended their classes in an abbreviation of their schedules. They were a bit confused by this time, but the upperclassmen remainded in the building to help them get around.

The student union felt that previous sophomores were not benefiting from recent orientations, so they requested additional time for the tours and less time for the school policy discussion and questions, since the students receive plenty of information in the handbook and throughout the year. Vice Principal Evander French and Student Union Advisor Randee Martin helped with the revisions of the orientation and were pleased with the outcome of the day. The committee was also pleased as they felt that only a few revisions may have to be made to better next year's orientation.

The student union members who were on the committee were;

Donna Farrell, Jason Lucero, Laurie Gurrisi, Terri Allard, Steve Kenney, Patricia Intravia, Gail Marino, Elizabeth Hitchcock, Scott Farrar, jana Constantine, Carol Thomas, Nancy Hicks, Ted Harris, Joe Piantedosi, Sarah Fotsch, Jim Duffy, Bob McInnis, Greg Plowman, Peter Ruggles, Ralph Swanson, Sue Flaherty, Mary Medwar, Madeline Powers, Rick Norris, Lisa Thyson, Craig Harms, Stephanie Schwartzman, Julia Gittleman, Carolyn Barger, John deMars, and Becky Price.

Revere High School 25th October 6th

The Revere High School Class of 1953 will hold its 25th reunion Oct. 6

The event will be celebrated at the Colonial Hilton Inn, Route 128 and Walnut street, Lynnfield. Members interested in attending should contact the following reunion committee members: Louis Generazzo — 334-6715, Pat Myers Dineen — 334-4242, Marion Gould Gale — 284-763, Larry Chael — 289-1845, Jean Moore Kraytenberg — 245-2461, Shirley Terminello O'Donnell — 289-5928, Elliot Finklestein — 262-9250, Irene Barbanti Scanziollo — 933-8500.

Selectmen's notes

Police station study

An architects and consulting engineers firm has been hired by the town to look into the possibility of using the Winchester Savings Bank as the town police station.

The savings bank plans to vacate the building soon and will open up new offices at the site of the old movie theater on Main street.

Hughes and MacCarthy Engineers of Natick have already completed a preliminary study on availability and its next step is to finalize a total needs plan of the police department.

John Hughes, one of the firm's partners, reported to selectmen Monday night that his firm has compeleted about 10 architectural plans on town police stations. The bank building has about 6,730 square feet, or about 1000 square feet more than the present police station located behind the bank building.

Chief of Police John McHugh, who also attended the board's weekly meeting, said the department needs about 12,000 square feet.

McHugh said earlier that the bank was pleased that the town wanted to purchase the bank rather than have it sold to a private firm which could then turn around and sell it to another bank. "The bank would much rather have a more permanent occupant move in like the police department than sell or lease it to a private party," the chief said.

Town Manager Thomas Groux said the bank is willing to deed the building over to the town for "a nominal charge," but the bank did not define "nominal," Groux said.

Hughes reported that it would cost the town about $66 per square foot for new construction if the police moved to a new building. Estimated cost of converting the bank into a police station is $960,000. Hughes said he would try to complete a feasibility study on the use of the bank building and present "hard figures" to the town in time for the fall town meeting.

Pension liability

Robert A. McIndoe, of 14 Glen rd., was elected chairman of the newly-charged pension liability study committee of the town and J.J. Harrington Jr., of 12 Wickham rd., was elected secretary.

The selectmen Monday officially charged the committee which was created by the spring town meeting to study the problem of pension liability in Winchester.

According to a recent state Retirement Law Commission report, the town owes $10.5 million in future pension payments to its employees which the town cannot support at present.

Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell said Monday the pension liability problem is "a problem that is not going to go away and which must be addressed head on at this time."

The town finance committee set aside $90,000 last year as recommended by the retirement commission. In the past, the town has been operating on a "pay-as-you-go" system.

The problem has been a exacerbated as more town employees are becoming eligible for pensions each year.

The committee will submit a full report by the spring town meeting.

Other committee members are Selectman Arthur Dunbar, Joseph P. Abdella, of 266 Washington st., and finance committee member Elizabeth Henriques.

Computer study

Town Manager Thomas Groux informed the selectmen Monday that he would like to hire a consultant to look into the town's data processing system and identify its needs.

The 10-year-old computer system has been called "antiquated" by some town officials and the town will soon need to buy a new computer or hook up to existing computer facilities located in areas outside of town hall.

Groux said, "I'm becoming more convinced that we should get somebody in here to help us with it because you can't rely on volunteers on techinical issues." Groux was referring to the methods and procedures committee which has been studying the issue for a couple of months. On several occassions, the committee has had to postpone meetings as a result of lack of quorum.

O'Connell said, "Considering the lack of progress we've made in this area, I think we should bring it to the attention of the town meeting." Groux said the consultants could supply figures on cost of updating the system by the fall town meeting.

Taxi figures

The Winchester Taxi Owners' Association recently submitted for the selectmen's information a comparison chart of operation expenses from 1976 to 1978. The chart was submitted when the board asked why they requested a rate hike two weeks ago.

Chairman O'Connell said the information supplied the board is not enough. "When it comes to terseness, Mr. Terzian (association president) is the best." Terzian submitted two weeks ago a short letter requesting the hike and this week delivered another short note on the expenses.

He reported that cost of a four-door sedan for taxi use is $1000 more than it was two years ago, the last time the taxi association was granted a rate hike.

Terzian also reports a 30 percent increase in auto insurance rates, a 30 percent increase in maintenance and repair costs, and requested a 30 percent increase in costs of living.

The matter was thrown back to Terzian after Selectmean Barbara Hankins said, after looking at Terzian's cost analysis, "This is almost the exact same thing we received from them two years ago with just some figure changes which we found at that time to be inadequate."

Selectmen decided to invite Terzian to the board's meeting in three weeks.

Terzian said he "can't be any more specific" than the figures he has already supplied. He said he is willing to meet with the board and answer any questions they might have, but said the board "has to make the adjustment because we're losing money."

Young appointed

Richard Young, principal of Muraco School, has been appointed by the school committee to serve as school department representative on the mini-bus study committee, it was announced Monday.

The town had requested certain departments to appoint a representative for the system which has been submitted to the Mass. Bay Transportation Authority for review. Only four of 57 communities invited to submit a bus system plan to the MBTA took up the offer, making Winchester's chance for a mini-bus system a good one.

The school committee also voiced approval of the town's system at the time they appointed Young.

Road race

Selectmen neither approved nor disapproved a five-mile road race Saturday through Wincheseter for the benefit of the wheelchair sports program of the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn.

O'Connell said the town should alert all concerned departments, such as police, about the road race which will run from four corners, down Cambridge road, up Rehabilitation way and back, continue down Cambridge road to Pond street, Winchester over to Arlington street,Woburn and up Lexington street.

About 50 runners are expected. Participants will be employees of the hospital and friends. Anyone interested in running should find a sponsor and call the hospital.

Pre-skool swimming

The North Suburban YMCA has a variety of swim classes for children nine months of age to first grade. The classes are offered in the morning and afternoon for your convenience

Water baby: Ages nine months to three years old. Works on adapting to water and building muscle strength for swimming.

Mom and tot: Ages three years to first grade. Works on basic swimming, floating and fun in the water.

Tiny tot: Ages four years to first grade. Works in deep water on crawl stroke and floating with a floatation device.

Advanced tiny tot: Ages four to first grade. Works on crawl stroke, backstroke, and lifesaving skills in deep water without floatation aid.

Registration for fall classes will take place, Sunday, Sept. 17, at 1:30 to 4 p.m. For further information, call the Y at 935-3270

Big Bigger BIGGEST
Why not? Have your ad set in larger, darker, bolder attention-getting type! Yes, it does cost a little more. You can save a few little cents on your ad and lose many big dollars in sales. Now that really isn't economy, is it? It is especially important to have a big, attractive ad if the items you are selling are perishable or have a short season. Call us at 643-7900 to place your CPI Classified ad. Remember, one call places your ad in all three of our publications.

REAL ESTATE

WHERE'S THE "SCRIVENER"?

Much of the tradition and ceremony has disappeared from the business of transfering real estate. You might enjoy learning how it used to be done in the old days.

The law has always regarded the transfer of real estate as one of the most solemn acts and thus a great deal of formality attended the transfer. In the early days of land tenure, transfer was accomplished by "livery of seizen" which literally, means transfer of possession.

The buyer and seller would go upon the land in question and there, in the presence of witnesses, the seller would take a clod of turf and a twig from a tree and hand it over to the buyer as a symbol or token of the transfer.

The transfer was then made a mater of record by having the "scrivener" (the person in the community who could write) do his thing and write out the transfer on a parchment and affix his seal.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Coates to teach calligraphy at Old Scwamb Mill

Jane Coates of Winchester, one of 15 professional artists and craftsmen offering classes in the fine arts and craft education program at the Old Schwamb Mill in Arlington, will teach a new course in Italic Handwriting for the fall term.

Ms. Coates, a graduate of The College of New Rochelle, is a professional calligrapher and experienced teacher.

The class in italic handwriting will be given Tuesday mornings and will begin with the study of the formal 16th century chancery cursive. Ms. Coates will also teach a course in basic calligraphy which will be an introduction to the graphic techniques, including Roman capitals, uncials, versals, Old English, chancery cursive and bookhand.

Registration continues for classes beginning the week of Monday, Sept. 25.

Other new classes this term are woodcarving, leathercraft, and chair seat weaving. There will also be classes in woodworking with hand tools, miniature furniture making, beginning pottery and pottery workshops in throwing and glazing, stained glass, silver jewelry, weaving off-loom, wool spinning, quiltmaking, life drawing and still life painting. For children there is pottery for young people and art workshop.

The Old Schwamb Mill national historic site is today a museum of industry, art and craftsmanship, perpetuating with its fine arts and craft education program the traditions of quality workmanship established by Charles Schwamb in 1847 in making oval picture frames.

The Mill is open daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday for information about classes, hardwood lumber for sale, guided tours and conservation framing. It is located on Mill Lane off Lowell street at The Foot of the Rocks in Arlington and is a non-profit charitable educational institution.

Despite a rough start, SPEDY was a good beginning

The SPEDY summer jobs program for local youths is over for the summer, but, for at least some of the participants, it was a good beginning

Thirty-two youngsters from Winchester were involved in the 10-week program, and judging from the comments of some of their supervisors, they proved to be pretty good workers. In a couple of cases, the agencies sponsoring the SPEDY jobs even agreed to hire the workers after the program stopped.

SPEDY (Summer Program for Economically Deprived Youth) is federally funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and has been operating here since 1973. The program is designed to serve about 1500 youths between the ages of 14 and 21 in the 12-town Medford CETA Consortium, which includes Winchester.

In Winchester there were about 40 applicants for 80 positions, 32 of whom qualified under the program's low and middle income guidelines. Eligible employers include local government, town agencies, and other non-profit organizations. Participants worked down at Town Hall in various departments, in the schools, at the police and fire stations and the dog pound, on the playgrounds and at Wedge Beach, in the library and for the Red Cross.

Workers are paid $2.65 an hour and work 27 hours a week (just over $700 for the summer). Part of their hours include weekly "Career Exploration" sessions, during which they learn about finding, applying for, and holding onto jobs.

But what was perhaps even more important was the actual on-the-job experience the participants gained through SPEDY.

"It gave me confience. I was sort of scared when I first started," commented 16-year-old Marsha Hudson, who worked in the town clerk's office. But she said the other workers in the office were very cooperative and put her at ease.

Marsha said she enjoyed the work, thought the pay was good, and would go back to work after school in the fall, if possible, when the SPEDY program starts up agian. (The program also runs during the school year, arranging for after school jobs for about a dozen youths.)

Marsh's major task was to work on the town census. She also did some typing. Town Clerk Elsie Nelson offered this assessment of her work: "As far as this SPEDY girl is concerned, she was an excellent worker. We're hoping to get her back in the fall after school...She shows good potential as a good office worker. She was always on time."

Red Cross Director Phyllis Knopf was even more generous in her praise for the two girls woring with her

"I think it's a great program. The kids were so willing and so helpful, and it was a wonderful experience for me and everyone connected with the Red Cross." Of one girl, she commented, "She made a friend for the Red Cross wherever she went." And for the other girls, she said, "No adult could be more efficient, more competent. What more can you say?"

Mrs. Knopf said she too, would like to have the workers back in the fall program. In fact, the Red Cross has agreed to fund a job for one of the girls until SPEDY starts up again in October.

Fifteen-year-old Jim Hudson, Marsha's brother, worked with the school custodian at the Noonan School. He said he liked the work and got along well with his fellow employees. "I was just hanging around (before he started the job), so I had something to do," he commented. Jim will join his sister at the high school this fall; both plan to follow the academic college preparatory program; and both said they would like to participate in SPEDY again next summer.

Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia has had a number of SPEDY workers over the past few years and said he is very pleased with the program. He's had the youngsters working on maps and special projects, working at odd jobs, typing and performing other secretarial duties. He added, "They're not just filling a seat down here."

Kelly Keating, 15, is another SPEDY success story. She came in to tell program director Tony Guarente that she wouldn't be working in the after-school program - because she was hired for a regular after school job at the library, where she spent this summer working. Another girl has had an interview for a job at the Mount Auburn House, a retirement home; and the Washington School custodian thought enough of his SPEDY worker to hire him for a week to help paint his house.

A rough start

Things weren't always quite so smooth for the program. To begin with, local CETA coordinator Howard Chase had some trouble finding a director for SPEDY.

Chase recalls that at the end of the school year, Lynch teacher Jean Pryor, who had run the program in past years, decided to take a summer off. Chase advertised for a director and got three applicants, two of whom did not meet the necessary qualifications.

Then at the last minute, the final applicant, who was to take the position, dropped out after he found a better job. Chase had to find someone in a hurry in order to get the program off the ground. Tony Guarente came into Town Hall looking for a summer job, and he ended up in Chase's office. Guarente, 23, met the qualifications: he's a resident, a college graduate, and he even had experience as a teacher. Chase gave him a "crash course" in running the program, and SPEDY was on its way for the summer.

"I think Mr. Guarente deserves a lot of credit for stepping in and handling it the way he did," said Chase; some of the supervisors had a good word for him too.

"Guarente did one hell of a good job," commented Al Faggiano, town comptroller. He noted that Guarente came by often to check on his workers and did a good job maintaining discipline.

There were other problems at the start. Some of the workers were showing up late. Guarente got together with the supervisors to make sure they were reporting the late arrivals, and he simply refused to pay anyone who didn't get to work on time.

The approach worked for the worker in Faggiano's office. At the end of the program, he had a good deal of praise for her: "She was an excellent typist, and she did some very nice work for us. She learned how to operate several machines, and I think she learned a great deal about working with people...She has very good potential for this type of work."

Guarente had problems of his own at Town Hall: he had no office, no desk, no phone. "I was bounced around Town Hall for a while," he said, noting that one day he ended up working out of the men's room, for want of a better place. But he said Howard Chase (who is also the local veterans' services administrator) and Public Health Director Michael Saraco helped hom out, giving him space when they could.

Another problem Guarente tried to iron out was the career exploration part of the program. At first the sessions, which took the place of three hours of work on Thursdays, were only lasting an hour. Guarente tried to fill out the programs. One innovation was a drug and alcohol education workshop he threw together, bringing in Chase, Police Officer Danny McGee, and Elizabeth Kenney, volunteer director at Winchester Hospital, to talk to the youngsters.

But all in all, Guarente complimented the participants in the program. He said the supervisors were cooperative; and as for the kids, "Twenty were good, the rest were outstanding workers."

Chase said he'd like to see the program expanded to include local youngsters outside the federal income guidelines. He estimated that between March and July, "between 200 to 250 kids came through here looking for jobs."

While SPEDY is quite popular with employers and employees alike, the funding for the program is in doubt.

"We're hanging on it right now," commented Chase, who pointed out that funding for public employee programs is down from just over $2 million last year to about $1.9 million this year; and that means a cutback in some programs.

Whether or not that includes the Winchester SPEDY program is in question; Chase said he will know in about a week. If funding does not come through, SPEDY may not be starting up again in October.

Vote for Senator

EDWARD W. BROOKE

A few simple facts:

Brooke's quiet Senate leadership and behind-the-scenes Committee work has received comparatively little publicity in this "maverick state" ...but, nationally, he has become one of the most honored men in American Government.

OIL: Brooke led New England Senators in a fight to implement new industrial oil pricing rules which will equalize prices nationally and save around 25 million dollars for Massachusetts citizens this year.

SENIOR CITIZENS: Brooke was named "Man of the Year" by National Senior Citizens Council, for his continuous efforts in senior housing, jobs....

FOREIGN POLICY: Brooke is alerting many complacent Americans to the threat of world-wide Communism through his talks around the country.

EMERGENCIES: Brooke gained federal aid for Chelsea after its fire, for areas affected by the '78 Blizzard, for fishermen hurt by "red tide," and for other tragic emergencies in our state.

FEDERAL FUNDS: Brooke, by supporting various so-called "liberal programs," has insured funds for local jobs, education, health care, housing... (Helping people stay off the welfare rolls is a Conservative aim.)

YOUTH: Brooke introduced the Young Family Housing Act, has supported Summer Jobs for Youth, education for Veterans...

JOBS: Brooke's efforts have brought thousands of lasting jobs to Massachusetts Lynn's General Electric, Boston's Southwest Corridor, Quincy's General Dynamics, Raytheon's Missile, Fort Devens, and other private enterprise plants throughout the state.

BANKING: Brooke authored the NOW Checking Accounts which earn interest for the first time.

We, who have closely followed Brooke's career, appreciate the value of his EXPERIENCE. We are proud to claim him as our Senator and eager to have him continue to represent us.

HE HAS DONE MORE AND CAN DO MORE FOR MASSACHUSETTS THAN ANY OTHER CANDIDATE!

Flimflam broken up; merchant credited with arrest

Winchester police, with the help of a local merchant, last week broke up a flimflam operation at Burlington Mall.

According to Chief of Police John McHugh, Richard Atwood, 22, of Reading, manager of Gold Cars Inc., 50 Cross st., called police Friday about a man who wanted to sell him televisions at a cut rate price.

Atwood told police that the man identified himself as the "UPS (Uniter Parcel Service) man." When Atwood called police, Inspector Richard Beaton and Sgt. Roland Roy told Atwood to meet with the caller at the prescribed point, Jordan Marsh Auto Parts Center, Burlington Mall.

When Atwood met with the caller, he said he had to call his boss because he didn't think Atwood had enough money for the purchase. The man put Atwood on the phone and the party on the line, which police have not been able to identify, said he would have to supply more money.

Atwood said he would return in an hour with more money. He originally went with $245.

Police and Atwood again huddled and set up a plan that would signal police when the money was passed to the man. When Atwood made the signal, police moved in and apprehended David Fraser, 20, of Somerville and charged him with larceny over $100, a felony.

Sgt. Roy said after the arrest, "Without the help of Richard Atwood, this arrest could not have taken place. Local merchants should take alert to such flimflam operations as Mr. Atwood has."

Burlington police detectives assisted in the arrest.

The operator of the vehicle that collided with another vehicle Aug. 19 on Cambridge street killing two men pleaded innocent Monday in Woburn District Court to two counts of homicide by motor vehicle, one count of failing to keep to the right, leaving the scene of an accident which was committed minutes earlier further up Cambridge street, police said, one count of operating so as to endanger, and operating without insurance.

Attorneys for Robert Marchetti, 22, of Somerville filed for motions and the trial is scheduled for sometime in mid October.

Thomas Seabrook, 26, of Somerville, and Richard Dwyer, 25, of Arlington were killed in the late-night accident near the intersection of Everett avenue.

In other business, a Loring street resident was arrested this weekend for assault and battery on a police officer, Charles Culhane.

Culhane and another cruiser were called to the scene of an appearent fight between the defendant and his son-inlaw.

When police arri ed, there was no fight in progress, but just as they were leaving, the son-in-law arrived at the house and the defendant stormed towards him and started hitting him, according to Chief McHugh. When Culhane tried to separate the two, the defendant struck him, police report. Culhane was not seriously hurt.

Because of a miscommunication, about three Woburn police cruisers, plus three Winchsester cruisers were called to the scene. According to the chief, the arriving officers called for a sergeant on duty, but the dispatcher thought they were calling for more assistance and notified Woburn Police when all other cruisers in town were busy.

The defendant was arraigned in Woburn District Court Monday and his case was continued to Sept. 20. According to state law, if found guilty, the defendant could serve not less than 90 days and not more than two years on the charge.

Tools and equipment totaling about $1400 have been taken over an indefinite period of time from the town Department of Public Works, according to police.

Police said keys would have to be used to get into some areas where the equipment was stored and that no forcible entry in the public works building has been reported recently. The chief said the larceny "smacks of employee participation" and said the equipment was probably taken in small amounts at different times.

A recent inventory of the department's supplies revealed the larcenies.

A snow blower worth $500 and lawn mower worth another $200 were taken between Aug. 24 and Sept. 7 from the east side parking lot shed of the First Congregational Church, Church street.

Two other breaking and entries were reported this past week to police. On Euclid avenue, an undetermined amount of valuables was taken when someone forced his way into a bulkhead, lowered himself to the cellar door, (there are no stairs in the shed) pushed a wooden panel out of the door and unlocked it to gain entry. Police said the thief or thieves tried to get in the back kitchen door by taping black friction adhesive on the outside window to prevent shattering. When the thieves found they needed a key to get in the back door, they abandoned the window approach and tried to pry the door open with a screw driver. When that failed, the cellar door was successfully tampered.

A 12-gauge shotgun, and a 30-30 Marlin rifle with scope, worth $200, plus cameras and jewelry and other items were stolen last Thursday from a Meadowcroft road house. It is the second shotgun to be stolen from a Winchester residence within three weeks. Point of entry was the rear kitchen door. Also stolen was two cameras, a diamond necklace and opal ring, a Sony radio, and three watches.

The yellow flashing beacon and keep right sign on Cambridge street near the Woburn line were again knocked down this weekend in a hit and run acccident. The beacon and sign have been struck several times in the past.

Obituaries

Dorothy F. Forbush

Dorothy Fitts Forbush, 59, of Canaan, NH and Potsdam, NY, died Sept. 1 at her summer home in Cannaan after a long illness.

Born in Portland, Me., Mrs. Forbush grew up in Winchester. She was the daughter of Henry K. and Caroline Fitts. She graduated from Smith College and earned a masters degree in economics from Harvard University.

She married Dascomb Forbush in 1946 and moved to Evanston, Ill., moving to Potsdam with her family in 1965.

In 1966, she was a founding director of Planned Parenthood of Northern New York and served for a time as chairman for St. Lawrence County. She was active in the local League of Women Voters and in various civic affairs. She was a World War II veteran and a member of several peace and disarmament organizations, an opponent of the US involvement in Vietnam and a supporter of Palestinian rights.

A memorial service was held Sept. 5 at the Old North Church in Canaan. Memorial contributions may be made to Planned Parenthood of the Upper Valley, Lebanon, NH, or to the New Hampshire Audubon Society, Concord, NH.

She is survived by her husband, a professor of economics at Clarkson; two sons, Dack of South Hero, Vt. and Daniel of Keene, NH; a sister, Alice Grant of Maryland; a brother, Henry Fitts of Sunapee, NH; nieces and nephews. A daughter died in 1973.

Harlow Russell II

Harlow F. Russell II, 68, of Ashburnham and formerly of Winchester, died Sept. 6 in Henry Heywood Memorial Hospital, Gardner.

Mr. Russell lived here for many years before moving to Ashburnham in 1958. Prior to his retirement, he was associated with the former Russell Box Company of Medford and served as treasurer of the Unit Packing Co. of Wilmington.

He was a former member of the Winchester Republican Town Committee and a town meeting member here. He was a member and acted with the Little Theatre Under-the-Spire and the Group Theatre in Winchester and received a citation for participation in 25 theater productions.

A native of Chelsea, he graduated from the Huntington School in Boston and Middlebury College in 1934. He served in the Navy during World War II as a lieutenant JG.

When he lived here he belonged to the Church of the Epiphany. He was also a former president of the Ashburnham Historical Society.

He is survived by his wife Evelyn F. (Remick) Russell; a son, Harlow F. Russell III of Rochester, NY; two daughters, Susan R. Bombieri of New Jersey and Victoria Caleb of Illinois; four sisters, Florence Simonds of Florida, Leola Marsh of Rhode Island, Evelyn Wonson of Essex, and Janet Traquair of Groton; and five grandchildren.

Mr. Russell donated his body to the University of Massachusetts Medical School for research. Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Margaret Enderle

Margaret (Harrold) Enderle, 78, of 19 Myrtle st., died Sept. 7 at the Woburn Nursing Home.

Born in Winchester, she lived here for 50 years and was a resident of Woburn for 20 years.

She was the wife of the late Ambrose Enderle, who died in 1975. She leaves one son, John H. Eckert of Winchester; two brothers, former Winchester Chief of Police Charles J. Harrold of Clearwater, Fla; and John F. Harrold of El Reno, Okla; a sister, Mrs. May Sullivan of Woburn; and several nieces and nephews.

She was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Army (WAAC), and she was active at the Winning Farm for Children in Woburn for many years along with her husband.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Lane Funeral Home directed arrangements.

Edwin G. Berg Jr.

Edwin G. Berg Jr., 60, of 26 Dunster ln., died Friday at home after a long illness. Born in Winchester, he was the son of Edwin Berg and Gerda (Noren) Berg and was lifetime resident. He leaves his wife Ruth M. Fitzpatrick; one daughter, Gretchen N. Pandolfo of Burlington; two sons, Edwin G. of Woburn, and Douglas K. of Winchester; two brothers, Walter N. Berg of Lexington, and Ernest R. Berg of Winchester; and two grandchildren, Frank III and Heidi Pendolfo. He was employed as a carpenter with the H. Tobison Builders in Arlington for several years.

He was a member of the North Star Lodge, and was a veteran of World War II.

Private services were held Saturday at the Berglund Clark Funeral Home in Arlington. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the emergency room of Winchester Hospital.

Ralph E. Muehlig

Ralph E. Muehlig, 80, of Atlantic Highlands, N.J., formerly of Winchester, died Friday at Kennedy Medical Center, Edison, N.J.

Born in Lawrence, he lived in Winchester for several years, leaving in 1958. He was the son of Emil J. and Fanny (Martin) Muehlig.

He was the Northeast regional manager of the manufacturing and repair division of Westinghouse Co., retiring in 1963.

He leaves his wife, Margaret (McCabe) Muehlig; and two sons, Dr. John E. and Ralph J. of New Brunswick, N.J.

He was a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, a fellow in the American Society of Professional Engineers, and past commander of the Boston Power Squadron.

Services were held Tuesday at the Quackenboss Funeral Home, New Brunswick, N.J. Interment was in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Middleton, N.J.

Marion L. Verder

Mrs. Marion L. Verder of Arlington died suddenly in Salem Sept. 9. Born in Winchester 98 years ago, she was the daughter of William B. and Martha (Sanderson) Simonds and the sister of the late Roland E. Simonds.

She received her early education in Winchester and graduated from Winchester High School. In the early 1900s, she moved to Hollis, NH and married Henry D. Verder.

She is survived by a son, Douglas Verder of Barre, Vt.; a daughter, Barbara H. Verder of Arlington; a brother, Erving R. Simonds of Hollis' NH; a nephew, Henry E. Simonds of Winchester; two nieces, Phyllis A. King of Hollis and Betty King of West Suffield, Conn; and three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Saville Funeral Home in Arlington. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

Lillian McCullough

Mrs. Lillian (Lumsden) McCullough, wife of the late Frank B. McCullough, died Monday at a nursing home in Lexington. Mrs. McCullough had been a resident of Jefferson road for the past 36 years.

Born in New Haven, Conn., she was the daughter of William and Anna C. Lumsden. She was a graduate of Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and of Butler's Business College. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Winchester, the Fortnightly, and the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Howard A. Krueger officiating. Interment was in Linwood Cemetery, Stoneham.

Memorials in her name may be made to the First Baptist Church. Norris Funeral Home handled the arrangements.

SAM ROTONDI

THE HIGH ROAD

It's easy to slant and distort issues. To take statements out of context and distort their meaning.

My opponent has done this. He has only attacked me without saying what he would do if elected.

A lot of people have said that I should take a "get tough" approach with my opponent. Attack his record. And him.

That's the Low Road.

It leaves bitterness and a bad taste in your mouth long after the campaign is over.

And it's been a problem in campaigns for too long. Campaigns have been so hard hitting. They have left bruises and scars for years.

The Low Road doesn't do anybody any good.

I'm not running against anyone.

I'm running only for the right to represent you again.

I said I'd run for re-election, by going door to door. Meeting the people. Explaining my record. Asking for their support.

Many people said I should answer my opponent's charges. I refused to stoop to that level. I brought my case directly to you — the people I represent. I presented my record to you and explained my positions personally, and showed you just how ridiculous these charges are.

I said I'd run a clean, straight forward, tough campaign. That's what I've done.

That's the High Road.

That's the way I want to win.

After it's all over, if I'm re-elected Senator. I'll have to work with a lot of people. Working together is how we all win.

DEMOCRAT · SEPT. 19th

George Rotondi, 58 Sunset Rd., Winchester, MA 01890

Common Cause quizes Lyons, Rotondi on issues

Common Cause — Massachusetts has released the responses to its 1978 questionnaire sent to all candidates for the primary elections.

Selecting nine issues that revolve around responsive and accountable government, the non-partisan citizen lobbying organization included three questions on more democratic rules for the state legislature, a question on public financing for the six statewide offices, governor to auditor, and another on a "Sunset Bill" which attracted widespread bi-partisan support in 1978 but was buried at the end of the session. A Sunset law would automatically terminate government agencies or programs unless periodically evaluated and recreated by the legislature.

"Rules reform is a major issue this year," said Richmond Mayo-Smith, Chairman of Common Cause-Massachusetts. "We are asking candidates whether they prefer the present system of power centralization whereby the House Speaker and Senate President appoint all Committee Chairmen, committee members and a few top leaders or a system whereby these people are elected by secret ballot in party caucus thus giving all legislators a greater voice in the day to day operations at the State House."

Public financing has long been a key issue for Common Cause, both nationally and in Massachusetts. The state now has a dollar add-on system on its income tax return to provide for public funds that will match small private contributions up to $100. "This provision is working poorly compared to the Presidential system where the taxpayers merely check off $1 of their tax liability for public financing," Mayo-Smith commented. "We are also askin; the opinion of candidates on public financing for state legislative campaigns. The MBM scandal and others have been tied to illegal campaign contributions. Public financing would certainly mitigate the effectiveness of bribery."

The candidates in Winchester's districts questioned by Common Cause include the two Democratic runners for the state Senate seat in the Fourth Middlesex District — incumbent Sen. Samuel Rotondi and challenger James Lyons.

Accountable Government

1. Sunset law — Most government programs, whether effective or not, live on indefinitely. A meaningful Sunset Law would set automatic termination dates for specified government agencies. This would help assure that those agencies are evaluated and either terminated or modified if they are not working.

Will you vote for a Sunset Law that will require periodic termination of state regulatory boards to assure that they are continued only after full evaluation, and affirmative approval by the legislature?

Both Rotondi and Lyons answered yes.

2. Consumer representation on regulatory boards — State boards that regulate industries and occupations are established to protect the public's interest and safety. Frequently, however, these boards are dominated by members of the industry or profession that is to be regulated. A way to minimize this domination and to increase the consumer's voice in regulatory matters is to increase the number of consumers who sit on these boards.

Will you vote for a bill that will provide that one less than a majority of all members of state regulatory boards be people who have no direct interest in the subject matter that comes before that board?

Rotondi says yes, Lyons no.

3. Funding of state mandated programs — One of the leading causes of the increase in local property taxes is the legislature's practice of mandating local programs without providing state money for communities to fund these programs. This creates a situation where the public officials responsible for the program's existence, i.e. the legislators, are not held accountable for the increased local financial burden on the communities.

Will you support legislation that will require the legislature to fully fund all state mandated local programs?

Both candidates said yes.

Legislative reform

4. More democratic legislative rules — The Massachusetts Legislature operates under a system whereby strong central powers are held by the legislative leadership. Committee Chairmen and all members of committees are appointed by the Speaker of the House and Senate President. Proposed rules reform would make the rules more democratic in that the full membership would have a greater voice in the selection of legislative leadership and more input in the legislative process.

a) Will you support a change in rules to provide for the election of Democratic and Republican nominees for Speaker of the House and Senate President by secret ballot in party aucus?

Rotondi said yes, Lyons no.

b) Will you support a change in rules to provide for the election of the Majority leader, Minority Leader and Assistant Minority Leader by secret ballot in party caucus?

Rotondi said yes, Lyons no.

c) Will you support a change in rules to provide for the election of Committee Chairman by secret ballot by a caucus of the mamority party?

Rotondi said yes, Lyons no.

5. Recorded committee voters — There is frequently no formal record of committee action on a bill in the legislature. Committee hearings are often sparsely attended by committee members and the fate of bills is often determined by less than a majority of committee members.

Will you support a change in rules to provide that all bills reprorted out of legislative committees include a recorded roll call of each member's vote on the bill?

Rotondi said yes, Lyons said a qualified yes.

6. Broadcasting of House and Senate sessions — Floor debates in more than 40 state legislatures are broadcast, in whole or in part, on radio and television. Such broadcasting is not allowed in the Massachusetts Legislature. Broadcasting of these proceedings would be a major breakthrough in increasing citizens' awareness and understanding of the activities of the legislature and their own representatives.

Will you vote to provide for radio and television broadcasting of floor proceedings in your chamber of the legislature on a regular basis?

Both Lyons and Rotondi said yes.

Election reform

7. Public financing of elections— A number of cases of political corruption nationally and in Massachusetts in recent years have been tied to illegal campaign contributions. A 1975 state law provides for limited public financing of campaigns for state-wide offices. Unlike the current presidential system where taxpayers merely allocate one dollar of their tax liability to public financing of elections, however the state law requires taxpayers to add an extra dollar to their state tax liability. This present state add-on system has not drawn sufficient funds to finance the state-wide elections.

a) Will you vote for a bill that changes the present state public financing of elections for the six state-wide offices to one where the tax payers need only allocate one dollar of their tax liability to the election fund rather than add one dollar to their tax liability?

Rotondi said yes, Lyons no.

b Will you vote for a bill to provide a mixed system of small private contributions matched by public funds to finance campaigns for the state legislature.

Rotondi said yes, Lyons no.

8. Private use of residual campaign funds — Present state law allows a candidate for office or public official to convert left over campaign funds to personal use so long as the funds are declared as income and taxes are paid on them.

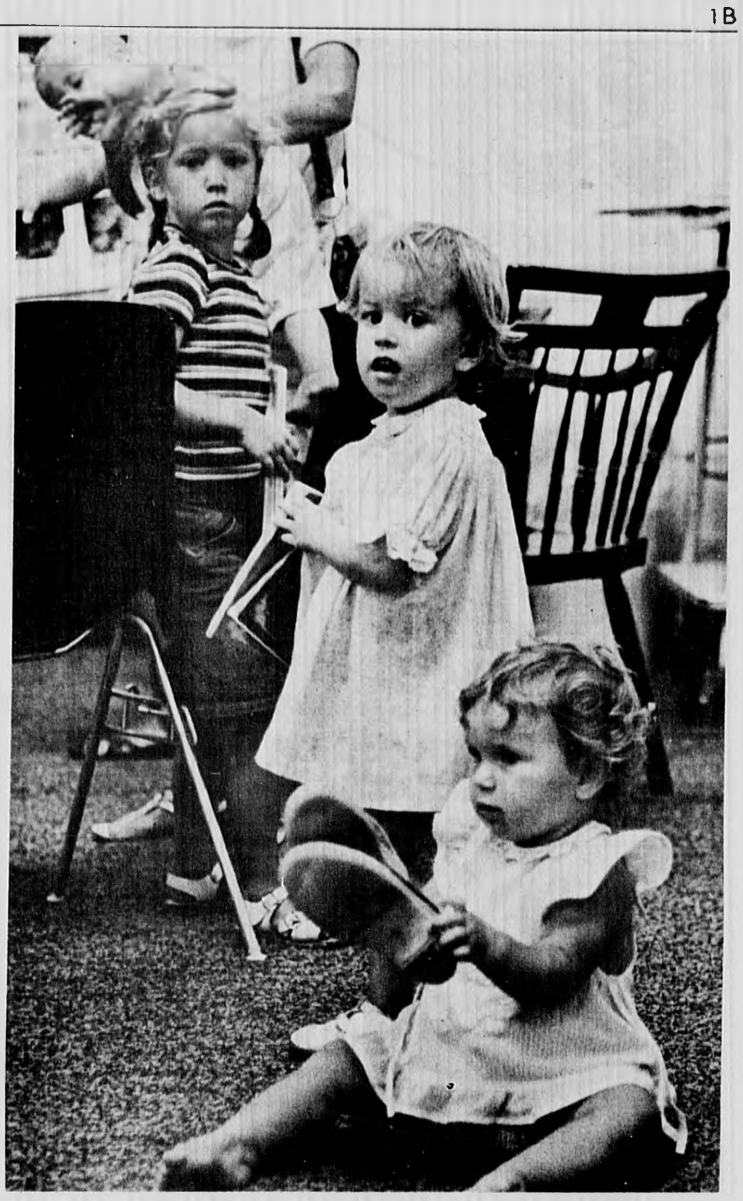
Will you vote to prohibit the conversion of campaign funds to personal use?

Both Lyons and Rotondi answered yes.

9. Reappointment — The responsibility for drawing up congressional and legislative districts following each decennial census presently rests with the legislature. Some states have removed the authority for reapportionment from the legislature to minimize the possibility of political controversy and gerrymandering.

Will you vote to establish an independent non-partisan reapportionment commission for Massachusetts?

Rotondi answere yes, Lyons no.



Natalie Ciulla, 1, has a thing about shoes while Deirdre Murdock, 3, and sister Shalagh, 6, keep a grip on their books. Brother Colin, 13 months, is busy with mom in background. Children were waiting at sign up session for the Children's Theatre at the library last week. 42 in all signed up, and there are still a few spots left for older children (aged 12-16) for this fall's production of "The Blue Bird."

FOR THE RECORD

BROOKE
United States Senator
Republican

Vote for Senator Ed Brooke Tuesday, September 19th.

A copy of our report is filed with the Federal Election Committee and is available for purchase from the Federal Election Committee, Washington, D.C.
Brooke Committee, Stanley Gaffin, Chairman, 114 Garland Rd., Newton, Mass. 02159.

In Tuesday Primary

11,768 eligible to vote

This year there are 11,768 registered voters in Winchester eligible to go to the polls this Tuesday. Those voters will be choosing from among 12 Republican and 50 Democratic candidates for 15 state and county offices.

A majority of Winchester voters are Democrats — 4640 are so registered. Next in strength are independents, with 4139 registered voters. And there are 2984 registered Republicans and five registered American Party voters.

On the local level, candidates are running for the state Senate seat in the Fourth Middlesex District and the state Representative seat in the 34th Middlesex District. There are races for the county offices of commissioner, treasurer, register of probate; the district attorney for the Northern District; and governor's councillor for the Sixth District.

Statewide, there are candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, treasurer, and auditor.

And voters will be choosing their preferences for US Senate and US Congressman for the Seventh District.

Polling times, places

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19. Polling places for the eight districts in Winchester are as follows:

District 1, the Washington School; District 2, Town Hall; District 3, the Lincoln School; District 4, the Mystic School; District 5, the Ambrose School; District 6, the Vinson-Owen School; District 7, the Wyman (Bartlett) School; District 8, the Noonan School.

Voters who expect to be absent from Winchester, or who will be unable by reason of physical disability to cast their votes in person at the polling place on the day of the Primary may obtain applications for absent voter ballots at the town clerk's office in Town Hall. Applications must be filed on or before noon Monday, Sept. 18.

Two lines on ballot

Winchester voters who take a Democratic ballot on Tuesday should be aware that candidates for the offices of US Senate, state secretary, and state treasurer are listed on two lines.

There are an unusually large number of candidates running for statewide and other offices this year, and the AVM voting machines in Winchester and other communities do not have sufficient space to list all candidates on one row.

Voters are encouraged to look at the specimen ballot printed here in The Star and posted in each polling place before they enter the booth. If you like, mark your votes in The Star's sample ballot and take it to the polling place with you to help you once you enter the booth.

And whatever party you belong to and whoever you favor, get out and exercise your constitutional right to vote!

Democrat caucus Sept. 23rd for delegate vote

Winchester Democrats will be electing 11 delegates to a Congressional district caucus at a meeting Sept. 23 at 2 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 117 Swanton st.

Mrs. Mary V. Serieka, chairman of the Winchester Democratic Town Committee, reports that the Democratic National Committee has authorized a mid-term conference, to be held in Memphis, Tenn. Dec. 8-10 for the purpose of "addressing issues embraced in the 1976 Democratic Party Platform and other national issues, and for the purpose of discussing the state Democratic Party and its future."

The Winchester Town Committtee is alloted 11 delegates to the district caucus, where the delegates to the meeting in Memphis will be chosen. All registered Democrats are invited to attend the meeting Sept. 23; and all such party members are eligible to vote and run for delegate.

Referenda topic of LWV meeting

The League of Women Votersf Winchester will hold a general meeting on the subject of the referedum questions Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Thuma, 2 Allen rd.

The speaker will be Merry Duffy, head of the LWV's Sharfman Fund, which supports the Voter's Information phone.

County assessors association plans 50th anniversary

The Middlesex County Assessors Association will celebrate its 50th anniversary this year. This association is one of the oldest and largest, in membership, in the Commonwealth.

The current president is Ralph Dodge, chief appraiser of Acton, who has appointed Bob Nordstrand of Reading, as chairman of the celebration committee.

The dinner dance will be held Oct. 14 at the Elks Club, on the Lynnfield-Wakefield line. The featured speaker will be Dick Flavin of WBZ-TV.

Due to the size of the facilities, reservations for the anniversary celebration are limited. For tickets and reservations, contact the assessors' offices in Chelmsfrod, Bedford, Sherborn, Westford or Lowell.

Final statements from county, legislative candidates in primary

County commissioner

Bernard Hennessy

Bernard J. Hennessey, a former purchasing agent for Middlesex County and Beth Israel Hospital and presently business manager of the Sudbury school district, has lived in the Middlesex area for 22 years and is now a resident of Sudbury.

He was the county's first purchasing agent, hired in 1974. He says he quit in 1976 after Paul Tsongas left to go to Congress and was replaced by Michael McLaughlin, who is currently a commissioner. Hennessey is running against incumbent John Danehy, and he has released the following letter as his final statement of the primary campaign:

An open letter to John Danehy

As a citizen of the Commonwealth, a taxpayer, and property owner in Middlesex County; and as a candidate for the office of Middlesex County Commissioner, I am urging you to resign your position as a County Commissioner and Chairman. I am further asking you to withdraw from the Democratic Primary which is being held on September 19, 1978.

One does not ask for the resignation of an elected official without giving it serious thought.

It has become quite obvious that you do not regard the County as a viable form of government; otherwise, it would not be considered a hobby and private playground by you, instead of a very serious job. You have become the automatic silent partner in conducting the County business.

The reasons for my requesting your resignation are:

1. Your refusal to conduct yourself in a professional and expeditious manner when handling County business.

2. Your complete disregard in informing the local city and town governments as to the activities of the County and ignoring their inputs as to the needs of the local cities and towns.

3. By your action of signing all personnel papers, you are condoning the hiring practices now in effect in the County; although you may not personally be involved in the allegations brought forward by the Grand Jury investigation.

4. After holding the office of Commissioner for twelve (12) years, you are now trying to tell people that you want the County Government to become a highly visible and viable regional government. Where have you been for the last 12 years? Why are you now taking this kind of position when you know that it is diametrically opposite from what you have allowed to happen. How can you, in all good conscience, even suggest that this is what you want to see happen? If it did, it would expose your complete incompetence and disregard for the County.

5. As Chairman of the Board of Commissioners, you do not even conduct your meetings in a proper and open manner; and you certainly do not discuss openly the business at hand.

Example: The hiring of personnel at the County hospital. You filled a $28,000 per year position without even discussing it in open session, and you further implied that you did ot even know what was going on.

I could site case after case of your complete disregard for the County and those who support it (the property owners).

A. The County Advisory Board recommended over $600,000 in cuts to the Budget, and you chose to completely ignore this; in fact, you did not even take the time to attend the public hearings.

B. You chose not to make any statement either for or against the court reform bill which has now passed. As a Commissioner, you have an obligation to do this. You did not even take the time or courtesy to let the County property owners know that they still will have to pay the principal and interest on the new Courthouse and on many other Court buildings in the County. Why?

C. On many occasions, you are completely unprepared to cast a vote at meetings because you claim that you were not informed or had insufficient information. What are you paying a full time staff for if they do not keep you informed???

I could go on and on, but there is no need to. It is obvious you have no concern for the County and I firmly believe that you have mismanaged and misused the trust that was put to you by the people of Middlesex County. Therefore, you should resign your seat as a Commissioner and withdraw from the primary and let someone else who is concerned do the job.

Michael Cunningham

County Commission candidate Mike Cunningham issued this final statement before the primary election:

Before any worthwhile change can be instituted in the present system there must first be a board of commissioners that can work together with some degree of continuity. For far too long Middlesex County has either been represented by individuals using the office as a stepping stone or even more recently as an arena where a game of tug of war has broken out among the present three member board.

Legal fees incurred when the "minority commissioner" accused the other two board members of holding private meetings without his knowledge have cost the county taxpayer thousands of dollars in payments to lawyers called in to defend the other two commissioners.

This same board of commissioners two of whom are presently seeking other offices even though they still have two years left of their term to complete, have had to even deal with a court decree which upheld the rights of county workers fired from their jobs for political reasons. This court action cost the county taxpayer an excess of $500,000 when the commissioners were ordered to rehire these people and pay back wages retroactive to their dismissal.

Middlesex County Government on the whole has gone relatively unnoticed, its functions and movements have virtually remained invisible to the public eye. Illumination of this decaying system flares up only briefly during the time of a crisis.

The ill-fated, scandal ridden Cambridge Court House and the current controversy over the alleged job selling within the county system has done little for the itegrity of county government except to further its reputation as a sort of political grab bag.

County government hasn't worked here in Massachusetts as well as other similar systems throughout the country. The county should be directly responsible to the cities and towns within its jurisdiction providing administrative help at no charge to the community and also helping out during emergencies like the last blizzard.

Restructuring of the county system cannot only be done at no cost to the taxpayer but this same restructuring can actually accomplish another important goal. The county engineering department can be trimmed and other personnel can be checked on a no hire no fire basis, Keeping the county out of the building business by imposing a moratorium on future county structures and a 20 percent reduction in the commissioner's staff will also help to keep the county running on a sound fiscal basis.

The key to turning this whole ar haic system around is professional management. Bring in people with the right education instead of relatives and ardent political supporters. Run efficiently county government can prove itself as a viable force supportive of the local needs of the community.

Mavis

Writing about Switzerland, Mark Twain said that of the two ways of entering the country, by horse and carriage or by sea, the latter is preferable because it leaves the traveler untired. "This", he said, "is the right condition of mind and body, the right and due preparation for the solemn event which closes the day, stepping with metaphorically uncovered head into the presence of the most impressive mountain mass that the globe can show, the Jungfrau. The stranger's first feeling, when suddenly confronted by that towering and awful apparition wrapped in its shroud of snow, is breaktaking astonishment. It is as if heaven's gates had swung open and exposed the throne."

No matter where you want to go, come to MCGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn. Switzerland-tranquil countryside, magnificent mountain peaks, cheerful people, old world flavor-is a land of complete charm and total beauty, it's waiting for you! Call 935-0600. Open Monday-Friday 9-5 Saturdays and evenings by appointment.

John J. Twomey
Middlesex County Treasurer
Democrat

A full-time watchdog over your county tax dollars.

Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti said: "[Former Assistant Attorney General] John J. Twomey's ... commitment to excellence and ... dedication to public service would benefit the people of Middlesex County."

John J. Twomey says: "I will fight for lower taxes through the abolition of duplicate county-state services. With creative management we can lower county tax assessments to our cities and towns."

John J. Twomey has served for the past eight years as an Assistant Attorney General in the Commonwealth's Contracts Division. He has been prosecuting all civil claims for the state against M.B.M. Twomey is also a Professor of Government at Merrimack College. John J. Twomey knows local government having been an elected city official in Medford. He recognizes the need to help reduce local property taxes by reducing the cost of county government.

Last name on the entire ballot.

Register of probate

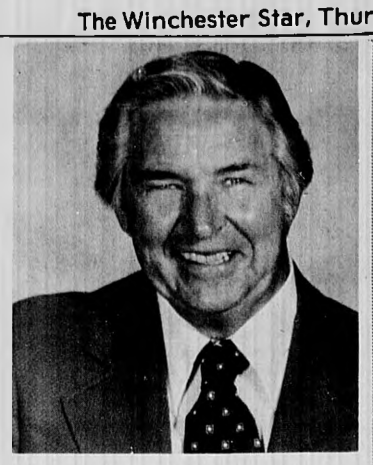
Edward Bishop

Edward Bishop, chariman of the Greater Lowell Regional School Committee, today announced his candidacy for the Office of Register of Probate and Insolvency of Middlesex County. Bishop is currently a member of the Democratic Town Committee and holds membership in Mass. Fair Share.

Bishop says that his first goal will be to simlify the forms so that our citizens can clearly understand them.

"I believe that the time has arrived for us to take the Office of Register of Probate away from the lawyers and give it back to the people," he said.

Leonard F. Doyle



Leonard F. "Deacon" Doyle of Burlington is a candidate for the office of Register of Probate for Middlesex County.

The former chairman of the Burlington Board of Selectmen said that with the imminent state financing of courts throughout the commonwealth, it is more important than ever that a competent administrator be elected to the Probate post.

Doyle says the state can ill-afford another financial morass and escalation of costs that occurred when it took over the Welfare Department.

As an assistant law librarian of the Middlesex Superior Court, Doyle cites this experience and his years as chairman of the Board of Selectmen as qualifications for this office.

After four years of service overseas in World War II, he drove truck for his uncle, owner of the R.L. Spencer Trucking Co. Doyle was a member of Local 25 Teamsters Union.

An all-scholastic athlete at Cambridge High and Latin, he laster starred in three sports at Seton Hall Prep in New Jersey. He received a diploma from the Massachusetts School of Funeral Directors and Embalmers.

Long active in Democratic politics on the state, county and local levels, Doyle is chairman of the Burlington Town Democratic Committee.

County district attorney

Guy Carbone

Atty. Guy A. Carbone, a conservative Democrat, and a candidate for the office of District Attorney of Middlesex County, is issuing this press release to inform the voters of the issues, where he stands, and where his opponents stand. His statement is as follows:

The contest for the Democratic nomination boils down to two candidates, Guy A Carbone and Scott Harshbarger.

The incumbent, Mr. Droney, can be expected to literally blanket the media with political advertisements in a last futile attempt to retain his office. In fact, his candidacy must be dismissed by the voters because Mr. Droney is seriouslı impaired because of illness, so much so that he is unable to campaign.

He has directed his office staff and prosecutors to stand at busy street corners during rush hours, at shopping centers and elsewhere to make the Droney name visible. He has become the "Howard Hughes" of Middlesex County. He has secluded himself behind closed doors, protected by the palace guards, and as such is attempting the most monumental "con job" in the history of Middlesex County politics.

Mr. Harshbarger, on the other hand has been visible, but remains evasive relative to his stand on important issues effecting the criminal justice system. He admitted at a candidates' night in Watertown Sept. 11, that Harshbarger has never prosecuted a criminal case in his life. Harshbarger is opposed to any attempt to restore capital punishment or to raise the drinking age.

He has promised to de-emphasize the prosecution of victimless crimes, which include prostitution and drug abuse. In short, Mr. Harshbarger is a liberal, supported and financed by liberals and can be expected to be their voice if elected.

On the other hand, Atty. Guy A. Carbone has had considerable experience in prosecuting criminal cases, favors an amendment to the State Constitution to make capital punishment lawful, favors raising the drinking age to 20 and will vigorously prosecute those involved in prostitution and drug abuse. Attorney Carbone is endorsed by organized labor and supported by the business community as well.

"The worst possible place to have a liberal is in the District Attorney's chair. We have enough problems with prosecuting criminals. We don't need prosecutors who are solely concerned with protecting the rights of the accused. I want prosecutors who understand that their primary responsibility is to prove the defendant guilty.

County treasurer

Rocco J. Antonelli

In a final news release prior to the Sept. 19 primary election, Rocco J. Antonelli, candidate for Middlesex County Treasurer, said:

"Rocco J. Antonelli has received wide acceptance in canvassing the county, and especially in explaining to the taxpayers in the 11 cities and 43 towns, the significance of the county taxes which they pay and the related effect on their local tax rate.

"The Middlesex County Treasurer must be a professional individual capable of administering the financial affairs of the county, maintaining audit and budget control, and publishing annually the financial reports mandated by the General Laws.

"The people should seriously analyze the elimination of county government, for the alternative could be a better solution to tax revolts, increasing costs, and a way to reduce local taxation. The regionalization or centralization for cities and towns of administrative services, tax billing, water billing, water and sewer services, rubbish collection and incineration, and many services furnished to metropolitan areas could result in substantial reductions of cost and duplication of efforts.

"By such actions, the proper allocation of municipal and town services to regional county units would generate desirable metropolitan services."

James Brennan

Predicting that the next county treasurer may very well be the last, county treasurer candidate James F. Brennan this week proposed the establishment of a "county transition" office.

In making this proposal Brennan stated, "County officials must now begin making plans for the eventual end of county government as we know it."

"Just a few weeks ago," continues Brennan, "we witnessed the transfer of the court system to state control. This represents more than $14 million of the counties $36 million budget. With the courts now gone and the matter of the county hospital under study, the county jails may soon follow. Two of the other major functions, the registry of deeds and the registry of probate, could easily be transferred to control of the state.

"With all of this actually either a reality or under discussion" says Brennan, "we must remember that many cities and towns look to the county to perform engineering services and other vital functions. We must also remember that the county retirement system which covers many town employees as well as county workers, is a fine, fully funded system and must be kept independent and intact."

"In addition to this, continues Brennan, "there are the jobs of career employees which must be protected."

"The transition office I propose," Brennan claims, "would make sure that neither city nor town, nor county employee, nor the county retirement system, nor any other vital function would become victims of the transfer shuffle as the various county functions slip to control of government at other levels."

"In order to fulfill its role," concludes Brennan, "the transition office I propose, while professionally staffed, would operate with the advice and consent of a board consisting of local, county and state officials."

Richard D. Mahoney

Richard D. Mahoney of Arlington, a graduate of Suffolk University and Austin Preparatory School, has announced his candidacy for Middlesex County Treasurer.

Mahoney, who for six years worked in the center of county government under the former Registrar of the Probate Court, John V. Harvey, and served on various committee studies initiated by former State Senator John Bullock, has for the last two years been employed by the insurance industry, presently as a liability examiner.

He says his experience both in and out of the political arena illustrated the lack of responsive and innovative action in our government.

As a candidate, Mahoney's platform calls for:

1. the continuation of the practice of attrition established by the former treasurer.
2. a comprehensive review of all programs being financed by pre-auditing all expenses and by clearly defining the objectives of these programs with the emphasis on economy and proficiency.
3. a consistant review of the established banking practices to ensure the best return possible on those monies invested.
4. the institution of a competitive managerial atmosphere similar to that of private industry designed to curtail the rising costs of county government, and;
5. to seek alternative sources of revenue to replace the property tax as the primary source of county finance.

He says in a day and age where the largest single contribution to double digit inflation is the size and cost of our governmental bureaucracy, it is time to exercise restraint and to achieve a more proficient distribution of our resources.

"The fact is that we can no longer afford to continue to add to the dimensions of our government, the emphasis has to be put on improving that that already exists to reduce our costs and to contribute to the financial solvency of the taxpayer."

Mystic Valley Mental Health directors to meet

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association Inc. will hold its regular monthly board of directors meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Lexington Clinic, 186 Bedford st., Lexington.

The board of directors is made up of citizens from each of the six communities in the Mystic Valley catchment area. The board is charged with the responsibility for the overall governance of the mental health and mental retardation programs offered by the corporate agency. Mystic Valley receives financial support from local towns, state, federal, United Way and client fees.

Represenatives on the board of directors from Winchester are Dr. Donald Rowlingson, Charles Friou, Patricia Wells, and Judith Muggia. Dr. Rowlingson serves as one of the board's vice presidents.

Competitive clinic

The North Suburban YMCA offers a preschool competitive clinic to equip children with basic fundamentals needed to become a future member of the Swim Team.

Areas of instruction include general relaxation in the water, four competitive strokes, starts, turns, demonstrations and other skills of competitive swimming nature.

Offered for children between the ages of five and seven who know the crawl stroke, and can swim well in deep water.

Registration for fall classes begins Sunday, Sept. 17, from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

State senator

Diane Porter

Republican Diane Porter who will face the Democratic winner in the November election for State Senate has released the following statement:

I feel that the issue which has to be dealt with immediately is one of taxation without representation. The power to tax is the power to govern and to tell you how tu run your life. For over 20 year, that power has been in the hands of the Democrat controlled, liberal spending legislature...and look where it has put us.

Clearly, it is time for a change. We are being taxed out of our homes, and even out of the state. Business has stopped growing here, and people are leaving for greener pastures and better tax credits. We have the highest property tax in the country. Our legislature is filled with scandal and mismanagement which is costing us millions every year.

The problem of big government has to be dealt with by a Senator with some common sense about the role of government versus the rights of the individual. The Democrat party now represents the status quo and the Republican party has emerged as the reform party in this state.

Gone are the days when we could experiment with social problems. That's our hard earned money the legislators have been playing with for 20 odd years, and we can't afford their games any more.

As a private citizen, I have waited too long for one of the politicians to rise up and speak for the taxpayers. I'm through waiting. Now, I present myself to you as a candidate for the job of State Senator from the 4th Middlesex District because I have a real commitment to passing legislation which would limit the spending and taxing authority of our state government.

I will work to pass the original CLT amendment to the constitution; to reduce your property tax bill so that it will never go beyond 2½ percent of the market value of your house, to get rid of the sur-charge tax; and to reduce the meals tax back to 5 percent. I will work to stop the state from mandating unfunded programs to the cities and towns, and to repeal school autonomy.

I will work to make certain that the rights of the individual to own and bear arms is not tampered with. I will fight the forces that are trying to return the graduated income tax issue. I will work to reform the welfare mess, and to make sure that the money saved gets passed on to the real needy of all ages.

These have been Republican programs for years, and we need visable Republican representation in the Senate to make certain that they get passed. I will represent you honestly, dilligently, and wi5h all of my strength. If you are a concerned taxpayer, I ask for your support and your vote on September 19. Thank you.

James Lyons

James J. Lyons Jr., Democratic candidate for the state Senate has issued the following statement.

Lyons said, "I would like to take this opportunity to thank you, the people of Winchester, for your openness and hospitality during this campaign.

"At the outset of this campaign, I stated that I would run an issue-oriented campaign; a campaign that would offer the voters of Winchester a clear and positive alternative. I believe that the Lyons campaign has done that.

"As I have campaigned throughout the Senatorial District, it has become obvious to me that voters share many of the same concerns. And the primary concern of campaign '78 is TAXES.

"Winchester's tax rate is still increasing, despite all the political rhetoric about increased state aid. The people of Winchester who must bear the burden of property tax increases want leadership and action at the state level, not empty political slogans.

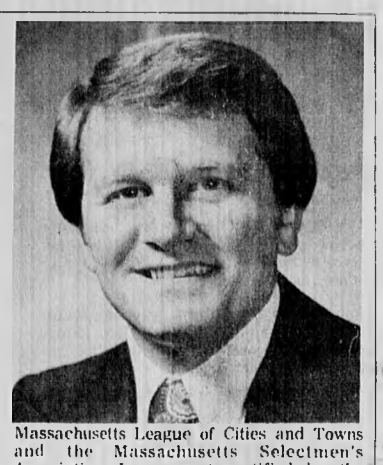
"As your state senator, I shall give my highest priority to dealing with the tax problem. A comprehensive tax relief plan for our state is clearly needed. Such a plan must include: 1. the elimination of new, underfunded state mandated programs; 2. additional state aid to local communities for the purpose of property tax relief; 3. the continued existence of the principles of local control and local autonomy; 4. a guarantee that state taxes will not increase.

"Our state's budget is currently an astronomical $5 billion. There certainly is enough revenue in a budget of this size to provide direct and substantial property tax relief, without increasing state taxes. Many of the state's bureaucracies could eleiminate the waste from their budgets without any significant reduction in services.

"The experiences of other states indicate that tax reduction does not force state and local agencies to drastically cut back services. Rather such a reduction forces those agencies to become more cost conscious, as well as, more attentive to the needs of both the taxpayers and the beneficiaries of state services.

"The message of the voters during this, the year of Proposition 13 and Proposition 2½ is clear and unequivocal: taxes must be reduced. I intend to carry that message to Beacon Hill."

Samuel Rotondi



In this final statement to the voters of Arlington and Winchester before the Sept. 19 Primary, I would like to begin by thanking you for giving me the honor of serving you during the past two years. I would also like to thank you for your courtesy extended to me during my visits to your homes.

As I discussed with many of you, I have voted on literally hundreds of bills in the last two years, and realize that I cannot please everybody all of the time. To do so, would be less than honest, but I am very satisfied with my first two years as your State Senator. I offer that record as the greatest reason why I should be re-elected to a second term.

The 1977 Session began with the expulsion of another Senator which was the most difficult setting that I will ever encounter, but nevertheless, while that Senator sat next to me, I stood for 15 minutes and debated in favor of expulsion. I was not then, and am not now, afraid to stand up in the so-called "Legislative Club" and speak in behalf of the people that I represent.

I co-authored the Court Reform Bill which was the most major reorganization of the court system in our history. I also helped write the Elderly Abatement Law which will allow many senior citizens to live with dignity in their own homes. I lent my hand to the creation of the first Wife, Child and Family Abuse Bill in this state's history. Another bill which I co-authored and sponsored will create pre-paid legal service plans to the people of Massachusetts which will insulate them against unforseen legal costs.

I stood firm against many controversial bills which adversely affected the property taxpayers of my district, and as a result, was named Legislator of the Year by the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns and the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association. I am most gratified by the award, more because of the honor which was brought to the people that I represent than the personal honor bestowed upon me.

I am one of two Senators in a 40-member Senate to have maintained a 100 percent roll call record in the past two sessions. I have held public monthly forums to allow you better accessibility to your Senator and your government. Any of you who have tried to reach my office realize how quickly I responded.

In conclusion, I have worked hard for you on a full time basis dedicating all my energies to protecting your interests and making this state a better plce to live.

I sincerely love my work, and hope that you will allow me the opportunity to continue it.

Hockey tryouts continuing

Winchester Youth Hockey will hold tryouts tomorrow evening and Saturday morning for teams scheduled to represent Winchester in Middlesex League competition.

Boys selected for these traveling teams will play a 28-game schedule, with all games held locally. Tryouts will be held at the USA Rink in Winchester.

Mite tryouts for boys born in 1970-71 will be held tomorrow at 6:20 p.m.

Squirt tryouts for boys born in 1968-69 will be held Saturday at 11:30 a.m.

This year, in Mite and Squire level competition in the Middlesex League, no checking or slap shots will be allowed. These new rules will allow coaches to place more importance on the hockey fundamentals of skating, passing and particularly team play. The Mite level team is presently in need of players and all eligible boys are encouraged to attend the tryouts. Openings for coaches are available at the Mite level.

Pee Wee tryouts for boys born in 1966-67 will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Bantam tryouts for boys born in 1964-65 will be held Saturday at 12:40 p.m.

Midget tryouts for boys born in 1962-63 will be held tomorrow at 8:40 p.m.

All boys trying out for Midget level competition will play either in league or advanced intertown-intramural play.

Winchester Youth Hockey will sponsor and conduct a hockey clinic for boys aged approximately 6-10 years beginning Oct. 13. More details on this clinic and also the Winchester Youth Hockey intramural program scheduled to begin in late November can be obtained from Alan Ross, 9 Norfolk rd.

Hugh Murray was named to the NEAAU Top Ten Team for his swimming prowess.

NEAAU honors Hugh Murray for swimming

Hugh Murray of Winchester has been honored by the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union for outstanding performance in competitive swimming. The youngster received an engraved certificate for his efforts by virtue of being ranked in the top 10 in his age group in area competition.

In the 11 and 12 boys' events, Hugh was ranked fourth in the 500-yard freestyle, fifth in the 200-yard free and individual medley, and 10th in the 50 and 100-yard backstroke and the 100 free.

Hugh is currently enjoying the annual end-of-season training break but will be back for fall team tryouts for the North Suburban YMCA Vikings the second week in September. The Vikings, who currently hold 37 YMCA and 17 AAU swimming and diving records, are once again expected to field strong teams this coming season.

Veteran runners offer promise for X-country

By MARK COSTELLO

The 1978 Winchester High School Boys Cross Country Team is at best an unknown quantity. The record of last year's team was four wins, four losses, and one tie. Although it was a winning season, it was a decidedly unfulfilling one.

That was a promising team. Little promise had materialized. This year's team is certainly capable of a winning season, but anything beyond that would be very surprising.

The degree of success which the 1978 team will encounter depends on several variables. First there is the continued consistency of team captain and star Andy Wilsak. Now entering his senior year, Wilsak is already the veteran of three cross country seasons. He was a first team Middlesex League All-Star his junior year and, barring injury or natural catastrophe, he will repeat easily. Wilsak has always been a hard worker, so he should improve still more his senior year.

Another factor to be reckoned with in sizing up the 1978 team is the development, or lack of it, in seniors Jim Wilbur, Greg Cummings, John Baker and Jay Turrassi. Wilbur, the number two man on the eight-man varsity team, won a League Honorable Mention last for his 1977 performance. It was his first competitive season. He has always had a great deal of natural ability and potential as a runner and should make league all-star this year.

Greg Cummings started off last season on the junior varsity team. He swiftly advanced to the varsity and finished the season very strongly. John Baker spent the whole of last season being shuttled between varsity and junior varsity. Like Wilsak, this is Baker's fourth year of cross country. He should run varsity this season.

Of all the juniors, Joe Flynn, Tom Doucey, James Connolly and Rob Flynn appear the most promising. All four qualified for the sophomore state championships held at Franklin Park last autumn. Joe Flynn, a much improved junior, who turned in a blazing 10:48 two-mile run last spring, should run varsity this year. At least one of the remaining three will run varsity also.

The final decision on who will run varsity and who will not will be made by coach Joe Cantillon. Cantillon, a Winchester High School and cross country alumnus, took a team that had developed an irritating habit of repeatedly finishing dead last and brought it respectability. He has had three straight winning seasons.

His critics say that he does not work the team hard enough. This may be true. As of now however, the tea. that was once a prodigous loser is a modest winner. There are no league championships in the offing, but this year at least the team will not finish last. As it should be with every coach, Cantillon will stand and be vindicated on his own record.

Girls look strong

When it comes to league championships and such, the Winchester High School girls' Cross Country Team must be considered a separate entity altogether from the boys. They share the same coach, busses and meets it is true, but if the boys regard their 1977 season as unremarkable, the girls most assuredly do not. The girls team was little short of a powerhouse last year. It included three Middlesex League All-Star candidates and one honorable mention recipient. Most notably, however, it included Jan Oehm, the finest distance runner ever produced by Winchester athletics.

Oehm, who graduated last spring, won the Middlesex League and Massachusetts division two championships with ridiculous ease. She was undefeated, untied and unchallenged the entire year. As a two-miler she was literally unbeatable. She won the New England Regionals, establishing a new record en route. The old record, which she herself had set a year before, was wiped out by several seconds. Since the law of averages dictates that a runner of Oehm's general caliber appears in the same spot maybe every 24 years or so, it can safely be assumed that for the time being at least, she is irreplacable.

The loss of Oehm will not cripple the girls team, though. Returning to the fold are seniors Sarah Fotsch, Michelle Demars and Kathy Cullen. Fotsch is stronger in shorter races. She was a superb miler on the girls track team until she was sidelined by a serious ankle injury. If her ankle problems do not resurface this season she should be the most dependable runner on the team.

Another returning standout performer is Michelle Demars. Demars was on the all-star team last year. She should repeat this honor in 1978. Beth Clower, a high scoring half-miler from the outdoor track team, Kathy Cullen, a league honorable mention recipient, Jane Langley, an outdoor track veteran, and Barbra Meyers, a sensational quarter-miler who is going to make her first attempt at running long distances, should all run varsity this season.

The first meet of the year for both varsity teams is scheduled for Friday, September 22. It will be at home against Wakefield. All home meets begin at 3 on Myrtle street, across from the Town Hall.

Coach Joe Cantillon:

He takes the quiet approach

By MARK COSTELLO

With varying degrees of intensity and roughly corresponding degrees of success each of the coaches at Winchester High seeks to forge a single unit out of the several units. As your money says, E Pluribus Unum, out of many, one.

The football team has been to camp and back. The soccer team has endured their notorious two-a-day practices which reputedly separate the men from the boys. If you have the time or the inclination and happen to be down by the high school at about six in the evening, there is another team practicing.

The high school cross country team is gathered roughly in a circle around their captain, Andy Wilsak. Wilsak is leading the team in stretching calistenics. Beads of sweat appear on the gathered foreheads and some team members groan and curse softly as all the summer stiffness is exercised from their limbs.

On the outskirts of the circle, a man stands attentively watching the team warm up. He is a slight man, slim and of realitively average height. His curly brown hair is, like his mustache, dusted lightly with premature grey. He wears glasses. The glasses fit the character of his face perfectly. The face looks as if it was born with them and to imagine it without them would be difficult. The face is calm and quiet, outwardly serene and totally unobtrusive. In all of this it personifies the man.

As the team nears the end of its workout the man begins to stretch with them. While doing some of the more difficult calistenics, he grimaces and shows his teeth. He is stiff, too. Finally, the warm up ends. The man brings himself to his feet and wanders into the center of the circle. He claps his hands once, quickly. He looks around himself and begins to describe the running work-out for that day. In case you didn't know, he is Joseph E. Cantillon, Joe to you. He is coach of the High school cross country team.

The stereotype image of a high school is that a short, energetic man, with a crew-cut, a whistle and a grey sweatshirt with the word "coach" lettered across the front, (so you don't mistake him for one of the players).

Cantillon does not even remotely resemble this. That, in itself, is not surprising, for there are very few human beings alive today who actually do. All stereotypes aside however, Cantillon just does not look like the average coach.

More significantly, he does not think like the average coach. If we allow ourselves to distill the philosophies of the entire Communist World into "Marxism," then I feel justified in calling the coaching philosophies of the so-called average coaches, "Post-Vince Lombardism." They all preach the hallowed Nuclear Energy Facts.

Pilgrim 1 has best month.

This past June Boston Edison's nuclear power plant in Plymouth was in service 100% of the time, producing 97% of it's maximum output and providing 50% of customer energy requirements. July and August were only slightly below June with 85% and 90% of maximum output respectively.

Pilgrim 1 saves nearly 2 million barrels of oil.

During the second quarter of 1978, Pilgrim 1 generated over 1 billion kilowatthours of electricity (over 41% of Edison's total generation) while it saved the burning of nearly 2 million barrels of oil.

Pilgrim 1 results in $16 million in fuel adjustment savings.

As a result of Pilgrim 1's excellent service record during the second quarter of 1978, fuel savings (which reduce customers' fuel adjustment charges) totaled 16 million for Edison customers.

BELLINO'S

Stop in and see us this fall.

What could be more enjoyable than celebrating a football victory at Bellino's. We are bigger and better than last year and would love to have you stop in!!! See you soon.

Jimmy Oliver, left, and Jan Franck go up to head ball in practice session. David Guthrie is in background. Sachems took on Melrose Tuesday and won, 5-1 to start the season. They come up against Watertown this afternoon (away).

No guts, no glory, no water at school football tryouts

By BILL HART

It's Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 6, the Winchester varsity football team is scrimmaging Framingham North at home. In the backfield is the head coach of the Sachems, Manny Marshall, barking out orders of encouragement and exaltation to his 11 defensive players. He's dressed in the traditional black and red school colors — black shorts and a red t-shirt, with the words, No Guts - No Glory, imprinted on his shirt.

On the sidelines, the tri-captains of the 1978 varsity football team, Tom Murray, Sam Bellino, and John Shattuck, are panting for water. At this point of their young lives they are not looking for glory but for someone to open the locker room so that the water boy could quench their thirst with a simple glass of water.

The affable Mr. P., the "Lucy-appointed" psychiatrist and trainer for the team noted the dilemma. He walked from the field to the locker room with the water boy, unlocked the door and filled the tub with that valuable commodity - water. He saved the afternoon and the near arid extra dry thirst of the first string.

Marshall was appointed head coach to the Winchester varsity football team 11 years ago. In 1968 and 1969 he won the Middlesex League title and in 1971 his boys captured, in his words, "the mythical state championship." That was the year Bob Wolfe played halfback and ran off more yards than Betsy Ross did when she was sewing the first American flag.

Manny sports a 50's crew cut and talks in short, one-syllable words. He knows his football and the strengths and weaknesses of his athletes. Let's say a "Billy Martin" is in charge out there on the field.

On Marshall's eleven, there are boys who demonstrated outstanding offensive and defensive plays during this scrimmage. Bill Rogers, a junior, was in a serious accident a year ago. Rogers, the bicyclist, was hit by a car, and many thought he would never walk again, much less run again.

However, on Wednesday, Sept. 6, a year later, this young man ran through the defense of Framingham North like it was tissue paper. This is a boy who knows the meaning of the word guts.

There are the two Bellino boys, one is a halfback, the other a guard. There is Bill O'Neill, a quarterback with a quick arm and fast mind. There is Dave Guarnaccia and Steve Criscione. There is Scott Farrar who can run the hundred in 10.2. This is a solid team of returning tough juniors and seniors who are hungry for a 1978 title.

Manny Marshall has a great opportunity to capture the Middlesex League championship this season. Many veterans returned to the team. The depth of Marshall's team is ex (excellent). The boys seem to be in super shape. The spirit of the boys is outstanding as long as the water is plentiful.

Boston University is not too far off for the Class "B" championship game. However, we all know the BIG game. That's the one that will prove to Manny Marshall and his black and red Sachems - no guts, no glory.

50 compete in swim club tourney

The Winchester Swim Club held its' annual junior tennis tournament recently, with more than 50 local young tennis enthusiasts participating.

Winner in the girls' singles, 14 and under, was Susan Ferry, defeating Mary Baratta, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3. Winner in the girls' singles 17 and under group was Marissa Gulino, defeating Delaine Hudson, 6-0, 6-3.

Susan Ferry and Diane Intravia teamed up to defeat Erica Gulino and Kathy Marble in the girls' doubles 14 and under group with scores of 7-5, 6-3. Marissa and Carla Gulino lost to Delaine Hudson and Christine Anderson, 6-1, 6-0.

In the boys' matches, Billy Ferry defeated Mark Herlihy 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, in 14 and under singles. Boys' doubles matches went to Billy Ferry and Brian Berkley defeating Steven Rothmann and David Raucci, 6-4, 6-3.

Trails workshops on nature

Winchester Trails is offering two workshops on fun with na5ure, indoors and out, to which all interested citizens are invited.

The first, on fall flowers, seeds, and pond life, will be held on Wednesday at 9 a.m. at the Girl Scout Cabin on South Border rd.

The second will feature ferns, mushrooms, lichens and rocks, and will be held the following Wednesday, Sept. 27 at 9 a.m. also at the Girl Scout Cabin.

These workshops will emphasize a "hands on" experience. Many specimens will be available to look at, and some illustrative slides will be shown. Fall colors and what makes them happen will be explored, and different kinds of seeds and their methods of dispersal will be observed.

Little wiggly things from the pond will be in jars, and later you can learn how to catch them yourself. Trails volunteers Betty Vanderbilt and Mary Jane Grasty are the teachers. Call either of them for more information.

This is the first of many events which will highlight the 10th year of Winchester Trails. Already the guides are preparing for the school children's walks, which will be conducted at Smith and Long Pond trails during the month of October.

Blood pressure clinic Saturday

With the summer vacation season over, the Winchester Chapter of American Red Cross is expecting a full attendance at the September Blood Pressure Clinic this coming Saturday.

The clinic is held as a public service at the Chapter House, 39 Church st., from 10 a.m. to noon. No appointment is necessary.

Nurses Kathleen Kirkpatrick and Anne Watson will be in attendance.

Dog show at Mall runs to Saturday

More than 60 breeds of dogs will be represented in the Concord Dog Training Club annual show being held this week, through Sept. 16, at the Burlington Mall.

Breed parades, followed by obedience demonstrations, will take place each day at 1 and 7 p.m. (Saturday at 2 aand 6 p.m.). Two special breed handling demonstrations will be presented by the club's breed handling trainer, Ms. Margot Dwyer, on Thursday at 2 p.m. and Saturday at 3 p.m.

Columbus team champions

After making it to the finals of the recreation department's Division B softball league championships, the Christopher Columbus Club team showed up at the right time and won - by default. It marked the first time the club has won the championship since coming into the league.

Unfortunately for Burns Realty, the other finalists, many of the team members had to go back to college before the finals rolled around, so the team was unable to compete.

Springboard diving

The North Suburban YMCA offers a movement exploration springboard diving course. Divers will learn correct approach, front dive, back dive, half-twist dive, inward dive, reverse dive, and forward and backward somersault.

Students should have already passed YMCA Minnow or Red Cross advanced beginner levels. Registration begins Sunday, Sept 17, from 1:30-4 p.m.

Class runs once a week for eight weeks. For further information, contact Cathy McManamon at 935-3270.

Peter Mills wins N-10 Dillon Cup

Accumulating a total score of 3.50, Peter Mills 13, took first place in the annual N-10 Dillon Cup Series held at the Winchester Boat Club over Labor Day weekend.

Peter, son of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Mills of 11 Rangeley Ridge, recorded finishes of 1-2-1 in the three-race, two-day series held on the Upper Mystic Lake. A total of 14 turnabouts competed in the event, which had no age restriction.

Other WBC sailors providing stiff competition for the winner were: Paul Williamson, 7.00 points; Chris Livingstone 13.00 points; Billy Brady 16.00 points; Dick Williamson 21.00 points; Beth Abate 26.00 points; Sean O'Connor 28.00 points; Debbie Cahill 29.00 points; Carolyn Baumann 30.00 points and Dick Young 33.00 points.

Physical fitness, co-ed volleyball at Lincoln School

The Winchester Recreation Department will be sponsoring women's physical fitness and co-ed volleyball starting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln School.

Physical fitness will run from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m.; co-ed volleyball will run from 8:30 - 10 p.m. This program is for adults only.

Soccer club A's change in field

There will be a change in the field assignment for the Winchester Soccer Club's boys' A division (boys born in 1963-4): They will play all their games at Ginn Field starting Saturday, instead of at the high school field as originally scheduled.

Opening day ran very smoothly under the leadership of Bill Donnelan, Jim Earlam, and Delip Bokil, re-ports club president John H. Driscoll. Driscoll said there are 1008 soccer players, 99 coaches, and 21 referees participating in the fall youth soccer program.

Hockey applications now available

Applications for the St. Eulalia Youth Hockey program for boys aged 6-19 are now being taken. In addition, tryouts for the St. Eulalia CYO Midget Hockey team will soon be held. Details are as follows:

CYO & YOUTH HOCKEY

The program for boys aged 6-19 runs 20 weeks from October to March and will be conducted as follows:

A five-week clinic designed to get th3 boys into shape to play hockey and to help prevent unnecessary injuries will first be held. The boys are also taught skating and hockey skills; at the same time, they are being evaluated for league competition. The valuations are used to help set up teams for a balanced league.

A 15-game schedule will make up phase two of the program. All boys skate equal shifts, because the line shifts are timed. Each boy is assigned to a specific line which was determined by his ability as noted in the clinic.

Applications and the required fee should be turned in on or before Sept. 29 to David Madigan, 30 Lockeland rd., 729-8654. Openings are limited, as only the first 68 boys can be accepted in each division.

Midget team

Any boys interested in trying out for the CYO Midget team should send their application and fee to David Madigan, 30 Lockeland rd., on or before Sept. 30. Applicants will be notified later of the time and place for tryouts. Eligibility rules are as follows:

--A player must not have played for any varsity high school team last season, or competed in any part of a high school league game.

--A player must be in attendance at an accredited school and not have received his high school diploma or equivalent to date.

--A player must not have reached his 20th birthday before Dec. 31, 1978.

--If a player makes a varsity high school team this year, that's ok.

Any boy who is selected for the three tryouts and wants to play for and practice with the team will be expeted to pay a fee covering expenses for the season, consisting of tuition and practices. All league games are played at McHugh Forum under CYO rules. For further information, call Fr. Donnelly, 729-8220; Director Dave Madigan, 729-8654, or Coach Peters, 665-3039.

The group welcomed Floy and Dirck Stryker back from California.

The high men's game went to Guy Pollino, 187; women's high singles wen to Jean Bradley, 171; the high series went to Guy Pollino, 506 and Jean Bradley, 489.

After bowling, hosts were Al and Louise Hart.

★ Cantillon

virtues of hardwork, clean living and teamwork. They all mean well and they all sound suspiciously alike.

It is true that Cantillon is not diametrically opposed to the above-mentioned virtues. In fact, he favors their propagation in his team. But Cantillon is a thinking man and not nearly so vehement or blunt in his tutelage. Where one of his colleagues might use assorted brow beatings and impromptu pep talks to accomplish this goal, Cantillon would use basic psychology or gentle persuasion. He does not scream at his runners to move faster, he explains to them why they should want to move faster. Sometimes they move, sometimes they do not. Those who move do so because they have been talked into it by Cantillon. If they do not already know the technique of moving themselves, they will soon learn it from him. When they are old and it is hard to get up in the morning, they will move simply because they know how to talk themselves into it.

Like everyone else, Cantillon has his critics. If you listen to them they will tell you that he does not work the team hard enough, he isn't as forceful as he should be, he just doesn't motivate the kids. Grudgingly, they will admit that when Cantillon took over as coach of the team, Winchester Cross Country was the longest running bad joke in Middlesex League history. True, they will say, he has had three straight winning seasons. No League championships though, just common winning seasons. That is what they will tell you if you listen. The critics say that Cantillon's winning seasons to refute this claim, and there is the impressive list of runners he has coached at Winchester: Jan Oehm, the New England champion; Charles Larkin, the state champ in the quarter-mile; Andy Wilsak, league champion and all-star. There is little mediocrity in that group and there is little mediocrity in their coach

Church to sponsor course for hard of hearing

The First Congregational Church is interested in sponsoring a sign language course with those in the Winchester community with impaired hearing. The coure would be open to those who are deaf, those whose hearing abilities have diminished, and those who wish to be able to communicate more effectively with friends and relatives who have impaired hearing.

The course would be taught by a teacher approved by the Speech and Hearing Foundation of Massachusetts Inc. The sign language course would require two hours of class time per week for 10 weeks. For those who find it difficult to pay any or all of the fee, the First Congregational Church has funds available to assist those interested in taking the course.

The number of people in each class will be limited to 10. The church is very much interested in identifying those in the Winchester community who have interest in taking such a course. If one has impaired hearing, or knows of someone who does, or simply wishes to learn sign language, please call the Church (729-9180), Alan Baughcum (646-3833), or Mary Gay Deskin (729-6962).

The course is open to the entire Winchester community. It is not necessary that one be a member of the First Congregational Church, or of any church. The only requirement is a desire to learn sign language. If there is sufficient interest in the community, the course will be offered in the fall.

Scuba course at Arlington Boys Club

A comprehensive basic scuba diving course leading to national certification will be offered at the Arlington Boys' Club Sunday evenings from 6:30-9:30 p.m. starting this Sunday.

The course is open to all residents from any community, 14 years of age and older who are good swimmers and who are in good physical condition. A 300 yard non-stop swim test will be given the first evening of the course.

Covered in the program are diving safety skills, use of scuba gear, selection and care of scuba equipment, orientation to the diving environment, prevention of diving diseases, scuba watermanship and local diving activities. The program is taught by experienced divers certified to instruct by the National Association of Underwater Instructors.

Registrations for the program are being accpeted now and up through the first night of class. A written descriptive information sheet on the scuba course is available by calling the boys' club at 648-1617.

Burlington Mall fair for charity

Space is still available for the Burlington Village Mall Charity Fair scheduled for Sept. 29 and 30.

The fair provides an opportunity to make money for local, regional and national, health, charity and social organizations.

If interested, call or write the Burlington Village Mall, 272-5260.

YMCA announces new program

The North Suburban YMCA has just announced that a new special exercise program designed for people who suffer back pain will begin shortly at the local Y.

Studies show that about 80 percent of back pain is attributed to a combination of muscle weakness, stress and tension. Many people who have taken the exercise program in other YMCA's around the country, have witnessed remarkable results.

60 donate blood at Winchester Hospital

"The successful visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to the Winchester Hospital late in August proves one fact," said Walter Armstrong, Winchester Red Cross Blood chairman, "no one knows the value of the Red Cross's continuing efforts to guarantee an adequate supply of blood and blood derivatives better than those associated with a hospital."

The donors who presented themselves for "the gift of life-saving blood" numbered 79, with 60 donations accepted.

Acting for the hospital staff in the recruitment of volunteers and the staffing of the bloodmobile visit were John Burgoyne and Helen Abbott.

Those who volunteered to donate include:

Accardi, Josephine, Amadeo, Diane L., Bailey, Claire, Barclay, Lorraine A., Bennett, Rogene G., Bertolami, Carol M., Bowin, Lynn A., Boyle, Joan A., Breeden, Claire A., Brown, Walter J., Buckley, Barbara M., Callan, John C., Caslin, Mary E., Clinton, Genevieve A., Coccoluto, Annette;

Middlesex Community registration still open

There is still time to register for courses at Middlesex Community College, Division of Continuing Education and Division of Community Services, fall program.

Classes begin the week of Sept. 18 and you may register daily from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Continuing Education office at the Marist Campus, or each evening during the first week prior to the start of classes at Bedford, Acton, Arlington, Dracut, Minuteman Regional Vocational-Technical High School, Wilmington and Woburn.

A Continuing Education person will also be available to complete registration prior to the start of class (Sept. 18, 19, 20, 21, 22) each morning 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. at the Kennedy School of Religion.

For a complete list of all the continuing education and community services courses come to the continuing education office, Middlesex Community College, Marist Campus, Springs road, Bedford or call 275-8910, ext. 240.

Lexington NOW meeting Monday

A public demonstration of consciousness raising will be the topic for the first meeting of the year of the Lexington area chapter of NOW, Monday evening at 8 at the Methodist Church, 2600 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington. It will be preceeded by a coffee hour at 7:30 p.m.

In the consciousness raising (CR) program, small groups of women meet for 10 weely sessions with trained leaders to discuss, in a non-challenging format, what women have in common.

During the meeting Monday, the basic philosophy and general rules of CR will be explained by Lorraine Cogan, coordinator of the CR task force, after which, all will participate in a mini-demonstration of an introductory CR meeting. The purpose of this meeting is to provide participants with enough experience to determine whether they wish to sign up for a 10 week session beginning immediately.

Since CR is not a class, not a therapy session, nor a problem solving group, no special education or previous experience are needed. All women from all walks of life are welcome to come to the meeting and to join a CR group, whether or not they are members of NOW.

To defray expenses, a minimal donation will be accepted at the door.

Orientation days Sept. 22-3 at WORC

The Widening Opportunity Research Center (WORC), a Division of Community Services program at Middlesex Community College, will be having orientation days on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 22 and 23, from 10 a.m.-noon. At 10 a.m. there will be a brief overview of all the exciting new programs and services that will begin this fall.

Women and men who want to learn about the programs and services offered by Community Services are invited to attend either one of these two orientation days.

For directions to the Marist Campus, call 275-8910, Ext. 291.

Georgian Secretary
with Swan Neck Pediment

A Georgian design secretary, the swan neck pediment intricately pierced in the manner of the original with hand set English crown glass and matched drawer fronts of mahogany swirl veneer framed by satinwood cross banding; an 18th Century Regency chair with faux bamboo turnings; and an oriental design cocktail table with a glass top surrounded by a cast brass rim. All typify the attention to detail that is evident throughout the entire Paine Collector's Edition.

4 • Cover Story/Where The Learning Is Easy And Fun
Education may have been a childhood trauma — but it needn't be now. At the Boston and Cambridge Centers of Adult Education, the emphasis is on low-stress learning. So forget about the pressures of the classroom and enjoy. From whale watching to horseback riding to the marvels of marzipan, there's a course (over 700 of them, in total) for every taste. by Maggie Hall

7 • Kids' Trips/Things To Do With Toddlers
While the big kids are in school, why not share a nature outing with the very little ones? A variety of places in MetroBoston offer them especially for adult/child teams. Besides, preschoolers can make very wonderful and intelligent companions. by Harriet Webster

8 • Food/Tearooms And Teppan
At Restaurant Genji in Boston, you'll be greeted by the unflagging smile of a real Japanese hostess. And that's just the start of a great meal out. Whether you dine downstairs in the tearoom, or head upstairs of flashing knives and Teppan cookery, you're in for food with a delicious difference. by Steven Raichlen

11 • Local Talent/Ray Paul And Power Pop
Ray Paul bears a striking resemblance to Paul McCartney. He's also got a firm hold on what he calls "power pop" — tight, bouncy music like that of the early Beatles. Along with his group, RPM, he's an impressive addition to the local music scene. by Michael Howell

12 • Movies/The Inheritance
One of the latest movies out features lots of disagreeable people with money on their minds. It's supposed to be serious — but it's not. by Maggie Hall

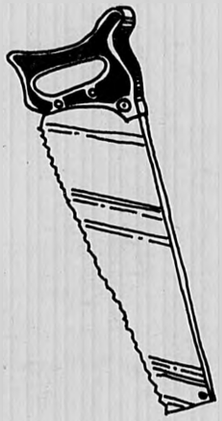
The Boston And Cambridge Centers For

Where The Learning Is Easy And Fun

Illustrations by Mark Fisher

The single most common motivation for taking a course at a Center for Adult Education is: Love for a specific subject.



By Maggie Hall

Have you ever had one of those nightmares in which you find yourself back at school, and you have to take an exam in a course you're perfectly sure you didn't register for, and no amount of wheedling will get you out of it, and to make matters worse, after all your last-ditch studying, you can't find the room where they are giving the exam, and you run all over campus, and your legs feel like lead, and you're late, and when finally, mercifully, you wake up, you're afraid to go back to sleep in case you've failed the damn course, and you spend what is left of an uneasy night reading old TV Guides?

Apparently, it is a very common or garden sort of dream, and if it is any consolation to you, it happens all the time to people who are bright and ambitious. Dreams like this seem to stem from the childhood trauma that is called education. Through high school, and often through college, education usually takes the form of someone tall and authoritarian standing in front of a room full of people, usually shorter, asking questions and laying down the law. It isn't necessarily a bad system, mind you, and it is pretty effective, but it can be traumatic.

One of the many rewards of maturity, however, is that it is possible to go to school and learn something, not because you have to, but because you want to, and without any trauma, however benevolent. In Boston and Cambridge, the Centers for Adult Education offer courses conducted in what they describe as "non-threatening environments." These may take the form of roundtable discussions, group projects, or class jaunts to restaurants and nightclubs.

Learning For Fun

There are no exams, no pressures. You pays your money and you takes your class. Greg Barattini, Assistant Staff Director at the Boston Center, says that courses there are "emphatically not degree-oriented." At the Cambridge Center, 15 courses are offered with an option for credit, by arrangement with the Massachusetts College of Art, most of which are in studio art and music. Grades for these courses are on a pass-fail basis: the distressing "B minus-C plus" syndrome is a thing of the past. The same courses, it should be noted, are also available to those who do not want or need college credit.

Barattini and his counterpart at the Cambridge Center, Assistant

Director James Smith, estimate that a good 80 or 85 percent of their students have some college experience, although not necessarily a degree, but the Centers are by no means restricted to any group. In any given class, the students might have absolutely nothing in common with each other, except a shared interest in the subject of the course. Barattini and Smith agree that the single most common motivation for taking a course at a Center for Adult Education is: Love, for a specific subject, or for the abstract concept of Learning.

The Cambridge Center for Adult Education has its offices and classrooms at 42 Brattle Street, in a house built for William Brattle in the first third of the 18th century, and in the Dexter Pratt House (1827), at 56 Brattle, also called the Blacksmith House for its association with the "village smithy" of the Longfellow poem. The Cambridge Center grew out of the Cambridge Social Union, an organization founded in 1876 to provide young adults with cultural opportunities and library services. The Brattle House was purchased by the Union in the Nineties, and in 1938 became the headquarters of the Center. This year, then, marks the 40th anniversary of leisure-time continuing cultural education at the Cambridge Center.

The Boston Center was founded in 1933 by Dorothy Hewitt, a local pioneer in adult education, and has been in its present quarters at 5 Commonwealth Avenue since 1949. The Commonwealth Avenue house was built in 1904 and is a beauty, a perfect setting for low-stress learning. Walter Baylies built it, on the site of an earlier Lowell house, and in 1914 added a ballroom for his daughter's coming-out party. The ballroom, plastered and mirrored, with scintillating chandeliers, is now the classroom for exercise and dance courses, and is the focus of the current fundraising campaign: repairs have to be made to the copper roof, and improvements of this nature are not provided for in the Center's half-million dollar annual operating budget. As in Cambridge, most expenses are met from the course fees, with a small percent of corporate and private donations.

Speaking of money, tuitions for courses at both Centers seem reasonable. At the Cambridge Center, an average course with 10 one-hour classes costs $36. At the Boston Center, fees range from $2 for a course in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR), to $75 for Basic Aviation Ground School, with most classes falling in the $35 to $42 range. Textbooks and materials for art classes are usually extra. Limited scholarships are granted, based on need and availability.

Over 700 Courses.
Together, the two Centers list about 700 courses in their catalogues, with fewer repeats than you might expect. Since the two Centers are not related, each has its own style and atmosphere, and even within a Center, there can be a lot of change in a course, from term to term, depending on the make-up of the students involved. At the Boston Center, the most popular course lately has been "Whale Watch," an on-the-water lecture-demonstration timed to coincide with the annual whale migrations in New England waters. In Cambridge, the run-away favorite in the past few terms has been "Disco Dancing," although it is too early to say whether this is a short-lived phenomenon or a permanent craze.

There is always, at both Centers, a good supply of and demand for cooking classes of all sorts, and it is possible to explore, culinarily speaking, most of the civilized world. Some are full-fledged, full-term courses, like those in Chinese or French cooking; some are mini-courses, like a three-week "Great American Holiday Dinner," which is conducted by Odette Bery, owner of Another Season restaurant; some are one-shot deals, like the two-hour seminar "Marvelous Marzipan" offered at the Boston Center. (The Cambridge Center also has a "Marzipan Workshop," which devotes itself to the stuff that dreams are made of.)

Foreign languages are offered on beginning and conversational levels, not just the standards — French, Italian, German, and Spanish — but others, more recherche: Swedish, Swahili, Yiddish. The Boston Center offers a number of career or business oriented courses in such topics as real estate, opening a restaurant and taxes. There is no course on death, which suggests that of the two immutables, the one with a financial hook sparks the most active interest. Also at the Boston Center, courses on Boston: walking tours, architectural surveys, and local history.

The Cambridge Center, being in Cambridge, combines the strictly academic with meta- and para-academic courses. Native American Spiritual Healing, witchcraft, Cambridge and Boston after dark, a chocolate orgy . . . all of these co-exist with courses in pure mathematics and Middle Egyptian Grammar.

And then there is art. The experienced or would-be weaver, painter, potter or poet can find a niche at either Center. Both have kilns and studios. Tools and facilities are also available for hands-on crafts and shop-work from jewelry to automobile mechanics.

If sports or recreation are your cup of Gator Ade, you can jog, canoe, play tennis or squash, brush up on karate or tai chi. Some active sports classes are conducted at local gyms, colleges, and riding stables. A wide variety of more passive activities, like yoga and massage, are held on the Centers' premises.

Some of the teachers (at the Boston Center they are called "leaders," to defuse any residual trauma) are actively recruited for specific courses, and some are chosen from wide pools of applicants, from all over the country. Some are professional teachers, some are graduate students, business people, or workers in the field they are teaching, or leading.

There is no way to choose between the two Centers except to get ahold of the catalogues and find which offers a class that intrigues you at a time that is right for you. Both have daytime, lunch-hour, and evening courses. The range of courses and times is so broad that if you can't find, or can't get a place in, a course at, say, the Cambridge Center, it is well worth your time to try the Boston Center, and vice versa, because one place or another you are almost sure to find something that will send you back to school with a smile on your lips and a song in your heart.

If You Want To Take A Course. . . .
At the Boston Center, courses begin the last week in September, and registrations are taken at any time prior to that. Write, call or go in person to the Boston Center for Adult Education, 5 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, 02116. The number is 267-4430.
The Cambridge Center is holding an introductory Open House on Saturday, September 16, at the Brattle House, from 10 am to 5 pm. There will be mini-courses and demonstrations. You can register for courses by mail and, after September 20, in person. The fall term begins on September 25. Write, call, or go in person to the Cambridge Center for Adult Education, 42 Brattle Street, Cambridge 02138. The number is 547-6789.

If You Want A Degree . . .
The Boston and Cambridge Centers for Adult Education are, as noted, designed specifically to be non-degree-oriented. If you are interested in other types of classes, for diploma, degree or certification in a number of fields, you should know about the Educational Exchange of Greater Boston, a clearinghouse for educational opportunities in most of eastern Massachusetts. The Exchange publishes a catalogue (Educational Opportunities of Greater Boston, $5.95) which lists classes available, by subject matter, and gives a brief description of the more than 200 schools, colleges, academies, and institutes in Metro Boston which offer courses for adults. The Exchange is open from nine to five on weekdays. Write, call or go in person to the Educational Exchange of Greater Boston, 17 Dunster Street (third floor), Cambridge 02138. The number is 876-3080.

Kids' Trips | Things To Do With Toddlers

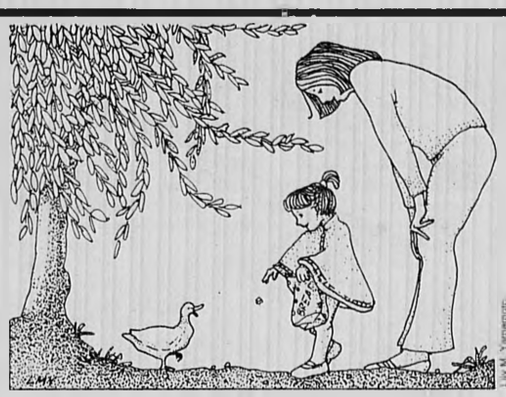
Togetherness doesn't mean that you and your pre-schooler have to sit home each day, boring one another to tears.

By Harriet Webster

Now that your big kids have traipsed off to school, what are you going to do with the younger set? Pre-schoolers can drive their parents bananas. They can also prove themselves delightful and intelligent companions. If you have chosen to keep your pre-schooler at home this year rather than opting for nursery school, you may well be one of the growing number of parents who feel that little kids and moms and dads just naturally belong together. But togetherness doesn't have to mean that you and your young one sit home each day, boring each other to tears. There are several fine institutions and organizations in MetroBoston that stand ready to encourage togetherness, through some fascinating programs designed with the child-parent (or favorite adult) team in mind.

The Massachusetts Audubon Sanctuary on Perkins Row in Topsfield offers a nature study course just for four- and five-year-olds accompanied by a parent or grown-up friend. Each course is limited to eight pairs and consists of six meetings. Participants explore the sanctuary grounds under the guidance of a naturalist, observing the changes in plant and animal life that signal the coming of fall. Seeds are gathered, animal homes examined and subsequent discussion centers on the adaptations animals and plants make in order to survive the cold weather seasons. The course begins on Thursday, September 21, with sessions from 10 to 11 am and 1 to 2 pm. The fee is $12 for members and $18 for non-members. This outdoor education class is one of the sanctuary's most popular offerings and immediate registration is strongly advised. Call 887-2241.

The Elbanobscot Education Center in Sudbury offers a similar program for four- and five-year-olds, appropriately titled You and Your Child. Parents and kids wander the extensive grounds together for clues showing the preparations plants and animals make for winter. The age-old question, "Why do the leaves change color?", is addressed. Webs and cocoons bear close examination too, as you roam the forests and fields that make this nature reserve so special. Rainy days are no problem here, since nature crafts and games indoors will keep you happily occupied. The program runs from September 15 to October 20, 9:30 to 10:30 am, meeting once a week for six sessions. The fee is $18 to $20 for a parent-child pair and reservations may be made by calling 443-9931. Remember, the course begins tomorrow.



If your inclinations lean to art rather than nature, Boston's Museum of Fine Arts has a double treat in store. Child-parent teams are the rule at Art for a Start, which provides a general introduction to the MFA collections. Each session begins with a walk through one of the museum's galleries. The walk is then supplemented by hands-on experience in painting, sculpture, printing, collage and fabric art. The second part of the double bill is called Go Van Gogh, and the format is similar, except that the concentration is on paintings. Each session starts with a gallery tour to view the works of Van Gogh and other masters. Then it's back to the classroom for stories, music and body movement exercises designed to illuminate the world and feelings of the great masters.

Both of the MFA programs last six sessions, with sections held on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Children three to five years old are welcome to attend; accompanied by a parent, of course. The charge is $36 per pair, $30 for museum members. Although Art for a Start doesn't begin until October 25, and Go Van Gogh until early December, wise parents will register straight away. These classes are very popular and almost always fill up early. For further information and a pre-school brochure, call 267-9300, extension 290.

If you are looking for a less structured type of togetherness, try the pre-school story hours at the Boston Public Library Children's Room. These once-a-week events begin Tuesday, October 10 at 10 am. The 35 minute sessions are open to three to five year olds, and they incorporate story telling with body movement exercises like finger plays or acting out. No fee here, and no need to reserve ahead (except for groups). Parents can attend the session or browse in the library, returning after half an hour to help their child select books to take home. A cosy way to pass a morning. More information at 536-5400.

As you read over our suggestions for pleasant parent-child activities, remember also to explore sources in your own community. Many local libraries, museums and nature preserves offer appropriate programs close to home. If you are interested in athletic togetherness, be sure to check into the programs offered by your local YMCA or YWCA.

Food | Tearooms And Teppan

Either upstairs or downstairs at Genji, you rest assured of receiving a top-notch Japanese meal.

By Steven Raichlen

"Konbanwa," whispered our waitress and with a small bow ushered us into a paneled chamber. A resplendent ceremonial robe bedecked the back wall; the vast steel cooking table stretched before us. The kimonaed woman shuffled away and returned with a wicker tray of moist face towels. She wore the unflagging smile of a genuine Japanese hostess. Unfortunately, she spoke virtually no English. And that's how our evening began at Genji, one of Boston's top Japanese restaurants, and a formidable restaurant by any measure.

Named for a legendary prince and wooer of damsels, the Restaurant Genji combines two very ancient dining traditions: Teppan dinners and the Japanese tea room. Teppan dining features the Benihana-style chef who cooks at your table. Tea room dining favors the precious, food-filled lacquerware boxes served by demure Japanese hostesses.

First, some obvious differences between the two. In the tea room downstairs, you sit at your own booth, a tasteful bamboo-screened affair. The preparation and service of the meal remain relatively unobstrusive, allowing you to concentrate on the food and on your companions. Since it can be prepared ahead of time, the food tends to be a little more elaborate, a little more fancifully garnished.

Upstairs you dine around a communal cooking table which you share with strangers, unless you come with a party of eight. The chef dominates your attention during the course of the meal. Tappety-tap, he beats out a staccato with the massive salt and pepper shakers; swish, he spins his knife, sending shrimp aflying. There's probably no way to eat fresher food than in Genji's Teppan room; here you gobble shrimp, swordfish and steaks, all within seconds of the time they're cooked. Provided you expect the theatrics ahead of time, this can be very entertaining. But for that intimate tête-a-tête, you should descend to the tea room. Either upstairs or downstairs at Genji, you rest assured of receiving a top-notch Japanese meal.

You can start your evening with cocktails; there are some very curious drinks on the menu. I tried a Karate, a fragrant, floral, but not sweet, blend of sake and vodka. The honey-like Japanese plum wine — suggested for after dinner — also makes an unusual beverage, sort of a Japanese cream sherry.

In terms of the food, let's start in the tea room and then move upstairs. Sashimi is the most Japanese of Japanese appetizers, and in a sense it epitomizes the philosophy behind Japanese cuisine: the appreciation of foods in their natural state. The art of sashimi consists of nothing more than selecting fresh fish, slicing and serving it. But, oh, what art! The chef shapes with his cleaver, not with spicebox or sauce pan. Genji's ceramic tile of raw fish is pure artistry — like a minute mosaic or a bouquet of fragile wildflowers. The sashimi platter includes mackerel with its opalescent skin, pale slivers of bass, pearly knobs of octopus, and beef-red chunks of tuna, all incomparably fresh and uncommonly tasty. A small porcelain box of soy sauce accompanies the platter as a condiment; one adds dabs of powdered horseradish to achieve the desired hotness.

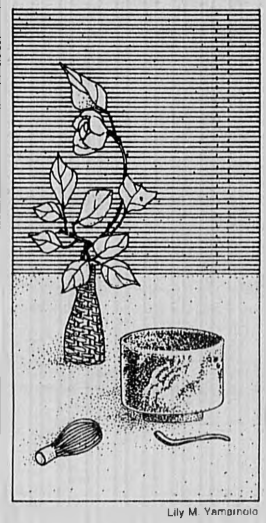
Among the many other attractions of the downstairs tea room are the special Japanese dinners on the menu. The Nabe Dinner is one. Vaguely akin to a Mongolian firepot, the Nabe Dinner consists of meats and vegetables cooked in a simmering broth. I ordered the wakadori — chicken nabe — and received a colorful platter of chicken breast, bean curd, scallions, spinach, cabbage, and carrots. A few leafy squares of seaweed give the broth extra flavor. With a deft flick of her chopsticks, the serving person plopped the Nabe ingredients into the broth in cooking order. Not quite as adeptly, I fished them out again with my chopsticks, passing them through a pungent sauce of soy and vinegar and into my mouth — as moist, fresh and delicious as only something perfectly simple can be. A small complaint: the hot plate on which the broth simmered looked as though it had come from a second-hand hardware shop. It was not in keeping with Genji's elegant atmosphere.

Another such special dinner is the Genji Kappo, served in Bento lacquerware. The latter is a square lacquerware box divided into perhaps a dozen compartments. Each compartment holds a Japanese delicacy. Some contain bite-sized comestibles, like one marinated scallop topped with grated peanut or a spirally rice roll with seaweed, to be savored in a single bite. The larger compartments hold a refreshing vegetable or salad and the main course of the dinner — tempura, teriyaki, sashimi, or katsu (Japanese cutlet). We tried the shrimp tempura — battered and deep-fried shrimp; the shrimp were very fresh but perhaps a little oily. The real joy of the Bento box, anyway, is discovering all the dainty delectables tucked away in its maze-like compartments.

Both the Nabe and Kappo dinners come with a rich miso (dark soy sauce) soup, an appetizer of tiny beef kebabs, and tasty, but not too spicy, ginger ice cream for dessert.

The Teppan dinner upstairs begins with a delicate chicken soup, skimmed of every last drop of fat. Green salad comes next, topped with a spicy soy, catsup and horseradish dressing. It's a pleasure to taste an innovative salad dressing these days! Then in strides the chef, and the show begins.

The chef lays the components of your dinner — a brilliant panoply of vegetables plus your choice of steak, chicken, scallops, swordfish, or ise-ebi (jumbo shrimp) — upon the cooking surface like a deck of gaudy playing cards. The basic ingredients for the saute remain the same: salt, pepper, soy sauce and butter. For variety, fish and seafood are embellished with lemon; chicken, sprinkled with sesame seeds; shrimp, flambeed dramatically with brandy. Again, it's the freshness of the ingredients, the simple straightforward manner in which they're cooked that makes the meal. By the way, you'd do well to have each person in your party order something different. That way the chef can slide a little of everything onto your sturdy stoneware plate for sampling. The Teppan dinner comes with the same agreeable ginger ice cream. For a buck more you can get a regal platter of seasonal fruits.



Lily M. Yamamoto

The service at Genji is prompt and always well-meaning, though occasionally language can be a barrier. In all fairness, most of the help speak passable English, but our waitress had just arrived from Japan. The 327 Newbury Street facade stands emblazoned with purple banners to guide you there. For some reason, the tea room draws a much larger crowd during the week; the Teppan dining rooms appeal to a weekend crowd.

Notes:

Genji is open for lunch at 11:30 Monday through Saturday; for dinner, 5:30 to 10:30 Monday through Thursday, until 11 pm Friday and Saturday, and from 4:30 to 10 pm on Sunday. The Nabe Dinner starts at $6.75; the Bento dinner runs from $5.75 to $9.75; and the Teppan dinners range from $6.50 to $11.50. Reservations are strongly suggested for weekend nights, and Mastercharge and American Express are accepted. The Genji telephone number is 267-5656.

Local Talent | Ray Paul And Power Pop

Paul's music, like that of the early Beatles, is tight and bouncy with a lot of drive

By Michael Howell

Imagine. In late 1969, Paul McCartney leaves The Beatles to strike out on his own. On his first record, he's a true solo, playing almost all the instruments, arranging and producing. Eventually, he gets a band together and begins his long-awaited public appearances. They play "Kansas City" and "I'm Down." They do not play "Silly Love Songs," "My Love," or "Cook of the House."

Sounds great, eh? Well, give or take a few details, that band is playing around this area these days. Only they're called Ray Paul and RPM.

Ray Paul drifted up to Boston from Cape Cod in August, 1976, attracted by the nascent local music scene. But in place of getting involved with a band immediately, he decided to spend some time writing and polishing a repertoire of songs, working out detailed arrangements for his band-to-be. And it's just as well that he didn't jump right into the scene. Unlike the exuberantly raw music that dominated that time, Paul's compositions were strongly melodic, with a rocking bottom and plenty of harmonies. It was music inspired by the early Who, Small Faces, and, yes, The Beatles. Paul dubbed it "power pop."

That's an apt term. Paul's music, like that of his influences, is tight and bouncy with a lot of drive, the stuff of classic AM rock whose time for resurgence has come. Along with his band RPM (yep, he finally got one together), Paul debuted a short time ago at Cambridge's Inn Square Men's Bar with a set that Mr. McCartney would have liked. On lead guitar & vocals, Paul was ably supported by Frank Rossano (drums), Paul Antalak (bass, vocals), Tim Long (piano, arp, organ, vocals) and Brad Codd (guitar, vocals). Their music's guileless energy and Paul's strongly Beatlesque vocals brought the spirited house to its feet, bouncing and clapping along to unknown songs that sounded like long-lost favorites. The encore, to everyone's delight, was one of McCartney's greatest shouters, "I'm Down," with a touch of "I Feel Fine" at the end. Splendid taste and convincingly done. He'll be doing the same thing this Monday at the Paradise in Boston (254-2052). Tickets are $3.50, and the double bill includes City Boy.

Ray Paul's debut single, on Euphoria Records, isn't as strong as his live sets, but it's still very appealing. "Hold It" is a slow white-soul number in the tradition of Gary Puckett. "Lady Be Mine Tonite," which has garnered considerable airplay on WBCN and Leslie Parmenter's WCOZ show, is a rockin' little record that shows off Ray's stunning impersonation of McCartney's RAM voice. A solid effort, written/arranged/produced and mostly played by RP himself.

Paul's single, along with one by Pastiche and another by Mr. Curt, represent the catalog of local power pop. All are on Euphoria Records, the label of Euphoria Studios, which is the second-largest recording studio in Revere. (Fleetwood, the people who bring you albums of the Impossible Dream '67 Red Sox and similar objets d'art, is #1.) Run by engaging entrepreneurs Howie Cook and Moss Lynch, Euphoria didn't exactly intend to be the focal point of this sort of sound — it gravitated to them. "It's just the kind of place where I feel comfortable," says Ray. "Not some studio where the engineer — who probably hates your music anyway — is grumbling behind the board."

That ambience, its proximity (I think you can get there by public transportation), and recent expansion from four to eight track capability makes Euphoria a natural candidate to be a force in local music, as an increasing number of local groups decide to put out their own discs. I mean, why hassle with New York when Revere's only 25 cents away?

Discounting six and a half years on the road in cover bands and two years establishing RPM, Ray Paul has practically breezed into the spotlight: a place where he belongs and should stay. A tape (the songs from the single plus "Story," "No One Else Can Love Me," and "So We Go (On and On)") has been completed at Euphoria to vie for a major-label record contract. Kansas City, here they come!

Notes:

Ray Paul's single is available for $1.50 from Euphoria Records, 99A Centennial Avenue, Revere 02151.

Movies | The Inheritance

This is supposed to be a serious movie, but sometimes one cannot help sniggering.

The Inheritance

Directed by Mauro Bolognini. Screenplay by Ugo Pirro and Sergio Bazzini, based on a novel by Gaetano Carlo Chelli. With Dominique Sanda, Anthony Quinn, Fabio Testi, and Luigi Proietti. At the Charles in Boston.

By Maggie Hall

The Inheritance is a costume drama about a lot of extremely disagreeable people, all of whom are related to each other, all of whom are just mad about money. Dominique Sanda won a best actress award at the Cannes Film Festival for her part as Irene, a simpering schemer with a heart of soldi and an eye for the main chance. Every time she sees a banknote she gets such a look on her face: one can almost hear her ringing up "Sale."

Irene, the daughter of a middle-class but presumably honest hardware merchant, marries Pippo Ferramonte (Luigi Proietti) after he buys her father's store. Pippo's own father, played with a good deal of paterfamilial glowering by Anthony Quinn, made his money in baking and retired. Ferramonte, senior, loathes his children, makes no bones about it, and they reciprocate the sentiment with gusto. The children all hate each other, too. Irene plots peace. Pippo has a shrewish sister and a bureaucratic brother-in-law (Adriana Asti and Paolo Bonacelli, respectively) and a ne'er-do-well brother named Mario (Fabio Testi), who becomes Irene's second conquest. Pippo turns to the bottle and the hardware business goes to the dogs. Mario's ascendancy is short-lived and it is not long before Irene abandons him for his father who, after all, has the money and is not about to leave it to his children. One is supposed to believe now that Irene's presence transforms Ferramonte, senior, from an irascible sonuvabitch into a man enjoying his second spring, but Quinn's characterization is shallow; he is really better angry.

The Inheritance is filmed with a kind of murky chiaroscuro. Some of the interior scenes have a painterly look, and the opening shots of a rainy Rome are handsome. This is supposed to be a serious move, but sometimes one cannot help sniggering: Irene gets that look in her eyes and the audience says to itself, "Here we go again". There is more plotting than plot, and the characters never get their motivations quite straight. What we need here is a little more artistry and a little less artiness.

Movies | Short Subjects

Animal House
Brought to us by the folks at the National Lampoon, Animal House is sometimes sophomoric, sometimes freshman-iacal. John Belushi, the pudgy psychopath from Saturday Night Live, is Bluto, principal animal of the worst house on campus, at war with the other frats, the college administration, and the local government. Not every slapstick moment is a scream, but most are. It's a very funny movie. With Tim Matheson and Donald Sutherland. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Chestnut Hill, Framingham, Hanover, Lawrence, Woburn, Danvers.

Bread and Chocolate
Nino Manfredi plays Nino Garafoli, introduced as a sort of vulgar klutz, a misfit in his purple shirt and perfectly awful tie. Nino is an Italian worker who, like so many of his compatriots, has left behind the land of sun and song to find his fortune in Switzerland. The dream of all these workers is to make enough money to import their wives and children, or to return home as heroes. Some live for their dream, some live on it, some lose track of reality altogether. The theme of nostalgia, the real ache for the homeland, is diluted with slapstick and satire. Manfredi has a few moments of quiet desperation: he can't seem to decide whether to be Mastroianni or Chaplin. He doesn't break our hearts, but he's a likeable guy in a likeable movie. Bread and Chocolate is sweet and filling and not, ultimately, very nourishing. With Anna Karina, John Dorelli, and Paolo Truco. Beacon Hill.

The Buddy Holly Story
Not just another nostalgia movie. Though the story line is thin and glossy, Gary Busey delivers a command performance as the Fifties' rock wizard. Not only does he look like Buddy Holly — he's got a voice and guitar work to match, and is backed by a rhythmic band of Crickets. Together, they do ample justice to Holly's classics, which are, all by themselves, worth a trip to the flick. Peabody, Charles.

The End of the World in Our Usual Bed in a Night full of Rain
A title like that could come only from Lena Wertmuller, and End of the World, to call the movie by its first third, is in fact La Wertmuller's first English language film, with Giancarlo Giannini and Candice Bergen, both as self-contradictory types entangled in love and dialectic. Nickelodeon in Boston.

The Eyes of Laura Mars
A modern, overdone murder-mystery, Eyes features Faye Dunaway as Laura Mars, a successful fashion photographer noted for her very chic and very macabre portraits. She is in telepathic communication with someone who is murdering her colleagues. To complicate matters still further, the intrepid cop in charge of the case (Tommy Lee Jones) becomes her lover. Oddly the two of them, as well as everyone else in the cast, don't seem particularly fearful — it's more as if they have stomach cramps throughout. Still, the culprit is not exposed until the very end, and the movie is never boring. Irvin Kershner directed, Jon Peters produced. Paris; Chestnut Hill, Lawrence.

Foul Play
Goldie Hawn and Chevy Chase star in this suspense comedy written and directed by Colin Higgins. Chase's famous pratfalls are limited to a tolerable few, and he and Hawn share an engaging kookieness. Hawn, who plays a librarian named Gloria Mundy (a Thurber steal), is the target of a pair of hitmen; Chase, as a police lieutenant under a cloud, assigns himself to protect her. Incidentally they find True Love. Dudley Moore, still happily beyond the fringe, and a bantam Burgess Meredith steal the show. With Billy Barty, Rachel Roberts, and members of the New York City Opera. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Circle, Framingham, Woburn, Danvers.

Grease
Entertainment and that's all; or rather, television director Randal Kleiser's idea of entertainment, the kind we've been insulted by for years. This isn't to say that the musical numbers aren't energetic, that John Travolta isn't charming, that Stockard Channing isn't proficient as the high school bad girl. But where is the heart behind the monster? And what in heaven's name is this fascination with the Fifties? Cinema 57; Brockton, Circle, Dedham, Hanover, Peabody, Natick.

Heaven Can Wait
Heaven Can Wait should have been good — but this is entirely Warren Beatty's film: he not only took the starring role (as a man who dies before his time, and comes back as someone else), but also wrote the script with Elaine May, directed the film with Buck Henry, and produced the project as well. He has overextended himself. Although Henry, James Mason, Julie Christie, and Dyan Cannon turn in fine supporting performances, the direction lacks the charm and sophistication to pull off a complex tale. Still, Heaven Can Wait has flashes of good comedy and fine action. It's close, but no heavenly encounter. Burlington, Circle, Dedham, Framingham, Hanover.

Hooper
Burt Reynolds has been kicked around before but in Hooper, his film about a team of Hollywood stunt men working on a multi-million dollar "disaster" movie, he really gets beat up. There's a lot of self-parody, humor and nifty stunts woven into this pleasantly surprising picture. Directed by Hal Needham, Hooper is aided by a good supporting cast: Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field, and Brian Keith as Sally's father. Robert Klein is cast perfectly into the role as the demanding movie director. Hooper might not be remembered by the time the Academy Awards roll around next year, but it takes its audiences for one hell of a ride. Savoy; Braintree, Brockton, Framingham, Woburn, Danvers.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest
Ken Kesey's psycho-drama of men in an insane asylum won a well-deserved Academy Award for Best Picture in 1975. It stars Jack Nicholson as a maverick trouble-maker who leads his fellow inmates to pinnacles of sanity they never dreamed possible. Louise Fletcher plays the hard-nosed nurse who challenges Nicholson's defiance every step of the way. The film has lighter moments which serve as comic relief in what is otherwise a very serious film. Allston, Galeria, Newton Academy, Brockton.

Who'll Stop the Rain
Adventures in the scag trade, circa 1971, that eerie time when everyone and everything seemed to be falling apart. Nick Nolte is a disturbed and disturbing ex-Marine in this film by Karel Reisz, based on the novel Dog Soldiers, by Robert Stone, who also, with Judith Rascoe, wrote the screenplay. With Tuesday Weld and Michael Moriarty. Gary; Hanover Mall, Danvers, Natick.

● Perhaps you already have several college credits, but your full-time job has prevented you from completing your degree. Or maybe you don't have a single credit, but you know that sooner or later – despite your job or other responsibilities – you'll want to get a college degree.

In either case, you would do well to find out how to get your degree through any one of over 50 part-time programs offered by Northeastern University.

Have you considered the advantages of Part-Time Programs at Northeastern University?

Wide Choice of Courses

Included in Northeastern's more than 50 part-time programs are some 1,400 undergraduate courses to meet your interests and objectives. Basic areas of study are as follows:

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
LAW ENFORCEMENT
LIBERAL ARTS
THERAPEUTIC RECREATION
SCIENCE
ENGINEERING

Campuses Convenient to You

To make higher education easily accessible, Northeastern offers its main campus in Boston, the suburban campus in Burlington, and eight branch academic centers in Brockton, Framingham, Marshfield, Milford, Norwood, Reading, Revere and Weymouth.

Simplified Admission

Knowing the constraints on your time, Northeastern has made admission, registration and enrollment uncomplicated. We counsel you on career objectives, minimize red tape, and in many cases we allow full credit for courses taken previously at accredited institutions, and for life experience, by examination. You may be admitted to part-time degree programs in University College and Lincoln College without making formal application. You may matriculate as a degree candidate . . . or select individual courses to meet particular needs. You may register by mail or in person at any Northeastern location. Registration dates are September 5-14. Check schedule or call for specific dates at each location. Classes begin the week of September 25.

The Distinction of a Northeastern Degree

Since its founding in 1898, Northeastern has been committed to helping working men and women attain the benefits of higher education – by offering degree programs that can be tailored to the needs of people with full- or part-time jobs.

Your degree program at Northeastern can be spread out or accelerated to meet your specific circumstances. In University College you can earn an Associate's Degree in as little as two years . . . and a Bachelor's Degree in four. A Northeastern degree is nationally recognized as a symbol of excellence in higher education. Many executives, engineers, educators and other professional leaders got their start at Northeastern University.

If you're going to invest the time, effort and money in your continuing education, do it at Northeastern where your degree will really mean something.

It's Not Too Late to Register

Late registration for some courses is available through the second week of classes. For full information and registration material, call Northeastern at:

University College (Business, Health, Law Enforcement, Liberal Arts and Therapeutic Recreation) 437-2400

Lincoln College (Engineering and Technology) 437-2500

Burlington Campus (All programs) 272-5500

or, stop by Room 102, Churchill Hall, Northeastern University, 360 Huntington Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts 02115.

ON SEPTEMBER 19TH, VOTE FOR A GOVERNOR WHO WILL HEAR YOU

Four years ago we elected a Governor who used all the right words to make all the right promises to win all the right votes.

We all remember his "lead pipe" guarantee not to raise taxes. Within ten months of his inauguration our taxes were up some $474 million. And the patronage he vowed to eliminate "lock, stock and barrel" has merely assumed another name.

And now, four years of non-accomplishment later, we are faced with the unhappy fact that Michael Dukakis talked us into a very bad deal.

We need Frank Hatch. A Governor we can believe in. A Governor who will hear us. A Governor who will do the job right.

Frank Hatch, House Republican Leader: a man whose drive and determination forced to light the $100 million Dukakis Tax Department scandal.

Frank Hatch, who has been fighting for years in the Legislature to win us property tax relief; and whose Property Tax Relief Plan will limit state and local taxes, and cut property taxes.

Frank Hatch, who triggered the investigation of the State Treasurer's Office which resulted in savings to us taxpayers of $30 million annually.

Frank Hatch. Author of the Hatch Act, pioneer wetlands conservation legislation. The man who filed the state's first "Sunset" legislation. The man who produced the law which will stabilize MBTA spending and lower that body's deficit.

This is but a sample of the many good things that Frank Hatch has done for us in his years as a Massachusetts state legislator. And they have all come about because – while the politicians have been talking to us – Frank Hatch has been hearing us.

It's important that all Republicans and Independents vote for Frank Hatch in the Massachusetts Primary, Tuesday, September 19th.

Because Frank Hatch is the Governor we deserve.

FRANK HATCH HEARS YOU

The Hatch Committee: Charles Forman, Chairman. 14 Beacon Street, Boston 02108

The new Newbury.

(A degree in two years— even two years of evenings.)

You can earn an Associate Degree in one of many, many areas here: Management, Marketing, Accounting, Hotel/Restaurant Management, the Secretarial Sciences. You can do it by attending classes as little as two nights a week, while you hold down a full time job. The reward: a better full-time career, probably; a richer, fuller life, certainly. You'll spend your time learning down-to-earth facts and practices, from highly qualified faculty. It won't cost you a fortune—if you're a veteran, or qualify for financial aid, it's even more affordable. Come in or call for full information today, and start two of the best years of your life.

Colonnade Hotel–120 Huntington Ave, Boston, 261-2800. A couple of choices: the Cafe Promenade for international food and snacks, with fashion shows and Sunday brunch, and Zachary's, formally continental. Hours vary, call for details. Both, full bar, reservations. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Copley's Restaurant–In the Copley Plaza Hotel, 138 St. James St, Boston, 267-5300. Continental favorites from more than one continent, curries rub elbows with clams Casino on the menu. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-3 pm, and 5:30 pm-midnight, Sat-Sun, 5:30-midnight, also Sun, noon-4 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Dini's Sea Grill–94 Tremont St, 227-0380. Right on the Freedom Trail, the home of the schrod. Also, sole with lobster sauce. Full bar, Buncheon Special 10 am-11 am. Hours: Daily until 10:30 pm. AE, MC.

Hermitage–955 Boylston St, Boston, 267-3652 or 247-8029. Named after the famous museum in Leningrad, the Hermitage is, appropriately, inside the Institute of Contemporary Art, but the cuisine echoes not Leningrad, but St. Petersburg: Stroganoff, Russian Eggs, smoked salmon. Fully licensed. Hours: Tues-Sat, noon-2:30; Sun-Thurs, 6-10 pm, Fri-Sat until 1; Sun brunch, noon-3. Reservations are recommended. AE, BA/V, MC.

Jason's–131 Clarendon St, Boston, 262-9000. Dining among palm trees and sensational salt-water aquariums. Seafood and continental specialties: oysters Rockefeller, veal Oscar, roast Long Island duck. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-3 pm. Dinner daily 5-midnight. AE, DC.

Seaside Restaurant and Bar–188 Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 742-8728. Intimate dining in a contemporary ambiance. Specialties include fresh seafoods, salads, sandwiches, prime sirloin, lobster, homemade desserts, choice wines. International bar on two levels. Popular and correspondingly crowded, so a reservation is a good idea. Hours: 11 am-2 am daily. AE, MC, House charge

Union Oyster House–41 Union St, Boston, 227-2750. Boston's oldest eatery, the place is aptly named: oysters and other marine life star on the menu. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11 am-9 pm, until 9:30 Fri, until 10 Sat. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

NORTH

Andover Inn–Chapel Ave, Andover, 475-5903. On the grounds of Phillips Andover Academy, but a far cry from school fare. Some of the far-flung favorites are Loempia, scampi flambe. Make sure that the pastry cart rolls past your table. On Sundays, the dinner feature is Rijstaffel, a Dutch-Indonesian buffet. Moderately priced, elegant. Full bar. Open Mon-Sat, 11:30-3, and 5-10. Sun, 10:30 am-3 pm, and 4-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Beef and Oyster House–143 Washington St, Salem, 744-4334. Beef and oysters, yes, but you needn't limit yourself to these eponymous delights, as there are other land and sea dishes to be had. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Beverly Depot–10 Park St, Beverly, 927-5402. Take the Boston and Maine to the Depot, for steaks, chops, and all the trimmings, in railroad surroundings. Moderate prices, full bar. Closed on Mons, it's open for dinner 5-10 pm, Sun-Thurs; 5-11 pm Fri-Sat. AE, MC.

Bishop's–99 Hampshire St, Lawrence, 683-7143. The standard bill of fare — roasts and steaks — is enlivened by shish kebab and Arabic appetizers: tahini, stuffed grape leaves, baba ganoosh. Open daily, 11:30 am-10 pm, Fri-Sat nights 'til 11. Full bar. No reservations are taken on Sat nights, but they are strongly advised on Wed-Fri, and Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Michael's House–26 Atlantic Ave, Marblehead, 631-1255. The house predates the restaurant by nearly two centuries. At lunch, try the quiche du jour, or the open steak sandwich. Seafood is a specialty any time. Prices are moderate. Open daily, 11:30-2, and 5:30-midnight. Full bar, wine list. AE, MC.

An Historical Dining Experience

The 1798 Fiske House
RESTAURANT

Majestically overlooking the Chelmsford Common is the Fiske House . . . admired for its architectural beauty since the 18th century, and enjoyed as a tavern in the 1800's, it was later bought by the Fiskes to become their home. The Fiske House is a registered National Historic Site, almost entirely in its original form. Today, the building remains one of the most stately houses in Chelmsford with its prominent place in the center of the entire beautiful New England Town. The area, history, and unique architecture of the building vividly express America's past.

The Fiske House invites you to relax and partake of sumptuous cuisine in the romantic atmosphere of our six eighteenth century dining rooms, each complimented by a fireplace and candlelit tables. The Fiske House is truly elegant dining for the discriminating gourmet.

Puzzle #45
Suit Yourself
By Don Rubin

If you examine a deck of playing cards carefully, you'll find that each of the court (or "picture") cards has its own personality, its own unique set of char acter traits. A good deck, for example, will even include certain distinctions in the kings' hairstyles. (The red kings' hair should curl inward; the black kings', outward. And only the king of hearts will lack a moustache.)

A few manufacturers have elected to ignore these charming conventions. But the vast majority continues to rely on the traditional designs developed by the English, who borrowed them from the French in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

We'd like you to identify the following cards based on a few descriptions. Just fill in the blanks: K/C, for king of clubs; J/D, for jack of diamonds, and so on.

Name _____
Street _____
City/Zip _____

Roger Jones

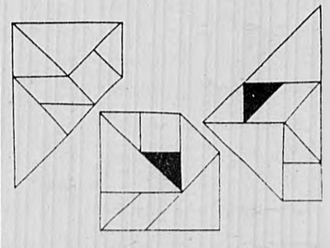
1. _____ If the so-called suicide king isn't wearing a coat trimmed with ermine, throw the cards away — your deck is absolutely worthless.
2. _____ "My God! Someone's whittled my sceptre into a chair leg." Usually has a white panel sewn into her gown near her left hand. Look for a pendant, or brooch, and a V-neckline.
3. _____ In the original French version this character had shorter sleeves, and you could see both hands. Today, his symbol of terrestrial power under the sovereignty of heaven seems to float in mid-air. He has curly hair and prefers herringbone shirts.
4. _____ The left-handed queen should be wearing a curved or slanted belt across her midriff. Her gown often has white trim.
5. _____ According to tradition, the knave with the glaive (a Welsh hook similar to a pole-axe) really shouldn't be sporting a moustache.
6. _____ And neither should Yankee Doodle. (Never. Ever.) That barber pole in his hand is actually the barley-sugar shaft of an arrow (the fletches having fallen off during the last couple of centuries). And that other item, now pathetic, was once the unofficial trademark of a deck affectionately known as "La Plume à Chapeau."
7. _____ The gentleman with the battle-axe is looking at what used to be his truncheon. The top of it, which looked like a lily, was mistaken for a feather by some card manufacturer in the 1800s.
8. _____ The English gave him a moustache and plaited his hair. The unrecognizable object in his left hand was once a pike.
9. _____ This king has been looking the other way for centuries.
10. _____ Look for the profile, the angular lapels, and the free hand.
11. _____ Generally has a narrower neckband and slightly longer hair than #12. The rectangular, often monogrammed, patch by her hand should help.
12. _____ The only one who's left.

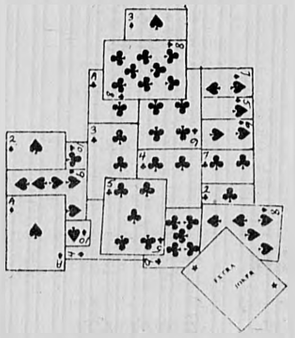
Answers to Puzzle #43
Big Deal

Evidently, the vast majority of METROGUIDE readers responding to last week's puzzle, Big Deal, are not card sharks. We received about five incorrect answers to every correct one. The first ten people who do have some card sense are: Harlan Smith, Westboro; Helen White, Hingham; Bob Keay, Beverly; Marge Clark, Quincy; Jean Doucette, Wilmington; Susan Henry, Peabody; Pam Harrison, Ipswich; David Jennings, Stoughton; Elaine Earley, Norfolk; Jim Elliot, West Peabody.

The winner of the last week's lottery is Peter Comeau of Weymouth.

We apologize for leaving out of last week's METROGUIDE the illustration for the solution to Puzzle #42 Ch'i Ch'ae Pan. Here it is now:





Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through October 26 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Halloween Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the November 9 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a tearsheet of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

ON THE RECORD

For all the people of Massachusetts, and all Americans.

Jobs for Massachusetts: No one is working harder to create new jobs in Massachusetts than Ed Brooke. He helped land the biggest private shipbuilding contract in history for General Dynamics in Quincy. He fought successfully to bring the F-18 fighter contract to General Electric in Lynn. He has maintained the important federal contracts for the Patriot Missile system held by Raytheon. He helped create 18,000 new construction jobs in Boston's Southwest Corridor Program. His skill and persistence were prime factors in keeping Fort Devens open. As the Ranking Republican on the HEW Appropriations Subcommittee, he fought to bring $140 million in public works jobs to Massachusetts—this year alone!

Business and the Economy: Senator Brooke has consistently fought for measures that would stimulate the private sector to strengthen the economy. He is a co-sponsor of the Steiger-Hansen legislation to reduce Capital Gains taxes to 25%. He is co-sponsoring legislation to help small business by increasing the surtax exemption. He is the recognized leader in the fight to lower residual fuel costs for New England industries and utility consumers—which will save well over $100 million a year in energy costs.

Defense: Ed Brooke is a leader in the fight to maintain America's military strength. He has consistently voted against unnecessary defense budget cuts. As a member of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, he has supported the Trident submarine program, new ballistic missile development, the A-10 Close Support Aircraft, the Navy's Cruise Missile program, the F-18 program, the Lance missile system, the CVN nuclear attack carrier program, and many more.

Inflation and Taxes: Ed Brooke is advocating tax cuts that would aid all American families regardless of income, and he supports the concept of Tax Indexing to give inflation relief to taxpayers. He has initiated dozens of measures to enable people on fixed incomes to better cope with inflation, including the new Social Security rule that allows recipients to earn more money on their own. The Senator has been a leader in the fight against government waste, fighting to end over a dozen "pork barrel" water projects; supporting stronger controls over federal spending; and holding to strict dollar-efficient defense spending.

Protecting the Consumer: Thanks to Ed Brooke, you now can earn interest on your checking account. It was Brooke, again, who fought for the consumers to repeal the Fair Trade laws that set artificially high prices on consumer goods. Brooke co-sponsored the "Truth in Lending" Act and amendments to it which will ensure that disclosure forms given to consumers are written in "plain English." He is also a strong supporter of airline deregulation laws that will lead to lower air fares. And it was Senator Brooke who introduced the Young Families Housing Act so young people could afford to own homes.

Helping the Disadvantaged: Ed Brooke is the conscience of the United States Senate. As the Ranking Republican on the key Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriations Subcommittee, he has played an historic role in helping people who cannot help themselves. The list of his accomplishments on behalf of the elderly, the handicapped, the poor, the minorities is far too long to list here.

five looks: stepping out this fall

These upcoming three months mark fall, filled with lots to do and places to go. So, not only have we chosen the five most stupendous autumn activities but we suggest what to wear for each occasion. Going to the theatre, discos, football games, fall foliage trips, and the circus with the kids will be even more fun if you're dressed in tune with the good times. For this issue, at least, we're saying, "Clothes make the man — the woman — and the child."

Here's where you can quit smoking by Oct. 26th. Without Cold Turkey.

Cold Turkey is a turkey. It's a nasty, inefficient way to quit. Nasty—because it makes you climb the walls. And inefficient—because it usually doesn't last. Smokenders takes a more intelligent approach. We reasoned that if people can learn how to smoke, they can learn how not to smoke. It works.

It's not cold turkey. More like warm chicken.

Come to a FREE INTRODUCTORY SESSION. And bring your cigarettes. Quitting is easy when you know how.

the football game

To look as snappy as your team on the field, we suggest you tuck into one of the new fall jackets

Come this time of year, rabid fans are given to the hyperbolic declaration that fall was invented for football. While you moderates may take a softer line, there's no denying that the game provides the quinessential autumn spectacle. Also, this should be the best season yet for our hometown boys, The New England Patriots. So far, in pre-season action, the Pats have won every bout. Plus, during that best of football months, October, the team will be playing each Sunday afternoon save one (October 15) out at Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro.

But there's more to the football experience than just the game — a whole set of manners has grown up around the unruly sport. Tailgate picnics before, the baskets of cold chicken and draughts of beer during, and the uproarious victors or good losers parties after make for lots of festivities. Whether you're out there cheering as a loyal parent, a spirited alum, or an ardent pro-fan, you'll want to gain as much fashion yardage as possible.

To look as snappy as your team on the field, we suggest you tuck into one of the new fall jackets. For men and women, wool blazers no longer constrain or fit tightly. Now designed shorter (jockey length), soft, and plushy, these jackets allow you to roll up the sleeves, the collars, and move about with ease. Peppered with pockets and boldly patterned in checks and plaids, they're cut big so you can fit many layers on underneath. Plus, you'll be right at home since many of the jackets have that padded shoulder look.

Wear your jacket over a pair of the new tailored pants. Wide legged pants now reside in haute couture heaven while today's emphasize the leg. Don't get the idea, however, that trousers are skin tight — they softly taper and gently cling. Pleated or gathered at the waist, the new pants are further held in place by skinny leather or metal belts.

To keep your tootsies warm during football, try booting up. This season, boots are given to extremes — the heels are either very high or very low. For clamoring up and down the bleachers, we urge you to go with the low-heeled "riding boot." Classy with a slightly tapered toe, some of these boots come outfitted with modified spurs set around the heel.

Besides the heel, you'll have to choose as to the length of your boot. Of course, the conventional length (extending just below the knee) will probably remain the most popular but now you can opt for ankle-length or mid-shin length. These shorter boots go with skirts and dresses as well as pants.

Remember when dressing for football meant wrapping yourself up in a raccoon coat? Well, depending on your concern for animals and your budget, you might want to consider the extravagance of fur. No longer the doyen of rich dowdy matrons, fur coats and, especially, fur jackets are being smartly tailored for sports wear. But still, they're very expensive; even the less coveted rabbit and raccoon fetch a dear price.

If fur won't do, a good cloth coat (either Republican or Democrat) will look great. In fact, designers herald this as the year of the coat. The coats are cut big and textured for softness.

And, lastly, hats — hats too are back. While the pointed Nehru style may look fine on models in Vogue, we know that the head-hugging wool cloches and soft out-size berets are guaranteed to look great on everyone in chilly weather.

As you see, besides thrills and excitement, football games provide fine fashion opportunity. So, don't fumble the chance to make a trendy conversion and score lots of style points.

Notes:

The New England Patriots are at home in Schaefer Stadium, Foxboro (Route 1) on October 1 against San Diego; October 8 against Philadelphia; October 22 against Miami; and October 29 against the N.Y. Jets. All games begin at 1 pm. Tix are $10 (sideline) and $6 (endzone) and available at all Filene's stores, Ticketron outlets, or by calling Sports Charge (426-8181).

leaf through fall

Long before "mini-this" or "maxi-that," there were country clothes

When autumn nips New England, it brings with it a reminder of simpler, heartier pleasures. The smell of burning leaves, the sights of trees laden with apples and mountainsides decked in fiery foliage are the earthy joys of the season.

Living here, we're closer to the fall experience. A foliage foray into southern Vermont can either be a day trip or a wonderful excuse to stay overnight in a romantic country inn.

Driving the back roads of New England, there's much to discover — farm stands bulging with apples, squash, gourds, Indian corn, and freshly-pressed apple cider; orchards where, for a nominal price, you get to pick you own; small village greens on which the pumpkin crop and a sampling of rickety antiques are offered for sale side by side; and the county fairs and village festivals which spring up with the season in such places as Waitsfield, Vermont where there's a Septoberfest Craft Fair and Bavarian Beer Bash on September 23.

The dress for these hearty explorations calls for a return to basics and to the timeless, casual, sturdy "New England look."

Long before "mini-this" or "maxi-that," there were country clothes best typified by tailored tweed jackets, pure wool pullover sweaters, wide wale corduroy trousers, and leather oxfords with rubber soles. At one time, these basics did not bring the premium prices that they do today. However, the expensive tags shouldn't turn you off — these classics have already stood the test of time and will last and last through many years of New England autumn ramblings.

Besides the basic pullover, the wool sweaters prevalent this season are the large-gauge wrap-type with big shawl collars (great for cozying around your neck), poncho sweaters, oversize cowl-neck pullovers, and bulky Irish knits. Remember, designers are fashioning these sweaters not only to double as light coats but to be worn over a couple of layers, therefore you want them as loose as possible. A tight angora might look tasty but it just won't keep you toasty.

Pants should also be loose and comfortable. They're oft a cliche, but baggy tweeds can actually be quite warm, so can baggy corduroys. Knickers, de rigeur for Alpine hikers and cross-country skiers, are fast becoming available in many clothing shops for less strenuous activities. Wear them with colorful knee socks.

Flannel shirts, for men and women, look great on any country expedition. Wearing them over a cotton turtleneck topped off by a heavy sweater not only gives you that coveted "layer look" but also makes for sensible chill-preventive fashion.

Finally, despite the second-coming of spike heels, women will still find a wide variety of flat-soled shoes in the stores. In particular, the fringe-tongued variation of the golf shoe comes this year in either a lace-up oxford or a slip-on.

We've provided suggestions but no matter what you wear during your outdoor autumn pursuits, the accent should rest on being as simple, durable, and wholesome as the activities themselves.

Notes:

The Waitsfield Septoberfest runs from 10 am on. Reach the fair by taking I-89 north to Vermont Route 100; for more info call 802-496-3409.

Three Massachusetts apple orchards which provide easy access as well as a pleasant drive are in Stow — Carver Hill, Honey Pot Hill, and Dreschler Orchards. Take Route 2 west to Route 62 west and follow Route 62 to Stow.

Can a clothing store get too big for its britches?

Have you ever been made to feel as if a clothing store was doing you a favor by letting you shop there?

Well, at Robert Todd, we don't much care for that attitude. And we like to believe that you won't find it inside our doors.

The way we see it, any clothing store that gets too big for its britches is just asking for a kick in the pants.

the circus

Forget that circuses have the potential of being messy places (all that sawdust, sticky cotton candy, and drippy ice cream) and dress the kids and yourself in the best casual style

The 106th edition of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus opens on October 18 at the Boston Garden. It presents the best autumn opportunity to treat the kids to something really special. What could be better for them than the circus and Halloween both in the same month?

We suggest that you do up the circus in fine style. If you have matinee tickets, think about taking everyone out to lunch in a comfortable but nice Boston restaurant; if your ducats are for the evening, consider an early dinner before the performance.

Forget that circuses have the potential of being messy places (all that sawdust, sticky cotton candy, and drippy ice cream) and dress the kids and yourself in the best casual style. After all, it's not everyday that you all get the chance to come into the city for this once-a-year event.

Although fashion for grown ups remains somewhat at the command of a few designers, fashion for kids stays delightfully steady year after year. The same corduroy jumper, frilly white blouse, ankle socks, and patent leathers that little girls wore to the circus 20 years ago, would still do just fine today. Of course, there are fads — the navy coat with the brass buttons and little red, white and blue emblem was one — but, basically, kids' styles don't waver much, despite the proliferation of children's designers.

For yourself, how about a suit? Suits for women are now multi-textured — wool jacket, silk blouse, heavy cotton skirt or any combination thereof. The pieces, all meant to go together, present that calculated uncalculated look. Actually, this seems a sensible way to assemble a suit as each piece can be worn with anything else.

Underneath your suit, try some of the new legwear. Stockings have taken on a new flair and are now softly patterned or seamed (yes, that old worry — "Is my seam straight?" — will again echo throughout the land). Wooly knee socks are worn with all size of heels.

Accessorize and decorate your suit. Knot a bright silk scarf around your neck or fasten a gold stick pin on your lapel.

Men should investigate the new sports jackets on which the lapels are narrower and the textures much heavier. The sleeves on these are meant for rolling up and most of the cuffs button closed.

Because the circus is fun, make what you wear fun and comfortable. You'll be the best dressed family under the Big Top.

Notes:

The Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus runs from October 18 to 30 at the Boston Garden (North Station in Boston). Tickets are $7.50, $6.50, $5 and $4. For more info call the Boston Garden box office, 227-3200.

the disco

Fabric, in fact, is a strong consideration since the disco world is a tactile one

Discos are the stuff of fantasy. With all the lights, music, and spinning mirrored balls, it's difficult to keep up a conversation let alone muse on the state of anything. So don't. The main activities at work here are dancing — and dressing. That doesn't mean you have to be outrageously expensive just outrageously gaudy and dressy.

The clothes worn at these places know no seasonal changes. Let the rest of the world go dull at the first chill but disco clothing stays the same — bright, flashy, and minimal.

We've heard the new hot item in disco dressing is plastic, see-through skin-tight jeans. They sound hot and a little extreme but, from this example, you can see that anything goes (except, of course, blue jeans). For accessories, stick a silk-flowered comb or a rhinestone barrette in your hair. If you need a handbag, get one of those tiny sequined pouches which have shoulder straps long enough so the thing drapes Sam Browne-style across your body. Don't stint on makeup or nailpolish — the bolder, the better. And stiletto heels make for high-fashion night dressing albeit tottery dancing.

This fall's slim look just won't do on the dance floor. Wide skirts which billow out as you spin, blousy dresses, and shiny pastel leotard tops create comfort and ease when you step out. If you want to wear pants, satin ones can be very dressy. Fabric, in fact, is a strong consideration since the disco world is a tactile one. It may run you money but silk, satin or any lush natural material is worth ten times its weight in dacron.

For men too, flamboyance is a rule. Leave the chinos and wool blazers at home and go straight for pleated pants and exotic, short sleeved tapered shirts. And, if you've ever caught a glimpse at the disco king, then you'll know that a white, three piece suit with black open necked shirt will strike at every woman's fancy.

Once you're dressed to kill, head down to Max at the Waterfront or the Club Max (Boylston Street, in Boston's, Park Square). Every Monday and Tuesday night through late fall, both clubs will be jointly sponsoring a continuous dance contest with the grand prize being a trip around the world. Who knows? You may be dancing — and dressing — your way to Hong Kong this December.

Notes:

Cover charge at both Clubs Max is $2. For more info on the dance contest, contact Max at the Waterfront, 742-3788.

the theatre

Opening night, or any night at the theatre, is one of the few occasions left which requires a certain style and refinement of dress

Theatre in Boston has always enjoyed a somewhat speckled history. Sure, we get the pre-Broadway babies but we also have the power to close or alter them before they ever reach the Great White Way. One tradition that never changes or closes is opening night with all its glitter and glamor.

This theatre season is especially lively. Cambridge cult film now musical comedy, The King of Hearts, is on stage at the Colonial; the new musical Back Country, based on J.M. Synge's Playboy of the Western World, is currently housed at the Wilbur; and Annie, still a Broadway smash, is expected late this month at the Schubert, after The Wiz dances off.

Though the above plays are whimsical, opening night, or any theatre night, remains a dignified occasion. It is truly one of the few institutions left which demands a certain style and refinement of dress. Of course, you can wear jeans to the theatre. But who would want to? Attending a play is the ultimate excuse for throwing on a neglected fur stole, prized jewelry, and other finery which might otherwise seem out of place in these fashion times when casual is king.

Don't abandon all modesty. The bared breast, exposed thighs and navels, and stretches of naked back have no place in the audience. Besides, it's getting cool and who wants to suffer that much for high fashion.

Though a bright color here and there gives a pleasantly dappled effect to the theatre crowd, more muted colors seem to be the rule. For women, the wonderful thing about dark colors is that one can put on lots of makeup, jewelry, and bright scarves in compensation. And, for men, the black tie look is timelessly distinguished.

This fall, the theatre suit, made of black velvet or wool with broad shoulders and a calf-length skirt sculpted to the wearer's dimensions, is most appropriate.

Beside these theatre suits, all nighttime finery is designed to cling; the blousy look is fast joining Russian peasants in fashion's purgatory.

Even if you don't choose to wear a theatre suit, keep in mind that the ideal is a combination of the suit and the gown — just enough leg showing to allure, enough covered to be elegant. A hint: sweep the hair back and away from the face; the show should be seen and not heard.

Sandals seem to be the preferred footgear, in winter and summer. Practically speaking, they're cold and don't protect the feet from the hoards of black shoes which stampede toward the lobby at intermission. A sling back shoe or half boot is just as dressy. No matter what the style, the heels are very high this fall. This will make navigating down a dark aisle difficult.

Male dress should be modest. A red leisure suit is not at home in the theatre; a handsome, tailored wool suit, replete with vest and one of the new slim ties is. Confining? Try pleated pants with a rich, bulky sweater and tie to match. Sorry. A small amount of strangulation is in order. You can always loosen the knot during the first act. If necessary, do so, relax and enjoy what's going on before you.

Above all, the play's the thing.

Look what's happening around The Corner.

Downtown Boston is coming alive again.

Right across the street from Filene's and Jordan Marsh.

At The Corner.

It's always been the busiest intersection in town. But now it's even busier.

Because all around The Corner is the most exciting collection of stores and restaurants you'll find anywhere.

Around the outside is the biggest selection of junior fashions in Boston.

Inside, it's something else.

Imagine a shopping mall that's three stories tall.

Imagine an area that opens up to restaurants serving everything from Japanese and Mexican food to seafood and hot dogs. That's The Food Experience.

Imagine a floor devoted to independent merchants and craftsmen, selling things you'll never find anywhere else. That's Potpourri.

You don't have to hunt around all over town to see what's what in contemporary fashion any more.

You don't have to decide where to meet everyone for lunch.

And you don't have to wonder where to go when you're looking for something to do.

See what's happening around The Corner.

Clay Pot Cooking

*If you don't already have a clay pot you ought to learn about all the things you can do with it, if you want to be "in the know" about one of the newest types of cookware, or method of cooking! With a growing desire to try to cut down on the amount of fat we are eating, the clay pot can help you. In most cases you don't have to add any fat, often no liquid either and the food stays juicier with only its own natural flavors. Clay pot cooking rarely requires any attention, freeing your time for other things. When you add vegetables to the meat you can have a colorful, nutritious one-pot meal. The slow, moist effortless cooking will naturally tenderize tougher cuts of meats. Here are some facts & tips: *Handle carefully — they crack easily — avoid sudden temperature changes. *Clay pots come in both glazed and unglazed versions...the main difference is the ease of cleaning with the glazed pot. *Before each use, soak both the lid and pot in cold water...you can do this while preparing it's ingredients. *Place the pot in the center of the oven for even heat circulation. *Begin in a cold oven. To brown foods, remove the lid from the pot 15 mins. before the end of the cooking time.

Winchester Sen. Samuel Rotondi greets supporter at the Knights of Columbus Hall late on election night. Rotondi defeated challenger James Lyons of Arlington by a 3-1 margin in Winchester and by 3568 votes overall. (Staff photo by Dan Walsh)

Local primary results:

Rotondi slays Lyons 3-1; Ed King usurps the Duke

Incumbent Sen. Samuel Rotondi fought off challenger James Lyons to win the Democratic nomination for state Senate from the Fourth District in Tuesday's Primary Election.

Just over a third of Winchester's registered voters turned out to vote their preference for Democratic and Republican candidates, generally following state-wide trends in the voting.

A total of 5247 Winchester voters went to the polls Tuesday, 43.6 percent of the 12,019 registered to vote. Of the registered Republicans, 2232 came out to vote; 3015 Democrats went to the polls.

Local Democratic voters favored Cong. Paul Tsongas for the US Senate race, Edward J. King for governor, Lois Pines for secretary of state, Robert Crane for treasurer, Thaddeus Buczko for state auditor, and Scott Harshbarger for district attorney for Middlesex County.

Republicans had fewer candidates to choose from but held with the state trends, prefering incumbent Sen. Edward Brooke by a mere 40 votes to challenger Avi Nelson and giving their nod to Francis W. Hatch Jr. as gubernatorial nominee. William I. Cowin won out here for the lieutenant governor's slot.

Rotondi vs. Lyons

In the local Senate race, Rotondi swept Winchester's eight districts, defeating Lyons in Winchester by a 3-1 margin, 2373 to 816. The incumbent won overall by 15,980 to 12,412 votes.

Lyons held his hometown of Arlington by just under 500 votes and came to within 500 votes of catching Rotondi in Woburn. Lexington went 2-1 for Rotondi.

Republican Diane Porter of Lexington, unchallenged for the nomination for state Senate, took 1256 votes here. She will face Rotondi in November.

Winchester Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. was also unopposed and as of yet has no challenger for the November election. He polled 1720 votes in his home town, 568 more in Stoneham districts for a total of 2288.

County races

In the heavily populated county races, all comers were Democrats, and there were few surprises.

L. Scott Harshbarger took 1584 Winchester votes to top incumbent John J. Droney (906) and Guy Carbone (472) for the nomination for county district attorney.

For register of probate, local voters favored Paul Cavanaugh by a wide margin over his five opponents, giving him 1249 votes. The closest challenger was Leonard Doyle, with 415 votes.

In the county commissioner's race, the three challengers split the vote and left the pickings to incumbent John Danehy, who tallied 946. Michael Cunningham followed with 676, Bernard Hennessy with 353, and William Chisholm with 326.

Winchester resident Rocco Antonelli topped the field by a wide margin here in the race for county treasurer, gaining 1114 votes. John Twomey was his closest opponent, with 547.

In the Governor's Council race for the Sixth District, Claire Buckley Dwyer came out way ahead in Winchester, with 1480 votes to Joseph Langone III's 991.

Cong. Edward Markey of Malden, unopposed in his bid for re-election to US Congress, took 2579 votes in Winchester. Others unopposed on the Democratic ballot included Thomas P. O'Neill III for lieutenant governor, who received 2263 votes; and Francis X. Belotti for attorney general, who won 2242 votes.

Deficit now $32,700

School board approves one more

The school committee added another $3000 to their budget deficit Monday night by voting 4-1 to add one section of Spanish 1 to the high school schedule.

The vote came as a result of a request for an extra section for Spanish from high school Principal Vincent Larocco. Larocco said the existing class had 31 students in it; and there are two more waiting to get in.

The addition of one-fifth of a teaching position brings the budget deficit for this year to $32,713, reported Jack Fallon, assistantt superintendent for administration. The increase was offset by a gain over the past week in salary differentials of about $3000. Differentials are the difference in the salaries of an out-going and a newly hired teacher.

Larocco said there were other areas at the high school where enrollments came out higher than expected, notably in science classes. The school board set a policy last winter that laboratory classes should not exceed 24 students because the school labs are smaller than other classrooms. More than half of this year's science classes are enrolled at more than 24 students. However, Larocco noted enrollments in these classes tend to drop and that adding a section would mean "vast student schedule changes."

School board members noted, however, that there are several classes well under the approved 17-to-1 student teacher ratio, including one section with only six students.

Superintendent William C. MacDonald supported Larocco's request for the Spanish teacher but cautioned he was "nervous" in his recommendation because of the budget deficit. "However," he concluded, "I do not believe we can tolerate starting out classes with 31 students."

The school board questioned whether or not some of the other language classes could be rearranged to alleviate the problem in Spanish 1. Board member Jean Weylman asked the administration to "check all the numbers in the junior highs and the senior high" to see if smaller classes could be broken up and combined with other classes to save in staffing.

Larocco said he and language department head Barbara Holden had explored several alternatives for combining classes at the high school and that none of the alternatives worked out.

At first the school board asked that the addition for Spanish 1 be deferred for a week to allow Larocco and Holden to check out moving students from another class; Supt. MacDonald agreed with the recommendation, then suddenly changed his mind.

When asked about this last alternative, Larocco and Holden said there would be "a big problem in forcing 16 other kids into other classes." MacDonald replied, "I get it," and reversed his decision. He said there would be a "teacher problem" if the class in question were combined with others.

Scheduling open

Larocco said that the high school schedules remain open between March, when students first choose their courses, and August, when the final scheduling plan is made up. Students may make changes during this time, which leads to shifts in class sizes. Until August, there are no limits on class sizes.

Asked by board member Catherine Alexander what alternatives there were to this scheme, Larocco said, "We could just set a maximum and then you don't allow anyone else in." To this, MacDonald responded, "We have tried to be a litte more flexible in accommodating student needs."

Mrs. Weylman suggested the board look into establishing a consistent policy for students making up courses, perhaps asking the students to make up failed courses in summer school rather than allowing them to repeat an entire course. Barbara Holden reported there were "several" students in the Spanish 1 class who were repeating the course.

The administration has become increasingly apprehensive about making up the deficit. In addition to the $32,713 needed for personal services, about $8000 more will be needed for other expenses because enrollments came out 118 above the level budgeted for.

One possible source of funds is the overtime account. The effects may not be felt for awhile, but principals may have to cut back the amount of time community organizations will be allowed to use the schools for various activities; at the least they will not be able to overspend their budgets.

More funds may become available from differentials; however, last year's differentials totaled less than $100,000, not enough to make up for the deficit. One reason the budget is so tight is that the school committee took $60,000 out of their budget last spring in anticipation of the differentials in order to bring a tighter budget to town meeting.

Supt. MacDonald said the administration will be on the lookout for areas where savings can be realized, but he warned, "We may have to go to the town meeting for it."

Dot Lord: 57 years at The Star

"Of course it's a lot different now — everything moves faster, there's less time, there are more people. Maybe that's as it should be."

Dot Lord understands about time and change. She will be 80 years old on Sunday. Except when she broke her ankle Christmas Eve in 1945, she has not missed a working day at The Winchester Star since she started in 1921. That includes those tumultous, wind-destroyed September days of the Hurricane of 1938 ("I got to work, but the trees were falling down in front of us all the way home."). It includes the Blizzard of 1978 when she arrived at work to find snow drifts at the office door piled up to her shoulders ("I just couldn't get in and then the governor said we should stay home.").

As a young girl, Dorothy Deloria lived in Winchester, attending a number of elementary schools throughout the town. Most of those schools no longer stand — the Rumford, Chapin, Prince. The high school was, in 1917, in what is now the Lincoln Elementary School. It was a "nice, pretty" walk from Canal Street, where Dot lived, down Main Street to the big high school. "It was good to walk that every day," she says. "I used to stop at the country store for candy on my way home and there were lots of houses and stores along the way."

She reminisces about a slower way of life in the first two decades of this century, when Winchester was still mostly farm land and horses took a good share of the streets. Underlying the memories, however, is the certain spunky character which has kept Dot going and working. For example, most of the Delorias in Dot's very large extended family went through their lives with several variations on the spelling of the family name. When Dot arrived at the high school, the principal had decided that all the Deloria, Delorey, Delory variations should be made uniform and so the records were all made to spell Delorey. Dot, however, refused to have Deloria changed. "That's the spelling I always had, I liked it, and I wasn't going to change it for convenience," she says. To this day she has retained the spelling in her legal signature.

Dot graduated from Winchester High School in 1917 and two months later began working in an accounting office in Boston. She and several other young women from Winchester took the train in together, working from 8:30 to 4:30 and catching the evening commuter trip back. Three months after she started working, the armistice was signed ending World War I. "You should have seen it downtown! Papers out the windows, cheering, celebrations. Such a day it was!"

Four years in the accounting office passed and Dot Deloria met and married Fred B. Lord. They were married at St. Mary's Church in Winchester in October 1921. That year was important for another reason — in December the new bride took a temporary job with Wilson's stationery store on Church

Tax rate $3.54 less than expected

Winchester's official tax rate for fiscal year 1979 is $74.80, an increase of $1.40 over last year, but $3.74 less than expected.

The tax rate was approved last week by the state Department of Revenue as submitted by the town's board of assessors and the town comptroller.

The spring town meeting projected a $78.54 tax levy but, "In a period of spiraling costs and increasing prices, our town has held the line on the cost of town government," according to assessors Chairman George L. Andersen.

Andersen said, "This accomplishment was a concerted effort on the part of hundreds of dedicated people... who donated their expertise to help run the town."

Andersen attributed a $1,000,000 transfer from the general surplus account to the levy by the spring town meeting for the small increase. "If the money was not appropriated, the tax rate might have been $79.80," Andersen said.

The schools portion of the new tax rate is $41.69 and the general portion is $33.11, according to town Comptroller Al Faggiano.

After the cherry sheets were released last month, town officials feared the tax rate would increase $2.15 as a result of unanticipated increases and adjustments in town charges. Increased charges from metropolitan parks costs, metropolitan sewage, metropolitan water, and Mass. Bay Transportation Authority totaling $189,000 over fiscal year 78 charges substantially reduced this year's anticipated cherry sheet reimbursements.

However, Faggiano reports that the town has realized a $154,615 town accounts interest instead of anticipated $126,000 savings. This $28,000 additio[illegible] to town revenue decreased the tax rate 14 cents.

Also, the town realized a gain in the reduction of the Northeast Metropolitan Vocational School's assessment to the town. At the time of the spring town meeting, the school had assessed the town $204,000 but the assessment has since been reduced to $160,000. This $44,000 savings chopped the tax rate another 21 cents.

The formula for reducing Winchester's tax rate is $1 for every $204,000.

In addition to the 14-cent saving from

Town hosting three events on Saturday

Winchester should be a lively place this Saturday when a carnival, a flea market, and an annual yard sale come to town.

In the Town Hall Park parking lot, the Jaycee-ettes will hold their annual flea market.

On Manchester Field, the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association will be hosting a carnival to raise money to build a town swimming pool.

And in the parking lot of the First Congregational Church, the Winchester ABC will hold its annual yard sale to raise funds to support the organization.

See stories in the coming events section of today's Star for times and details.

Invitation to a party

Dot Lord, receptionist at The Winchester Star since 1921, is celebrating her 80th birthday this month.

On Thursday, Sept. 28, The Star will host a community birthday party for her from 4:30 to 6 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center on Skillings path.

All members of the community who know Dot are cordially invited to drop by the senior center to say hello to Dot, sign the guest book, and have some refreshments.

street, which also housed The Winchester Star, owned and edited by T. Price Wilson.

"I made a mistake one day in the stationery store," she confesses, but what a mistake! "I typed something and Mr. Wilson said, 'You can type!' and there I was working for the newspaper."

Dot's still at The Star.

In some ways she says it's still like the old days. People come in off the street to talk to her. She knows or is related to most of the town it seems and people strolling by like to reminisce with Dot. They talk about the time Roosevelt was elected president and T. Price Wilson took down the paper's flag from atop the building as a symbol of mourning. He never put the flag back up.

They talk about the Beggs and Cobbs tannery fire in the fifties, the plane crash on South Border road, the long, long debate over elevating the railroad tracks. They remember the arguments against building a movie theater in town and how Winchester went many years without one.

Dot laughs about one incident when she put one over on the boss. Jim Penaligan, Bonnie Wilson, and Dot Lord were going about the business of putting out the paper once in the 1940's when there was suddenly a loud squawking commotion just outside the office windows. Dot and Bonnie bounded to the street in time to see dozens of live chickens fluttering all over Main street as the truck transporting them collided with the oncoming Lowell express. The train tracks ran on the street at that time and apparently the crossing warning gate was not down. Editor Penaligan couldn't leave the office unattended and missed the scene. "That was great fun," Dot recalls. "Such a commotion there was with feathers and chickens flying all over the place and the crash and all. Mr. Penaligan had to wait until Bonnie and I had had our fill before he could get out of the office."

Dot has the time and patience for anyone who wants to talk to her. She remembers everyone she's ever met, it seems. "I'm in the habit of remembering," she says. Since 1925 she has made an entry in her diary every single night. "I enjoy keeping the diary and reading about things that happened before and who came into the office and so on," she says, but not for a moment does she live in the past.

Her vacations and weekends away or at her Woburn house are important to her. She travels to Florida and Maine, both of which she likes. At home she putters around the house and tends her garden. Dot's husband died in 1949 and she still lives today in the house they purchased together in 1925.

"No, I'm not ready to retire. I like what I'm doing. I can see the changes in the town, in the people, and I know things aren't the same. We need progress, I guess, and I want to watch it happening."

interest and the 21-cent saving from voke school assessment reductions, another 46-cent cut on the tax rate has been made as a result of a $96,000 state reimbursement for snow and ice removal costs. Per authorization of Section 31D of Chapter 44 of the state's general laws, towns may charge the state for snow and ice removal if the town expends more than $50,000 from its own monies. Even though the town's tax levy will be helped by the charge to the state, Faggiano said he hopes it is "nonrecurring." He said, "I don't want to go through another blizzard like the one we had in February."

In predicting next year's tax rate, Faggiano said this year's low tax rate does not necessarily mean that next year's rate will dramatically increase like it has in the past. "We're not juggling here," he said.

"There's a good likelihood that certain adjustments charged against us this year will disappear next year," Faggiano said.

This year, the town received a $180,000 special education adjustment which had to be applied to the tax rate plus a $128,000 county adjustment due to a 1977 underestimate. Faggiano called both charges "nonrecurring." He said the combined nonrecurring charges of $208,000 would "probably offset increases in charges."

Faggiano also cited future savings in school costs as another area which will hold the line on the tax rate in the future. "The future of school budgets will be the next area which will reflect tax reductions," he said.

Due to declining enrollments, Faggiano predicted that more schools will close and thus save the town more money.

New pastor at ImmCon Church

The Immaculate Conception Church has a new pastor as of this week, and he's not an unfamiliar face to many local church-goers.

Fr. John O'Donnell, former curator at St. Mary's Church, has been appointed to take over at the Immaculate Conception. He replaces Fr. George Murray, who passed away while on a holiday on the Cape this summer.

Fire damages WCC kitchen

A fire broke out in the kitchen of the Winchester Country Club about 1:30 p.m. yesterday. It started on the grille and spread up the grease flue to the second floor sending smoke throughout that section of the building.

Both the Arlington and Winchester Fire Departments responded and brought the blaze under control within 15 minutes. The kitchen and dining rooms had to be closed for the remainder of the day.

Proposed changes

Handful shows up for first charter hearing

Only a dozen citizens, most members of the government regulations committee and school committee, attended Monday night the first of two hearings on proposed charter and by-law changes.

Although the regulations committee has been poring over the charter and sifting out ways to improve the town's home-rule form of government for more than a year, the proposed changes will no doubt demand more time at this fall's town meeting than any other article on the warrant.

Fourteen of the 21 proposed changes were sponsored and proposed by the committee, one was sponsored and proposed by the board of selectmen, two were proposed by citizens, and four were sponsored by the regulations committee.

All 21 were identified at a joint public hearing board of selectmen meeting.

For any of the charter changes to become rule, two-thirds vote of the town meeting must be secured, then approved by the state attorney general, and ratified by a majority vote of the town's spring election. By-law changes need only majority approval at the fall town meeting and do not have to be approved by the attorney general.

Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell said before the public hearing that "We are not here to debate the merits of the proposals, but are here for the purposes of public information." He said although citizens have until Oct. 2 to submit additional changes and articles for the town warrant, any changes not reviewed by the government regulations committee prior to town meeting will probably not be supported.

He said, "Any proposal not reviewed by our committees will have to ride independent."

The second public hearing on the proposed changes is Thursday, Sept. 28 at the town hall.

Proposals that received the greatest attention Monday were three separate proposals to increase the school committee to six members, seven members, and nine members. All three proposals will be debated by the town meeting.

Also receiving much attention were two proposals to form an elected three-member board of public works and an elected five-member board of public works. (See related story.) Selectmen said Monday night they are "opposed in principle" to an elected public works board.

Those changes to the charter proposed and sponsored by the government regulations comm8ttee include:

- Expand cut-off date for town meeting warrant to 45 days. It is presently 30 days;
- Enable selectmen to remove for cause an acting town manager. At present, selectmen have the power to remove a town manager, but not an acting one;
- Temporary-seasonal appointments by the town manager. In the past, the town manager has had to hire replacement employees on a short notice and has been hindered by policy mandating selectmen approval first;
- Posting and filling of vacancies. Proposal calls for expansion of time limits,
- Publishing and public hearing of the school budget. Proposal calls for shorter time limits so that town manger can have more time to review budget before submitting it as an article to the town spring warrant;
- Typographical corrections.

Those by-law changes proposed and supported by the government regulations committee are:

- Forfeiture of office, town meeting member. In the proposal, any member's seat which is vacant can be deemed forfeited;
- Duties concerning Wildwood Cemetery of the board of selectmen;
- Establish a capital planning committee. The proposal was accepted by selectmen with "refinement;"
- Establish a human services council;
- Amend zoning by-law regarding the number of dogs permitted per owner;
- Provide copies at the charter and by-laws to be available at the town clerk's office;
- Extension of time for speakers at town meeting;
- Typographical changes.

Those changes sponsored but not proposed by the governmentt regulations committee include:

- Expand school committee to six members;
- Expand school committee to seven members;
- Expand school committee to nine members;
- Change "district" to "precinct" in town charter and by-laws.

Changes proposed and sponsored by the board of selectmen include:

- Procedure for submitting articles for town meeting warrants.

Those proposed by citizens are:

- Elect a three-member board of public works;
- Elect a five-member board of public works.

Government regulations committee Chairman David Mortensen said he welcomes public discussion on the proposed changes.

Charter changes:

Proposals for DPW board submitted for fall meeting

Former water and sewer commissioner Michael M. Connolly has gathered enough signatures to bring his proposal for a board of public works to the town meeting this fall.

The proposal would amend the Winchester Charter to add to the list of elected officials a three-member board to supervise the operation of the town's department of public works.

Connolly's article sets up three-year terms for the board members, with one member to be replaaced each year. The powers and duties of the DPW board would be as follows:

"The board of public works shall be responsible for the performance of all public works activities of the town placed under its control by the Charter, by by-law, by administrative code, or otherwise, including but not limited to the maintenance and operation of: highways, bridges and drainage systems, parks, playgrounds and swimming facilities, forestry services, water and sewer systems, Wildwood Cemetery, and all municipal buildings and grounds.

Connolly's article is an amended version of the proposal to be brought to the fall town meeting by town meeting members Clara Hewis and Vincent Carroll. In their version, the board would consist of five members and have total authority over the director of public works — including the authority to hire and fire.

Connolly split with the others over whether or not the board should have total authority over the DPW director. Carroll says the board should have "complete control over the department." However, he is quick to add, "We don't have an axe to grind with the present director. It is unfair to assume that our article is out to get the head of the department."

Carroll is critical of the way DPW Director Walter Tonaszuck has run his department and of the way personnel are treated.

One area of contention is the policy of contracting out some services. The administration argues that contracting out certain services saves the town money; opponents of the policy say the town loses money in the long run by not performing the work with its own men and equipment. Another proposed Charter change being considered would forbid contracting out certain services.

There have been problems with personnel relations in the past, and Carroll says these have persisted. Last fall the selectmen held two public meetings to air grievances from DPW employees. Carroll calls the meetings "a whitewash" and adds, "The selectmen take a negative position, they just don't care." Carroll insists "nothing has happened" since the two meetings to alleviate the employees' complaints.

Town Manager Thomas Groux believes the proposal for a DPW board "runs counter to the concept of the selectmen-town manager form of government by removing one of the major responsibilities the manager has." Groux feels a DPW board "would splinter a major function of town government" and "diffuse responsibility" between the DPW board and the selectmen. Under state law, the selectmen are employers for the town and are also charged with negotiating the contracts.

Groux thinks the DPW is "performing adequately" under the new system.

Selectman Barbara Hankins generally agrees with Groux's assessment: "I'm totally opposed to (the DPW board). I don't believe there's a town in the Commonwealth that has a town manager and a separate public works board. One defeats the purpose of the other."

Of the problems brought up last year at the grievance meetings, Hankins notes that some were related to collective bargaining; since the bargaining is still going on, she did not want to comment.

Other problems brought out last year involved sick pay and retroactive pay. Hankins reports the selectmen directed the manager and the DPW director "to be more reasonable" in allowing employees to collect sick pay when they are out because of job-related injuries. And the selectmen have agreed that pay increases will be retroactive to the effective date of the contract for employees who quit or retire after that date.

Of complaints that employees were being "harrassed" by the management, Hankins comments, "The more we investigated, the less we found in substance to those complaints. . . I think we have addressed the issues that were not connected to collective bargaining."

School uses to be studied

The long and sometimes painful process of closing schools in Winchester to reflect declining enrollments has reached yet another stage, and it is time, once again, for Winchester's citizens to take an active role.

Not quite a year has passed since a citizen task force was established to look into long range plans for Winchester's schools. That group studied 13 different proposals and came up with a report and recommendations last winter. After a series of debates and public hearings, the school committee took a vote, and the die was cast.

The Parkhurst Elementary School is to be closed next September. The following year, the Noonan and Washington schools will be closed, and the school administration will vacate the Sanborn property on High street. The question at hand is what will be done with those vacated buildings, and the whole town has a stake in the solution.

A committee set up by town meeting in the spring has been meeting all summer to study the problem. Their task is to hire consultants who in turn will be coming up with proposals for the disposal of the closed schools and the Sanborn property. The members of that committee are three citizens who have repeatedly shown their interest in the future progress of the town: Selectman Harry Chefalo, planning board member Charles Tseckares, and Carolyn Ward, who has been active on behalf of the local League of Women Voters and Winchester's ABC program at the high school.

The committee met last night to interview representatives from three marketing and development consulting firms. Ms. Ward reports the committee expects to make a decision shortly as to which firm will be retained. The committee will begin working with the consultants this coming week.

What is even more important to local citizens, especially those who live in the neighborhoods around the buildings to be closed, is that Ms. Ward and her committee have scheduled a series of meetings for the public in order to give citizens a chance to be heard on the issue.

Neighbors of the Parkhurst School are invited to attend a meeting Oct. 3 at 8 p.m.; Sanborn House neighbors are invited in the same evening at 9:15. On Oct. 4, residents in the vicinity of the Washington School will be heard; and neighbors of the Noonan School are to come in later that evening, at 9:15. All four meetings will be held in the selectmen's meeting room at Town Hall. A general meeting for all interested in the issue will be held at Town Hall Oct. 17, starting at 8 p.m.

The idea is to open up a dialogue through which residents can express their ideas and concerns. This will help the committee assess the impact of whatever proposals are suggested by the consultants studying alternative uses of the closed schools.

The task force on long range planning has already come up with a few suggestions, ranging from a community center to apartments to a restaurant. Obviously the final decisions of the town will have quite an impact on the immediate neighborhoods around the schools and Sanborn house.

All of the meetings of the committee on alternative uses of schools are open to the public. It is incumbent upon local citizens to play a role in these proceedings and let their voices be heard. --DKF

Mistaken impression

Last week, in our final issue before the primary, we ran several pages of statements from candidates for local and county office. The Star solicited final statements from all of the candidates running for local offices, and we printed all of those we received.

Unfortunately, some candidates reported to us that they never received copies of the letter we sent asking for their final statement. And because of the lack of time, we were unable to follow up on those who did not submit a statement. Fortunately, all of the candidates at least had the opportunity to get their initial announcements into The Star; and many had a second opportunity to comment in the League of Women Voters questionnaire printed in our Sept. 7 edition.

Though the Primary election is past, we would like to clear up a mistaken impression. By printing the statements in the newspaper last week (and not having statements to print from some candidates), we by no means meant to endorse or editorialize against any candidate. We simply offered the space to allow those candidates who chose to do so to speak their minds. -- DKF

Town watch...

A busy weekend ahead

This weekend should be one of the busiest in recent Winchester history. Saturday the 23rd will be filled with three annual events with a bit of everything for everyone.

The Jaycee-ettes' 10th Annual Flea Market will be held all day in the Town Hall parking lot, and if you're looking for bargains, it's the place to go.

Of course, if you can't find what you need there, you can amble over to the ABC House Annual Garage Sale on Dix street. This is one of the major fund-raising events for the ABC, and you'll find everything from antiques to cheese graters for sale there.

Incidentally, we hear the Jaycees have been extremely helpful to ABC, picking up donations for the sale and carting them over to the house.

Finally, there's the WHS Parent-Faculty Association Carnival off Skillings road behind the high school. Save some of your bits and dollars for the ferris wheel, merry-go-round and other rides. All proceeds will go toward the drive to raise enough money to build an indoor town swimming pool next to the high school.

After a lazy summer, Winchester's coming alive again, and community spirit prevails. All three events this weekend are for good causes, and all are testimony to just how hard the town's citizens are willing to work for their community. Go and enjoy.

Election nights always seem to turn newspaper offices into a bit of a madhouse, and the scene at The Star was no exception. We were running back and forth between production and the phones Tuesday night until well past midnight, taking returns and answering voters' questions.

Our thanks go out to radio station WHSR-FM at the high school, for providing us with some early returns from the polls — in particular to station manager Brian Levinson, who jockeyed all the information and calls pretty well. Thanks also to the office of Town Clerk Elsie Nelson for providing final tallies and other election information.

Now we can sit back and wait for November.

Boston's Charlestown is celebrating its 350th anniversary with a week of gala activites starting Sunday, and Selectmen Chairman Edward F. O'Connell will deliver Winchester's greetings.

At one time, Winchester was part of Charlestown as was Salem, Cambridge, Somerville, Arlington, Medford, Malden, Stoneham, and Woburn.

The anniversary is co-sponsored by the City of Boston and the Charlestown Historical Commission. The week-long celebration will open Sunday morning with an ecumenical service at the Charlestown First Church on Green street. The church was assembled in 1629 and a soloist will sing Oliver Holden songs, a Charlestown composer who died in 1844.

O'Connell will deliver the town's greetings Thursday, Sept. 21 at the Charlestown Navy Yard Admiral's House. O'Connell will be joined at 7:30 p.m. by other local dignitaries.

A dinner dance at the Charlestown Knights of Columbus Hall will be held the following night and a parade will be stepped off Saturday from Lafayette Park, Salem to Charlestown, a 15-mile walk.

We ran a story last week about a flimflam operation involving a fellow who claimed he was a UPS driver. The fellow was apprehended with the help of a local merchant, who runs a business at 50 Cross st.

Don't get the wrong idea: the ruse of posing as a delivery man is as old as the hills. But there is a real, legitimate UPS driver who covers 50 Cross st. on his route— Brian Faxon (who comes complete with appropriate ID). He came in the other day to assure us he is not out there trying to unload hot TVs.

Our compatriot Henry Simonds pointed out a typographical error of some magnitude in the story last week on the Winchester Historical Commission's Old House Survey. The story reported that some 200 homes had been cataloged in the survey, when in fact about 2000 homes have been covered.

Election '78...

Referendum question no. 1

Each week the LWV of Winchestter is submitting an analysis of one of the Referenda Questions for the readers of The Sttar to study. This week's insert will be dealing with question No. 1: Property Tax Classification.

This proposal would amend the Constitution to allow the Great and General Court to establish up to four classificattions for taxing real property. Under the present tax system, all real property in a community is taxed at the same rate. State law requires that taxation be based on 100 percent of assessed valuation, but compliance with the law is not yet complete throughout the state.

Until the Sudbury decision in 1974, there had been de facto classification: cities and towns had traditionally assessed personal and business real estate at different percentages of their fair market value. In many municipalities the home owner has enjoyed a lower assessment than the business man.

If passed, legislation voted by the 1978 legislature would take effect January 1979. This legislat5ion provides four classes of property at the following assessment percentages: residential, 40 percent of fair market value; commercial 50 percent of fair maket value; industrial, 55 percent of fair market value; open space, 25 percent of fair market value.

Real Estate would be placed into such classes, with each class being assessed at a differentt percent of its fair maket value (what a willing buyer and seller would accpet). Within each separate classificattion, all real property would be assessed, rated and taxed uniformly. Assessments, rates and taxation could vary among classifications, and it would no longer be required that each class be taxed based on 100 percent valuation.

The legislature could grant "reasonable exemptions."

If defeated, the current provisions for taxing all real property alike based on 100 percent valuation would continue.

PRO: Supporters, including the Massachusetts Mayors' Association, argue that unless the classification amendment referendum is passed, requirements for 100 percent valuation will be enforced and then the share of property taxes borne by residential property owners will increase, particularly in older cities. Commercial and industrial property would have lower assessments than at present, pay less taxes, and the difference would be assumed by the residential propertty owner.

CON: Opponents, including segments of the business community, argue that classification would be unfair to business, and question the legislature's ability to keep tax classification free of political influence. Additionally, opponents also point out that classification requires annual re-estimates of value which could result in inequities within, as well as between, groups.

Support flea market

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

An enthuslastic committee has been working for the past year to put together the Winchester Jaycee-ette Flea Market. It is through your support over the past nine years that we have been able to use the profits from this fundraiser to carry out our work in the community. We ask again this year for you to make our 10th Flea Market successful.

The date is September 23 from 9-4 at the Town Hall parking lot. Dealers from all over New England as well as local residents, clubs and organizations will be selling a variety of items.

The chuck wagon will provide food throughout the day, and due to its success we will again have a salad bar.

Our newest feature this year will be a craft table. Members have spent the past year making crafts which will appeal to all ages and every member of the family, these include Christmas decorations, items for the kitchen, gift ideas, children's novelties and more.

Come and support your town!

Mary Ellen Falcione
President
Winchester Jaycee-ettes

More support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have never been part of a "Flea Market" and I am looking forward to the Jaycee-ette's on Saturday (weather being kind to us!). This organization does a great deal in our town, and it was an honor to be asked to share in their project - their 10th Flea Market in Winchester.

My part in this venture is for the Winchester Animal Shelter, Wincester S.P.C.A., at 373 Russell st., Woburn, with Mrs. Yvonne Brown, the volunteer in charge. All monies from the shelter's booth go into the work of the shelter - caring for and placing in good homes stray and abused cats and dogs. It is a tremendous project, and one that should have all the support humane neighbors in my town can give.

So do come to the market that day - enjoy the booths, the Chuck Wagon, and do stop by my corner to see what collectibles are of interest. Items have come from Plymouth, from my mother's estate, and the sales will make life a little happier for the four-footed friends who find a chance at the shelter.

Extreme dismay

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing to express my extreme dismay at the failure of the Department of Public Works to line our various soccer fields for this year's season.

With over 1000 boys enrolled plus a significant additional number of girls, I do not understand how this project did not receive a high priority.

I can only assume that we have a severe management problem in this department which is also a negative reflection on our town manager as well as our board of selectmen.

Richard A. Clarke
Town District 4

Thanks expressed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The family of Edwin G. Berg Jr. wishes to express their thanks to Winchester Hospital, police and fire departments, McCormack's Apothecary and all friends and residents for the thoughtfulness and assistance extended to Bergie through his recent ordeal.

Ruth M. Berg

Invite to soccer

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester Soccer Club coaches and interested parents of players are invited to join a Soccer group that play on McDonald Field, Loring Ave on Sundays at 10 a.m.

The intention is to play a friendly game of soccer between adults that mostly did not play much in their youth. Both men and women are invited.

Spirit's alive

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Saturday, Sept. 23 promises to be an exciting day for Winchester. Wuth the Jaycee-ettes' Flea Market across from Town Hall, the ABC House Yard Sale in the parking lot of the First Congregational Church, and the carnival for the swimming pool in the high school parking lot, there will be activities to please all ages and all pocketbooks from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

But what I really want to write about is something The Star used to mention from time to time — The "Spirit of Winchester." The "Spirit" is once again emerging after its summer vacation and is showing itself in the form of the wonderful (and cheerful) cooperation between the many, many people involved in producing the coming Saturday's activities.

The Jaycees are helping the ABC Committee to get ready for the yard sale by trucking contributions from homes all over town to the ABC House garage. These same men will be assisting the Jaycee-ettes on Saturday at the flea market.

The Jaycee-ettes are cleaning their attics and scurrying about for treasures to contribute to the yard sale. Some of the pool committee people are dividing up their time to be able to help out at one of the other events.

Even the merchants are cooperating. The Nook & Cranny Antique Shop has donated treasures to ABC, and Henderson's Stationers has offered the use of their truck. All in all, there is a veritable beehive of activity and cooperation, all aimed at fund-raising for many important projects.

To me, that's the "Spirit of Winchester." I hope you'll come out on Saturday — to all three events — and see the "Spirit" in action.

Carolyn Ward
ABC Committee

Good samaritan

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Recently, specifically on Sept. 8th, I had the misfortune to run out of gas, because of an errant gauge reading, on a remote, dark section of route 93 near North Londonderry, N.H. It happened at about 8:30 p.m.

I started walking toward a nearby exit, and almost immediately had the pleasure of meeting Mr. John Smith, 50 Emerson rd., Winchester, who pulled up alongside me in his wagon. Mr. Smith, it turned out, was on the way to see his daughter in Manchester, but nonetheless delayed this event by driving me approximately six miles to the nearest service station, staying with me to assure I was given the gas, and lending me a $5 deposit on a funnel, that I was obliged to pay an unsympathetic young man there.

He then drove me back approximately eight miles, to arrive south of the car on this divided highway, drive up to the car, and wait there with me until I got it started.

If it wasn't for Mr. John Smith, I surely would have spent a period extending into hours, trying to get help, and I wanted Winchester to know that a concerned citizen resides there to whom I am very grateful indeed.

50 years ago

The stories reprinted here were taken from old editions of The Winchester Star and were compiled by Henry Simonds, local historian. By and large these articles are taken from the same month they appear here, 50 years ago.

Wednesday morning, Sept. 12, workmen began excavating for the foundation of the new Baptist Church at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets.

Lawson W. Oakes, Inc. of Boston, has been chosen as the contractor. The committee - consider themselves quite fortunate in this choice, as he has constructed some very large buildings in a most successful manner. Among the buildings which he has constructed are the Palmer Memorial Hospital, the Deaconess Hospital, the Home for Incurables, and he is now working on the construction of Thompson's Spa on Summer street.

Mr. Oakes, head of the contracting firm, is a resident of Newton and has superintended the extensive additions and alterations to the All Saints Church at Ashmont and the Church of the Redeemer at Chestnut Hill as well as alterations to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Bridgewater.

The work, which was begun Wednesday morning, will be pushed with vigor in order to get the building closed in before the snow flies. The committee are hoping to have the building completed by the first of May. It is to be of seam-face granite and to consist of an auditorium and parish-house constructed in accordance with the most up-to-date ideas of Sunday School education and young people's work. Examination of the plans indicate a most beautiful building that will be a great addition to the civic center of Winchester.

Tuesday evening, Sept. 25, during the absence of Chief and Mrs. David DeCourcy, a large gathering of friends assembled at their home on Westley street to extend to them sincere congratulations and best wishes upon having passed their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. DeCourcy were more than a little surprised and especially so when they were tendered a purse of silver and a huge bouquet, by Mrs. Louis Smith on behalf of those present and many others who were unable to attend.

Chief DeCourcy responded in his usual suave and jovial manner, while Mrs. DeCourcy was so completely surprised that it was a few minutes before she was able to express her appreciation.

Following an entertainment program, a dainty collation was served. Guests were present from Winchester, Woburn, Medford, Arlington and Cambridge.

Chief and Mrs. DeCourcy were married in Winchester 25 years ago and have since made their home here where for the greater part of this period Mr. DeCourcy has served in the Fire Dept.. Mrs. DeCourcy is active in many church organizations and is Vice-Regent of the local branch of the Mass. Catholic Women's Guild. They make their home on Westley street, with their two children Harold H and Elizabeth C. DeCourcy

The cornerstone of the Parish House of the Winchestec Unitarian Society will be laid on next Sunday, Sept. 16, immediately following the regular service, the ceremony being in effect a continuation of the church service

Rev. George Hale Reed will offer prayer, after which Mr. C. H. Watkins, representing both the Standing Committee and the Building Committee, will speak briefly on the significance of the event. Mr. C. F. Dutch and Mr. J. F. Dwinell, who have given unremitting service to the work during the summer, will guide the stone into its place, while Mr. Reed and Mr. Watkins will spread the mortar. The audience, led by the church quartet will sing a hymn and Mr. Reed will pronounce the Benediction.

The box will contain copies of the Winchester Star of April 20 and Sept. 14, the Boston Transcript of April 20, the current number of the church calendar, a file of the "Eccelerator," the booklet published by the Finance Committee and the program of the dedication of the new organ and the chancel

Report due soon

Study may propose moving police dept. to bank building

An architect and a structural engineer recently completed physical examinations of the police-fire-bank complex on Mt. Vernon street and will be submitting recommendations to the town manager on a proposal to move the police department into the bank building.

The specialists, employees of Hughes and MacCarthy Engineers of Natick hired by the town to study possible uses of the bank building, also examined the fire house at the request of the board of selectmen.

The bank building is scheduled to become vacant when Winchester Savings Bank moves to its new location at the site of the old theater on Main street.

John Hughes, one of the partners of the engineering firm, reported to selectmen last week on space availability at the bank building as compared with the present police station.

He said the police department needs about 12,000 square feet and is presently operating with 5,880 square feet. The bank, according to Hughes, has 6,730 square feet in its basement and first floor alone.

Selectmen also requested the additional study of the fire station since some operations, such as communications, could be merged from two separate units in the police and fire buildings to one unit in one of the buildings.

Hughes also reported that new construction of police facilities, whether in the bank or at another location, would be about $66 per square foot.

He said the town should anticipate about a $960,000 investment in new police facilities.

The bank has told the town that they would be willing to deed the building over to the town for "a nominal fee."

The bank is trying to dispose of the building by October for tax purposes but the town is not sure whether they can take any action by then.

The issue is tentatively scheduled as an article to the town warrant for the Nov. 6 Town Meeting, subject to the completion of the engineers recommendations.

Last year Police Chief John P. McHugh and Hues and MacCarthy developed a preliminary program for a new Winchester police headquarters building and it was revised this month.

The 12,000 square-foot program calls for 366 square feet in public areas, 1440 sq. ft. for the operations center, 2160 sq. ft. in administrative areas, 1980 sq. ft. for the officers area, 1550 sq. ft. for prisoner detention, 1064 sq. ft. for vehicles and 820 sq. ft. for miscellaneous needs, such as a custodian's closet.

An additional 2620 sq. ft. for wall space would bring the total area to about 12,000 sq. ft.

Chief McHugh said he would prefer the police move into a new building, built specifically for the department. "You have to move into a place that is functionally operative," McHugh said. "Even though the chief would like a new building, he said he'f be satisfied with the bank building. "I'm pleased to think we're beginning to be thought of," the chief said.

Police have been stationed in the present building for 75 years. Before 1903, they worked out of the basement of the town hall.

Robert Nickerson, savings bank president, said he had "nothing to report" about the proposed use of the bank building.

Town, Amberwood disagree over Hatch Act violation

By WILLIAM DONOVAN

A disagreement, which has left both sides tight-lipped, has developed between the Winchester Conservation Commission and the Amberwood Realty Trust Co. concerning a violation of the Wetlands Protection Act.

Amberwood, developer of the Amberwood Estates in Winchester, is disputing a ruling the conservation commission made regarding a road being built on that site. According to the commission, the fill from the road extends to within 20 feet of Sucher Brook, which is a violation of the Wetlands Protection Act.

Also known as the Hatch Act, this law gives the conservation commission control over land within 100 feet of a wetland. A wetland is considered to be a lake, pond, river, stream, brook or anything similar.

The conservation commission has suggested that a retaining wall be built to prevent the fill from entering the 100 foot zone. Building a barrier, however, would be costly for the contractor.

Originally, Amberwood filed an appeal with the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering. In an attempt to solve the issue, James Bono of the EQE planned to meet with representatives of both groups Sept 11 at the site in question. However, lawyers for Amberwood notified Bono that they would like to attempt to settle the issue without the state being involved, so the meeting was canceled.

Both sides are reluctant to discuss the affair, fearing that too much publicity would only complicate the matter. Walter Farrell, chairman of the Winchester Conservation Commission, feels that nothing has changed despite the withdrawal of the state from the affair. "Our ruling hasn't changed. We're waiting for Amberwood to call and make an offer."

Robert Johnson, Trustee of Amberwood Realty Trust refused to comment on the affair and actually claimed no knowledge of the disagreement. "As far as I know there's no disagreement. I'm the sole trustee, and if there was any problem I would know about it."

Maynard man gets recreation post

A 30-year-old resident of Maynard and director of recreattion in Concord has been appointed Winchester Recreation Director out of a field of 60 candidates, Town Manager Thomas Groux announced this week.

Dennis Mullen, a bachelor of science degree graduate in municipal recreation from the University of Massachusetts, was chosen over three or four applicants who Groux said had "excellent credentials."

Groux said many of the candidates had "very extensive experience in other communities serving as full-time recreation directors. I think this appointment is an excellent opportunity both for Mr. Mullen and for Winchester."

Mullen has had eight years of full-time experience in the recreation field, including five as Concord's director. Prior to that, he served as program director of recreation in Sharon and, before Sharon, served as the coordinator of a city playground program in Springfield and Greenfield.

A member of the Massachusetts Recreation and Parks Association, he is registered with the organization as a master professional. He is chairman of the association's scholarship committee and is a member of its registration board.

In making the announcement, Groux said, "I am particularly pleased to be able to attract an individual of Mr. Mullen's training and experience."

Mullen appeared before the board of selectmen's weekly meeting Monday night to meet the board and talk to them about his experience.

Chairman Edward O'Connell said he hopes Mullen "provides the town with some imaginative program development."

Mullen said he hopes to set up some self-supporting programs, but that he needs time to examine Winchester's needs "and get a feeling for the community." When asked if he has developed programs for senior citizens, he replied, "I've developed, on a couple different occasions, drop-in centers for seniors and I've worked very closely with senior citizens through a luncheon program also."

He said he hopes to move into the area soon where he will live with his wife and their soon-to-be-born child.

Six towns submit mini-bus proposals

Winchester has a 33 percent chance of getting its mini-bus system approved by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

Only five other towns of the 57 communities invited by the MBTA to develop a mini-bus proposal submitted plans to the state office last week. They are Framingham, Lexington, Stoneham, Swampscott, and Wellesley.

The MBTA will approve two of the plans and fund 50 percent of the system's operating deficit starting Jan. 1, 1979.

According to a MBTA official, the two adopted proposals will be subject to the approval of the MBTA advisory board and the governor's executive office for transportation.

A selection commission is presently studying the six proposals, two of which were submitted past the Aug. 31 deadline. The MBTA spokesman said "We wanted to hold it open (the deadline date) for a couple of days to get a maximum response."

Town Manager Thomas Groux said Winchester could have used the extra couple of days to improve its proposal "I think we could have strengthened our proposal if we knew the MBTA wasn't going to be strict about the deadline," Groux said.

The selection commission is made up of representatives from the state, such as from the governor's office of transportation, the MBTA advisory board staff (members who do not represent any towns for reasons of impartiality) and the MBTA.

The MBTA's advisory board is made up of state representatives and Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh is one of them. So that each town has an equal chance for approval, the representatives will not participate in the selection commission.

Criteria being used by the commission include:

—Quality of the proposal;
—Coordination with town social services and activities;
—Adequacy of management plan;
—Evidence of community support;
—Innovation of service concept.

The commission is expected to release its findings by Oct. 1, and if Winchester's proposal is accepted, the plan will be brought to the fall town meeting.

Bedford, Needham and Natick are presently operating mini-bus systems, and, according to the MBTA official, all three are working well. A fourth town, Weymouth, recently started up its mini-bus system.

Lincoln parents coffee Tuesday

The Lincoln School Parents' Association is scheduling a morning coffee on Tuesday, at 9:30 a.m. at the school library. All parents are invited to get acquainted with each other and the new board members. New parents are especially urged to attend.

A general business meeting will be conducted by the presdient of the parents' association, Mrs. Lucy Peck.

A representative from the League of Women Voters will speak about Chapter 622.

Police nab fugitive sought by Boston police

Winchester police last week apprehended a South Boston man wanted by Boston police on assault and battery and a default charge on a $5000 bond.

The man was remanded to the Charles street jailhouse in Boston and was arraigned in Woburn District Court Tuesday. His case was continued to Oct. 13 pending payment of $1000 bail. If he does not secure bail, he will be tried Friday because the court ruled that it does not want the state to pay for the man's expenses in jail.

Boston police tacked on an additional $3000 bond for his failing to pay the $5000 bond.

Winchester police apprehended the man for operating a stolen vehicle, a green Ford convertible, registered to a Wilmington man. Police later charged him with attaching plates and driving without a license.

When Winchester police investigated further, it was found that the man had a forged title in his possession, a mutilated inspection sticker, and was driving an unregistered and uninsured vehicle.

In other police business, five breaking and entries were reported in town this week.

On Friday, between 8:30 a.m. and 2:15 p.m., a Cambridge street house was ransacked and five checkbooks with 25 checks in each book taken. The owner reported that she had $700 in cash in the house, but had taken it out that morning. Police theorize that the thief was searching for the cash.

The Unitarian Church on Main street was also entered illegally between 11 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday. A glass pane in a rear door was broken and entry was gained through the opening. Church officials reported nothing missing.

More than $250 in car oil, 11 gallons of anti freeze and a bottle of dry gas were stolen sometime over the weekend from a local gas station. The proprietor reported to police that a key would have to be used to get in the building.

A River street business was burglarized Monday and four tool boxes, worth $1500 was taken, police said, and a Standish lane house was ransacked when thieves slit a screen in a rear window after gaining access to the window by climbing a stone wall.

Also, two 17-year-old youths were arrested this week by police for malicious damage to town property.

According to police, the youths operated cars on a grass strip of land on Euclid avenue, tearing the strip's turf.

Witnesses obtained registration numbers of the cars and the boys were later arrested at their homes, one on Eaton court, the other on Quigley court. Their cases have been continued to later this month in Woburn District Court.

About half-a-dozen motor vehicle accidents occurred this week but none resulted in serious personal injury, police report. In one accident, a Woburn woman struck an Edison pole and a fire alarm box last Thursday at the White Hen store on Main street.

On Saturday, a Woburn man was issued a citation for running a flashing red light on Highland avenue and ramming another vehicle at 4:05 p.m.

In fire department reports, a town-owned turf tractor caught on fire Monday at Davidson Park off Cross street. Dry grass ignited from leaking gasoline. No injuries were reported.

Lahey Clinic wins fight in Supreme Court

After two years of battling through the public health bureaucracy and the courts, the Lahey Clinic has won its case.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court Monday ruled against appeals brought by a taxpayer group of doctors and the state Health Facilities Appeals Board. Those groups had been the latest to try to stop the building of an $81 million, 200-bed hospital by the Lahey Clinic in Burlington.

Local doctors had argued that the Lahey project was approved through the use of political muscle and that moving Lahey out to Burlington from Boston would increase the cost of health care in the region. Lahey in turn charged the doctors feared the competition Lahey might give to local health facilities, such as Winchester Hospital.

"What can we do? That's the end of it. Now the people can pay for it," said a resigned Dr. James F. McDonough, one of the local doctors involved in the anti-Lahey suit. Dr. McDonough insisted that the doctors' motives in trying to stop Lahey were "based on principle, not selfishness."

Dr. Robert Wise, chief Lahey administrator, was "gratified" at the decision. "We are continuing construction and hope to develop friendly and compatible relationships with other institutions in the area."

Lahey first applied for permission to build (called a Determination of Need) in 1972. The DON was approved by the department of public health in 1972 for a 400,000 square foot facility to cost no more than $43 million. The DPH later revised its regulations to allow for certain cost overruns.

Filing "friend of the court" briefs on the side of the doctors were several area medical societies. Lahey in turn had the backing of the Burlington Selectmen and a local consumer group.

By 1976, the Lahey project had grown to 675,000 square feet to be built at a substantially higher cost. In December, 1976, the DPH approved the revised plan. Immediately, several taxpayer groups, made up of doctors and hospital administrators, appealed the decision, claiming that Lahey had violated its DON. The taxpayers bowed out of the dispute after being faced with possible expensive countersuits from Lahey. Another taxpayer group, including several Winchester doctors, jumped into the fray along with the Health Facilities Appeals Board. The board claimed that it had a right to appeal the DPH decision of December, 1976.

The case went to Superior Court, where Judge Robert Bonin decided for Lahey. Both the board and the doctors appealed to the Supreme Court. In the Monday decision, the court said the Health Facilities Appeals Board did not have the right to appeal the DPH decision.

Construction at Lahey had been held up pending approval of a federal guarantee for a $70 million loan. That guarantee came last winter, while the case was still under appeal.

Sachems lose opener, 6-0

All's quiet on the WHS football front

By JON KALMAN

The solemn faces of Coaches Manny Marshall and Thomas Kline and the quiet of Winchester Center mirrored the outcome of Winchester's season opening 6-0 loss against Natick High Saturday.

Winchester, ranked eighth in pre-season Division 1 polls, was tripped by a scrappy Natick team determined to avenge last year's 6-0 loss to the Sachems.

Winchester's pre-season indicated the addition of an extremely potent offense to their annually terrorizing defense, as they steamrolled over their two pre-season opponents, tallying more than 80 points while holding the other teams' point production to a mere 10.

The outcome, then, was a considerable surprise to everyone on both sides.

"I don't understand it," remarked a distressed Coach Marshall, "We score eight touchdowns one game and get shut out a week later." A Natick coach similarly stated, "It was an unexpected surprise for me. I kept expecting Winchester to unleash its offense."

Natick won the coin toss, electing to receive, and Steve Smith opened the 1978-1979 season with an arching kick fielded on the Redman 23-yard line by Micha3l Casey. Casey returned the ball 10 yards behind a line of Natick blockers.

Natick's first three offensive plays were unsuccessful-two carries by Senior fullback Ray Allen and a sweep by quarterback William Flutie-as Winchester's iron curtain defense sealed the line of scrimmage.

Redman Doug Flutie, an outsttanding athlete and William's brother, puntted from his own 30-yard line, lofting a short 32-yarder caught by Sachem Scott Farrar.

Winchester's offense sputtered on its first possession as Natick co-captains Mark Onorato and Dave Robbins stopped Sam Bellino and Tom Murray, forcing a fourth down situation.

Steve Smith's punt from back on the Sachem 37-yard line was partially deflected by Redman Al Cosimini, falling just short of the Natick 42-yard line.

The Sachem defensive squad again bottled up Natick's offense, despite a fine pass by QB Flutie to Ray Allen coming out of the backfield. Tri-captains Bellino, Murray, and John Shattuck put the clamps on Natick runners.

On the next series, Murray fumbled a handoff by Sachem quarterback Dave O'Neil. Mark Onorato recovered the loose pigskin for Natick on his own 48-yard line.

Four plays later Ray Allen dashed into the end zone with an electrifying 37-yard touchdown jaunt. The extra point attempt failed as Flutie overthrew Peter Donovon in the end zone.

Sam Bellino returned Doug Flutie's kickoff for eight yards, where he was stopped by Redman Jim Bourque. Senior QB O'Neil then marched the Sachems 24 yards upfield to the Winchester 49-yard line as the quarter ended with Natick leading 6-0.

Winchester opened the second quarter with a short second down gain by O'Neil. Natick end George Sellew slipped a block to make the tackle.

O'Neil dropped back on third and three, rifling an aerial that was picked off by Doug Flutie. Flutie raced 25-yards to the Sachem 28-yard line, where he was tackled by Murray.

Natick began a slow grind towards the goal line as a determined Sachem defense stifled the Redman running backs. On fourth down Flutie slipped a pass to Allen, who turned it into a 16-yard gain and Natick was poised on the Sachem eight yard line.

The Redman threat ended, however, as the Sachem defense allowed only five yards on the next four plays, regaining possession on the Winchester three-yard line.

The Sachems mounted their first sustained drive, marching 76-yards to the Natick 29-yard line as Murray and Bellino punched through the Redman defense. The drive ended following an incomplete pass and a fumbled handoff as Onorato and Robert Planchy pressured O'Neil. The score remained 6-0 as the half ended.

The second half started with the feeling the Winchester would begin its anticipated scoring bombardment, but the scoring onslaught never came.

Winchester did gain good field position following a 15-yard kickoff return by Scott Farrar, but after a few ineffective plays, the Sachems had lost all momentum andere forced to punt.

The third quarter continued with neither Winchester nor Natick capittalizing on their possessions. The Sachems did manage to begin one sustained drive but a disputed fumble gave possession back to the Redmen.

Natick used this gift to move 60-yards to the Sachem 17-yard line, but the quarter and the Redman threat ended as the staunch Winchester defense staved off the Natick rally.

When the final whistle blew signalling the end of the game, all Natick had forgotten about Winchester's mighty offensive muscle, while the Winchester contingent was forced to wonder how David had slayed Goliath.

Quarterback notes: Despite Winchester's lack of offense, three players did stand out. Tri-captain Sam Bellino and Tom Murray provide Winchester with two powerful runners capable of making tthe long gain, and senior Nick Fitzgerald provides a sorely needed pair of hands to catch Dave O'Neil's aerials.

Sachem Coach Manny Marshall doesn't look too happy about how things are going in Saturday's game against Natick. Sachems lost some steam between their pre-season scrimmages and the first game and lost, 6-0.

Bantam AA's beaten by Lowell in pre-season scrimmage, 3-2

The Winchester Bantam AA's dropped a close contest Sunday evening to Lowell 3-2, as they prepare for the season's opening game against Woburn.

This year's Bantam hockey team will play a 26-game schedule against Middlesex League competition which is considered to feature some of the finest hockey at this age level in New England. In previous years, teams representing the Middlesex League have captured national chamionships.

Both teams battled evenly during first period play. Lowell's Flanagan broke the scoring deadlock at 14:58 gathering an errant puck and scoring unassisted as Winchester was caught up ice. Chris Parker, Tony Celli and Tom Sullivan led the Winchester attack during the period, keeping the pressure on and narrowly missing on several good scoring efforts.

Winchester knotted the score mid-way through the second period as Steve Marino foiled a Lowell rush. Steve Masiello shoveled the puck to Chris Parker who, breaking in, beat the Lowell netminder by cleverly sliding the puck under the goalie's pads.

Lowell roared back scoring twice before the period ended with the back breaker coming on a slapshot from the point that took several bounces before being tipped into the right side of the Winchester cage.

Third period action was spirited with veterans Paul White and Marino standouts defensively for the Bantams. Steve Tucci's hard work brought the Bantams to within one as he scored from a jam, in front unassisted. Winchester kept the pressure on and outplayed Lowell by a wide margin but could not capitalize on several excellent scoring bids.

Marino's strong slapshot rung the crossbar in the last minute of play as Winchester attempted to rally for the tying goal. All in all, although in a losing cause, it was an excellent team effort and signs look encouraging for the season.

Offensively, Steve and Paul Tucci move the puck well and Masiello's hard skating will prove valuable.

2 students semifinalists in merit program

Stephanie R. Nicholas and Leila Schneps, two Winchester High School students, have been named semifinalists in the 24th annual National Merit Scholarship competition making them eligible for some of the nation's most prestigious scholastic awards.

This years's semifinalists are among some 15,000 students, nearly all of them high school seniors, in the United States and overseas who will compete for National Merit and related scholarships next spring.

The semifinalists are selected on the basis of scores on preliminary scholastic aptitude tests that each took in his or her junior year last fall.

Twelve other Winchster High School students have been named commended students in the Program.

They are Timothy A. Benson, Benjamin A. Bloch, Terrence J. Costello, Sherri L. Daugherty, Rebecca Ewing, Nicholas Fitzgerald, Richard E. Humphrey, Bruce E. Hunter, Martha A. Johnson, Charles E. Osgood, Stephanie Schwartzman, and Ann J. Williamson.

Although commended students scored slightly below the level required for Merit Program participants who were named semifinalists, each student has demonstrated exceptional academic promise.

Girls lose first match; rematch today

The Winchester High School Girls' Soccer team made it a close one, but they lost their first match Tuesday afternoon by a 2-1 score to Concord-Carlisle High School.

Kathleen Driscoll scored the one goal for the Sachemettes, who held on to a 1-0 lead through the first half of the game.

The girls will have a chance for revenge this afternoon when they meet CCHS here at Leonard Field, starting at 3:30 p.m.

Located on the Seine River 70 miles northwest of Paris, Rouen, France has long been of great historical interest. An important British military base in World War I, many of Rouen's fine buildings were damaged during the war, though some, such as the Church of St. Ouen and the 14th Century Tour de la Grosse Horloge (clock tower) were unharmed. Rouen became the capital of Normandy in the 10th Century; it was here that William the Conquerer died, and where Joan of Arc was tried and burned. Rouen is also the birthplace of Gustave Flaubert, who had much to say of his hometown in his masterpiece Madame Bovary.

An inside look at tennis tournament seeding

By BILL HART

At the home of Peggy and Jack Wiseman, on the evening of Sept. 6, sat a group of 15 distinguished leaders from all over Winchester to seed the top tennis players for the 49th Annual Winchester Town Tennis Tournament. There were over 200 hopefuls who entered this fall event. The tournament began Sept. 9 and will continue for three consecutive weekends at the Packer Courts.

These leaders were ready for an evening of hard work and anxious moments. Perhaps their decisions were not as momentous as those that took place at Camp David during the past two weeks, nevertheless, ones that could cause a blood bath on Palmer Street if a top tennis player was ignored from the ranked list.

The talks began around a large rectangular table with the flood of a ceiling light pouring on the committee. Peggy and Jack Wiseman acted as the runners for the group. Bob Gallant, the sage, walked about the table giving his years of expertise as to the strength and weakness of each player. Stella Gallant filled in where Bob was hesitant on the virtues of the female players.

Cynthia Daley held in her hands the cards for the mixed double entrants. She was about to read the team names when Barbara and Chuck Gulino walked in the back door giving their apologies for tardiness. The committee grunted their acknowledgement and Cynthia began the task once again.

Couple after couple's names were read from the cards with a chorus of "yes," "no," or "possibility" to a seeding spot. Bill and Ann Ferry, familiar with the mixed double teams in Winchester, voiced their opinion on the many tough decisions. Denis and Joan Byrne and Prep and Barbara Keyes nodded in agreement with the Ferry's choice for a ranking.

On a second reading the "possibilities" were thrown out with the "no's." The mixed double event ended with eight seeded teams. Cynthis Daley and Karl Hirshman; Lucy and Ted White; Peggy and Jack Wiseman and Bill and Ann Ferry filled the top four seeded slotts.

To determine the next four seeded teams, in a field of 50, a coin was flipped. All 50 teams are in pursuit of the silver cup. Perhaps Prime Minister Begin and President Sadat should do the same for the West Bank with a simple flip of a coin or a twist of a tennis racquet.

Before the names were officially written on the draw sheet, in walked Alex and Doris Miller. Peggy lifted her head, smiled, and told the two that they would serve as host and hostess o, the tea committee. This is the committee that carries pails of water, crushes ice, and keeps the 20 gallon urn filled with iced tea. A necessary task that no one envies but one that must be done. A word of advice to the next couple for the 50th meeting - don't be the last to arrive or you, too, will be asked to "pour" for this prestigious tea.

The 50 mixed double names were printed on the sheet. The committee had completed their tough task for this one event. The sheet was folded, hermetically sealed, and guarded as if by Price-Waterhouse to be opened Friday evening, Sept. 9.

P.S. The only seeded team in the mixed doubles to make the finals was Pinky and Alex Samoiloff, seeded seventh. They will play this Saturday at 9 a.m. against Paula DiOrio and John Meade, unseeded.

Dawn Hudson, left, defeated Dee Dee Cunningham last Sunday to win the Winchester Women's Singles Tennis Title.

Elio tops in men's tennis

By JAMES R. STEWART JR.

Climaxing his march through the title aspirants, Carmen Elio emerged the winner of the Winchester Tennis Association-sponsored town men's singles crown with an impressive 6-3, 6-7(5-0), 6-1 conquest of Richard Scheinberg.

Impressive in the first set, Elio struggled to gain composure in the second set and then swept through his opponent for the deciding set in a steady succession of clever lobs and well-laced angle shots.

Bobby Horne became the 1978 men's 45-and-over champion with a devastating mixture of backhand and forehand drives to smother Charlie Watson 6-0, 6-1. Watson was unable to handle the constant array of Horne's arsenal. Not overpowering, but deadly accurate shotmaking was the catalyst in Horne'svictory.

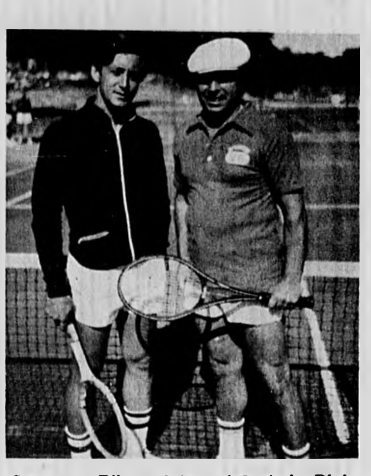
Dawn Hudson bested Dee Dee Cuningham in the women's singles final, 6-3, 6-4. Remarkably inconsistent, Dawn was able to put together enough critical winners to emerge vi torious. The out-gunned Dee Dee hung on in the second set, forcing errors from the ultimate winner as she came from way back to just fail to force the match into a third set.

This Saturday, the finals in the doubles competition will be staged at the William S. Packer Tennis Courts.

Starting at 9 a.m., Paula DiIorio and John Meade will face Leslie and Vandy French for the mixed doubles Championship.

At noon, Peggy Wiseman and Cynthia Daley will battle against Sue Cowen and Dee Dee Cunningham for the women's doubles title.

Later in the afternoon, it is expected that the men's doubles final will be contested between the winner of Bill Macneill-Parker Gray vs Dick Scheinberg-Ted Martin against Wil Aldrich-Carmen Elio.



Carmen Elio, right, defeated Dick Scheinberg for the Crown Saturday.

Race entry deadline Friday

Tomorrow is the deadline for obtaining entry blanks for the five-mile Mystic Lake Road Race to be held this Sunday to benefit the Boston Floating Hospital.

The race will leave from Sandy Beach off the Mystic Valley parkway at 11 a.m., rain or shine. The race, sponsored by Kennedy's, is sanctioned by the New England Amateur Athletic Union.

Entry blanks are available at the Burlington Mall Kennedy's store and at other Kennedy's stores. There is an entry fee. Prizes will be awarded in six divisions, including male open, female open, female masters, male masters, wheelchair female, and wheelchair male.

Field hockey ties opener at Stoneham

By KELLY GATELY

With all the hardwork and pre-season training behind, this year's girls' field hockey team anxiously awaited the season opener against Stoneham. After an early team breakfast and a caravan of ornamented, beeping cars, the girls seemed pysched to post their first game in the win column. They did the next best thing however, as they came from behind to tie Stoneham 1-1 on a late goal by Sachem co-captain Beth Noble.

As co-captains Nella Barrow and Beth Noble s5ated in the pre-game pep rally Friday, this year's field hockey is "special." Because of the new girls' soccer program, many promising hockey players turned to soccer, leaving many spots open. They didn't let this bother them in their tie against Stoneham and seemed to respond with some excellent sophomore and junior players.

Stoneham dominated throughout the game, and without the outstanding goaltending by Nella Barrow, Winchester would have been in serious trouble. After a scoreless tie at the end of the first half, Stoneham broke the ice. Diane Kwiatkowski placed a high shot over the shoulder of Barrow after a mix-up in front of the net, to put Stoneham ahead 1-0.

In the last five minutes Winchester came alive to stage a comeback. On a corner by Caroline Twomey, Beth Noble scooped a shot out of the reach of the Stoneham goalie to tie it at 1-1.

This year's team with coaches Dipietro and MacDonald seems promising. After an excellent pre-season record, the team's potential is very strong and a title shot is not out of reach. Led by laudable captains Noble and Barrow, the team consists of: seniors - Janet Bishop, Debbie Bosco, Cindy Cunningham, Sue Flaherty, Linda Pierce and Tricia Shanley; juniors - Kathy Day, Annette Ferry, Darcy Fitzgerald, Mary Grassi, Kathy Heffernan, Stephanie Johnson, Colleen McGann, Marlene Metrick, Alison Shirley, Margot von Rosenvinge, and Kathleen Welch; sophomores - Mary Boland, Mary Connolly, Kathy Corkery, Nancy Cowan, Laura Cunningham, Amy Dillon, Amy Fitzgerald, Sue Fitzgerald, Alice Green, Robin Hill, Jane Kent, Kathy Looney, Elaine Pigott, and Caroline Twomey.

Other items on the light agenda include school committee reports, personnel matters, bid awards and a review of the budget status.

Scuba course

The North Suburban YMCA offers a scuba course

Tanks, snorkel, and fins can put you right into the inner depths of the sea, but they can also put you into your coffin. Scuba diving can be fun and wholesome recreation, but it can be dangerous, too.

That's why the YMCA strongly recommends a total Scuba course conducted by a certified YMCA instructor. Learn to Scuba the right way - the Y's way - for a lifetime of fun and adventure beneath the water.

Scuba is just one of the many water safety classes being offered now at the North Suburban YMCA.

Registration for fall classes will be Sept 17 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. For further information, call the Y at 935-3270

Jeannine Shubitowski of Detroit was maid of honor. She wore a mint green floral gown with short sleeves and ruffled skirt, and carried green pom pom mums.

Bridesmaids were Barbara Boylan of Winchester; Karen Couture of Reading and Nona Otto, sister of the groom of Michigan. All wore pale yellow floral gowns and carried yellow pom pom mums.

Fredrick Otto of Minnesota, was best man for his brother. Two other brothers, Mark Ottto of Michigan and Stephen Otto of Illinois, and Eric van Gemeren, the bride's brother, of Winchester, ushered.

The bride's mother was dressed in a long dress with a beige bodice and mint green floral skirt.

The bridegroom's mother wore a long mint green gown.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1978 graduate of Michigan State University. She is employed as a nursery supervisor at Hilltop Orchards and Nurseries, Hartford, Mich.

The groom is also employed at Hilltop Orchards and Nurseries as orchard manager. He is a 1973 graduate of St. Joseph's High School, South Ben, Ind., and Michigan State University, class of 1977.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Centre Meeting House, Niles, Mich.

After a wedding trip to Traverse City, Mich. the couple are making their home in Bangor, Mich.

Discover the Adventure of Creative Cooking at the Cook's Kitchen
Did you ever think of cooking as one of the creative arts — a source of personal accomplishment to be shared with your friends? If so, the Cook's Kitchen is the place for you.
Located on the Burlington Campus, the Cook's Kitchen offers imaginative courses, each taught by a practitioner of the culinary arts. Class titles are Great Beginnings, American Ingenuity, International Cookery, Two's Company, A Taste of Italy, and What About the Classics.
Classes are small and are held weekly starting September 25 — days from 10:00 AM to 1:00 PM, evenings from 7:00 to 10:00 PM. After each class, you dine on your creations.

REAL ESTATE

ADVANTAGES OF BUYING A HOUSE

The decision on whether to rent or buy a home is one that eventually confronts almost every family. If this is your case, here are a few thoughts to consider.

First, an equity (cash value) is built up as you pay for the home over the years. And, its resale value can increase greatly (as has been the case in recent times) with rising real estate prices.

Also, property taxes and mortgage interest can be deducted from income taxes. This can be a sizable tax deduction, especially during the early years of the mortgage when about 90 percent of the monthly payment represents interest on the loan. Rent, on the other hand, cannot be deducted from anything but the checking account.

When you own your own home, there is no fear of a raise in rent; your monthly mortgage payments remain the same for the life of the mortgage. Finally, where else can you find investment that you and your family can live in while its value increases?

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

NATIONAL HOME RELOCATION SERVICE

Pennell & Thompson, Realtors are now affiliated with National Home Relocation Service. The nation-wide network of independent brokers' sole concern is to offer relocation services to their clients moving out of the member broker's area.

Pennell & Thompson's clients pay nothing for this added service. It is simply Pennell & Thompson's way of maintaining "back home" business responsibility to their clients who move away.

National Home Relocation Service has members that service over 1,000 communities, in all fifty states, and some countries. The local broker contacts a member office in his transferring client's new city. The realtor broker in that city will screen homes, pick up clients at airports, arrange temporary quarters, etc. Constant contact is made between both brokers, as well as with the home office of National Home Relocation Service. In this way, independent brokers can remain independent and yet be connected with a nation-wide referral network.

An interview with T. J. Anderson

A classical composer who's not in the classic mold

By ALLEGRA ATKINSON

T.J. Anderson, Winchester resident and chairman of the music department at Tufts University, is thought by many to be one of America's most talented avant-garde classical composers. He has received innumerable honors and commissions, written more than 50 compositions, ranging from chamber suites to large orchestral works, and had his works premiered and performed by orchestras and chamber ensembles throughout the country.

In 1972, he was nationally acclaimed for his orchestration of Scott Joplin's ragtime opera, "Treemonisha." In 1976, he was commissioned by the National Endowment for the Arts to compose a large scale orchestral work for the Bicentennial, "Horizons '76."

He has toured extensively, lecturing on contemporary and Afro-American music both at universities and private institutions in the US and Europe, and traveled as a cultural ambassador to Brazil in 1976 for the US Department of State.

In honor of his 50th birthday, Boston musicians and composers, Tufts colleagues, and Winchester friends have planned a concert of Anderson's works, to be performed at the Longy School of Music in Cambridge Sept. 29. The 8 p.m. concert will feature the premiere of Anderson's new chamber suite, "Variations on a Theme by Alan Berg."

In a recent interview, Dr. Anderson commented on some of the successes and frustrations of a career that has established him as one of the nation's leading black classical composers.

Q: Do you find the public surprised to find a black composer working in the classical medium?

A: Yes. Traditional stereotypes would place me in the field of jazz, yet all of my background and upbringing prepared me for a classical career. My mother was a pianist and my father on the faculty at Howard University. I played violin from a young age; concert and recital attendance was a regular family activity. Then, in junior high school, I began playing the trumpet and started my own jazz band. By my early teens I was touring summers with a professional jazz band; they had to borrow a union card for me so that I could play!

I learned at an early age that life on the road was not for me and that I would never be a serious jazz performer. However, the experience as a professional jazz musician was invaluable. Today, when I talk about fingering a note, I know what the fingers are.

Q: How did you decide on a career as a composer rather than an instrumentalist?

A: At West Virginia State College, I majored in music education, and when I graduated in 1950 I planned to become a band director and music teacher. However, those goals changed radically at Penn State University when I began studying composition with George Ceiga. I went on to complete a PhD in composition at the University of Iowa and then to study composition with Scott Huston and later Darius Milhaud at the Aspen School of Music. I've never regretted my professional choice. Composition is to me the ultimate form of musical expression.

Q: How many other black composers are working in the field of classical music?

A: I'd estimate 500 black composers, 150-200 serious classical composers. There's a whole generation ahead of me, people like Howard Swanson of New York, William Grant Still of Los Angeles, and William Dawson of Tuskegee, Alabama. They have written a large number of orchestral and choral works which serve as an inspiration, although the pieces are not well-known to the public.

Q: Much of this work is lost to the American public?

A: Yes, it is. Yet, there is a kind of grapevine, a network that communicates what is going on. "Black Perspectives," edited by Eileen Southern of Harvard, keeps people abreast of some of the important work.

Q: How receptive is the classical field to new ideas?

A: There's almost an unwritten formula. Those things that are the most successful have little to do with significant contribution. Dittersdorf was extremely popular. His career overshadowed Beethoven's, but how many people know about him today? In New England, Edward MacDowell, John Knowles Payne, Chadwick and Converse had significant reputations in their lifetimes. Yet, today they are forgotten.

We talk about Joplin, Ives and Gershwin. "Porgy and Bess" was a flop when it premiered in Boston, but now it's considered one of the great contributions to American operatic literature. Bartok died penniless, yet he's perhaps the greatest composer of this century.

What you have to guard against is figuring that because you're obscure you've produced the great masterpiece. Many artists who are obscure should be obscure.

Q: How do you assess your own career from a 50th birthday perspective?

A: I'm a young composer. Your career really starts at 50. I think the first 10 years of my career I focused on the problem of liberating myself from my formal education and developing my own style of composition.

In the past decade I've focused predominantly on chamber music and the intensity of my music has greatly increased. Structures like the traditional forms of the early period — sonata forms, rondos, — have disappeared for organic vehicles which are dictated by the music itself. As an example, the piece, "Minstrel Man" starts off with an ostinato, a repeated pattern which I heard from the National Dancers of Mali in Nashville over 15 years ago. The difference between my use of the pattern is that it's constantly transformed into different metric relationships. The piece finally goes into a ragtime section' each section flowing rather than being consciously pre-conceived.

Q: What do you see in store for the next decade?

A: I realize that while I am young, I'm running out of time and I have to get more down on paper. I'm working now on an orchestral piece that makes use of Creole songs. My family can be traced from Martinique in the 1700s to this country, and there is so much I can draw upon musically from this background. I want to spend the next 10 years bringing my heritage forth in a personal and professional way.

Q: What restrictions, if any, have you felt up to now in your career?

A: Black composers receive rave reviews in Europe but are not given the same kind of chance here. Jazz seems to be the only area where blacks can receive recognition. Blacks are expected to be culturally proficient in gospel music, some forms of dance and comic theater, but certainly not in classical music. These stereotypes have held true for generations and affect people's expectations of black artists and the kinds of funds available to them for work.

Q: Why do you think this kind of racial stereotyping of the black artist persists?

A: It's really a carry-over from the image of blacks in society and also has to do with the elitist attitude of white society. For instance, it's all right to have a black baseball player, but until recently not a manager. Blacks dominate football, but we don't see a black coach and never a black quarterback. That's the brains of the team.

Similarly, there are certain things in society that are expected of the black artist. Black singers, particularly women, have been accepted, but not black instrumentalists. There's one black player in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, a harpist, and I think there's one in Cleveland. I don't know of any in Washington, DC, a city dominated by black people. The Philadelphia Symphony has one black instrumentalist who resigned. He said the pressure was too great.

There is no major orchestra or minor orchestra in the US conducted by a black on a permanent basis.

Composer T.J. Anderson

Q: What's the reason for this?

A: Management says they can't find blacks, but we see them graduating from conservatories every day. In Boston we have a group called Concert in Black and White which is committed to the development of black orchestral musicians, or they could find young musicians from the Elma Lewis School and put them under the tutelage of members of the orchestra. They can find Russian refugees for the BSO, but they can't find blacks. Don't get me wrong. I'm not against Russian refugees.

Dead Dixon, a great black conductor who died — conductor of the Julliard Orchestra — made a sensible suggestion when he said, "I'd recommend that all auditions be done from behind a screen."

Q: Who would you name in Boston as being especially supportive of the black arts?

A: Wendell English, director of Concerts in Black and White, has brought minority soloists to Boston and given opportunities for a few black musicians to perform orchestral literature. And Elma Lewis, of course, has been important in training young black musicians. These people have done what they can, but they are basically powerless.

Q: How do you deal with the frustrations that you feel in encountering these kinds of problems?

A: You have to live in the culture; you can't divorce yourself from it. But on the other side, you always know you're an outsider. I don't see it as a choice. I can't make my hair blonde, turn my eyes blue. Although I wear a coat and tie most of the time, people realize they're talking to a black man with a coat and tie on. There are some blacks who try to ignore race, but I think they're like ostriches with their heads in the sand.

Color is not a handicap. Rather, I see myself in a kind of missionary work. I have an obligation to see that those around me become more sensitive to cultural pluralism. I don't see myself as a spokesman for black people, but as one black man with his own way of seeing things.

New members welcomed

GOP women hear speaker

Rep. Iris Holland of the Longmeadow District spoke to the new members meeting of the Winchester Women's Republican Club Sept. 1 and urged her listeners to "keep in touch with your legislators and inform them of your views."

Winchester Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. introduced his colleague, citing her successful bid in 1972 to become the first woman legislator elected west of Worcester. He praised her work in the House and called her a "legislator's legislator."

The meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Blackham, was opened by President Mrs. Ralph Swanson, who welcomed the new members and then presented a corsage and honorary membership to Mrs. Willi[illegible] D. Barone, citing her for her long years of service to the club and to the party.

Other special guests recognized by Mrs. Swanson included former Rep. Harrison Chadwick, League of Women Voters President Marcia Wood, School board Chairman Constance Papas, and local teacher Ann Dolan.

Rep. Holland dicussed her work on the joint Senate-House Education Committee, in particular her concern for the recent decline in test scores at the college and secondary levels. She advocated required deficiency testing at earlier levels and emphasized that parents should take more responsibility in such matters and work more closely with teachers.

She urged the GOP women to let their legislators know their views before legislative votes are taken. "There are many powerful lobbies on Beacon Hill who make their views known," Rep. Holland told the group. "Too often the individual doesn't take the trouble to present his or her position to counteract the lobbies."

Following a question period, Mrs. Swanson closed the meeting with a reminder asking for support for the Candlelight Candidates' Buffet, scheduled for Oct. 12 at the Methodist Church (the original Oct. 4 date has been changed so as not to conflict with the annual senior citizens' fair).

WHY JOIN A DRUM CORPS?
FOR TRAVEL...PRIDE...SKILL...FRIENDS... EXCITEMENT...and more

What is a Drum & Bugle Corps?
It's a team of up to 128 boys and girls who play drums and bugles, spin rifles, twirl flags, and compete for prizes and trophies in a series of competitions all summer. In the spring and fall, they march in parades.

Is it work?
Yes: If you call it work to learn to play a musical instrument, to spin and throw a rifle, to handle a flag, to learn the tricks — and pleasure — of marching with young people your own age.

Is it fun?
As a drum corps member — when you reach that final note — and 5000 people rise to their feet to give your corps a standing ovation...when your drum major steps forward proudly to accept a prize for the corps...when you board a bus for Canada, for Pennsylvania, for Connecticut and you're already feeling the excitement of the coming show...when the drums sound, and you step out for a parade, knowing people will be clapping for you all along the route. You know it's fun.

Who will teach me how to play a bugle...or spin a rifle?
Experienced music and marching instructors, who were all in drum corps themselves.

Does drum corps membership cost money?
No.

Do the music and marching lessons cost too?
The answer is yes, but not much. Not as much as private lessons or baseball, hockey, dancing or football — or a week at summer camp. You'll pay weekly dues, but most of the money to run a drum corps is raised by the management and parents of drum corps members.

WHO CAN JOIN THE HEIGHTSMEN?

YOU...If you're at least 12 but not yet 21.
YOU...If you have 2 evenings a week and summer weekends free.
YOU...If you're the kind of a person who wants to be with a winner.
YOU...If you want the excitement, travel and fun of being in Drum Corps.

What is Boston's "off-Broadway" theater ike? How does a theater production group lefine its audience? Pick its repertoire? Set ts style and goals?

The theater fest sponsored by the Win-hester Wellesley Club invites the public to a lisplay of theater in Boston today Oct. 12 at he Parish of the Epiphany Hall.

Benefit coordinator Anita Martin has planned this year's morning program that will explore theater in both a theoretical and practical way. The Boston Arts Group - Lunchtime Theatre (BLT) will use two plays to demonstrate how a group works through to a final production, presenting "The Dock Brief" at 10 a.m. and "Loveliest Afternoon of the Year" at noon.

At 11 a.m., Jim Butterfield, co-founder and former artistic director of the BLT, will present a seminar on the hows and whys of Production.

A committee chaired by Susan Vrotsos is planning the salad bar luncheon to be served following the program. There will also be a boutique featuring such gift items as monoprints and ceramic pottery.

Club members were introduced to Theater Day at a wine reception hosted by Margie McIndoe last week. Committee members, who have been planning this year's benefit since last spring, summarized the upcoming program for the attending members.

Ticket chairman Nancy Hudson has repeated last year's American Arts Forum price and again included a discount for senior citizens. Tickets will be sold in advance only. Every member of the Wellesley Club has tickets to Theater Day; or you may call Nancy Hudson at 729-1061.

Proceeds from the benefit will again be divided among the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Wellesley College, and the Wellesley Students' Aid Society.

Hospital Friends to meet Oct. 9th

The Friends of the Winchester Hosptial will hold their annual fall meeting Oct. 19th, at the home of Mrs. Mihael J. Hurley, 20 Hillcrest pkwy., at 9 a.m. Coffee will be served.

Jaycee-ettes flea market Saturday

This Saturday marks the 10th anniversary of the Jaycee-ettes Flea Market. The event will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Town Hall parking lot.

The public is invited to come and browse among the many tables displaying antiques, jewelry, wood products, copper products, stained glass ornaments and other general flea market items.

In addition, the Jaycee-ettes themselves will be selling crafts and baked goods. The chuckwagon will be providing coffee and donuts in the morning along with hot dogs and soft drinks throughout the day. The salad bar will also be in operation during the lunch hour.

A few spaces are still available. For last minute reservations, call 729-1332 or 729-3260.

Newcomers' Club plans first party

A wine-and-cheese party to be held on Sunday, Oct. 1 will be the Winchester Newcomers Club's first social function of the season.

The party is planned for 3 to 6 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashley of 11 Plato ter.

The event is intended to help new residents of Winchester meet one another and build a circle of friends within the community. A special invitation to attend has been issued to all adults who have moved into Winchester within the past three years.

Although the club is an organization of women, the wine-and-cheese party, like other Newcomers events, is for couples.

Those planning to attend the party are asked to notify Mrs. Susan Menucci, of 30 North Border rd., or Mrs. Susan McGonagle, of 38 Grove st. To cover expenses, there will be a small charge per couple.

LWV coffee

League of Women Voters of Winchester is holding its annual coffee for prospective members.

Anyone interested in learning more about the league and its activities is invited. No personal invitation necessary.

The meeting will be held at the home of Dee Ruta, 9 Ridgefield rd. on Friday, Sept. 29 at 9:30 a.m.

Art association picture lending party October 1

The Winchester Art Association will hold its second picture lending party of the 1978-79 season Oct. 1, from 3-5 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson, 61 Arlington st.

Patrons are reminded to return paintings currently on loan to the Johnson home on the preceding Saturday, Sept. 30, between 10-11 a.m. Those members wishing tp purchase a painting should contact Mrs. Maurice Ponti, chairman, in advance of the party.

Anyone not able to attend the party, may designate a firend to make a selection in his place.

Girl Scout Assn. to meet Thursday

The Winchester Community Girl Scout Association will hold its fall meeting Thursday, Sept. 27th at the First Congregational Church at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Robert Johnson, president, will conduct a short business meeting and the service team will be introduced and the calendar for the year will be presented for approval. The program committee for this event is Mrs. Joseph Twichell, Mrs. Anthony Fiorillo, and Mrs. David Beaber.

A program workshop will be conducted on "Worlds to Explore." On hand will be Mrs. Robert Chebook who will have tickets available for the father-daughter cruise (Oct. 1); Mrs. Louis Bruno with information on the uniform exchange (Oct. 3); and Mrs. George Rossi who will take orders for Girl Scout calendars.

All brownie, junior and cadette leaders and assistants are invited and urged to attend.

Writing out invitations for the Friends of Winchester Hospital annual dance, to be held Nov. 3 at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading, are, from left, Mrs. Area Sidebotham, Mrs. Barbara McFadden, Mrs. Carolyn Ryan, Mrs. Barbara Senecal, Mrs. Marie Carswell, and Mrs. Rose Westra. Also on the committee are Mrs. Shirley Grieve, Mrs. Mary Kennedy, and Mrs. Ann Hughes.

Plans underway for annual Friends' dance

Members of the dance committee for the Friends of Winchester Hospital met this week to write out the invitations for their 27th annual dance.

Titled the "The Canterbury Cotillion" this year, the dance will be held Nov. 3 at the Hillview Country Club, 149 North st., North Reading.

All proceeds from the dance go to the hospital to buy equipment. The dance is open to the public. Anyone wishing to attend should contact Mrs. George Hunter, 729-1377.

Auxiliary social Monday evening

The Aberjona Ladies Auxiliary No. 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold its monthly social Monday evening, starting at 8, at the post quarters on River street. The event is to benefit the auxiliary's charitable endeavors.

Chairman Betty Carroll invites the public.

All-church program Sunday at First Church

The intergenerational all-church program at the First Congregational Church begins Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in Chidley Hall. Attendants are asked to bring a loaf of their favorite homemade bread.

The committee of Polly Keppler, May Hambly and Benny Cook is preparing a variety of cheeses, fruits, and beverages.

Folk dancing and singing will be led by Paul and Lynne Rahmeier. Interested persons are invited to participate in the meal and the program. Miss Ruth Fish, minister of family life, is the coordinattor of this event and of others to follow each month.

Carnival for pool Saturday

A carnival, sponsored by the Winchester High School Parents Association to raise funds for an indoor swimming pool, will be held Saturday at Manchester Field.

The high school student union, under the leadership of Donna Farrell, has helped in the staffing of booths and games along with hundreds of interested citizens.

Rides provided by Santamaria's Famous Funway wil be set up at the field and run from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Raindate is Sunday from noon to 11 p.m.

The giant slide will be featured at the canirval, a 100-foot high structure.

For the children, the following rides will be set up:

—Hampton umbrella ride;
—Hampton dune buggies;
—Helicopters;

For all ages, rides include:

—Giant slide;
—Space wars funhouse;
—Hurricane;
—Sizzler;
—Flying bobs.

The location has been changed from the high school field to Manchester Field.

Studio Guild's coffee, clean-up Wednesday at 10

The Studio Guild will begin its 41st year with a coffee and "clean-up" Wednesday at 10 a.m. at their studio on 9 Mt. Vernon st. The first regular class begins Oct. 5 under the guidance of King Coffin of the Museum School of Fine Arts.

The goal of the Studio Guild is to further the active study of art. Classes are held regularly until June. Members have access to the studio daily.

Applications for membership are being received. Information is available from Mrs. Elaine Chipman, president, by telephoning 729-6260.

Sons of Italy, Elks to sponsor two bloodmobiles

The weekend of Sept. 30-Oct. 1 will be an important weekend for Red Cross Bloodmobile activities in Winchester.

On the 30th, the Sons of Italy will host their semi-annual bloodmobile from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. at their Swanton street hall. Antonio Saraco is acting as coordinator of the event.

The next day,, Oct. 1, the Independent Order of Elks will sponsor a bloodmobile from noon to 4:45 p.m. at the Elks Hall, 375 Cambridge st. John Mawn is chairing the bloodmobile for the Elks.

Both chairmen emphasized the importance of the two bloodmobiles because of the critical shortage of blood in the Greater Boston area at this time.

Club members and others who wish to donate blood are urged to contact the Elks, the Sons of Italy, or the Winchester Red Cross in order to make an appointment. Walk-ins will also be accepted on the day of the bloodmobiles.

Off. Nick Molea receives new "Safety Safari" traffic safety kits for distribution to Winchester's elementary schools.

New traffic safety program set up for school children

Officer Nick Molea will be distributing materials for a new traffic safety program to elementary schools in Winchester called "Safety Safari."

The program is offered free of charge to schools throughout the state by the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau.

The immediate objective of the Safety Safari program is to promote attitudes and behaviors among young people that will result in safer pedestrians, bicyclists and passengers, according to Governor Michael S. Dukakis.

"Many pedestrian accidents involve school-age children," Gov. Dukakis pointed out. "In fact, we find young people over-represented in most traffic statistics."

With the help of Off. Molea local schools will be implementing the three-part Safety Safari program this fall. "Traveling Feats" is a circus-theme module for younger students; "Street Talk" explores traffic signs and signals, and was developed for middle-level pupils; "Wheels," directed to fifth and sixth graders, calls for students to examine their own traffic-related attitudes and behaviors.

Each module involves a series of varied activities that culminate in students making their own filmstrips on traffic safety. This new educational approach produces "significant and substantial" growth in traffic safety learning, according to independent evaluation.

In addition to the immediate goal of nurturing proper safety habits among school-aged pedestrians, passengers and bicyclists, the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau hopes that the long range effect will be a greater concern for traffic safety when the children reach adulthood.

High school gym program starts 6th year

The gym is open to residents only, and some type of positive ID must be shown before a membership card will be issued. Residents may, however, bring an out-of-town guest with the following restrictions:

1. On any day one resident may bring in one guest only.
2. The guest must pay the daily fee.
3. If the gym becomes overcrowded, guests will not be allowed.
4. All guests must be signed in.

There is a fee for using this 12-month program to help defray costs of supervision, equipment, heat, and electricity. An option is given of paying a daily fee or an annual fee. This is the same fee structure as last year. You are asked to bring a check or cash with you the first time you use the gym.

The gym schedule for 1978 — 1979 will be as follows:

MONDAY	6-10 pm	Adults Only
THURSDAY	6-10 pm	Adults Only
FRIDAY	6-10 pm	(9th grade & older)
SATURDAY (begin. Oct. 28)	1-7 pm	(9th grade & older)
SUNDAY (begin Oct. 29)	1-7 pm	(9th grade & older)

In addition to this basic schedule, the gym will be open during school vacation weeks daily from 1-7 pm for those of high school age.

Many activities are possible at the high school gym. While basketball has been the most popular sport, many residents participate in weight training, volleyball, paddleball, jogging and wrestling. Basketballs, volleyballs, and paddle rackets are available at the gym for everyone's use.

The lockers and shower room are open only during the Monday and Thursday evening sessions. Soap and towels are not provided. Also, you are asked not to leave money or other valuables either in the lockers or in the gym — please leave them with one of the girls at the desk.

The gym is open only to boys and girls at least of high school age. Those not of high school age may not use the gym unless they are accompanied by an adult family member also using the gym, and on weekends only. Monday and Thursday evenings are for adults only, and no one under 18 will be allowed in for any reason. The gym becomes too crowded to allow younger people full use of the gym times.

The only entrance to the gym will again be from the rear, and parking will be in the rear parking lot. This is the entrance off Nelson street near the playing fields and railroad tracks.

National Smoker Study Hails Merit.

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette scores high marks in five key areas.

Can MERIT deliver the flavor of leading high tar brands?

Does MERIT satisfy smokers over a long period—or are MERIT smokers slipping back to old high tar favorites?

Read the bottom-line results of new research conducted with smokers like yourself.

MERIT Breakthrough Confirmed

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers:

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy.

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first major alternative to high tar smoking.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine—
100's: 11 mg "tar," 0.7 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report May '78

At Tri Community

Management is meeting topic

Winchester resident Margie MacIndoe will speak on "Management by Objective" at the annual meeting of Tri Community Health Services Inc. to be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Hadley Hall at the Church of the Eiphany.

Several local residents are nominees for positions with Tri Community, including Gertrude Rooney, 111 Highland ave., for first vice president; Caroly Dettinger, 3 Penn rd., for corresponding secretary; and E. Graton William, 232 Ridge st., for treasurer.

Nominated as chairpersons of standing committees from Winchester are Deborah Broadhurst, 18 Glen rd., by-laws; Edward Burns, 49 Wedgemere ave., housing; and Peggy Keefe, 4 Norfolk rd., personnel.

Winchester directors to be appointed to three-year terms on the board through 1981 are Marta Frank, 4 Swan rd.; Maureen Looney, 19 Perkins rd.; Kathleen McGovern, 27 Wedgemere ave.; and Hutch Taylor, 10 Edgehill rd.

Lexington resident Thomas Webster is up for re-election as president of the board.

In summing Tri Community's past year, Director Jayne Tapia, MSN, reported the organization provided 13,085 visits to 1165 patients by the multi-disciplinary home health are teams and 16,196 hours of home health aide service.

Added Ms. Tapia, "We experienced growth in physican therapy by 22 percent, occupational therapy by 35 percent, speech therapy, by 14 percent, and home health aide service by 1.5 percent. Tri Community is the agency certified as Winchester's Medicare-Medicaid provider of home health care."

She urged residents to attend the meeting Monday and "become involved in home care delivery in Winchester."

Boy hockey clinic to run seven weeks

Winchester Youth Hockey will sponsor a seven-week hockey clinic for boys aged 6 through 12 beginning Friday night, Oct. 13. The clinic, to be held at the USA Rink in Winchester, will run for seven consecutive Friday evenings between the hours of 5:10 and 6:10 p.m.

The clinic is primarily for boys new to hockey. It will stress the fundamentals of power skating, passing, shooting and stickhandling, with special emphasis being placed on the basics of forward, backward and pivotal skating.

For additional information on the clinic or the 1978-79 Intramural Hockey Program, contact Alan Ross, 9 Norfolk rd. Although sponsored by Winchester Youth Hockey, this clinic is open to all boys from other towns.

The final Mite tryouts will be held Friday evening, Sept. 22 at the USA Rink at 6:30 p.m. Openings are still available for interested skaters, born in 1970-71.

Red Cross offers course in first aid

A standard first aid and personal safety course is scheduled for the third and fourth week of October, it was announced today by the Winchester Chapter of the American National Red Cross.

The course will be taught by Hubert LeFevre, an experienced instructor and chairman of the health and safety program of the Winchester Chapter.

The classes are to be held from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the chapter house for two weeks on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, Oct. 16, 18, 20, 23, 24 and 27.

The enrollment is limited and advance registration is required.

For more information call at the Red Cross Chapter House, 39 Church st.

Monthly social of CDA Sept. 28

The Catholic Daughters of America, Court Santa Maria No. 150 will hold their monthly social at the Immaculate Conception School Hall on Sheridan circle at 8 p.m. Sept. 28 for the benefit of the group's charitable endeavors.

The event will be chaired by the organization's officers. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

LWV meeting on referenda Wednesday night

Some Winchester voter who may be a bit confused about the seven referendum questions on the Novemer ballot this year may welcome the news that the Winchester League of Women Voters is holding its first general meeting of the year on this subject.

Merry Duffy, executive director of the Lotte E. Sharfman Memorial Fund, is the evening's speaker. Ms. Duffy said that the first question, on the reclassification of the property tax law, will be the most complicated and important issue. (See the first of a series on page 4 of today's Star on the referendum questions, compiled by the LWV.)

Advance knowledge of all seven questions will be important, Duffy said, as all of them require some thinking through. The unusual feature of these questions is that they are all constitutional amendments, so a vote for or against carries even more weight. The referenda are the final step of the constitutional amendment procedure.

The League's meeting will be held Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. at the home of Margaretta Thuma, 2 Allen rd. A question and answer period will follow the talk. All are invited.

Library film next Thursday

September 28 & 29

On Thursday evening, Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. and on Friday afternoon, Sept. 29 at 2 p.m., the film, "World of Andrew Wyeth" will be shown in the Meeting Room of the Winchester Public Library. This film covers the significant facts of Andrew Wyeth's life and many of his paintings of the countryside of Pennsylvania and Maine.

Also in the art program is a film called "Ancient Chinese." Live photography of today is blended with ancient Chinese motifs. Many outstanding museums are visited.

Curtain & Cue drama society schedules comedy Nov. 17-18

At the first meeting of the school year, Advisor Hester Keller announced that the Curtain and Cue Dramatic Society will present Kaufman and Hart's comedy, "You Can't Take It With You."

It will be performed on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 17 and 18 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. This play was selected by the Curtain and Cue Board because it is good family entertainment and contains many hilarious roles.

Kaufman and Hart were classic comedy writers and "You Can't Take It With You" is one of their greatest works. Both the opening C and C meeting and auditions were well attended by students from all the grades at the high school.

The newly elected Board, headed by Stephanie Schwartzman, was delighted with the turn-out and is anticipating an exciting year for Curtain and Cue.

Drama workshop meets Wednesday

Seasoned junior high performers from last year's "Oklahoma" and "Pajama Game" are invited to participate along with newcomers to the theater in an open session with the Winchester Drama Workshop Wednesday.

The session will be held in the English open area on the second floor of the high school from 3:30-5:15 p.m.

From this introductory work-out, a group of students will be formed to work in weekly sessions on body tuning with Hatha Yoga, sensory awareness exercises, basic movement patterns, mime, theater games in spontaneity, and improvised scenes.

All interested students are invited to join the workshop. Registration for the series of 10 tuition-free workshops opens today. Contact acting recreation Director Jerry Ferro or May Klug at 729-4514. Further information may be obtained from Paulett Taggart, Winchester Drama Workshop, 729-6669.

During the workshop's summer vacation, Ms. Taggart participated in teachers' workshops with Brian Way, director of Theatre Centre Ltd. of London. She also traveled to Tassajara, a Zen practice center in the California mountains which is open to students and guests in the summer months.

Winchester Drama Workshop students Richard Rule, Kelly Shea, Ross Cunningham, Christine Franchi, Adrian Smith, Elizabeth Marko, Bill Myazzarella, and Marjorie Johnson participate in ensemble acting session. A new junior high school group begins with an open house participation session in the English open area at the high school Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Young Woman's Club holds first meeting

The Winchester Young Woman's Club recently held its first meeting of the new season at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Matheson.

After the regular meeting, Ms. Tiffany, a guidance counselor at Winchester High School, spoke to the members and guests on parent effectiveness training. This is a course which is being offered in the adult education program and deals with communication between parent and child.

After the talk by Ms. Tiffany, a brief question and answer period was held.

The Winchester Young Woman's Club is a member of the Junior Federation of Women's Clubs, with interests in community affairs.

Prospective members are invited to attend the monthly meetings.

School news

Ambrose parents set fall plans at first board meeting

The first board meeting of the Ambrose Elementary School Parents' Association was held recently with Mrs. Pat Furey presiding as president.

Walter Gleason, acting principal for this year, was introduced to the new board. He explained what his role would be this year and expressed pleasure for the opportunity to once again be closely involved in an ongoing school situation as well as Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum for the entire system.

One new staff member was announced for the coming year. Caroline Lindike will be the music specialist for the primary level.

The first event of the year was a parents' tea, held Wednesday from 3 - 4 p.m. in the school auditorium. On Oct. 4, a fathers' and mothers' educational morning will be held from 8:30 - 11:30 a.m.

Board meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at 9 o'clock at the school.

Mystic Parents Assn. has welcome picnic

The Mystic School Parents' Association recently held a welcome back picnic for the teachers of the Mystic school. It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Herlihy.

Refreshments of Syrian bread sandwiches and punch were served by Mrs. Gail MacNeil and Mrs. Mary Price.

Mrs. Sophia Bowers, association president, was there to help launch the new school year and to welcome both old and new faces.

Mini-college program begins at high school

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the guidance office will be conducting a mini-college program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Sept. 27, the following institutions will be represented: Art Institute of Boston, Boston College, and University of Chicago.

On Wednesday, Oct. 4, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend:

Bryn Mawr (PA), Fairfield University (CN), Fitchburg State College, Flagler College (FL), Gordon College, Hawaii Loa College, Lafayette College (PA), Mithcell College (CN), Moore College of Art (PA), and Mt. Holyoke College.

Also, Northeastern University, Quinnipiac College (CN), University of Southern Maine, Springfield College, and Unity College (ME).

St. Mary's holds traditional Mass

St. Mary's recently held its traditional opening of school Mass at 7:30 p.m. in the Mary Chapel of St. Mary's Church.

The Mass of the Holy Spirit was concelebrated by the Pastor, Fr. Reardon and the school chaplain, Fr. Curley. The altar boy was John Donnellen.

Fr. Reardon spoke on the importance of an education and asked that the Holy Spirit guide students throughout the school year.

The annual New Mothers' Coffee for all the new mothers of St. Mary's School was held Sept. 18th in the convent.

This year St. Mary's School has an enrollment of 222 students.

Noonan parents hold first meeting

Noonan School Parents Association began their year recently with a coffee for all new and seasoned mothers of Noonan students.

Mrs. Sally Cusato, president of Community Schools Association, gave a brief talk about the services of the organization to all the schools and the community. Several Noonan Parents Association members spoke including: Mrs. Emily Smith, president; Mrs. Barbara Haddad, library chairman; Mrs. Ingrid Jochimsen, enrichment chairman; Mrs. Marilyn Davis, treasurer and scholarship trustee.

Herein, and to all kids twelve or under, we announce our circus contest. Just draw your own clown face, and you just might win five tickets to the upcoming Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus, plus a chance to meet a real clown.

7• Deals/Apple Picking
You don't have to settle for supermarket apples at this time of year. Just head on out to one of several orchards in Massachusetts and pick your own. by Gary Provost

9• Music/Where The Jazz Is Hot
Recently, some fine jazz has found a home at Lulu White (or Lulu's, as its known to its friends) in Boston. The atmosphere is classy New Orleans bordello, the food is creole, and the music's pretty spicy, too. by Bob Young

10• Theatre/Back Country
The new musical at Boston's Wilbur Theatre is based on J.M. Synge's The Playboy of the Western World*—but it's set in rural Kansas. It's a very unusual mixture. by Vivian Noble*

Bill Weld will make one tough Attorney General.

Tough. Because he knows how to get at the facts. (He worked on the Watergate investigations.) And get at political corruption—like the MBM scandal and the mess in the Tax Department.

Tough. Because he'll use an investigative grand jury to go after organized crime.

Tough. Because he doesn't carry a lot of political baggage, old debts to old pals.

Tough. Because he'll do the job that Frank Bellotti should be doing, but isn't.

Bill Weld is an experienced trial lawyer. He's a graduate of Harvard, Oxford, and Harvard Law School.

If you'd like to find out more, contact the Weld for Attorney General Committee, 53 State Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02109.

Celebrating The Harvest

"Knights"

Today the sun starts its path toward winter, so while the summer is a sweet and vivid memory let's take this time to make merry.

By Harriet Webster

Today (September 21st) is the Autumnal Equinox. It is one of the two days each year (the other being March 21st) that the sun's position in the heavens makes for a day and a night of equal length, in almost every part of the world. Today the sun starts its path toward winter, its rays shining upon us for a shorter period each day. Now, while the summer is a sweet and vivid memory, it is time to make merry.

This is the time of year for consolidating gains, for taking stock of the summer's bounty. If you have a home vegetable garden, you are probably knee deep in zucchini and luscious red tomatoes about now, taking satisfaction in the fruits of your past labor. So celebrate! Just as people throughout time and space have rejoiced over the earth's gifts, you too should share in the festivity, before snuggling down for yet another New England winter.

Harvest celebrations hearken back to Biblical times. The Canaanites and the Early Hebrews had their own versions. Later, the Romans honored their harvest deity, Ceres, with the October 4th celebration of the Festival of Cerelia, an event complete with feasting, music and sports. The ancient Greeks paid homage to the foundress of agriculture and the goddess of the harvest via the Feast of Demeter. At the outset, married women would make a three-day retreat to the Temple of Demeter, then join the rest of the population for a more secular festivity in the streets of Athens. This event often deteriorated into an orgy and men, quite naturally, were finally included in the doings.

The English celebrated Harvest Home with a church service, followed by a feast and sporting events. A tea-drinking session would sometimes be held for the womenfolk. Here in New England, our ancestors often made merry with a husking bee. While the object was to prepare lots of ears for cooking (an outstanding shucker could strip 27 ears per minute!), feasting and games were also an important part of the agenda.

Celebrating The Harvest

There are several ways to become a part of the harvest tradition. You can plan your own celebration, or you can join in one of those held locally. At Plimoth Plantation in Plymouth, there is a Harvest Festival scheduled for October 7, 8 and 9. For the Harvest Festival, the 1600s village and its "Pilgrims" come alive with a spirit that does not dominate an ordinary day. As you wander the grounds, you will see the costumed Pilgrims preparing the food for their Thanksgiving feast, using ingredients and cooking methods prominent in the early 17th century. Visitors, unfortunately, can only observe, not partake in, the feast. They can, however, join in the other activities that are a part of the merry-making.

Rough, boisterous games were very popular among the early settlers. At Plimoth you will see "Knights," a contest that resembles the "chicken" fights of today. Each team consists of a "horse" and "rider." The sturdier member of the pair takes the bottom position as the horse, while the lighter member climbs aboard his shoulders. The object of the game is to unseat the opponent. There are rigid rules as to who can push and who can pull and just what makes for legitimate tripping. Altogether a game recommended for the physically fit.

"Running the Quintain" is also suited to hardy souls. This involves teams similar to those above, except that the rider carries a lance (in the form of a good-sized stick). The object here is to strike a swinging target attached to an upright post. One end of the bar contains the target, but the other end contains a bag of feathers. Hitting the wrong end spells bad news. This game, too, is played against an opposing team.

"Pitching the Pole" is another vigorous contest. Here, participants attempt to throw a missile, resembling a short telephone pole, farther than any of their fellow sportsmen. Of course, there are milder contests too. Nine pins (a bowling game), leap frog and similar fare were also popular.

Music and dance are also part of the Plimoth celebration, again executed with an eye to authenticity. The Pilgrims demonstrate both circle and line dances of the period, and interested onlookers are given a quick rundown of the intricate steps. Music is supplied by metal tin whistles and a drum. Musket drills add to the festive atmosphere — and to the noise, as well. As you are tripping the light fantastic, don't be surprised to see a contingent of Indians from the nearby Wampanoag summer settlement show up to share in the feasting.

The price of admission to the Plimoth celebration is the regular village ticket — $2.50 for adults and $1 for children five to fifteen years old. The plantation is open from 9 am to 5 pm, seven days a week, from April through November. For more on the Harvest Festival, call 746-1622.

Pilgrims' First Feast

If feasting is the important part of the celebration for you, consider the annual Thanksgiving dinner presented by the Elbanobscot Environmental Education Center in Sudbury. Here you get to eat as well as play. The dinner accommodates 100 hundred guests and will be held November 5th this year. If the demand is great, the flexible folks here have offered to schedule a second day of celebration. If you like the description that follows, you should call up and express your desire to participate right away. Last year capacity was reached weeks ahead of the big day, which is why an encore is being considered this time around.

"Running the Quintain"

A visitor's game of nine pins

Elbanobscot features a truly authentic version of the Pilgrims' first feast, with the exception of colonial menu items that are part of the today's endangered species list. For example, venison is replaced with beef and chicken is substituted for wild turkey. The main emphasis is on the processes by which our forefathers gathered, prepared and cooked their foods. Popcorn balls, Johnny or Journey Cake (cornbread), venison stew (made with beef), roast fowl, pompion pie (pumpkin) and apple slump (dumplings) are part of the menu. Cider and mulled spiced wine do the beverage honors. Guests are encouraged to help out with the food preparation. Youngsters particularly enjoy popping corn over an open fire.

During the cooking preparations, Elbanobscot is alive with other harvest time activities, all geared for guest participation. Early English music adds to the festive spirit, as folks of all sizes and ages join in the games. "Stool Ball" is a favorite here. A soft leather ball is aimed at a stool, which serves as a wicket or goal. Much as in our modern day dodge ball, the idea is to keep the ball from going through the stool. One person acts as guardian, and as soon as the ball passes through the stool, the guardian is replaced by the person who made the successful shot. Another popular game is "Chain Tag."

Crafts also play a part in the activities here. The construction of Indian headbands is popular with kids, and older folks are intrigued by the shingle-making demonstrations. This year, the staff at Elbanobscot also hopes to import artisans and craftsmen who can demonstrate other notable colonial trades. The celebration culminates with the actual feasting, beginning in the late afternoon. Indian leg wrestling is considered a healthy after dinner exercise for those interested in burning off the extra calories that will certainly accumulate. Visitors are encouraged to wear colonial dress.

Call Elbanobscot at 893-0226 if you would like to attend. The fee is $5 for adults, $3.75 for children. Teachers and youth group leaders who would like their kids to participate in a similar celebration can make arrangements for Elbanobscot to hold a bargain-priced version of the program described above.

The Harvest At Drumlin Farms

Drumlin Farm in South Lincoln hosts Harvest Days on October 7th and 8th. You and your children will enjoy wandering the many acres of fields and trails, as well as visiting the large demonstration farm, with its fine resident menagerie. The celebration will include farm games — old favorites like wheelbarrow races and sack races and three-legged events. Farm crafts such as pottery making, weaving and woodworking will be demonstrated, and some of the craftsmen will also be peddling their wares. Butter churning and cider pressing will be in progress, and visitors can sample the products. Hayrides are another highlight.

"Hoodman Blind"

Plans are not yet definite, but there is rumor of a possible scarecrow contest. If you are a scarecrow specialist be sure to check ahead. Some sort of music will add to the lively atmosphere, probably in the form of a roving minstrel or two. Hot dogs, hamburgers and other reliable refreshments will be sold. Harvest Days last from 10 am to 4 pm, and admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children (Mass Audubon members pay half price). You can call 259-9807 for details.

Clown It Up

IS COMING

October 18
Through 30

RINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH

TO TOWN!

At The Boston Garden.

DRAW A CLOWN AND WIN A RINGSIDE SEAT AT THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH! MEET BOSS CLOWN FROSTY LITTLE!

How To Win

The Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus is already on its way. And since it comes but once a year, what better way to celebrate than by clowning it up a little? Just fill in the blank figure on this page with a clown face of your own design. You don't have to stick to crayons — paint, string, glue and glitter (and anything else you can think of) are just fine. Start right in! The contest deadline is Tuesday, September 26, at noon.

There will be nine winners from the nine different suburban papers that Metroguide appears in, so write the name of your paper, as well as your name, age and address, in the box provided. Keep in mind that only those 12 years of age and under are eligible. Send your entries to: Metroguide Circus Contest, Suite 227, Statler Office building, Boston 02116. We'll print the names of the winners in the October 12 issue of Metroguide.

What You'll Win

First off, winners receive five free tickets for the October 22 (Saturday morning) performance of The Greatest Show on Earth. Then, there's the opportunity to meet Frosty Little, the renowned clown who's kingpin in the circus' Clown Alley. We want you to have a great day under the big top, courtesy of the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus and Metroguide.

Deals | Apple Picking

Apple picking is an experience different from any you are likely to encounter between now and the first day of spring.

By Gary Provost

"There's a right way and a wrong way to pick apples," I was once told by a gruff old apple orchard foreman, who was every bit as gnarled as the trees he tended. Then, to show me the right way, he reached out and gently plucked a ripe red McIntosh from a branch above his head.

"See," he said, "you pick all the ones you can reach from the ground first, and you place them in the bucket. You don't drop them on top of each other 'cause they'll bruise." With a tenderness approaching reverence, he laid that apple into his half-bushel bucket. Apple orchards can do that to you. They can make you feel as if you're in a chapel.

There is also a right reason, and a wrong one, for picking your own apples this fall at the many orchards in Massachusetts (one of the nation's major apple producing states). The wrong reason is to save money. It's true that picking your own apples at the orchard is a lot cheaper than loading them into your cart at the supermarket. When you start subtracting the cost of your time and gasoline, though, your savings won't amount to much — unless you've got 40 or 50 kids who just adore apples.

No, there is only one real reason you should pick your own apples this autumn: It is an experience different from any you are likely to encounter between now and the first day of spring.

An apple orchard is, after all, no ordinary place. There are no highways in an apple orchard, no apartment buildings, not even a parking meter. When you enter the orchard you come into a very basic world where a hungry human animal does not drive down to McDonald's; he reaches into a tree. You come to a world of dense grass as soft as pillows and row upon row of bountiful apple trees, stretching for as far as you can see. From each tree, hundreds of crisp young apples dangle like Christmas bulbs. With a bright sun, a snap of cold air, and an uncluttered sky, you suddenly feel as if you've been away. Now, you are home. Suck the air into your lungs, and it's like sticking your nose into an empty cider jug.

The orchard foreman will probably give you a bucket and a 18-foot ladder. (Bring your own containers just in case.) Out of consideration for the orchard owner, confine your picking to one tree, since the pickers who are paid per apple aren't likely to muck about in trees that have been decimated by amateurs.

Forget the ladder for now, unless you want to climb it just for fun. You probably won't need it unless you plan to pick clean an entire tree, which would supply you with enough apples to keep the doctor away for several years. Instead, clear away the "drops" and find yourself a comfortable spot in the cushion of tangled grass beneath a tree. You can pick apples with a group, or you might want to get off by yourself to commune better with nature. (The "drops" are those apples that have already fallen to the ground, and they usually end up as applesauce. If you'd rather take them, make sure you get a good price, since many of them will be bruised.)

Remember that you have come to the orchard to feel good, not simply to acquire apples. The paid pickers can pluck off as many as 20,000 of these gorgeous fruits in a day, but you should take your time and dream of apple pie, apple strudel, apple cider, apple muffins and apples in your lunchbox. Pick slowly, and take time to consider the apple. It is a colorful little object with a pleasant heft, a sweet smell, a hearty constitution and a flavor that is never confused with anything else.

When you have contemplated the apple to satiety and still solved none of nature's mysteries, your knees may have become a bit cramped. So stand up and run like a fool through the orchard. Play in the grass with people you like a lot. Eat lunch under an apple tree and pluck an apple for dessert. Take pictures of your day at the orchard. Jump up and down, sing out loud, have fun. But please don't play in the trees. Consider the apple.

If You Decide To Go . . .

There are several orchards in Massachusetts where you can pick your own apples. In South Amherst, you'll find Atkins Fruit Bowl at the corner of Bay Road and Route 116 (413-253-3243). Brookfield Orchards are in North Brookfield, on Orchard Road, off Routes 931 or 67 (867-6858). Heading out to Harvard, Carlson Orchards resides on Oak Hill Road (456-3916); in Greenfield, the place to go is Clarkdale Fruit Farm, on Upper Road off Routes 2A and 91 (413-772-6797). Lancaster sports Deershorn Farm Apples, located on Chase Hill Road, off Route 62 (365-3691). Hamilton Orchards, on the other hand, are in New Salem, off Route 202 (544-6867); Honeypot Hill Orchards are established at 144 Sudbury Road in Stow (562-5225). Finally, in Sterling Junction, Meadowbrook Orchards operate on Chase Hill Road, off Route 62 (365-7617).

Though many orchards don't have a public picking policy, there is still a chance for choosing your own; at some of the larger orchards, in fact, there's also an opportunity to explore the warehouse, see cider being made and so forth. For a list of all the orchards, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, 100 Cambridge Street, Division of Marketing, Boston 02202. You can reach the Department at 727-3000.

Keep in mind that the sooner you go, the better. Apple picking season generally encompasses the eight weeks following Labor Day.

Music | Where The Jazz Is Hot

There's simply no place in Boston that's preaching the jazz word as uniquely and comfortably as Lulu's.

By Bob Young

Jazz has been looking for a place to hang its beret for years now in Boston — and it just might have found a comfortable place to call home, smack in the South End of town.

Lulu White Jazz Club and Restaurant (or Lulu's, as it's affectionately known) is the spot, spicy Creole food is the dish and hot jazz is the sound. Mix those three and you've got yourself a musical stew that can give any Soho loft or Greenwich Village cafe a run for its money. It may not be located in Manhattan, but when the music starts flowing, the mood sure transports you right down New York City way.

There's simply no place in Boston that's preaching the jazz word as uniquely and comfortably as Lulu's. The atmosphere is New Orleans, classy bordello style. Lulu, the club's namesake, was a well-respected madame in that town during prohibition. Her house provided jazz musicians like Louis Armstrong and Jelly Roll Morton with a place to perform when most other halls wouldn't touch anything with the word jazz in it. She disappeared without a trace, but her tradition endured. The South End restaurant pays its respects with huge paintings of the madame and her boss, Sidney Story.

Red and gold patterned wallpaper, chandeliers, hanging plants and even a rose on every table add the touches that set the room apart. The decor, though, means nothing if the music isn't there. And it is.

Vocalist Helen Humes, drummer Roy Haynes, guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli and tenor player Scott Hamilton are but a few of the artists who have bobbed and weaved across Lulu's stage, fenced in with black wrought iron. The acoustics in the double-tiered room are very good, making it an ideal spot for vocalists such as Johnny Hartman and Dakota Station to perform in. In fact, a sizeable number of the artists who have entertained here have been vocalists. Management points to the larger attendance possibilities with singers, and the artists themselves find the room to be acoustically sensitive to their voices.

Lulu's has expanded its mainstream jazz offerings to four weeknights now, adding Mondays. Jeff Stoughton and the Lulu White Jazz Band take over on Friday and Saturday nights with straight-ahead jazz and have been bringing in an older dinner and dance crowd from the suburbs. Sundays are set aside for more modern jazz acts, such as tenor saxaphonist Ricky Ford and Stan Strickland and his band.

The restaurant/jazz club opened in early August of 1977 and showcased a dixieland jazz band exclusively for several months. It was only in May of this year, when Helen Humes broke that string with a packed two-night engagement, that management decided to expand its musical horizons even further. The club hasn't been the same since.

Boston hasn't supported jazz on a consistent full-time basis over the years, a proposition that makes Lulu's emergence a cause for both hope and trepidation. Can this town support high-quality jazz acts? Paul's Mall and the Jazz Workshop fought the good fight for years, but skyrocketing artists' fees simply proved to be too much. They closed their doors earlier this year.

Sandy's Jazz Revival in Beverly now brings in the best of today's jazz talent, but then again, Sandy's is closed for the winter. The fans just don't come out in strong enough numbers.

Several jazz-oriented clubs have sprung up in Cambridge but the concentration there is more on local rather than national talent. A Dizzy Gillespie or a Pat Metheny will be booked into the Berklee Performance Center or Don Law's Paradise Theatre — a trend that's becoming more prevalent — but the unique ambience of a jazz club is lost amidst the rows and rows of seats in larger halls.

Lulu's is giving it a shot, then, from several different angles. It's lured chef Willard Chandler away from Willard's in the Berkeley Cafe, and his masterly Creole dishes have become one of the club's strongest selling points. The club is also an extremely comfortable room to eat in and listen to music. The tables aren't crammed together and the stage sightlines are excellent from any angle. The cover charge is always relatively low, from $2 to $4. Add the distinctive New Orleans decor and you've got one of Boston's most original clubs.

Lulu's does have one stigma to overcome, however — its location. Some people are initially leery of trying to find 3 Appleton Street in the maze of the South End. Actually it's no problem at all, even for those unfamiliar with the city. Lulu's is situated a couple of blocks over the Mass Turnpike bridge on Tremont Street, on the corner where Tremont meets Appleton. Call the club at 423-3652 for more information.

The club is gearing up for an ambitious fall season. Vocalist Jimmy Witherspoon is due in on September 21, Scott Hamilton returns October 2 to 5, pianist Ray Bryant appears October 9 to 21 and Red Norvo and his vibes come in October 16 to 19. The saxophonists strut in later that month: Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson visits October 23 to 26, 30, 31 and November 1 and 2, and Texas tenor player Arnett Cobb sashays in November 6 to 9. Those schedules are subject to change and additional acts are still to be announced, but the club does have its New Year's lineup set — tenors Buddy Tate and Scott Hamilton are slated to lock horns that night.

Stay tuned to what's going on at 3 Appleton Street, then. What Lulu White herself did for Jelly Roll Morton and New Orleans, her spirit is attempting up north here in Boston. Play on, Jelly. Your time has come.

Theatre | Back Country

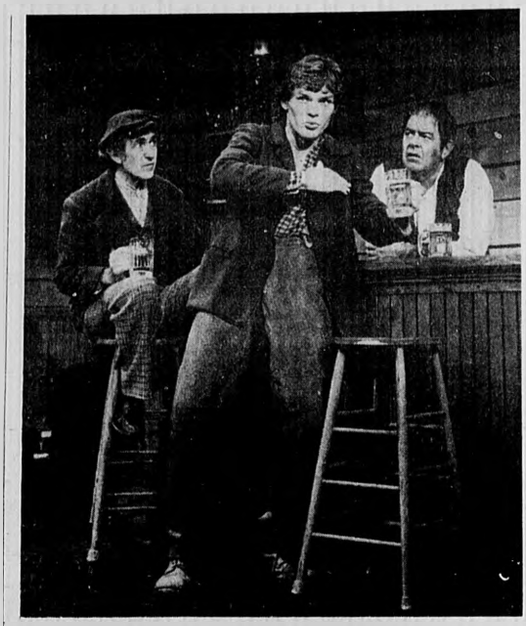
The best part of Back Country lies in its performers, who, despite the obstacles in their paths, work hard to pull it all off.

Back Country
A musical based on The Playboy of the Western World by John Millington Synge. Book, lyrics and direction by Jacques Levy, music by Stanley Walden. Choreography by Margo Sappington, lighting by Neil Peter Jampolis, scenery by Peter Larkin, costumes by Pearl Sommer. Produced by Eugene V. Wolsk. At the Wilbur Theatre.

By Vivian Noble

A plot line and some characters from John Millington Synge's play about coming of age, The Playboy of the Western World, provide the basis for Back Country, the new, pre-Broadway musical at Boston's Wilbur Theatre. Set in rural Kansas at the turn of the century, the show makes for a strangely lopsided evening — some of it purely entertaining, some of it sheerly absurd. Unfortunately, absurdity wins out more often than not.

The plot, with a few variations, is that of the Synge play. In this version, sexy country boy (hereafter known as Christy) is on the run, firmly convinced that he's killed his father in a fight. He is taken in by Michael James, a bartender, and Pegeen Mike, his wise, sprightly daughter. Pegeen has her eye on Christy from the start, though she's promised to a good-natured bumbler, Floyd. Now, just to throw in a little authenticity, Michael James is an Irishman of fine mettle; his daughter, on the other hand, is the victim of a mid-western twang. Christy's a nice American-born Irish boy too, if a bit too big for his ragged britches. He proceeds to cuddle up to Pegeen, win a tussle with the neighborhood lout, Red Ferguson, and is subsequently besieged by ladies from all quarters, who turn his head. Said ladies and Floyd (who has become, for some vague reason, Christy's buddy) wisk Christy out for an obligatory drunken celebration. Subsequent action includes Christy's come-uppance by the love-lorn Pegeen, and his confrontation with father, who wasn't really dead after all. The end result, by golly, is a final pairing of Christy and Pegeen, passionately yelping down-home nothings to each other as the curtain descends.



Philly (Stuart Germain), Christy (Ken Marshall) and Michael (Rex Everhart) in a scene from Back Country.

All of this might actually be captivating, if the worthy performers were in a vehicle that did them justice. Instead, it is a rambling one, a cranked-up cross between Oklahoma! and Synge's very Irish work, and apparently designed for some yeehas and spur clackin' production numbers. Trouble is, it continually starts revving up, only to stall about five minutes later. There are exhilarating, well-choreographed dances, and several very funny, well-delivered songs. Throughout, too, there is some fine, lean, delicate music, performed by countrified instruments. Unfortunately, it is all counter-acted by idiotic dialogue, lagging love scenes and, in painful contrast to other elegant parts of the score, some examples of contemporary country music at its very worst — nasal, raucous and utterly uninspired. The latter is blasted a la Rolling Stones through a powerful set of speakers that could floor an elephant, and includes background vocals, emanating from some mysterious place in the theatre.

The best part of Back Country lies in its performers, who, despite the obstacles in their paths, work hard and well to pull it all off. They are all competent, and some of them are marvelous. Christy (Ken Marshall) and Pegeen Mike (Suzanne Lederer) have strong, full voices and make a handsome, if slightly dull and overly darling couple. Top honors, however, go to Harry Groener as Floyd and Barbara Andres as Mrs. Lucy Jane Du Rambeau Finletter, a widow in full pursuit of Christy. Groener moves as if he were born on stage, and brightens it up with every entrance. Andres is similarly accomplished, and her solo number, describing the various demises of lovers and husbands, gives the greatest moment of hilarity in the show.

Back Country is at the Wilbur until September 23.

Excellent Secretaries: Are you willing to go to great lengths for the right position?

We're looking for excellent secretaries. That means 65-75 wpm typing, confident shorthand, good organizational abilities, flexibility and a personable, professional attitude.

We ask a lot. In return, we offer a lot. You'll receive solid orientation and the chance to work on varied projects. Our benefits include tuition aid, three weeks' vacation, profit sharing and much more.

We also offer you challenge. As world-famous consultants to governments, industries and private foundations we say hardly anything is none of our business. You will share that excitement in a creative, informal, fast-paced atmosphere. And our teamwork approach means you will share our pride of accomplishment.

If you're an excellent secretary, you should go to great lengths to choose the environment in which you can stand out. And we'll go to great lengths to help you.

Call Helen Taverna, ext. 2204, or Kathy Semple, ext. 2205, collect at (617) 864-5770. Arthur D. Little, Inc., 20 Acorn Park, Cambridge, MA 02140. We are an equal opportunity employer, M/f.

Movies | Short Subjects

Opening: Interiors, with Diane Keaton, Geraldine Page, E. G. Marshall, Kristin Griffith, and Marybeth Hurt. Directed by Woody Allen from his own screenplay, Interiors is Allen's first serious drama, and it opens on Wednesday at the Exeter Street Theatre in Boston.

Animal House

Brought to us by the folks at the National Lampoon, Animal House is sometimes sophomoric, sometimes freshman-iscal. John Belushi, the pudgy psychopath from Saturday Night Live, is Bluto, principal animal of the worst house on campus, at war with the other frats, the college administration, and the local government. Not every slapstick moment is a scream, but most are. It's a very funny movie. With Tim Matheson and Donald Sutherland. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Chestnut Hill, Framingham, Hanover, Lawrence, Woburn, Danvers.

Bread and Chocolate

Nino Manfredi plays Nino Garafoli, introduced as a sort of vulgar klutz, a misfit in his purple shirt and perfectly awful tie. Nino is an Italian worker who, like so many of his compatriots, has left behind the land of sun and song to find his fortune in Switzerland. The dream of all these workers is to make enough money to import their wives and children, or to return home as heroes. Some live for their dream, some live on it, some lose track of reality altogether. The theme of nostalgia, the real ache for the homeland, is diluted with slapstick and satire. Manfredi has a few moments of quiet desperation: he can't seem to decide whether to be Mastroianni or Chaplin. He doesn't break our hearts, but he's a likeable guy in a likeable movie. Bread and Chocolate is sweet and filling and not, ultimately, very nourishing. With Anna Karina, John Dorelli, and Paolo Truco. Beacon Hill.

The Buddy Holly Story

Not just another nostalgia movie. Though the story line is thin and glossy, Gary Busey delivers a command performance as the Fifties' rock wizard. Not only does he look like Buddy Holly — he's got a voice and guitar work to match, and is backed by a rhythmic band of Crickets. Together, they do ample justice to Holly's classics, which are, all by themselves, worth a trip to the flick. Peabody.

The End of the World in Our Usual Bed in a Night full of Rain

A title like that could come only from Lena Wertmuller, and End of the World, to call the movie by its first third, is in fact La Wertmuller's first English language film, with Giancarlo Giannini and Candice Bergen, both as self-contradictory types entangled in love and dialectic. Nickelodeon in Boston.

The Eyes of Laura Mars

A modern, overdone murder-mystery, Eyes features Faye Dunaway as Laura Mars, a successful fashion photographer noted for her very chic and very macabre portraits. She is in telepathic communication with someone who is murdering her colleagues. To complicate matters still further, the intrepid cop in charge of the case (Tommy Lee Jones) becomes her lover. Oddly the two of them, as well as everyone else in the cast, don't seem particularly fearful — it's more as if they have stomach cramps throughout. Still, the culprit is not exposed until the very end, and the movie is never boring. Irvin Kershner directed, Jon Peters produced. Chestnut Hill.

Foul Play

Goldie Hawn and Chevy Chase star in this suspense comedy written and directed by Colin Higgins. Chase's famous pratfalls are limited to a tolerable few, and he and Hawn share an engaging kookieness. Hawn, who plays a librarian named Gloria Mundy (a Thurber steal), is the target of a pair of hitmen; Chase, as a police lieutenant under a cloud, assigns himself to protect her. Incidentally they find True Love. Dudley Moore, still happily beyond the fringe, and a bantam Burgess Meredith steal the show. With Billy Barty, Rachel Roberts, and members of the New York City Opera. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Circle, Framingham, Woburn, Danvers.

Grease

Entertainment and that's all; or rather, television director Randal Kleiser's idea of entertainment, the kind we've been insulted by for years. This isn't to say that the musical numbers aren't energetic, that John Travolta isn't charming, that Stockard Channing isn't proficient as the high school bad girl. But where is the heart behind the monster? And what in heaven's name is this fascination with the Fifties? Cinema 57; Brockton, Circle, Dedham, Hanover, Peabody.

Heaven Can Wait

Heaven Can Wait should have been good — but this is entirely Warren Beatty's film: he not only took the starring role (as a man who dies before his time, and comes back as someone else), but also wrote the script with Elaine May, directed the film with Buck Henry, and produced the project as well. He has overextended himself. Although Henry, James Mason, Julie Christie, and Dyan Cannon turn in fine supporting performances, the direction lacks the charm and sophistication to pull off a complex tale. Still, Heaven Can Wait has flashes of good comedy and fine action. It's close, but no heavenly encounter. Cheri; Burlington, Circle, Dedham, Framingham, Hanover.

Hooper

Burt Reynolds has been kicked around before but in Hooper, his film about a team of Hollywood stunt men working on a multi-million dollar "disaster" movie, he really gets beat up. There's a lot of self-parody, humor and nifty stunts woven into this pleasantly surprising picture. Directed by Hal Needham, Hooper is aided by a good supporting cast: Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field, and Brian Keith as Sally's father. Robert Klein is cast perfectly into the role as the demanding movie director. Hooper might not be remembered by the time the Academy Awards roll around next year, but it takes its audiences for one hell of a ride. Braintree, Brockton, Framingham, Woburn.

The Inheritance

A costume drama about a lot of extremely disagreeable people, with Dominique Sanda as a simpering schemer and Anthony Quinn in his usual Mediterranean role as a glowering paterfamilias. The Inheritance tries to be artistic and serious; it is rather shallow and sometimes downright funny. Brockton, Burlington, Dedham, Hanover Mall, Lawrence, Peabody, Newton.

Rocky Horror Picture Show

The camp phenomenon of midnight, with the action divided about equally between the screen and the audience, whose participation is encouraged to such an extent that discounts are given to movie-goers in costume. Exeter.

Sandakan 8

The film transcends a somewhat amateurish production with riveting, heart-wrenching performances by Kinuyo Tanaka, Yoko, and Komaki Kurihara. Directed by Kei Kumai, Sandakan 8 is about a young girl sold to a brothel. Exeter.

Who'll Stop the Rain

Adventures in the scag trade, circa 1971, that eerie time when everyone and everything seemed to be falling apart. Nick Nolte is a disturbed and disturbing ex-Marine in this film by Karel Reisz, based on the novel Dog Soldiers, by Robert Stone, who also, with Judith Rascoe, wrote the screenplay. With Tuesday Weld and Michael Moriarty. Gary; Hanover Mall, Danvers, Natick, Saxon.

Unwanted Hair?

Let's face it. Every woman has some unwanted hair. You don't have to be afraid to admit it, or to do something about it. Finally there is Depilatron.

Of course, you've heard of other methods of removing unwanted hair, but often they involve pain and irritation.

Depilatron is the alternative for safe and painless removal. It utilizes the same radio frequency used in standard electrolysis. Treatments given by licensed electrologists.

Make-up can be applied immediately and all parts of the body can be treated. Depilatron for both men and women.

So why face this problem day after day? Finally there's Depilatron.

To celebrate our upcoming 3rd anniversary, Depilatron is offering its usual free consultation with a free introductory treatment. Let us introduce you to the painless world of Depilatron soon.

We're conveniently located at Coolidge Corner with ample parking and easy access to the Green Line.

EXPERIENCE AND QUALITY
The top requirements for growth and service

MANPOWER has more experience than any other temporary service.

MANPOWER serves more companies (over a quarter of a million)

MANPOWER employs more people (over a half million worldwide).

MANPOWER is interested in the people with whom we work.

MANPOWER temporary personnel stay with us—many over 15 years.

We feel it is because we lead in offering fringe benefits—paid holidays, paid vacations, referral bonuses, and hospital assistance. More especially— peer treatment.

Why not contact the office nearest you to learn how the "professionals" operate. Long and short term assignments available. Might as well work for the leader.

(A degree in two years— even two years of evenings.)

You can earn an Associate Degree in one of many, many areas here: Management, Marketing, Accounting, Hotel/Restaurant Management, the Secretarial Sciences. You can do it by attending classes as little as two nights a week, while you hold down a full time job. The reward: a better full-time career, probably; a richer, fuller life, certainly. You'll spend your time learning down-to-earth facts and practices, from highly qualified faculty. It won't cost you a fortune—if you're a veteran, or qualify for financial aid, it's even more affordable. Come in or call for full information today, and start two of the best years of your life.

We suggest calling ahead for reservations, whenever possible, to avoid disappointment.

HUB

Durgin Park–30 North Market St, Boston, 227-2038. Durgin Park is an institution. Be prepared to stand in line (unless you can dine before 6), to share a table, and match wits with the grouchy waitresses, who are part of the tradition. A generous seafood plate, roast duck, and roast beef are among the specialties. Prices are moderate. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30-9 pm. Full bar. No credit cards, no reservations.

Ferdinand's Restaurant–121 Mt Auburn St, Cambridge, 491-4915. Stylish and expensive, there's a $4.50 minimum at dinner, but the menu touches quite a few continental bases: chicken Chasseur, entrecote bearnaise, individual beef Wellington, Sangria, and a full bar. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-2:30 pm, Sat-Sun, noon-3 pm, Mon-Thurs, 5 pm-10 pm, Fri-Sat, to 11 pm, Sun, noon-10 pm. Reservations are a good idea at any time. AE, BA/V, MC.

Gallagher–55 Congress St, Boston, 523-6080. The Dining Room, The Bar, and The Cafe, which turns into Truffles by night, can solve almost any eating exigency, from casual light snacks to formal American and European cuisine. An intriguing menu: the only one we know of that compares crepes to Rosencrantz and Guildenstern. Please call for the complete rundown on hours. AE, BA/V, CB, MC, DC.

Hyatt Regency Cambridge–575 Memorial Drive, Cambridge, 492-1234. Three ways to eat: the revolving, rooftop Spinnaker, for lunches and late suppers; Jonah's on the Terrace, for seafood and Sun brunch; the Empress, for continental Chinese cooking. Hours vary. All have a full bar, no Sun reservations at Jonah's. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Legal Seafoods–237 Hampshire St, Cambridge, 547-1410. There are two principal schools of thought about Legal Seafoods: broiled or fried. Debate the issue while you are waiting in the upstairs bar, for the lines are very long, even on weeknights. Patience is rewarded, because the fish is great and the prices moderate. Legal Seafoods is open Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. The aforementioned bar provides the drinks. No credit cards and no reservations.

Locke-Ober–3 Winter Pl, Boston, 542-1340. For more than a century, Locke-Ober has been a bastion for local politicians and businessmen. Even today, ladies may feel more comfortable upstairs. Continental cuisine: everything is a la carte; impeccable service; expensive but not extravagant. Hours: 11 am to 10 pm, daily except Suns. Full bar, reservations. AE, BA/V, MC.

Polcari's–238 Causeway St, Boston, 742-4142. Yes, even on Wednesdays. Italian food like shrimp Margherita, lobster Fra Diavolo. Full bar, moderately expensive, reservations are a good idea. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm, opens at 5 pm on Sat. AE, DC, MC.

The Red Coach Grill–43 Stanhope St, Boston, 266-1900, and other locations. A steak place like a colonial tavern, with prime rib, lobster, steak, and other heartily American fare. Full bar, moderate prices. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

St. Botolph Restaurant–99 St. Botolph St, Boston, 266-3030. In a chicly remodeled townhouse, Franglais cuisine: filet of sole caprice, bliltek maison moutarde. Prices range from inexpensive to rather expensive. Full bar, reservations a good idea. Hours: Daily, noon-3 and 5:30-midnight. Closed for lunch on Mon, bar open until 1 am daily. AE, MC.

Scotch 'n Sirloin–77 N Washington St, Boston, 723-3677. Menu specials include teriyaki steak, ale-battered shrimp, and King Crab. Live entertainment. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 5:30-10:30, until 11:30 Fri-Sat. Reservations are accepted. AE, BA/V, MC.

Stella of Boston–74 East India Row, Boston, 227-3559. Parlate Italiano? Never mind, the menu is subtitled. Veal is a specialty: Scaloppine di vitello al Marsala, all Zingarella, al Limone, al Francese . . . you get the idea. Hours: 11:30-midnight, every day. Full bar, moderate prices. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Top of the Hub–Prudential Center, Boston 536-1175. On the Pru's 52nd floor, the Top of the Hub has the best of the views; prices are somewhat more down to earth. The cuisine is Stouffers continental: Veal Cordon Bleu, Rack of Lamb. Open for lunch Mon-Sat 11:30-3; Sun brunch 11-2:30; dinner Mon-Thurs 5:30-10 pm; Fri-Sat 5:30-11 pm; Sun 5-9 pm. Full bar; reservations accepted. AE, BA/V, DC, MC, Stouffers charge.

NORTH

Captain Courageous–25 Rogers St, Gloucester, 283-0007. Eat fish, while you look out across the boats they arrived in. Also steaks and chops. Fully licensed. Winter hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-9 pm; Fri-Sat, until 10 pm. Reservations are accepted. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Century House–235 Andover St. (Rte 114), Peabody, 531-1410. American cooking: Lobster pie, roast duckling Cumberland, twin lobster dinner. Full liquor license. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-10 pm; Sun, noon-9 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Easterly Restaurant–87 Atlantic Rd, Gloucester. American and Continental cuisine, with New England specialities, and food for your eyes, too: a terrific ocean view. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Flake House 1798 Restaurant–1 Billerica Rd (at Rte 129), Chelmsford, 256-4464. A registered National Historic Site, serving American food with some continental accents, like Veal Spaulding, scampi Trabucco, and filet of sole Lafayette. Moderately expensive. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, MC.

Hardcover–15A Newbury St, Danvers, 774-1223. American favorites like sirloin and shrimp, accented with French touches like crepes. Moderate prices. Full bar. No reservations Fri-Sat, but at other times, they are not a bad idea. Hours: Mon-Thurs, 5 pm-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm; Sun, 4 pm-9 pm (5-10 in the summer). AE, MC

Labadini's–165 State St, Newburyport, 465-9842. Small and informal, this family-owned eatery offers steaks, chops seafood, and Italian specialities, at moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-10 pm; Suns and holidays, 4 pm-10. No credit cards.

The Lyceum Restaurant–43 Church St, Salem, 745-7665. The Lyceum is housed in the building in which Alexander Graham Bell made the first public demonstration of the Telephone. The menu is extensive and continental: cuisses de grenouille Provencal, veal Zurichoise, duckling a la Montmorency flambe. The prices are moderate, and there is a full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am until after 10 pm. Reservations are recommended Fri-Sat evenings, and for Sun brunch. BA/V, MC, house charge.

Woodman's–121 Main St, Essex, 768-6451. Highly informal, this place is seafood city. Clams, scallops, sole, shrimp, lobster: an ocean of fish. It's inexpensive, and in the winter, not too crowded. Full bar, but no credit cards, and no reservations. Hours: Daily, 11 am-9 pm; Fri-Sun, til 10 pm.

WEST

The Deli–Shopper's World, Framingham, 872-4442. A nice self-explanatory name, and a nice spot to take a break from shopping. Complimentary cole slaw and pickles.

Otherwise, the set-up is pretty much the same: the crowds, crowds, crowds are offset by the fish, fish, fish. Reservations for large parties. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. AE, and personal checks.

Old Mill-Rte 2A, Westminster, 874-5941. Down by the old mill stream, and waterfall, a traditional setting for traditional dining. Duckling, prime rib, baked stuffed shrimp. Full bar. Open daily, 8:30 am-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Peking Garden-27 Waltham St, Lexington. 862-1051. Sino-American egg rolls and chow mein for the bashful, and a host of Szechuan, Mandarin, and Shanghai specialties for the initiate. A range of prices: House Special Duck tops the bill at $9. Full bar. Reservations are accepted for parties of eight or more. Open Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, 'til 11 pm. AE, DC, MC.

La Petite Auberge-4 Waltham St, Maynard, 897-2850. Hearty French country cooking. Some of the features of the menu are snails in garlic, cassoulet, filet mignon. There is a full bar and an exceptional wine card. Open daily, 11:30 am-9 pm, 'til 10 pm Sat-Sun, when reservations are a must. No credit cards, but personal checks are accepted.

Yangtze River Restaurant-25 Depot Sq, Lexington Center, 861-6031. Mandarin-Szechuan with Polynesian things as well: Gai-Har-Lo-Mein, Shrimp Almond Ding, Blessed Family Happiness. More happiness: everything is nicely explained on the menu, which is long. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-9:30 pm; Fri-Sat, until 10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

SOUTH

Christo's-782 Crescent St, Brockton, 588-4200. Huge and crowded, the accent at Christo's is Hellenic. A variety of Greek salads, shish kebab, moussaka. Efficient service, inexpensive. Full bar. No reservations, no credit cards. Open Mon-Sat, 11 am-12:30 am; Sun, 12:30 pm-12:30 am.

The Country Fare-1217 Main St, Hingham, 749-2260. Wildlife from land and sea among the entrees: King Crab casserole, roast duck. Moderately expensive. The premises are fully licensed, and reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sat, 11:30 am-9 pm; Sun, 11:30 am-8 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

The Greenhouse-8 Stagecoach Way, Cohasset, 383-6770. Continental and seafood specialties on the menu, lots of trees and plants to look at (not on the menu). Teriyaki brochette, veal, daily specials like snapper and swordfish. Full bar, reservations advised. Open for lunch Mon-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm, for dinner Tues-Sat 5:30-11 pm, Sun 5:30-9 pm. BA/V, MC.

Plymouth 1620 Restaurant-158 Water St, Plymouth, 746-9565. Escargots, steamers, swordfish, lobster, steak, all manner of things that once trod the earth or swam the seas, all at moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11 am-10 pm. Reservations are generally a good idea. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Ronnie's Kosher Restaurant-1179 N Main, Randolph, 986-6743. Strictly Kosher, all the food is made on the premises under rabbinical supervision. Roast brisket, kreplech soup, and stuffed chicken are a few of the favorites. No liquor. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 8 am-11 am, noon-4 pm, and 5-9 pm. Fri: 8 am-5 pm. Sat: 5-9 pm. BA/V, MC.

Winsor House Inn-390 Washington St, Duxbury, 934-2548. The Winsor House is grandly Federalist without, warmly panelled within. Continental menu: Saltimbocca, coquilles St. Jacques, sole Jacqueline. Moderately expensive. Fully licensed. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm; Tues-Thurs, and Sun 6 pm-9 pm, Fri-Sat 6-10 pm. Reservations are a good idea for weekend dining. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

One man's fish is another man's poisson.

King's Dictionary of Boston, published in 1883, reported:

"The leading French restaurant of the city is 'Ober's. This has more than local fame. The viands here are unsurpassed."

A small booklet issued shortly thereafter introduced next door neighbor Frank Locke's recently opened 'Wine Rooms' as having "the general appearance of an enchanting picture, a sumptuous apartment in some palatial edifice."

And so Ober, with his plain interiors and fancy food, found himself in an alley fight with Locke, with his plain food and fancy interiors.

The Winner was Boston.

As history would have it, both men departed Winter Place and other places of this world having never consummated a marriage.

And it wasn't until 1901, that a Frenchman of considerable charm and estimable taste, broke down the small barrier (in actuality, a door) that separated both establishments.

And from that memorable year until his death in 1939, it was Emil Camus who gave Locke-Ober its distinctive character.

Today, under the direction of David H. Wells, Locke-Ober still offers (from their menu of elaborate resources), Frank Locke's Dover Sole and Louis Ober's filet of sole bonne femme.

One man's fish. Another man's poisson.

We were in Europe recently, visiting some friends, when the subject of movies came up.

"Les Lumieres de la Ville was the greatest movie ever made," Jean began. "A masterpiece. What do you think, Federico?"

"I'd say Tempi Moderni. But it's strictly a matter of taste."

Luis and Max had ideas of their own — something about Moderne Zeiten and Luces de la Ciudad. And the four of them, smiling, glanced over at us.

"Americans don't see as many foreign films as Europeans," we said, diplomatically. "The movies you mentioned aren't popular in the States. If it were up to us, however, we'd probably say Modern Times or City Lights by Chaplin."

But since none of the four was familiar with those films the topic soon turned to sports.

Each of the following "foreign" movies is an American original. We'd like their titles, in English, on the lines provided. And remember that many of the films may have gained (or lost) a bit in translation.

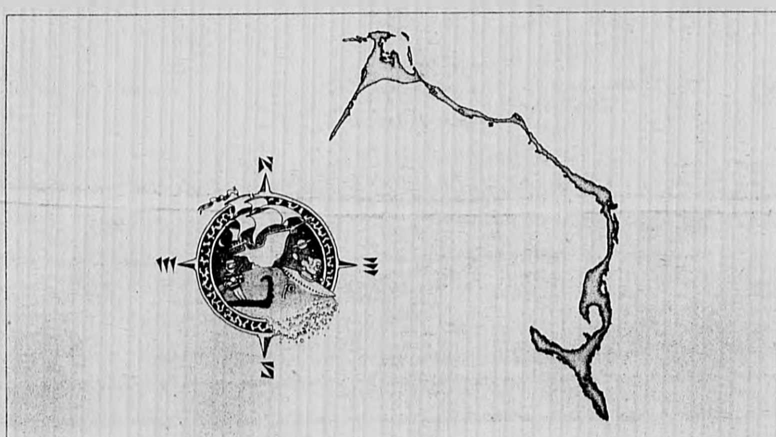
Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through October 26 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Halloween Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the November 9 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a tearsheet of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Puzzle #44
It's a Small World

Most of the responses we received correctly identified the island as Eleuthera Island, in the Bahamas. However, only three respondents correctly identified the "X" as being Rainbow Cay. Most people thought the "X" was Governor's Harbor which is actually 35 miles to the south. We did receive some fascinating answers, including some of the island's history, its natural resources and even current charts. Some readers have been there — several even honeymooned there.



Those of you who were the most specific are among the top-ten winners, and that includes coming as close to the 25°20′ N. Lat. and 76°26′ W. Long position. The first ten winners are: Karen and John LaChance, Framingham; Charles Aldoupolis, Braintree; Jane Civins-Mills, Millis; David Foley, Braintree; Susan Lombard, Arlington; Noreen Clancy, Quincy; David Matson, Weymouth; Hazel Shuflat, Lowell; Bill Fox, Needham; Frank Gould, Braintree.

Are Your Ears Burning? What Your Stereo Says About You.

Stereo components can express any number of needs beyond the simple desire to enjoy Led Zepplin (or the BSO) in the home.

• By Roger Parker

The type of component stereo system you own reveals quite a bit about the type of person you are, and what you think of yourself.

This is because some people use stereo components as ego possessions, used for gratifications beyond their intended purpose. In this regard, stereo components are like automobiles.

Consider: on the Southeast Expressway during the Friday afternoon rush hour, a $16,000 metallic silver BMW 530 with leather upholstery will arrive in Hingham just as fast as a 1965 Chevy Nova book-valued at $750, yet the BMW owner wouldn't give up his BMW for anything. Because he's using it for more than transportation. Perhaps he's using it to rebel against his lower-middle-class past, perhaps he's rebelling against his penny-pinching wife, or perhaps he's trying to show prospective clients that his business is doing well. Whatever, the BMW owner is using his car for more than just getting from Point A to Point B. Likewise, stereo components can express any number of needs beyond the simple desire to enjoy Led Zeppelin (or the BSO) in the home.

So, in a spirit of gentle affection, here are brief descriptions of some of the various types of stereo buyers I've encountered over the years, plus capsule comments on the equipment they buy.

The Horse Trader

To the Horse Trader, the fun is in the buying and selling of stereo components. Music is simply a by-product of the buying process.

The Horse Trader's basic premise is that "new is better." Accordingly, as soon as something new appears on the market, he has to have it.

This, of course, entails getting rid of his old equipment — either through private sale or by haranguing the stereo dealer into accepting it in trade towards his new components.

After the new components are unwrapped and hooked-up, an inevitable let-down occurs, as there is now nothing left to do except play music. At this point, the stereo catalogues and fan magazines are brought out again, and the process is begun all over.

The Technologist

The Technologist is similar to the Horse Trader, in that music is strictly a by-product of the "stereo experience."

The Technologist loves complicated stereo components and operates on an "easy is out/hard is in." The more knobs, dials, switches, meters, and whizbangs the better.

Most manufacturers are happy to comply, because, in many cases, stereo manufacturers are hobbyists, too, and enjoy designing "747 complexity" into their components.

One of these manufacturers is Nakamichi. Nakamichi cassette decks (from $560 to $1,650) contain sophisticated circuits for optimizing performance with not only different brands of cassette tapes, but specific cassettes.

Nakamichi's first preamplifier, the 610, went so far as to contain built-in tone oscillators and Pink Noise Generators to permit its use as a miniature test center, for calibrating, aligning, and evaluating other components in the home.

Now, this circuitry has been made available separately as the Nakamichi T-100 Audio Analyzer ($799). To a true Technologist, the Nakamichi T-100 Audio Analyzer is probably the ultimate component. It offers hour after hour of operating pleasure yet doesn't create any music.

The Gadget Lover

Similar to The Technologist in love of complexity is the Gadget Lover who will go to any length for convenience.

Convenience is defined as remote control capability. To the Gadget Lover, stereo pleasure means raising or lowering system volume, switching between program sources, operating the tape recorder, or instructing the turntable to play bands one and three of a record, but omitting bands two, four, and five without getting out of an armchair.

Both Nakamichi and Tandberg build tape decks with remote control options. The Bang & Olufsen 2400 FM stereo receiver ($595) includes a wireless remote control unit which permits volume adjustments, program source selection, and choice of up to five pre-selected FM stereo stations. The ADC Accutrac Plus Six ($360 with remote programmer) permits you to select the musical selections you want to hear, in whatever order you wish, from a stack of six records.

The Esoteric Lover

If it's commercially successful, the Esoteric Lover doesn't like it.

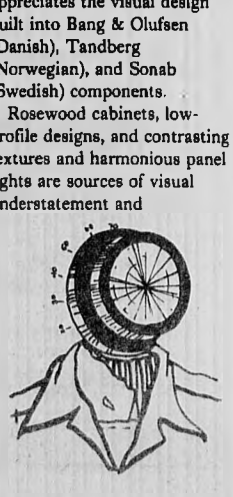
The Esoteric Lover exists on high-technology, state-of-the-art components made by small, obscure companies. E.L.'s goal is to seek out the smaller, personality-oriented, stereo stores, and wait weeks and months for deliveries on hard-to-find components made by companies that barely introduce one model before they replace it with an updated version.

I suspect that the recent review of the $6,000 Beveridge loudspeaker in the October, 1978 issue of High Fidelity magazine has probably disappointed many Beveridge owners and would-be owners who thought they were onto something exclusive and untainted by the masses.

The European Sophisticate

The European sophisticate appreciates the visual design built into Bang & Olufsen (Danish), Tandberg (Norwegian), and Sonab (Swedish) components.

Rosewood cabinets, low-profile designs, and contrasting textures and harmonious panel lights are sources of visual understatement and sophistication.



The Bang & Olufsen lover, often an upscale young professional living in an expensively-furnished apartment, is quick to point out that the Bang & Olufsen system can also be found in the Permanent Design Collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York! (The basic B & O system, the 2400, is available for about $1,100.)

Furthermore, Bang & Olufsen lovers are often enthusiastic about the "intellectual simplicity" of their system. Instead of following the industry-wide trend of adding knobs and switches, B & O builds for simplicity, trying, in their own words, to put as "little as possible between you and the music."

The Loud-Is-Good Lover

The Loud-Is-Good Lover enjoys showing-off his system's power and isn't so much interested in accuracy, as quantity. Absolute fidelity to the original musical performance isn't as important as impressing his or her friends with sheer quantities of sound.

High-Powered Pioneer, Marantz, and Kenwood receivers, Phase Linear amps and preamps, and JBL, Klipsch, and Cerwin Vega speakers are often chosen by Loud-Is-Good'ers.

The Accuracy Freak

In contrast to Loud-Is-Good'ers, Accuracy Freaks are interested in the purity of the sound — the ability of their system to come closer and closer to perfectly recreating the original music performance. To Accuracy Freaks, it's not how loud the music is reproduced, it's how accurately the cello (or whatever) is reproduced.

Indeed, in many cases, Accuracy Freaks will willingly sacrifice volume to achieve fidelity.

Accuracy Freaks are both specification-oriented and subjective-oriented. The former rely on electrical measurements to support their choice of equipment. The latter rely on the subjective "underground" fan magazines (like Absolute Sound, The Stereophile, and The Audio Critic) to support their arguments.

One of the favorite speakers of old-time Accuracy Freaks were KLH Model Nine Electrostatic speakers. These speakers used a lot of power, and didn't play as loud as conventional designs, but were unequalled as far as neutrality.

One of the current replacements in vogue among Accuracy Freaks are Magnepan MG-1's ($495 a pair).

Whereas Loud-Is-Good'ers place their money in amplifiers and receivers capable of delivering hundreds of watts per channel, and speakers that can efficiently convert that wattage into music, Accuracy Freaks often place their money in add-on units which compensate for problems introduced by the listening room.

Equalizers, for example, overcome the fact that each listening room adds its own "sound" to the music. Equalizers permit Accuracy Freaks to "neutralize" the room, permitting speakers and recordings to be reproduced more honestly.

Time-Delay units are great for the Accuracy Freak. The units recreate delayed reflections which normally would come from the back of the concert hall or theater and can expand the walls of your living room.

Time-Delay units were originally introduced by Audio Pulse, and are now available from such varied manufacturers as Advent, Phase Linear, and ADS. Of all available, the $1,000 ADS Model Ten is unique in that it comes complete with speakers and power amplifier.

The Intellectual Anti-Consumer

The Intellectual Anti-Consumer feels it's a sin to spend money, especially on something as commercialized as stereo. Yet the Intellectual Anti-Consumer is forced to spend money on stereo, because he or she loves music, and wants to enjoy it at home. To the Intellectual Anti-Consumer, the smaller the system, the better.

For guidance, the Intellectual Anti-Consumer will often turn to "authorities" like Consumer Reports, and the many mass-circulation stereo guides and magazines on the market (Stereo Review, High Fidelity, Stereo Hi-Fi/Equipment).

Interestingly enough, the Intellectual Anti-Consumer is often one of the most devout literature-collectors around, and will accumulate reams of information before making a purchase.

Because of this pre-investigation, the Intellectual Anti-Consumer will often arrive at a dealer with his mind made-up about what he wants to by.

Indeed, in his desire to remain aloof from the "commercial" side of stereo, the Intellectual Anti-Consumer will often buy by mail.

The Intellectual Anti-Consumer can be identified by the fact that his record collection is huge, and his stereo system is small and well-chosen.

Perhaps the ultimate component for the Intellectual Anti-Consumer is the Advent 300 FM Stereo receiver ($270). The Advent 300 is small and understated, yet its total performance is equal to units several times its size and cost. It was the first unit to incorporate the Holman preamp, an important advance which acknowledged the importance of component interactions.

The Careful Consumer

Fortunately, there's a note of rationality in all this, and it's to be found in the Careful Consumer — actually the largest group of stereo owners.

Careful Consumers know they're making a pleasure purchase, yet they don't mind spending the money. Neither do they feel the need to over-buy for ego purposes.

For them, fortunately, there's a tremendous wealth of quality stereo components available. This is because stereo components are getting better, especially in the low and middle price ranges. Although stereo components in all price ranges have increased in value, the $400 to $700 system price range has seen the most dramatic improvements.

Led by Yamaha, the receivers used in $400 to $700 systems now offer less distortion than ever before. Yamaha was the first to end the "double standard": the way that less-expensive receivers used to have higher distortion than top-of-the-line models. Yamaha was the first to build their entire line to a single standard of excellence, and other manufacturers were forced — for competitive reasons — to follow suit. As a result, the performance of all brands improved.

Speaker performance, likewise, has improved. The speakers used in $400 to $700 systems now offer flatter response and lower distortion than ever before. Advent, five years ago, was the trend-setter, with the original Large Advent. Now, with the introduction of the under-$100 Advent/1, Advent is once again raising the standard for speaker performance and value in the middle price range.

The turntables used in $400 to $700 systems have also shown dramatic improvement. The most obvious examples are the proliferation of high-performance single-play turntables in the $150 price range. These units are often direct-drive models. Direct-drive turntables used to be limited to professional and semi-professional applications. Now, there are several choices available, from Sony and Technics, which fit comfortably into middle-priced systems.

In short, there is now more performance (and, hence, more pleasure) available from stereo systems in the $400 to $700 range than ever before. And, to help you take advantage of it, there are numerous dealers in the Boston area who can show you what's going on, and help you make the right choice.

Indeed, there is probably no other city in the United States with such a diversity of quality stereo component dealers as the Boston area. Within the Route 128 radius, there are large dealers and small dealers, limited-distribution esoteric dealers and mass-merchants, dealers who hand you sealed boxes, and dealers who will test out each piece of equipment before you take it home.

Visit several dealers. Go with an open mind, and be prepared to listen. Bring some of your favorite records along, so you can hear them played on stereo systems in various price ranges. You'll find it easier than you expected to choose the right system, and, once you get it home, you'll find your new system will be a source of continuously-expanding pleasure.

Soon, you'll be wondering how you ever got along without one.

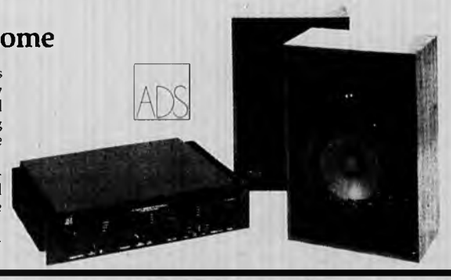
COME HEAR WHAT'S NEW at Natural Sound . . . the Ultimate Audio Store

The ADS Model 10 lets you bring the concert hall home



The ADS 10 Acoustic Dimension Synthesizer is the world's first complete time delay system. The highly advanced time delay circuitry, built-in 100 watt per channel power amplifier and matching loudspeakers were designed to work together to bring the previously missing sense of space and depth to your home listening experience.

By simply adjusting a few controls, you can create a convincing illusion of the concert hall, theater or club in which the actual performance took place. And "studio" recordings take on a sense of life you've never heard before.

Come hear the ADS 10 at Natural Sound Home demonstrations gladly arranged.

The New ADS Loudspeakers are better than ever

ADS loudspeakers have become world famous for their incredible inner-detail, razor sharp transient response and ultra-wide dispersion.

Now ADS introduces an entirely new line of bookshelf and floor standing loudspeakers offering deeper bass response, increased power handling without compromising other areas of performance.

Come hear the new ADS speakers. A great product made even better.

The New ADS L620, under $200 each.

LUX Research Brings New Levels of Performance to Serious Listeners

Lux Audio, Japan's oldest and most respected audio manufacturer, continues to set new standards of amplifier and tuner performance with the introduction of their new Laboratory Standard Series of equipment.

State of the art circuit design, the highest standard of construction and unique human-engineering make all Lux products the definition of electronic excellence.

The New Sound Concepts Concert Machine brings the Third-Dimension to Mobile Audio

The goal of a high-fidelity system is to recreate the sound of a performance. Up to now, automobile sound systems have been able to recreate only the sound of the instruments. The Sound Concepts Concert Machine completes the task by recreating the ambient sounds of the performance environment.

Unlike artificial ambience synthesizers or reverberation devices, which can conflict with and distort the recorded sound, the Concert Machine disperses throughout the vehicle interior the real ambience captured in the recording. The result is an unmatched sense of realism with no compromise in fidelity. The Concert Machine turns every listening experience into a concert performance.

For the Record: This Year's Trends

Every major label now offers a specialized roster of artists for virtually every conceivable taste, age, and region in the country.

• By Denny Thomson

Why do you think President Carter persists in inviting rock stars to the White House? The answer is simple — recording artists have, to a large degree, replaced movie stars and sports heroes as identifiable and charismatic personalities.

The astounding surge in record and tape sales — from $277 million to $3 billion in just twenty years — is primarily the result of the addicting influence of good ol' rock 'n' roll. Up until its only real sales slump in 1975, the recording industry had always assumed that most records were bought by 13 to 20 year-olds. In 1977, however, CBS Records released the findings of a startling study occasioned by the slump indicating that 70 percent of all record purchasers in 1976 were 18 or older, accounting for 82 percent of the total records and tapes sold.

Some 1200 domestic record companies now offer a considerably more varied menu of music to meet the diversity of tastes found in the revised 13 to 35 year-old age range. Where once a consumer had limited options, every major label now offers a specialized roster of artists for virtually every conceivable taste, age and region of the country. More variety has triggered the release of more records (2600 albums and 6200 singles yearly) and greater sales. In fact, the industry has been obliged to create new jargon to meet the boom. Gold albums (sales of over 500,000 copies) are barely respectable anymore; instead, the new standard has become the "platinum" LP, signifying over one million units sold. Between 1976 and 1977, over ten albums went "triple-platinum" while in 1977 alone, no less than 70 achieved the platinum plateau.

With the phenomenal success of pop, many trends have developed.

Disco

Much of Saturday Night Fever's popularity is traceable to the emergence of disco as a major factor in the pop music equation. Oozing with hypnotic rhythms and lush production, disco's glamorous sound has become the country's hottest steppin' out music. Parlaying "cross-over" appeal in both MOR (middle of the road) and soul (or R&B) markets, disco has amazingly accounted for ten of the 14 biggest selling singles from 1976 through today. Acts like Boston's Donna Summer, the Bee Gees, Andy Gibb, Vicki Sue Robinson, the Trammps, Odyssey, the Village People and K.C. and the Sunshine Band are among the reasons for its commercial clout.

However, MOR-oriented record-buyers who relish disco aren't always in the mood for the pounding rhythms which often smother romance. Members of this market have popularized the music of John Denver, Debby Boone, Barry Manilow, Helen Reddy, Barbra Streisand, Diana Ross, John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John and other pure "pop" artists.

Soft Rock

Occupying no man's land between MOR music and hard rock is the typically melodic sound of soft rock, the source of many of today's largest selling artists. Varied musical styles abound here from folk rock (Joan Baez), country rock (the Eagles, Linda Ronstadt) and urbane lyricism (Paul Simon, James Taylor, Carly Simon, Neil Diamond and Billy Joel) to more uptempo entries like Fleetwood Mac, Abba, Heart, Peter Frampton and Paul McCartney. Many of contemporary music's finest and most popular singer-songwriters (Dylan, Jackson Browne, Joni Mitchell and Randy Newman) also fall roughly into the genre. The incredibly broad appeal of soft rock, ranging in quality from innocuous pop to true inspiration, insures its status as perhaps the industry's most consistently lucrative calling card.

Hard Rock

As long as there's pop music, you can bet your Fender there'll be plenty of hard rock; heir in spirit and rhythm to the tradition begun by fifties' rock 'n' roll. Easily the most unwieldy category, hard rock encompasses a great divergence of styles (heavy metal, progressive, Southern, punk, New Wave and R&B-influenced) and capabilities along with some very interesting trends. Though still relying primarily on vocals and electric guitars for much of its excitement and punch, hard rock has witnessed the growing importance of electronic keyboard instruments (especially synthesizers) to its sound (Pink Floyd, Yes, Genesis, Brian Eno and Kansas).

Older hard rock fans tend to be purchasing the music of considerably more accomplished bands. They include both legendary acts like the Rolling Stones, the Who, Led Zeppelin, Chicago, the Beach Boys, Rod Stewart, David Bowie, the Grateful Dead, the Jefferson Starship and newer chart-busters like Bruce Springsteen, Boston, Steely Dan, Bob Seger, Steve Miller, Marshall Tucker, Boz Scaggs and the Doobie Brothers.

Punk

So far, the artistic bark of punk and New Wave bands has been considerably greater than their commercial bite. In essence, their anger revolves around rock music becoming controlled by the commercial dictates of big business. Claiming that the true spirit of rock is being drained by profit-hungry record companies and shallow superstars, the punks aim to reclaim their turf with frenzied, back-to-basics rock 'n' roll. But all-out punks like the Sex Pistols, Dead Boys, Ramones and the Clash have sold few records (excepting Patti Smith) despite the aid of critical acclaim. On the other hand, less musically militant artists (New Wave) who share a similiar sensibility (Elvis Costello, Graham Parker, the Talking Heads, Nick Lowe, Television and Boston's Cars) have enjoyed both rave reviews and some commercial impact. Saleable or not, these outlaws, quite conceivably at the cutting edge of hard rock's musical development, continue to create some of pop's most daring and vital sounds.

Country And Western

Punks couldn't get the time of day from country and western fans despite the fact that their ranks are being infiltrated by a younger, more rock-inclined audience. They've been drawn in droves to this music by cross-over performers such as Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings, Emmy Lou Harris, Dolly Parton, Crystal Gale and Kris Kristofferson. This trend has at once diluted Nashville's long-standing dominance over the nature of country music and increased sales dramatically. For example, a recent L.P. featuring Nelson and Jennings (Wanted: The Outlaws) was the first country album to ever go platinum. More conventional favorites like Charlie Pride, Loretta Lynn, Tammy Wynette, Merle Haggard, Roy Clark, the Statler Brothers, Kenny Rogers and Mel Tillis continue to do well by C&W's traditionally small but faithful audience.

Soul

In soul music (R&B), allegiances are divided between vocal acts, funk and both disco and jazz cross-overs. In the tradition of Motown, vocalists like the Spinners, Gladys Knight, Teddy Pendergrass, Natalie Cole, Diana Ross, the O'Jays and the Jacksons are selling to both blacks and a healthy slice of the MOR and soft rock audiences. The more noteworthy commercial trend though is funk music; a mix of the rhythmic innovations of James Brown, hard rock (particularly rock theater) and jazz. Funk is led by the monstrously successful Earth, Wind and Fire, Parliament-Funkadelic and others including the Commodores, the Ohio Players, Rufus and Chaka Khan, the Brothers Johnson, Kool and the Gang and the Isley Brothers. Stevie Wonder, a category unto himself, continues to be one of soul's best-selling and most inspired artists. Finally, the musical richness of related genres like blues, gospel, salsa and reggae (Bob Marley and the Wailers) deserve mention although their commercial influence remains limited.

Jazz

Jazz, despite its relatively small share of the records and tapes sold (five to ten percent), is undergoing a commercial revival thanks to cross-over appeal with soul and hard rock audiences. This dominant trend is largely due to fusion music, the contemporary expression of the jazz rock pioneered by Miles Davis during the late sixties. Virtually all of today's better selling players (George Benson, Herbie Hancock, Chick Corea, Weather Report, the Crusaders, Gil Scott-Heron, Quincy Jones, Chuck Mangione, Keith Jarrett, Gato Barbieri, Freddie Hubbard and Grover Washington, Jr.) have forsaken recording acoustic jazz for the slicker but greener pastures of the electronic fusion style.

The Boston Scene

Closer to home, Boston's rich and varied scene is currently one of pop music's hottest sources for new talent. Following in the footsteps of hard rocking supergroups like Geils and Aerosmith, the stunning success of the band Boston — whose record-setting debut L.P has sold 6.5 million copies — has raised eyebrows throughout the entire industry. Their new release (Don't Look Back) is also zooming up the charts along with the Cars, a New Wave band receiving the sort of treatment reserved for potential giants. The Cars join other homegrown acts with sizable national followings like Bonnie Raitt, Andy Pratt and the Pousette-Dart Band. Stormin' Norman and Suzy, the Modern Lovers, Willie "Loco" Alexander, the Real Kids, DMZ, Baird Hersey, Webster Lewis, John Lincoln Wright and Chuck McDermott and Wheatstraw have also gotten their licks onto vinyl. As they say in the biz, Boston is hot.

Sound On Wheels

Now, the superior quality of today's tape players and stereo radios have made the automobile's AM radio practically obsolete.

• By Alan M. Weisberg

The typical audiophile usually spends less time listening to music in the living room than in his or her car. It's no wonder, then, that car stereo has become a booming business.

Only a few years ago, the new car buyer would order an inexpensive AM radio as one of the options. Usually, the radio was supplied with a small, fragile speaker hidden beneath the windshield. Now, the superior quality of today's tape players and stereo radios have made AM radio practically obsolete.

Car stereo is not perfect. The automobile is a moving object, causing some minor difficulties in FM reception. Also, because FM transmission is "line of sight" (this means it doesn't bounce easily, like AM) reception in the city, amidst tall buildings, can be erratic. On the other hand, the inside of most automobiles can be a great environment for sound. The speakers are placed close to the ears and a well-padded, noise free interior makes some cars better listening areas than many living rooms.

As a car stereo buyer, the first thing you should look at is the tuner (radio). Usually, you can purchase a radio which combines AM with FM stereo so you can replace the inferior AM radio. An FM stereo gives you better quality sound. One of the things you should discuss with your car stereo dealer is "sensitivity," the ability of the radio to pick up the desired signal from a distance. Another very important specification to look at is "selectivity," the ability to pick up the right signal from amongst the adjacent, unwanted stations.

When you have chosen the proper radio, you'll still need to pick an antenna. If your car comes already equipped with a windshield antenna, don't use it — it's almost worthless. Have your car stereo dealer assist you in choosing an antenna which properly fits your car. Once it's installed, adjust the height to 31 inches, the optimum for ideal FM reception.

The auto stereo was revolutionized by the invention of the under-dash eight-track tape player. This gave you the ability to hear what you wanted, when you wanted. For several years, use of the eight-track deck flourished until the introduction of the cassette deck.

Cassettes and cassette decks are more reliable than eight-track, take considerably less space, are easier to transport and sound much better. In moving automobiles, cassette decks are easier to use because they have fast-forward and rewind buttons allowing the user to get to a specific place on the tape easily. With an eight-track deck, it's necessary to play the whole tape through to get to a particular selection. Although cassette decks can be more expensive, they now account for 40 percent of all auto tape deck sales and are expected to become the only choice.

Maintenance of a tape deck is extremely important and very simple. Periodically, clean the tape head and pinch-roller (a small black rubber roller) with pure isopropyl or rubbing alcohol. Failure to do so will cause loss of high frequency response and increased wow and flutter as well as regular variations in speed and pitch. Also, purchase a good head demagnetizer ($10 to $15) and use it carefully, according to directions.

Many buyers have found an in-dash radio with tape deck combination to be an excellent buy. It's easy to use, and saves a considerable amount of space. Keep in mind, though, that if the tape deck malfunctions and you need to get it repaired, you will also lose the use of your radio. However, the best reason for purchasing an in-dash combination is that you decrease the likelihood of it being ripped off. The installation of an in-dash unit makes it difficult for the amateur thief to do his work.

The last important component is the speaker system. Choosing car speakers can be confusing and difficult. First, you have to decide where to put them. Most people either place their speakers in the doors or beneath the rear window in the cardboard deck. Many manufacturers supply their cars with holes already cut in the cardboard and metal of the rear deck, allowing for easy installation of a pair of flush mount speakers. Placing the speakers in the rear decks uses the trunk space to enhance bass response and makes the speakers sound "bigger." These speakers are most commonly available as a five and a quarter inch round or five inch by seven inch, or six inch by nine inch oval. The same speakers may also be installed in the doors. You must be careful, though, because this type of installation involves cutting holes in the doors with the remote possibility of creating an inoperable window. Measure before you install. If a flush mount speaker won't work, you'll have to use a surface-mount, wedge speaker. These have less bass response, but they do solve many installation problems and can be placed almost anywhere.

One product which has grown rapidly in popularity is the power booster. In order to understand boosters, you'll have to know just a little about power and what it does. The more power a unit puts out, the louder it is likely to be. Why would anyone need high power levels in the automobile's small environment? Some speakers, because of the way they're put together, need more power than others to attain the same volume levels. If the radio or tape deck doesn't supply enough power it begins to distort and sound awful. So, the real reason for a power booster is to make the stereo play louder with little or no distortion. The average car stereo puts out three to five watts per channel, more than a lot of home systems.

You might wonder why, for approximately the same money, you can buy a car stereo with five watts per channel, or one with 15 watts per channel. That's because, in many cases, the car stereo manufacturer is trying to deceive you. They make exaggerated or overstated power claims, hoping to convince you to buy their product. When a manufacturer supplies you with a power output rating, he should also give you the distortion specification. For example, a well-known manufacturer advertises his unit as having "12 watts per channel." When you read the fine print, though, you realize that the distortion is over ten percent. To even the most inexperienced listener, that level of distortion is almost intolerable. It's better to have three or four watts per channel at one percent distortion. Home stereo manufacturers used to play the same games until the Federal Trade Commission forced them to adhere to a rigid set of standards. Until these or similar standards are forced on the car stereo industry, beware! Make your dealer explain the specifications to you. If he can't or won't, then shop elsewhere.

One of the most annoying problems a car stereo owner can encounter is a high-pitched whining sound which occurs only when the engine is running. This is caused by the alternator and can be helped or solved by installing a noise suppressor supplied with your car stereo or which you can purchase for a dollar or two. Sometimes, this problem occurs because of improper installation, so check all of the wiring, especially the ground wire(s).

Speaking of installation, unless you're very good with your hands and are an expert at wiring, don't do it yourself. You could ruin a several hundred dollar investment in a matter of minutes. An experienced installer knows how to cut holes in doors, is familiar with all of the little tricks leading to a neat, invisible wiring job, and can make excellent suggestions about speaker placement. Routine installation should cost you $30 to $50. That would include installation of an in-dash combination unit, two speakers, and an antenna. The price goes up with the addition of a booster, more speakers, or if the installation is difficult in your car.

Where do you buy? From your automobile dealer or from a car stereo dealer? At the risk of receiving nasty letters from auto dealers, I have to say, don't buy from them. In general, their salespeople know nothing about sound, and have been trained to sell only what the parts manager has ordered. The selection is usually poor, at best. Car dealers tend to make more money on radios and tape decks than do auto-stereo dealers who usually sell a better product anyway. You'll be far better off shopping around, listening to the options and having your stereo installed after you purchase your car.

When you make your choice, remember that looks are important, placement can be critical. The most important thing, though, is to listen. How does it sound?

Eleven local y ... honored for their volunteer service to the New England Rehabilitation Hospital on Sunday, Oct. 1, at 7 p.m. at the annual fall awards night at the hospital

They are Margie Johnson, Chris Anderson, Ellen Coates, Jeff Goodman, Janette Pamir, Theresa Pothier, Audrey Aronson, Erica Gerlino, Maureen Herlihy and William and David Worthen.

Miss Johnson is also a newly elected member of the Volunteer Board.

Patricia E. Sedler, former Winchester resident, daughter of Mary E. Bond of 47 Clark st. and the late Charles E. Bond, recently opened Sedlers Antique Village in Georgetown.

The Village, which includes 30 shops in one building, features a large variety of antiques and collectibles.

Pat, a 1957 graduate of Winchester High School, and her husband, Robert, started collecting antiques 17 years ago. They also run their own auctions.

Mr. and Mrs. Sedler are the parents of four children, Robert, Rick, Dean and Sandy.

The art works of Piroska M. Berenyi, mother of Judith Kovnes and Dr. Gabor Kovacs, of the Winchester Hospital and Lawrence Memorial Hospital, are now being exhibited at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Her works show Brazilian folklore through the media of oil paintings, drawings, etchings, batiks and combined technics.

The artist, born in Hungary, now makes her home in Brazil. She has participated in several competitions as well as several one man showings in Brazil, Hungary and the United States.

Ruth Chamberlain, of 16 Pine st., has been named to the 1978 edition of outstanding young women of america.

The Outstanding Young Women of America Program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, in their professions and in their communities.

Ms. Chamberlain, along with approximately 12,000 fellow Outstanding Young Women of America from across the United States, will be presented in the prestigious annual awards-volume. In addition, the 5 now being considered for one of the 51 state awards to be presented to those women who have made the most noteworthy contributions in their individual states. From these fifty-one state winners, the 10 Outstanding Young Women of America will be chosen. The ten national winners will then be honored at the annual awards luncheon to be held this fall in Wasington, D.C.

Gladys M. Ayvasian of Winchester was one of 954 alumni volunteers nationwide who participated in the record-breaking 1977-78 Tufts University Annual Fund appeal.

The fund raised a record $705,000 in unrestricted funds and more than $4.3 million overall, also a record.

Mrs. Joyce J. Kolligan of Winchester is general chairperson of reunion weekend for alumnae of Colby-Sawyer College in New Hampshire, set to be held Oct. 6-8. She is a member of the class of 1955.

The 20th anniversary of the first nucelar reactor to be built in the northeastern United States was occasion recently for the honoring of the late Theos J. Thompson, husband of Dorothy Thompson of 14 Everett ave.

The Keyperson Award from the United Way of Massachusetts was given to Constance C. Blanchard of 50 Lorena rd. at a recent volunteer recognition luncheon in Boston.

The award is given to people who coordinate and conduct United Way campaigns in their companies or organizations.

Mrs. Blanchard is executive director of the Council for Greater Boston Camp Fire Girls.

Celebrating their college reunions, mary Thrift Winslow, class of '68, and Louise Gucker Page, class of '28, traveled to Bryn Mawr College recently.

The two alumnae attended a three day weekend of picnics, parties, class meetings, and workshops.

Ms. Winslow lives at 55 Mystic Valley pkwy. Ms. Page resides at 17 Everett ave.

Edaville Railroad's Cranberry Festival

Edaville Railroad's Cranberry Festival comes but once a year, and it's stuffed with activities like livestock contests, a Harvest Ball, live entertainment, a national quilt patch contest and much more. Not to mention, of course, a hoard of those tangy red berries.

The weekend of Sept. 23-24

There was a carnival . . .

What a weekend it was!

Winchester was alive with a carnival, a flea market, a road race and a yard sale this weekend, and, according to organizers of all three events, they were "great successes."

Mrs. Mary Barger, of the Winchester High School Parents association,which sponsored the carnival Saturday at Manchester Field, reports that proceeds from the event "will certainly help the pool effort." The association is trying to raise enough money to build swimming pool at the high school.

She said there were "tremendous crowds" from noon to 6 p.m. and from 7 p.m. until closing at 10 p.m. Mrs. Barger said she will not know how much the group realized from the activity until "all the bills are paid."

"A Better Chance" held a yard sale Saturday at the First Congregational Church Dix street parking lot and the the crowds there were "better than expected," according to organizer Carolyn Ward.

She said the group did "better this year than last year" in this second fund-raiser event of the year. Every spring, ABC sponsors a concert, and proceeds from that and the yard sale pay one-quarter of the group's operating expenses. ABC also relies heavily on volunteer contributions

Ms. Ward said the group is "well on its way to meeting its goal."

Mary Brown, chairman of the Jaycee-ettes flea market Saturday at the Skillings road parking lot, reports that her group realized "at least $1000" from their major fund-raising activity of the year. This year was the group's 10th annual flea market and Mrs. Brown said, "You can be sure we will have another one next year."

More than 450 runners participated Sunday in New England Medical Center's road race for the benefit of its pediatric unit, the Boston Floating Hospital.

Margaret Miller, of 3 Marshall rd., won the women's master race in the five-mile course circling the Mystic Lakes

Kenwin road man, 23, shot, saved by doctor

A 23-year-old Kenwin road man was accidentally shot in the heart late Monday night at the White Hen Store on Main street and a Winchester Hospital surgeon is being credited with saving the man's life.

Richard J. Zanoli, of 7 Kenwin rd., is in stable condition with a 38 caliber bullet wound of the heart, lung, and major arteries. Chief of surgery at the hospital, Dr. Hugh McCarthy, said it "It's amazing the man's alive."

Dr. McCarthy said Dr. Thomas Boyd, a cardiac surgeon, saved the man's life. "Dr. Boyd was in here (the hospital) in five minutes and we had the man in the operating room within a half hour. Dr. Boyd repaired the holes in the man's heart, lung and arteries with great skill." Dr. McCarthy said Dr. Boyd specializes in treating bullet and stab wounds to the body. "Since he came here, we've had about three or four pierced hearts and he has saved them all," McCarthy said.

"Zanoli was down the drain and Dr. Boyd did a fantastic job," Dr. McCarthy reported.

The chances of mortality in such wounds is 90 to 95 percent according to Dr. McCarthy who has an office at 175 Washington st.

"Chances are, he'll do all right now. He would have been dead in a half hour if it wasn't for Dr. Boyd," Dr. McCarthy said. "The man is very lucky."

According to police, Zanoli was shot when the gun of a friend fell to the floor and discharged. Chief of Police John McHugh said Zanoli had entered the store at about 11:15 p.m. and proceeded to talk to his friend about seven or eight feet away at the other end of a square counter.

One witness said the two were just talking and thinking of ordering a roast beef sandwich when a shot was heard and Zanoli fell to the ground.

The gun was legally registered and license was approved because the man uses it as protection in his business, according to Chief McHugh. McHugh said the 21-year-old man carries large amounts of money on his person because he sells used parts of junked automobiles.

Police said charges will be filed against the man' but they will continue to investigate the shooting. The gun is being sent to the State Police ballistics unit for complete investigation. Sgt. Angelo Amico and Sgt. Inspector Roland Roy are investigating.

In other police action' two Winchester youths have been charged with malicious destruction of public property, juvenile delinquency' and illegal detonation of explosives in the bomb blast last week in a bathroom at McCall Junior High School.

The 14-year-old youths reportedly brought the home-made bomb into the bathroom' put it on a counter' lit the fuse, and ran out. A toilet bowl and a bathroom window were shattered in the explosion.

No one was injured in the blast.

About $120 in gold rings were taken from the top drawer of a dresser in the second-floor window of a Cambridge street house last Sunday, police report. The burglar was interrupted in the ransacking when the owner arrived home. A second-floor window' reached from a tre3 and porch roof' was used in the break.

The Red Cross building on Church street was illegally entered the same day and $20 in cash from a cash box in a file cabinet was taken.

A 60-year-old doctor was arrested by police Monday night for driving so as to endanger and driving on the wrong side of a divided highway. The doctor was heading south in the northbound lane of Cambridge street by the Woburn line.

According to police' the operator left the road and drove through 150 feet of grass at Bonnell's Ford before coming to a halt at a curbstone. He's also being charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and his case has been continued to Oct. 16.

Between 8 and 9:15 a.m. on Monday' two white males were seen entering a Glen road house and were scared off when the owner returned home The men had gathered items by one of the doors before being interrupted.

The two, according to witnesses' drove off in a late-model black Ford sedan. The pair broke a rear window and ransacked both floors before the owner returned.

Local consultant chosen by group to study schools

John Kent, a local real estate and f: cilities planning consultant, has been chosen by the committee on school uses to study what Winchester should do with the schools it closes.

A Winchester resident, Kent worked for Arthur D. Little for 17 years before striking out on his own. He was chosen at a meeting of the committee the evening of Sept. 20.

The committee, made up of Carolyn Ward, Charles Tseckares, and Harry Chefalo, was set to meet with Kent Tuesday to lay out some goals and objectives and supply him with whatever material has been gathered to date.

The committee was established by town meeting last spring to hire a consultant to look into uses for closed school facilities

The Alternative School Use Committee will meet with neighbors of the Parkhurst School and other interested citizens Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the selectmen's office of the town hall. At 9:15 p.m. the same night, the committee will meet the neighbors of the Sanborn House and on Wednesday, the committee will speak with neighbors of the Washington School at 8 p.m. and Noonan School at 9:15 p.m. in the selectmen's office

The committee will listen to suggestions of how to use the schools that are scheduled to close next year.

The school board voted earlier this year to close the Parkhurst Elementary School next September; close the Washington and Noonan schools in September, 1980; and move the administration from the Sanborn House to the Lynch School in 1980.

The committee will hold a series of meetings the first week in October to give neighbors and any others interested a chance to speak out on how the buildings should be dealt with. (See coming events column.)

Kent was chosen from among three applicants for the job; one didn't show up for the interview last Wednesday. Ward sa'l the choice between the final two prospec .s was difficult "One reaso.i we chose Kent was that his living in Winchester is a distinct advantage. . . He knows the climate," noted Ms. Ward. She added, "He's a top notch fellow, and I think he's going to give us his all."

A general meeting for all interested in the issue of what to do with closed schools is scheduled for 8 p.m., Oct. 17, at Town Hall.

Board approves suspension

Ten months after the fact, the board of selectmen Monday unanimously approved the one-day suspension of two town employees for leaving their work post without permission.

A Town Employees Association grievance on the suspension was denied on recommendation of a board sub-committee on grievance procedures.

Selectmen Richard Wilsack and Arthur Dunbar recommended the approval of the suspension of two men found on Cross street when they should have been on Pierpont street during a snow emergency of Dec. 14, 1977.

Dunbar reported that one of the men did not report back to the town yard on instructions from Tonaszuck and that he should be penalized further, but the sub-committee decided not to take further action.

Michael Roberts, local 285 representative of the Town Employees Association, said he believed the men should not be punished at all since there are no written rules about leaving a post. Dunbar said, "When people are put on a job, they should not come off it until the job is completed." Also, Dunbar said the men were eligible for a breakfast break one hour after they were reported away from their post

Murphy said town employees are "not mind readers" and that there should be written rules on job duties.

In the recommendation to the full board, Selectmen Dunbar and Wilsack said, "It is not unreasonable that employees not be allowed to leave work during such conditions without permission."

In other TEA action, five former town employees have been granted a total of $2,113.46 in retroactive pay as a result of them resigning or retiring prior to a settlement of a March 28, 1977 bargaining agreement.

The board of selectmen had previously moved to extend retroactive pay to those persons who were in service during contract negotiation and left before settlement.

The TEA had requested the pay for three town employees, but after further study by the sub-committee, two more employees were found to be affected by the selectmen's rule.

Selectmen voted to approve retroactive pay to the following former employees:

Neil Kerrigan, $754.06;
William H. Crowley, 628.76;
John A. Livermore, $462.14;
Charles E. Hogan, $153.30;
Richard Parham, $115.20.

Roberts said he "applaud(s) the action" taken by the sub-committee on the retroactive decision.

Invitation to a party

Dot Lord, receptionist at The Winchester Star since 1921, is celebrating her 80th birthday this month.

Today, The Star will host a community birthday party for her from 4:30 to 6 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center on Skillings path.

All members of the community who know Dot are cordially invited to drop by the senior center to say hello to Dot, sign the guest book, and have some refreshments.

Four carnival enjoyers braved this ride Saturday at the Winchester High School Parents Association-sponsored carnival at Manchester Field.

Cullen's sentencing benefits organizations

Timmy (not his real name) was shaking in front of the judge at the Woburn District Courthouse recently after being apprehended by local police for growing marijuana in a wooded area in Winchester.

He was there to receive his sentence.

A little more composed than the 15-year-old boy was the judge. As he looked down on the offender, the judge broke the tenseness of the courtroom and asked, "So you like gardening?"

The boy bowed his head. The judge had been informed that this was his first offense and had a perfect school record.

The judge imposed his sentence. "I fine you $100 payable to the Winchester Garden Club. If you like to plant, help them out."

Three motorcyclists were recently arrested by Winchester Police for being idle and disorderly for excessive noise. Again the judge was told the three have good records. Again the judge helped out a non-profit organization by helping out the offenders. He said, "So you like to make noise?" No reply from the guilty. "I fine you $100 payable to the Winchester High School band. If you want to make noise, join the band."

The judge? He's Winchester's Francis Cullen and the judge instituted his charitable sentencing procedure Jan. 1, 1977. Since that time, $14,181.25 has been paid out to area non-profit organizations from court sentences.

The fines are imposed on cases where dismissal would be the most appropriate action of the court, according to Charles Winchester, Fourth District Court probation officer.

He said all are minor matters, such as shoplifting, idle and disorderly, and excessive noise and all are dismissed upon payment through the court probation department.

Winchester said, "Although the cases are criminal in fact, the judge feels the matters are too minor to waste court money and time on." He said, "Usually, the offenders are pleased to pay the fine and, this way, organizations benefit too."

Since the charitable sentence procedure was initiated by Judge Cullen, other district court judges are following suit.

Following, is a list of organizations that have benefited from the judges sentences:

—The Pop Warner League has received $1,615;
—Area little leagues have received $1,375;
—The boy scouts, $40;
—High school scholarship funds, $2,625;
—New England Home for Little Wanderers in Boston, $1,100;
—YMCA, $230;
—Baseball associations, $200;
—North Reading Historical Society, $400;
—High school bands, $450;
—Woburn City Band, $904.25;
—Garden clubs, $1,065;
—Classes of 1978, $100;
—Parents, teachers associations, $25;
—Burlington Community Life Center, $500;
—Boys clubs, $3,504;
—Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $48.

Judge Cullen said the sentencing procedure has worked as well as any other court procedure and the recidivism rate of the offenders is very low.

Judge Francis P. Cullen

Larceners guilty, pay $3,018 fine

Although Judge Cullen has helped local non-profit organizations through his unique sentencing practices, area police officials are complaining about the "light" sentence he imposed recently on two women convicted of two larceny felonies committed last month in Winchester.

Judge Cullen fined Marie Sanoska and Loli Umbladi a total of $3018 for two counts of larceny over $100, one at a Pickering street house and the other at a Hemingway street house last month in Winchester.

The pair has been operating in the Greater Boston area for several months and are known for their unique method of operation, according to police. While one entertains a resident, usually an elderly person, an accomplice ransacks another part of the house. Since Judge Cullen's sentence, a Cambridge District Court judge sentenced Marie Sanobska to six months imprisonment for Cambridge and Arlington breaks.

Police said Umbladi and Sanobska are believed to be part of a larger larceny team that has stolen thousands of dollars in cash and jewelry from local homes. Belmont Police arrested the pair July 12 for breaking and entering a Concord avenue house in the daytime. Before police apprehended them in Cushing square, the women had also entered a Colby street house three blocks away.

For those breaks, they were fined $100 in Cambridge District Court and remanded to the custody of Winchester Police.

On Winchester warrants, the two were arraigned last month in Woburn District Court and held on $2500 cash bail or $25,000 surety at the Waiting Trial Unit of Massachusetts Correctional Institute-Framingham.

According to a state Correction Department official, the two were admitted to the unit Aug. 1 and were bailed Aug. 2.

At last week's trial, Marie Sanobska was found guilty of the two charges and fined $500 plus $518 in restitution charges. Ms. Sanobska was fined another $1000 for violating probation. According to Winchester Police Lt. Andrew Crawford, Marie was serving a suspended sentence for breaking and entering last spring on Highland avenue.

Loli Umbladi, or Cuka Sanobska, was fined $500 on the charges and $518 in restitution. The fines were paid immediately following the trial by what Winchester Police call "The King Pin."

Lt. Crawford said the larceny team "has a lot of money behind them." He said the leader, or "king pin", represents the women and "takes care of them." He said the leader has posted bail for the women on several occasions. The group, according to the lieutenant, hails from Brooklyn, N.Y.

Although Lt. Crawford would like to see tougher sentences for convicted larceners, he said he can't disagree with Judge Cullen's recent sentence of the Sanobska women. "The judge asked, 'Why should we (taxpayers) feed them (by putting them in jail)?', and I would have to go along with him," Lt. Crawford said. Lt. Crawford said the fine will at least "make them think twice about hitting this area again."

Inspector Richard Mello, of Belmont Police, disagreed with Crawford. He said it was "a shame" when the women were fined $100 last month in Cambridge District Court for two counts of breaking and entering in the daytime. "The courts are definitely being too lenient. The court can only act on what's presented to them, but you'd think they'd take more into consideration," Mello said.

Legislation requiring a mandatory one-year minimum imprisonment for conviction of breaking and entering into a dwelling house passed the state House of Representatives this past session and was engrossed on June 28. However, the measure died in the Senate after its third reading. The legislation and other mandatory sentence laws, such as the one-year hand-gun law sentence, are now being studied by Rep. James Segel (D-Brookline).

The breaking and entering legislation would, if passed, in addition to the one-year minimum, prohibit probation or parole until that person has served at least one year in prison

Prosecutions commenced under such legislation would not be continued without a finding or placed on file. The House bill, No. 3518, was introduced by Rep. Robert B. Kennedy (D-Lowell).

Arlington Director of Police Services said he's not sure the mandatory sentence is necessary but added "judges should realize the seriousness of this crime." He said, "I get very upset when breaking and entering cases are treated like a trivial matter. It's a traumatic thing to have your home broken into. If a person can't have privacy in his own home, then where is he going to get it?," Carroll asked.

The director said he believes the "tools are there" for the courts to impose a just sentence, but, in the past, they haven't been used. "Judges just are not seeing it fit to impose stiffer penalties on b and e's (breaking and entering cases)," Carroll said.

In the case of the Sanobska women, Carroll said Marie was fined a year ago, "so if a fine then was not a deterrent, why should she be fined again? Where's the deterrent?," he asked.

Winchester Lt. Crawford said the manadatory sentence bill is not needed either. "The gun law is bad enough without having a b and e mandatory sentence," Crawford said.

Belmont Inspector Mello disagreed, however, with his two counterparts. He said, "Legislators should toughen the law." He said, "I haven't heard of anybody getting time for b and e in a long time." The inspector said unless thearceny team is jailed, they'll be "back on the streets tomorrow." He said the leader will just "bring in another crew" and transfer the one's just fined to another area.

Arlington's Carroll said earlier tue women's warrants from Belmont, Cambridge, Arlington, and Winchester might be lumped together and tried by the Middlesex District Attorey's office. But Middlesex Asst. District Attorney, Roanne Sragów said if the defendent requests it, separate trials for separate incidents must be held. She said the Sanobska cases would continue to be held separately. Up until the Cambridge Court six month sentence of Marie, the Sanobska women were fined only.

Carroll said the Sanobska women and other larceny teams consider fines as "a business expense, an operating expense." He said the amount that the teams have taken from their victims is "well in excess of what they've been fined."

Arlington has been after the team since March and May, 1977 heists. In those cases, Marie received the six-month prison sentence because she "roughed up" two elderly citizens, one living on Alfred road, and the other on Cleveland street, and made off with their "very valuable" diamond rings.

In addition to these breaks, Arlington has recently been plagued by the flimflam team. This team also focuses in on elderly citizens. Carroll said the women, one black and one white, approach an elderly citizen with a handbag filled with a substantial amount of money, usually about $300. The women explain to the about-to-be victim that they found the handbag and would give the elderly person one-third of the cash if the victim puts down a larger amount of money as surety.

The thieves say they have put down $1000 each from their savings accounts and asks the elderly person to do the same. They explain the money will be used for surety if a lawyer is required to 'legally' dole out the money. The women then usually take the victim to the Prudential Center in Boston, tell the victim to go to the 47th floor to meet with a fictitious lawyer, and take off with the $1000. Carroll said the victims are reluctant to come forward to police "out of embarrassment."

Carroll suspects the latest flimflam operations, which netted about $4500 in two separate incidents, was pulled off by another team. The method of operation used by the latest flimflammer was different than past flimflams, Carroll said. "This new team is using more force and is not as smooth as the one we know about," Carroll said.

Traffic advisory committee; cutting different corners

For the past year, four Johns and a Tom have been knocking heads together to propose solutions to the many traffic-related problems in Winchester.

Chief of Police John McHugh, Traffic Safety Officer John McKinley, Town Engineer John Ciarcia, Highway Division Superintendent John McCarthy, and Town Manager Thomas Groux meet once a month (first Thursday of the month in the selectmen's office) to address citizens' complaints about traffic or road problems and to make recommendations in other areas not (yet) complained about.

As Groux recently said at a selectmen's meeting: "I can't think of any other subject that absorbs more time in (town manager's) office than traffic problems."

And so, the town manager began last year to confront the problem by forming the traffic advisory committee and attacking the 'red tape' involved in such areas, the same red tape Groux said he wanted to tear up when he first took office three years ago.

At that time, Groux said, "There is a great deal of red tape in the way we do things. We live on paper," he said, "and it costs us time and money. It's unfortunate. We have got to cut down bureaucratic procedures which have built up over the years," Groux said.

Well, the traffic issue is one area where the red tape has been cut and it can only be attributed to the efforts of the traffic advisory committee.

Chief McHugh said the committee is an "excellent forum for discussion on traffic issues." He said, "Just the fact that department heads get together and begin to realize each other's responsibilities is valuable enough."

Groux said each head (or each John) learns a lot from each other directly in the meetings. "Before' memos were sent from department to department recommending changes and red tape was just increased." Groux said he had to call a halt to the "memo war" before the memos became fit for a john but unfit for the four Johns.

Kenwin road petition

At the committee's recent meeting, the town officials addressed a Kenwin road residents' petition, calling for reduced speed and traffic volume. At Chief McHugh's request and Officer McKinley's support, Groux decided not to reduce the speed and said there was nothing the town could do to reduce the volume except making the street one way. Groux said making the street one way would merely shift traffic onto a parrellel street and would disturb that street's residents.

The Kenwin road residents complained to the selec5men about the noise problem on the street from "speeding" vehicles. Upon police radar check of the street recently, it was found that the average speed of vehicles travelling the street is 25 miles per hour. The radar was taken during rush hour traffic on two days.

Chief McHugh said road bumps, and a two-year old oil and gravelling of the road creates an "illusion of speed." He said police will continue to monitor the road with radar but that it would be unwise to lower the speed in an area where 30 miles per hour is the limit on neighboring streets. "The limit now is not unsafe and we want to be consistent with speed limits on nearby streets," the chief said.

Suggestions to smooth out bumps on the road were opposed when it was brought out by McKinley that drivers would "be invited to speed up on a clear surface." McKinley said a large amount of parked cars on the road is also good for slowing down traffic. "If a driver sees a clear street, he might think it's safer and speed up."

Selectmen referred more complaints from Kenwin road residents who attended the board meeting Monday night back to the traffic advisory committee. One resident reported that at least two motorists passed him recently while he was traveling up Kenwin road at the speed limit. Board Chairman O'Connell suggested that signs, warning of the presence of children, be posted on the street and the speed limit be lowered from 30 to 25 miles per hour.

Forest street complaints

In other action, the committee addressed three letters of complaint from Forest street residents. The residents cited noise pollution due to an excess of heavy trucks and motorcycles.

When that road was monitored recently, six speeding citations were issued by police. Also, seven heavy trucks were counted by the monitoring police officer, but the officer called the trucks' noise "irritating, but not objectionable." He said all the trucks were not without mufflers and that one convoy would not be driving on the street frequently.

The road was surveyed three times by the police department and found that traffic on the road had not increased from a count taken in 1974. In a 24-hour period, 4,440 vehicles travelled the road recently which is about the same amount travelled in 1974.

Chief McHugh said the motorcycle complaint is "a seasonal thing." He said, "Everybody is confronted with it in the summer months." McKinley said it is very difficult to arrest motorcycle operators on noise because it can't be proven in court. Recently, however, McKinley charged two local motorcyclists with being idle and disorderly for excessive noise and the pair was fined $150 each to be paid to the Winchester High School band. The judge, Francis Cullen of Winchester, said the men should pay the fine to the Winchester High School Band and said, "If you want to make noise, join the band," according to McKinley.

Mary Cullen, a resident of Forest street, attended the committee meeting to speak on the traffic problems on the street. She said she didn't know if the committee could do anything for the residents but just wanted to let them know about the noise problem. She said, "The police have been fantastic in trying to control the problem. They have handled it well," she said.

Skillings road lot

In other action, John Ciarcia recommended that the Skillings road entrance and exit to the Skillings road parking lot be reopened. Ciarcia said the opening should be moved further up Skillings to just before the traffic island. The opening was closed to limit traffic passing by the Jenks Senior Citizen Center.

Ciarcia said the new opening would still limit traffic by the center and would make the lot more accessible to town residents. Also, Ciarcia called for parking lot beautification by placing median strips in the yard with trees and bushes.

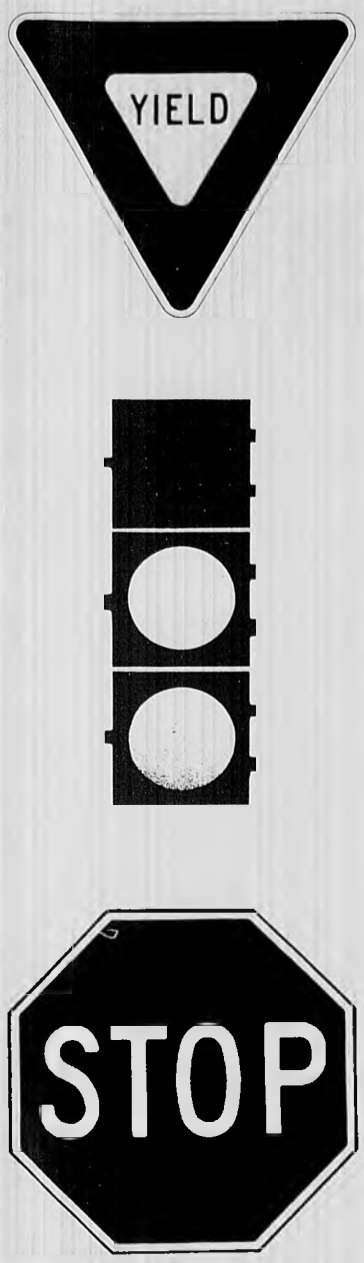
Also, Ciarcia recommended widening the corner of Swanton and Main street, an area where large trucks have trouble turning.

Chief McHugh and McKinley said they would like to see more lighting on Westley street. At present, only one light serves the street. McCarthy said that bulb will be replaced by a stronger lumin light and that any other street light 25 years or older in town would also be replaced at no charge to the town by the E-ison Company. He said 90 percent of the town's lights are 25 years or older and that the company can change them because the new ones would cast more light and cost less. He said the town could get brighter lights for $10,000 less per year in operating costs. The town presently pays $104,000 for street lights per year.

Also discussed at last week's meeting was the possibilty of fencing off the area underneath the overhead in the center of town. McKinley said pedestrians using the area to cross the rotary are endangering themselves. He said if bushes and a fence encompassed the area, pedestrians would be forced to use the crosswalks near the rotary.

Since traffic problems were the center of discussion at last week's meeting, it was revealed that Chief McHugh took a right turn recently on Shore road, going the wrong way on a one-way street. The road was recently made one way by the traffic committee. The chief said when he realized he was going the wrong way, he backed into a driveway and made believe he was surveying the area. "I was hoping nobody would see me, I was so embarrassed," the chief said. McKinley said the chief was lucky he wasn't driving a cruiser.

The chief confessed to the committee that he had a thousand things on his mind and he wasn't thinking when it happened to which Groux responded, "It's a little like genuflecting in the movie theater."



New traffic laws

The traffic advisory committee also discussed at its monthly meeting new motor vehicle law changes which have been taking effect at different dates throughout the year.

Committee members complained about the lack of publicity of the new laws which they blamed on the state Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Following is a list of the new laws concerning traffic safety and motor vehicles:

Yield signs

Effective March 21: Every driver of every vehicle must stop at a stop sign or flashing red light. Prior to the change, the second and third vehicle in a line could proceed without stopping after having stopped behind the first vehicle.

Yield signs

Effective March 21: Added to the law regarding yield signs is a statement that any driver involved in a collision after driving past a yield sign without stopping shall be deemed "prima facie," evidence of failure to yield.

Right-on-red

Effective Oct. 6: Right turns on red lights will be regulated at signalized intersections. According to the new law, signs may be erected at intersections allowing motorists to turn right on red, unless otherwise directed by a police officer, after stopping and yielding right-of-way to pedestrians and approaching traffic. Similarly, signs allowing left turns from one-way streets into one-way streets may also be erected.

Littering

Effective Oct. 6: The Registry of Motor Vehicles is authorized to suspend, for no more than seven days and after due hearing, the license of any person who litters public or private property, or who knowingly permits occupants of his or her vehicle to litter. In other registry-related news, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey said recently that the Massachusetts school bus law will be strictly enforced this year. "The law not only forbids motorists to pass a school bus while it is displaying flashing red warning lights, it also makes it illegal for a school bus driver to allow a motorist to pass while the flashing lights are on," Mackey said. Mackey also reported that for the first five months of this year, 242 motor vehicle fatalities were reported, down nine percent over 1976 figures and five-tenths of a percent over 1977 figures.

However, Mackey said, Massachusetts has slipped from first to second place in traffic deaths with 10 deaths per 100,000 population. Rhode Island is first with 9.3 deaths per 100,000.

The U.S. Department of Transportation reports a 4.7 percent increase nationwide in traffic fatalities from 1976 to 1977 and cited increased driving speeds as the chief reason.

The federal agency also reports that the annual direct economic cost of highway deaths is estimated to be more than $43 billion.

Also, traffic accidents are the number one killer among five to nine year olds, number two among nine to 14 year olds, and the primary killer of 15 to 34 year olds, according to the transportation department.

The J.A. Laraway Co., a plumbing and heating business, Chitel's Tailor Shop, and a real estate company occupied the site of the post office building on Waterfield road in 1915. Standing from left is Augustus Leonard, after whom Leonard Field was named, George Barbaro, the third person is unidentified, Phil Chitel, Priscilla Laraway, Jonas Laraway, and Edson and Dorothy Laraway. Girl sitting on the bridge is also unidentified. Can you identify them? Historical Commission members say the people were standing in the street waiting for a parade to begin, possibly to mark the 65th anniversary of the town.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

Playing 'catch up'

A school board should be as good as the school system it serves. And if the school board is ineffective and unproductive, then it should show in the schools.

Not the case with the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School in Wakefield where about 80 Winchester youths attend classes every year.

The voke school deserves a better school committee. It is carrying the burden of a callous board.

The voke school committee is desperately trying to 'catch up' with its school in quality, but it is failing miserably. They are fumbling over school problems, and mishandling important matters. As a long-term result, the school committee may drag the school it pretends to serve through the muck with themselves.

As one school administrator put it, "They (the school committee) are forgetting what the school is all about — the students."

The school committee is quick to point a finger at persons allegedly responsible for a long list of school administrative problems. However, if the school committee had done its homework, like many of the school students do, many of the school problems probably could have been avoided.

For instance, the school got involved in one of its problems when the committee hired a school committee member's son, against its own policy, and then fired him 15 months later with due process. The individual may now sue the school, and the school's name, not just the school committee's name, will be tarnished.

If they had done their homework, they would not have hired the individual in the first place and then they would not have appointed him to another school administrative post without first checking his qualifications.

Who is most affected by this ineptitude? The students, the staff and those who have to work in the school every day.

Morale at the school is probably at its all-time low. Students intimidate teachers who are subject to inviestigation and teachers are afraid to talk to anyone from the outside for fear the individual is a reporter.

But even more prevalent than in-school fighting, is in-committee fighting. There's more time spent on defending one's position at meetings than offering solutions to problems.

For example, one school committee member recently issued a five-page memorandum rebutting a remark made by a school administrator to a local newspaper reporter about an incident that happened three months ago. It was probably the most detailed work the committee member has completed in his several years as a school board member.

The school committee is not going to begin to correct the school's problems by polarizing itself from the school staff, nor is it going to help the school's image by fighting with each other and pointing fingers.

The problems can only be solved cooperatively — with open minds, and sincere desire to understand.

Personal advancement must be set aside and organizational input must be stressed. The school is not going to be improved by those who speak the loudest and listen the least.

Although several school committee members are guilty of this, there are those who we believe do have the students in mind. They should be applauded for their patience.

May they have the strength to offer example to some of their cohorts.

The Northeast voke school is a good school. The committee must promote it, not destory it. — WAM

A tribute to Dot Lord

By WILLIAM MILLS

I've been with The Star three months.

Dot Lord has been here 57 years.

You ever get the feeling you've missed something?

When I was born, Dot was celebrating her 35 years of extraordinary service to The Star. I missed the anniversary.

When I was learning to walk and talk, Dot was here.

When I joined the little league, Dot was here.

When I graduated from grammar school, high school, and college, Dot was here.

She was here serving The Star and the people of Winchester as pleasantly as she serves them now.

Dot is humble. She is loving. And her boyfriends and girlfriends, from eight to 80, poke their heads in the door every day to share her warmth.

Youngsters are always explaining to Dot what they learned in school that day, even though they usually rush through their recitation to get a piece of candy from her ever-full candy jar. Not too many people know this, but Dot pays off our customers — she treats the little ones to ice cream cones.

And then, the not-so-little ones, those around Dot's age, are always "making time" with her.

I've lost touch of all her boyfriends. I can't even get a date with her.

While answering phones, taking legal notices, straightening out subscription problems, or opening mail, Dot is usually chatting with some friend.

I think she knows more people in town than all of the selectmen put together. And, if the selectmen will forgive me, she probably knows more about the town as well.

Because Dot knows so much about the town, Dot is our greatest source and resource. She's our 'Deep Throat.'

I'd have to work 24 hours a day, seven days a week to keep up with what Dot knows. But, if I did that, I wouldn't live half as long as she.

It's almost embarrassing when somebody calls for information and I have to ask Dot about it. I'd tell her she should be a reporter, but then I'd be out of a job.

Dot is an insititution. She's as much a part of this town as the town hall. And she's just as recognizable.

How many things in town, 80 years old, are working as well as she? She's irreplaceable. When people ask where The Star is, they say, after our directions, "Oh, you mean where Dot works." When people think of The Star, they think of Dot.

I hope the The Star and Winchester never take Dot for granted. She's too valuable to go unappreciated.

Dot will continue to make people's days better, by helping them out over the phone, or making them smile when they drop by the office. She will never retire.

I hope I enjoy several more months and years at The Star with Dot as my office companion.

Join us this afternoon in honoring Dot.

Carnival success

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is impossible to adequately thank the hundreds of volunteers who oversaw rides, sold T-shirts, tended games, and sold everything from hamburgers to cotton candy at last Saturday's "Pool for the School" carnival.

In addition, we are enormously grateful to the thousands of young people and adults who attended and supported our efforts.

It was a beautiful day, a super carnival, and a marvelous response from the townspeople. We are well on our way in the fund drive and we thank you all.

Dirty politics

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We have a new recreation director and, no doubt, he will set the town on fire with new programs, the like of which no equal could be found. This supposedly "well experienced" young man hails from Maynard, Mass.

I must congratulate the town manager since he, at least, selected a person who lived in the United States. It was known that he did not want to hire a Winchester resident.

Why do the selectmen condone this action?

I learned about a month ago that two young men filed applications for this position, both of whom are natives of Winchester, educated here; both school teachers and each has been conscientiously associated with recreational activities starting in the elementary grades and are well-known in town.

When the selectmen run for office, these are the very same young people they solicit votes from but, when key positions come up, they are "nobodies" as far as the board of selectmen is concerned.

As I have written before—key positions are filled by outsiders. For instance, the town manager hails from New Jersey; the public works director is from Easton, Mass; the assistant town manager (supposedly, purchasing agent) is from Concord, Mass; the supervisor of buildings and grounds is from Lowell, Mass.; the new recreation director from Maynard, Mass.

It is obvious that the town manager wants no part of local talent. He prefers to hire "green horns" who have no knowledge of Winchester in order to keep them all under his thumb. Natives would be political thorns in his side.

This latest appointment, as far as I am concerned, has the overtones of dirty politics and that it was a cut and dried proposition inasmuch as the assistant town manager (and would-be purchasing agent) lives in Concord and the new recreation director has been working in Concord. Nuff said!

Lyons thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
To The People of Winchester:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of Winchester for their hospitality and kindness to me during my Senatorial campaign.

I would especially like to thank those friends and supporters who worked so hard and gave so much of themselves during my long campaign. I shall never forget the tremendous efforts they made on my behalf.

I am very proud of the kind of campaign we waged; one which presented the issues to the electorate and allowed them to make up their own minds accordingly.

I congratulate my opponent, Sen Sam Rotondi, for his victory and sincerely offer my best wishes to him and his family.

Also, I would like to commend The Woburn Daily Times and the Lexington Minute-Man for their fair, objective, and completely professional coverage of this entire campaign. It is newspapers like these which afford voters the opportunity of making informed choices on election day.

Once again, I would like to thank all those who in one way or another expressed their friendship or support during my campaign.

Sincerely,
Jim Lyons

Common cause

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Common Cause, Congressional district seven, will be holding an open meeting on Sept. 28, to discuss current proposals regarding rules changes in the Massachusetts General Court. Leaders of the Coalition for Legislative Reform will be on hand to speak and answer questions as to why reform of the Massachusetts House rules is necessary.

The meeting will be on Thursday, Sept. 28, at the First Congregational Chruch on Church street at 8 p.m. Prior to the speaking program a Common Cause member will be elected to serve on the Mass. State Board of Common Cause.

The Coalition for Legislative Reform is made of 165 State representative candidates. Roughly one-half of the coalition members are incumbents. All of the members favor legislation which would democratize the House leadership structure.

The proposals would change current rules so that the Speaker of the House and the majority leader would be elected by secret ballot, and committee chairmen would be elected by the House membership, instead of being appointed by the Speaker. Also all bills would be required to be discharged from their respective committees within 60 days of being filed.

Common Cause members and interested citizens are urged to attend. Rules changes of this nature will increase every State representative's involvement and control in how our state is run.

50 years ago

The stories reprinted here were taken from old editions of The Winchester Star and were compiled by Henry Simonds, local historian. By and large these articles are taken from the same month they appear here, 50 years ago.

Winchester's new post office was opened for the first time to the public during last Saturday afternoon and evening, Sept. 22, many availing themselves of the opportunity to visit and inspect the handsome building before its official opening for business on Monday morning. From 3 until 5 in the afternoon the office was well filled, the visitors evincing much interest in the new and strictly modern facilities which Postmaster George H. Lockman is confident are going to aid materially in raising the local postal service to a high plane of efficiency. Mr. Lockman and Mrs. Lockman were at the office to receive everyone and were assisted in explaining the several points of interest in the new plant by Carriers John McNally and Frank Vallely and Janitor William V. Croto. The lobby of the office was decorated with baskets of cut flowers the larger of which was donatted from the garden of Miss Hattie E. Snow on Forest street.

The visitors were especially pleased with the Carrier's "swing" or rest room on the second floor of the building, containing large tables, chairs, toilets and a shower bath. The look out galleries were also objects of interest, affording as they do a complete bird's eye view of the entire working space of the plant.

It is of interest that the new post office is equipped with 150 more boxes than the old building and that by far the greater part of the first floor is devoted to actual working space. The carrier's racks are larger and strictly up-to-date, having facilities for the sorting of papers which will greatly facilitate this work. There are also two additional racks, looking forward to the day when new carriers will have to be added to the present force. The new lobby has six customer's windows and a special window with a sleet shelf for parcels post. In the old building the parcels post had to be dumped onto the floor and sorted, but it will now be sorted directly into racks, routed according to streets and sections of the town. Adequate provision is made for the caring of waste paper that the floor may be at all times kept clean and tidy. For the safe guarding of the stamp stock a large burglar proof chest has been provided in a strictly fire and burglar proof vault in the postmaster's room. Another is in the money order room. Little has been overlooked in the effort to make the new plant a workable one and a credit to the community it is to serve.

The Winchester Post Office was originally known as South Woburn. —t was established as such Sept. 8, 1841, the name changed to Winchester July 2, 1850. The office was for some years in the Brown and Stanton block on Main street, later moving further down the street to what was then known as Post Office building and now, Lieberman Building. For the past 25 years it had been in Waterfield Building on Common street near Winchester Station. The present office is rated first class and has a force of 17 clerks and carriers. The receipts in the past decade have increased from $26,793 in 1917 to $45,646 in 1927.

The original appropriation for the new building was the outcome of a bill filed by the late Samuel W. McCall of the town in 1913 shortly before he retired as Congressman from this district to run for Governor.

This was supplemented in 1926 by $100,000 secured through Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge. Many in Winchester have aided in securing the new building, but possibly none have worked harder to this end than Harry F. Lunt of 185 Mystic Valley Parkway and Messrs. George F. Arnold and Charles E. Wendall of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

The banquet which was held in honor of the new post office's opening and which took the form of a community get-together and general rejoicing in the realization that the long awaited building is at last a reality, took place in the Town Hall on Saturday, Sept. 22 at 6 o'clock.

Attending was Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett who came to Winchester from Ashville, N.C. where he had been the principal speaker at the Postmaster's convention held in that city. Mr Bartlett was escorted by Messrs. Herbert Hansen and Thomas Feeney, respectively assistant postmaster and superintendent of the registry division of the Boston Post Office.

Seated at the head table at the banquet with Messrs. Bartlett, Hansen and Feeney were Postmaster George H. Lockman, Hon. Frederick W. Dallinger, Mr. & Mrs. George T. Davidson, Selectman and Mrs. Walter H. Dotten, Representative and Mrs. Thomas R. Baterman, Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden, Dr. & Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kneeland, Selectman and Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Radley, Selectman and Mrs. Thomas F. Fallon and former Selectman and Mrs. John H. Powers. President George F. Arnold of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce was prevented from occupying his place at the head table by illness.

Rev. Dr. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, asked the blessing which opened the banquet. There were about 200 seated at the long tables in the hall. Instrumental music was played during the serving of the various courses by the Trudeau trio.

Mr. Kneeland served as toastmaster and called first upon Mr. Lockman who stressed the fact that the gathering was strictly a community affair, open to everyone and held solely with the idea of a general thanksgiving upon the opening of the much needed new post office.

He was followed by Dr. Blaisdell who spoke for the town. His remarks were in a humorous vein and were largely confined to several stories told at the expense of Toastmaster Kneeland.

Mr. Hansen was next called upon but said little beyond expressing his pleasure at being present. Congressman Dallinger in his address gave something of the history of the new post office project and stated that no one individual was entitled to the credit for finally getting the building. He touched upon the old "pork barrel" days in Congress when each Congressman was allowed two buildings for his district, regardless of size, resulting in the erection of monumental structures in towns of two or three thousand inhabitants. Mr. Dallinger felt in closing that now the new building had become a reality, Winchester would undoubtedly be granted funds to provide for the help necessary to give the Town the service it is entitled to.

Hon. Mr. Bartlett was the last speaker. He stated at the beginning of his address that he had misjudged the native of the occasion and was afraid his remarks might not be so interesting as he could have wished them to be. He traced briefly the history of the postal service and told of the many problems which his department is called upon to face in supplying reasonable postal service to the citizens of the country. He stressed the fact that the authorities tried to give the people what they wanted so far as it was possible for them to do so.

Town watch...

'I finished the race'

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh Jr., Chairman of the Winchester Board of Selectmen Edward O'Connell, Selectmen Richard Wilsack, and Assistant Town Comptroller Joseph Bonner all participated Sunday in the New England Medical Cemnter's road race for the benefit of the Boston Floating Hospital.

O'Connell was physically not up to par for the race, but his spirits seemed unchecked. The chairman reported tendon injuries before the race, but he still trotted off when the gun sounded.

Although O'Connell was hampered by his injury, the chairman still finished in 33 minutes, only seven minutes behind the winner.

When Wilsack was asked how he fared, he replied' "I accomplished my goal — I finished the race."

O'Connell suggested that Saltmarsh, Bonner, Wilsack and himself form a town officials' track association, but that matter was silently tabled.

More than 450 participated in the race which stretched five miles and circled the Mystic Lakes. Saltmarsh, O'Connell, Wilsack and Bonner are all avid runners.

Although none of them picked up any awards for their efforts, we can expect that these leaders will last longer in office than non-runners, whether that is good or bad!

Star readers may have sensed something familiar in the story we ran last week about the inimitable Dot Lord. We inadvertently forgot to put in the by-line for Karen Whitlesey-First, former assistant editor of The Star. When she heard we were planning to do a feature on Dot, Karen offered to do the interview. As you can tell from reading the story, she hasn't lost her touch.

School budget category has surplus

The personnel services category of the school budget has $13,000 in its account, according to Assistant Superintendent Jack Fallon, who last week said it was overspent by $32,000.

Fallon told the school committee Monday night, however, that he anticipated a large deficit in the other expenses budget that would exceed at least $30,000. He attributed the costs to "substantial" overrruns in tuition, transportaion costs for which the state would not reimburse Winchester, and utility expenses.

An additional $4,000 was realized in the government services budget which was gained by paying new teachers less than their predecessors were getting. This exceeded projections by about $30,000.

Also, according to Fallon, the school department overestimated the amount it would have to pay teachers for taking courses for more credit by $18,000.

Guidance staff transfers also resulted in about $7,000 gains, Fallon said.

Personnel director Robert Fitzgerald reported that veteran staff members had left the schools in unexpected numbers this year to work in private industry, increasing the extra funds in the category.

School committee members Jean Weylman and Cathy Alexnader said the surplus vindicated their June votes for additional staffing. At that time, committee member Heinrich Holland resigned on the women's votes because staffing enrollments were unknown at the time and a vote to provide staffing at elementary schools would be "fiscally irresponsible," he said. Holland withdrew his resignation two days later.

"It turned out we were right," Weylman said of her vote, Alexander's, and committee members Sandra Rodgers.

But school committee chairman Constance Pappas said the newly-found surplus in personnel services was "quite fortuitious." She said she hoped school committee members would not vote to spend money and "hope for the best" in the future.

Holland agreed, saying, "I don't think it is a good idea to make assignments to elementary schools and other schools before we know what the true need is."

In other action Monday night, Michael C. Houghton, newly-elected varsity hockey coach at the high school was voted the assignment stipened of $1,431.

Cynthia Papoulias was granted a $248 stipened for her work with the Lynch Junior High cheerleaders; Robert Boyd, a $330 stipened for TV coordinator at Lynch Junior High; Walter Lewis, $330 for his work in the math league; and Sally Murdock, $578 for her work with dramatics at McCall Junior High School

Miss Randee Martin, a social studies steacher at the high school since 1969, was granted a leave of absence without pay for the remainder of the school year to teach at an alternative school in Lebanon, Mo. She will stay at the high school until the end of the first semester.

Seniors' fiesta fair Oct. 4-5 to help defray center's cost

Dozens of members of the Winchester Seniors Association and friends are working to make the Third Annual Fall Fiesta Fair on Oct. 4 and 5 a huge success.

The ways and means committee has established a goal of $10,000. The proceeds will be used to meet expenses incurred in the operation of the Jenks Senior Center. Prior to the current season, the office of the Council on Aging was housed in the Lincoln Elementary School; hence, heat and light were provided.

With responsibilities now shifted to the seniors, there are costs for a part-time custodian's salary, oil for the heater, electric bills, maintenance, and other expenses that have to be met.

The fair is the largest money-raising activity of the year and it must be lucrative to provide for expenditures in running the building.

Needed especially are things for the silent auction. For those who are not familiar with this type of activity, an estimate- value is placed on each item as a starting figure for the bidding which takes place over a specified period of time during the day or evening.

The bidder who places the largest figure on the article has the power of purchasing it. Many choice pieces are awaiting the bidding during the two-day fair.

Donations are still needed for the following tables: baked goods, children's toys and games, plants, white elephants, boutique, Christmas decorations, knitted goods, and new items for the men's table.

Dinner tickets are available through Oct. 2nd at the office of the Council on Aging located in the Jenks Senior Center. None will be sold at the door of the K of C Hall on Oct. 4th. The dinner hours are between 5 and 7 p.m.

The public is invited to purchase dinner tickets and to attend the fair on Oct. 4 from 4 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and on Oct. 5 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Groux appointed to state trust advisory board

Thomas J. Groux

Town Manager Thomas Groux has been apointed to the advisory board of the state Municipal Depository Trust, State Treasurer Robert Crane announced recently.

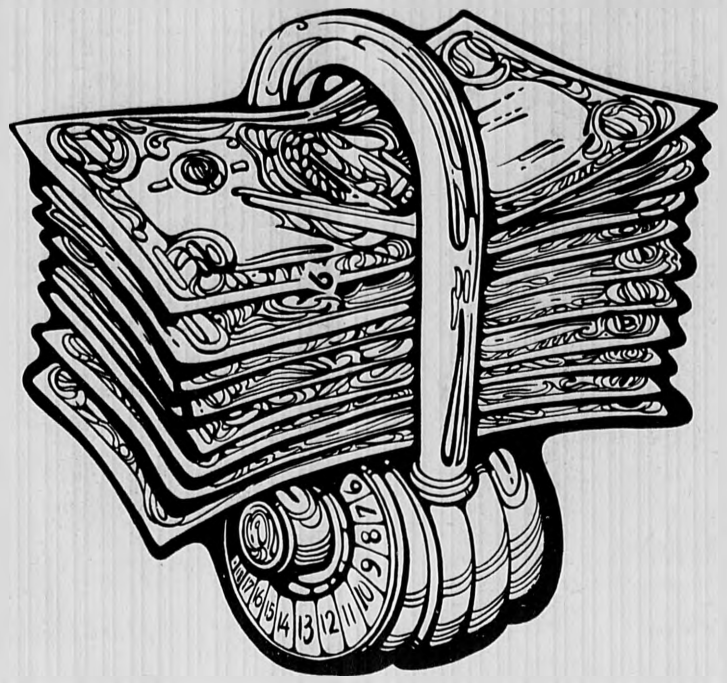
The trust began operations 13 months ago with a $10 million deposit from the state. As of June 30, with the state pooling an additional $10 million deposit with the investments of the cities and towns and political subdivisions, the trust's assets have grown to $65.6 million, according to the treasurer's office.

Presently, there are 124 participants of the trust and 192 accounts. In its first year, the trust realized more than $2 million in dividend income.

Groux said the 21-member advisory board, made up mostly of town treasurers, meets quarterly to examine trust operations. Groux is one of two town managers on the board.

He explained that the trust benefits local communities in that it "enables public agencies to pool idle cash for the purposes of investment." He said for communities to accrue the greatest amount of interest in private banks, cash must be deposited in $100,000 denominations, a practice that is not necessary in the trust system.

Groux said the trust is achieving its objectives. "It primarily helps very small communities who might not have the management expertise. They can gain this expertise through this state trust," Groux said.



Winchester gets $14,000 from depository trust

Winchester's participation in the state's municipal depository trust has earned the town more than $14,000 in dividend income, the state treasurer's office reported recently.

Winchester joined the trust last November and the town's retirement board has recently decided to participate.

According to Winchester Treasurer Carol A. Thomas, the town decided to participate in the trust because the interest yield is usually greater than savings bank yields. She said the trust is "another vehicle for the town to invest its money."

Thomas explained the rate of return on deposits depends on the success of the trust. The trust relies on community-pooled investments.

Massachusetts is one of only eight states in the country with such a trust. It is a voluntary investment program administered by a Boston-based investment management firm.

The trust gives cities and towns, as well as the state and various political sub-divisions, the opportunity to pool their temporary idle cash for short-term investments in money market instruments or larger, more economic denominations than if the investments were made individually.

Treasurer Crane recently said the trust

Carol A. Thomas

"benefits our cities and towns, but it also benefits the Commonwealth as a whole, since the financial status of our local municipalities directly affects the fiscal stability of the Commonwealth."

Selectmen's notes

Fact finder named

A Burlington, Vt. man has been appointed fact finder in negotiations between the town and the Town Employees Association.

M. Nadworny was chosen by both sides from a list of four or five candidates supplied by the state conciliation and arbitration board.

According to Town Manager Thomas Groux, both sides are required to check off names from the list of candidates of who they do not want to be fact finder and to submit at least one name to the state board for approval.

Groux said the fact finder will be in contact with the two sides by the end of the week, and if he is not, then the town plans on calling him.

Negotiations between the TEA and the town have been in progress for several months, and when a settlement could not be reached through a state mediator, the matter was sent to fact finding, a process that will possibly cost thousands of dollars to both sides.

Auditorium offered

Selectmen Monday voted to welcome the town's American Legion post to use the town hall auditorium for their meetings, provided they don't serve alcoholic beverages.

Post 97 Commander John Sullivan last week requested from the selectmen "subsistence and quarters." Sullivan requested the help because he said his 80-member organization "are people who offered their lives for the country and they feel the town owes them something."

Wedgemere Station was cited last week as a possible location for post meetings. At the time, Town Manager Thomas Groux said the station is often vandalized and it "might do well by serving the American Legion."

Wedgemere Station, however, was not mentioned this week in the selectmen's discussion. Sullivan, who attended last week's selectmen's meeting, was not present Monday.

Selectmen Richard Wilsack said he is "personally opposed to laying out town funds for the post." He said' "It is in the best interest of the town to support the American Legion if the space is available."

Selectmen Arthur Dunbar agreed with Wilsack. He said, "I do not think we should take any action on it until we have received definite proposal and, at that time, we should evaluate and weigh the proposal."

Selectmen Hankins said she "would not support any quarters serving alcohol." Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell offered the town hall auditorium if used without alcohol. He said, "I just think we should lend a helping hand to someone who is down," referring to the post.

Selectmen said they would communicate to Sullivan about using the auditorium, but that they would not support appropriation of public funds to the post at this time.

Preliminary articles

A preliminary list of articles for the town warrant was submitted to selectmen Monday night by Town Manager Tom Groux.

The fall town meeting will begin Monday, Nov. 6. Articles must be submitted before Oct. 6 to appear on the warrant.

The board of selectmen is tentatively closing the warrant on Oct. 2 and unless additional articles are submitted between Oct. 2 and Oct. 6, the warrant, as approved by the board on Oct. 2, will be the final one.

The preliminary list follows:

—Charter and by-law changes;
—Collective bargaining agreements;
—Licensing of dance schools;
—Police department's use of Winchester Savings Bank;
—Data processing study;
—Library gift;
—High school construction litigation;
—Planning board;
—School committee;
—Budget (supplementation): Building and grounds, hauling and disposal account; insurance account; judgments and claims account; Police account; CETA account.
—MBTA Mini bus proposal;
—Committee reports: Alternative Use of School Buildings; Committee on Names.

The only unexpected addition to the articles is the Town Manager's inclusion of a special account for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Groux asked selectmen to approve the account article so the town could "handle the program in a more business-like way." He said if the town is going to get into CETA projects, and the town was involved in two last year totaling $200,000, then "we should establish a separate acccount so that it doesn't impose any burden on any other department accounts."

Groux also reported that there is "more permanency" in the CETA program from the federal level. Since 1973, the CETA legislation has been extended yearly and the possibility of it being cancelled has always been present. "I think the program is more permanent now," Groux said.

DPW appointments

A Woburn and a Winchester man were appointed to the department of public works by Town Manager Thomas Groux.

Anthony J. Bogas, of 5 Alpina ave., Woburn has been hired as a skilled craftsman, level B, an electrician, and Joseph Gallup, of 3 Risley rd., has been appointed to an unskilled laborer position. The appointments become effective Oct. 2.

Groux said Bogas was the only applicant for his position and that he "brings experience and technical background to the position."

There were three applications for the unskilled laborer position. Groux said, "Mr. Gallup has held temporary appointments in various divisions within the DPW and, as a result, brings some working experience for the town with him also."

Cabaret approved

The board of selectmen recently approved a public amusement license for the 1979 Cabaret show sponsored annually by the Winchester Winton Club.

This year's show will be held Tuesday, Jan 30 through Saturday, Feb. 3 from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. in the town hall auditorium.

The group also requested that the hall be available Wednesday, Jan. 3 for their talent night and from Saturday, Jan. 6 to Monday, Jan. 29 for rehearsals.

Mrs. John H. Culver, Cabaret chairman, in a letter to selectmen, assured them that proper police and fire protection will be provided for the free-admission event.

New Appointments

Effective Oct. 16, Carl V. Galante Jr., of 375 Highland ave., will become the town's new zoning assistant. Galante has been associated with the engineering department since 1975. Dominic Serratore, building commissioner, recommended the appointment to Town Manager Thomas Groux.

Effective Oct. 9, Mrs. Anne Fuller, of 23 Westland ave., will begin duties as a clerk in the town manager's office. Mrs. Fuller replaces Marie Campbell, of 19 Nathaniel rd., who left last month to work in the town engineer's office.

Sixteen candidates were interviewed for the position, and because of the work load and short-staffing of the office, she will begin duties this week with a temporary appointment status, according to Groux.

Request denied

A request for the permission to erect an electric light pole on the west edge of the parking lot between Wildwood street and the West Side Field was denied Monday by the board of selectmen.

James R. Stewart Jr., of 7 Winslow rd., made the request for the Winchester Little League which plays on the field.

Town Manager Groux and Department of Public Works Director Walter Tonaszuck, in separate memorandums, reported to selectmen that the light should not be erected until further study is made of the area. Tonaszuck said, "There is a lot more to think about than simply the installation of a pole. I think the whole concept should be evaluated."

Bantam AA's top Woburn in opener

The Winchester Bantam AA's got their season off on the right foot by defeating Woburn 3-2 Sunday night at Burlington.

Playing before a large crowd, the Bantams took an early lead with Steve Tucci taking a picture pass from Mike Griffin, breaking in alone and putting a backhander behind the Woburn netminder.

Both teams battled evenly with Woburn's Chipman and Winchester's Giarizzo both making some good saves. Woburn got on the scoreboard late during the first period on Bowers goal assisted by Tramonte.

Woburn kept the pressure on and took a 2-1 lead with Dembrowski scoring unassisted. Tony Celli's score from a jam in front put Winchester even with a minute to play in the second period.

Celli tipped the puck by the Woburn goalie with assists going to Tom Sullivan and Steve Marino, a standout on defense for the Bantams.

Steve Tucci put home the game winner with less than two minutes played in the final stanza, scoring on a good wrist shot with an assist once again to Mike Griffin. Paul Tucci, passing well and killing penalties effectively, also was credited with an assist.

The game's most exciting moments came late in the third period as Woburn fought desperately for the equalizer. Pat Fella's save with less than three minutes to play foiled a two-on-one rush that was clearly Woburn's best scoring bid.

Following an icing call forcing a face-off in the Woburn end, the Bantams bottled up their opponents in their own end for the last 1:48, preventing the Tanners from pulling their goalie for one last effort. Chris Parker turned in an excellent two-way effort, killing penalties and centering the power play.

Paul White's steady and consistent defensive play was also a contributing factor in the Winchester win. "It's nice to win the opener," stated Coach Dave Boyle, "and really satisfying to beat a good club like Woburn."

Soccer Roundup

The fall soccer season got off to an exciting start in the oldest boys division.

The level of play appears to be very good and most games are only decided in the final stages. Scoring has been high, with an average of 6 goals per game.

Since some of the teams are still a little short on players, a limited number of applications (boys born in 1964 or earlier) can still be accepted.

The results for the first week:
Orange Astros vs. Black Eagles, 2-5
Royals vs. Green Jets, 1-1
Purple Knights vs. Blue Jays, 5-3
Second week:
Green Jets vs. Blue Jays, 4-2
Blak Eagles vs. Purple Knights, 4-3

This last game pitted the 2 winners of the first week against each other for an exciting game. The Knights seemed to put it away early by scoring 3 goals in the first 15 minutes, but the Eagles came right back and 10 minutes later it was 3-2.

The defenses then tightened up, but the black waves kept rolling and 2 more hard fought goals brought the Eagles the victory.

Free testing at Woburn clinic

The Communication Disorders Department of the New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn, is offering free hearing testing and counseling Wednesday, Oct. 4 from 6-9 p.m. at the hospital.

For an appointment call Lori Freedman, audiologist, at 935-5050 ext. 236.

Swim classes for disabled

The Woburn Recreation Dept. and the Easter Seal Society will co-sponsor a program of free swim instruction and arts and crafts for area school-age children with physical disabilities.

This series of one-hour swimming lessons will begin at the Ramada Inn pool in Woburn on Sunday, Oct. 14 from 9-10 a.m. The program will continue for eight weeks through Dec. 9.

A certified water safety instructor will conduct the program and participants will be assisted on a one-to-one basis by local student volunteers.

Swimming will be followed by an arts and crarts program, conducted by Drew Bililies, at 10:30 a.m. at the Woburn Boys' Club.

Application and further information may be obtained by contacting Kirk Joslin at the Easter Seal office, 934 Statler Office Bldg., 20 Providence st., Boston, Ma. 02116 or by calling 482-3370.

Aides are also needed to work on a one-to-one basis with the children in both swimming and arts and cr$fts. Interested volunteers should contact the Easter Seal office. Volunteers should be reasonably good swimmers and should enjoy working with children.

A brief training session is required of all volunteers.

Sermon topic chosen at church

"Being Alive Hurts" is the sermon topic chosen by Dr. Robert A. Storer, minister emeritus of the Winchester Unitarian Church, Sunday morning, Oct. 1, at the 10:30 service.

Dale Schifler, new musical director and organist, and the church choir have arranged special music for the service.

Church school classes for all ages and nursery school for small children during service hour are offered.

LWV to hold house tour

On Saturday, Oct. 14, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the Boston League of Women Voters will sponsor a house tour in the Back Bay. It will feature some of the residences and grand structures which characterize the elegant neighborhood.

Tickets may be purchased before the tour at the Boston League of Women Voters office, 59 Temple pl., Suite 700, Boston 02111; at the Beacon Hill, Back Bay, and Faneuil Hall branches of Kennedy Studios, Eric's of Boston on Charles st. in Beacon Hill; at the Faneuil Hall branch of Paperback Booksmith; and at the Boston Architectural Center, 320 Newbury st., Back Bay.

For more information, call the Boston League of Women Voters at 526-2857.

Equal matchup between Winchester and Reading

By JON KALMAN

"The best high school game I have seen in five years," said Winchester Head Coach Manny Marshall. "A great match-up, both teams left the field proud," commented the Reading Coach.

These are two of many opinions about Saturdays matchup between powerhouses Winchester and Reading.

The game was, in fact, a classic. It provided a good mixture of solid, nosed football and its share of the frequent high school gridiron mistakes.

Each team put out 100 percent on the field, and neither team could be ashamed of its performance.

Winchester did appear to have the upper hand, but failure to capitalize on precious scoring opportunities prevented the win. Despite Winchester's practice jersey which reads 'No Guts, No Glory' the Sachems sid provide the guts but the glory was always one step ahead.

The pregame tension had mounted ever since Reading had demolished Marblehead 21-0 and Winchester had been shutout by underdog Natick. (Winchester, of the 90-plus scoring total in preseason action.)

The Sachem performance had dropped it out of the Division I top ten ranking, while Reading maintained its position as number two.

Reading received the ball in good field position following Dave Guarnaccia's kickoff and a ten yard return by Red Raider.

On the second play from scrimmage Sam Bellino recovered Terrence Denehy's fumble for the first of Winchester's many scoring opportunities.

Winchester was setback on this attempt, as they could only move six yards. This was to be the first indication of defensive 'one-unmanship' by both teams.

Reading and Winchester each moved the ball on offense, but any time a team was on the verge of scoring, the defense would exert that extra effort to stall the drive.

The defense, however, was not the only factor preventing an obstacle to the goal line. The offense on occasion proved to be just as effective in stopping a drive as each team committed several costly turnovers.

The game served to emphasize many strengths and weaknesses in the Sachem club. Offensively, Winchester has a pair of bruising running backs in Tom Murray and Sam Bellino. Bellino's slashing drives and second efforts picked up several needed yards.

Murray, at 6'2''-185 pounds-provides Winchester with a workhorse, as he carried 17 times for 48 yards to lead all rushers.

At the helm for Winchester is Dave O'Neil. O'Neil combines the ability to execute the option with a strong passing arm provided he has someone on the receiving end of his aerials.

Winchester's offensive shortcomings result in the fact that they are primarily a blast up the middle club which does not have a consistant passing game. This becomes increasingly important in third down and long yardage situations.

Winchester's defense is again the backbone of the team. The Sachem defenders - repeatedly stripped Reading of the ball through the offense failed to capitalize on the defense's efforts.

Notable performances were turned in by Sachem defenders Len Bellino, Sam Bellino, Tom Murray, and Bard Cowen.

Both Murray and S. Bellino terrorized the Reading backfield—as payment for the lumps they receive carrying the ball.

The ball of the game however, goes to Brad Cowen. Cowen, a junior, plays defensive end and was responsible for providing Winchester with its best field position of the day.

On the third down Brad blew through the left side of the line and intercepted a quarterback Paul Soracco's pitchout, which Cowen returned 23 yards before he was tackled.

Bellino and Murray moved the ball to the one yard line where a fourth down quarterback sneak by O'Neil failed.

Reading had the ball several times within Sachem territory as they showed Winchester's susceptibility to the pass. They too never scored, as the Red Raiders could not find the proper formula to unlock Winchester's defense.

The final score then served justice to both teams, and provided the fans with some thing to talk about until next week.

Career course part of WHS's adult education

In cooperation with the Winchester Adult Education Program, Lesley College will offer an undergraduate course at the high school with an emphasis on career exploration. This course will focus on personal growth and awareness as they relate to job identification and exploration. Students will be exposed to values clarification, decision-making and job seeking skills (interviewing techniques and resume preparation will be included).

The course will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7-9 p.m. in Room A-201 at the High School. The course will begin Oct. 2 and run for 10 weeks.

Career exploration workshop will be a three credit, undergraduate course and the standard Lesley College tuition fee will apply. Graduate level credit may be available by arrangement with the instructor, Mrs. Elaine Slavin.

Students interested in enrolling in the course should do so before Oct. 2 with the director of adult education at Winchester High School.

Class size will be limited and students will be enrolled on a first-come, first-served basis.

High school golf sports 1-0-1 record

The Winchester High School golf team gained a tie against Woburn last week on Jay Beradi's hole-in-one on the 14th hole.

Beradi used a five-iron at the Winchester Country Club golf course.

Beradi, Richard Boland, and John Forbes of the Winchester team were each one stroke behind with one to play and Boland parred his hole to tie his match and Forbes got a birdie to tie his.

In other action, Winchester defeated Melrose in its second match of the season. It was the first time Winchester beat Melrose since 1954.

Again Richard Boland and Jay Beradi led the charge with some help from Bob Leonard and co-captain J8m Albiani.

The golf team's record is now 1-0-1 with a match against Burlington this week.

Scoring high in first soccer games

A beautiful fall day Sept. 23, was the perfect setting for four Soccer "B" games at McDonald Field.

In the first game, teams blue and green played to a 4-4 tie with Geoff McIntosh and Jimmy Rae providing the offense for the blue. The goalies for the teams, Jimmy Waite and Chris Cahill, both played well.

Mark Herlihy, who scored seven goals in the first two games led the 6-2 attack of the purple against the gold. Mitchell Rodriguez also scored for the purple. Steve McAdams played a fine defensive game, and Jim Kirkpatrick was outstanding at center halfback. Kevin Driscoll managed two goals for gold and David McCall played a fine game in goal.

In the third game, the black team beat maroon by a 7-2 score led by Mike Driscoll, Ed Brickley and Paul O'Brian. John Myers played an excellent two-way game. In a losing effort, Coach Ain Laats of maroon pointed to the improved play of Alex Mills and Bob Barifaldi.

In the final game Saturday, the orange team beat the royal blue team 5-2 led by Steve Masiello who scored four goals. Brian Carroll scored the orange's other goal and John Shirley was excellent in goal. The royal blue offensive effort was led by Kevin Scully. A fine game at defense was played by Rich Veitch. David Donnellan displayed a good two-way performance.

Sachemette's soccer ties ConcordCarlisle

By CLAIRE FITZGERALD

Winchester Sachemettes Girls Varsity Soccer Team, last week tied their game against Concord Carlisle at Leonard Field. The game ended 2-2.

During the first quarter, Winchester applied constant pressure on the Concord goalie by keeping the ball in Concord's end of the field. The sachemettes could not quite put the ball into the net until mid-second quarter when the skillful Kathleen Driscoll, assisted by Mary Russo, penetrated Concord's defense and scored.

Winchester's excellent defense, along with goalie Ann Bird, kept Concord scoreless throughout the first half, ending the first two quarters with a 1-0 lead for the local team.

As the third quarter commenced, anxiety filled the air for both teams and the coaches. Winchester's coach Christopher Scanlon, kept telling the Sachemettes, "You can't have any doubt in your mind about winning when you get out into the field."

By the end of the third quarter, Concord had scored and made it 1-1. Carol Donahue, broke the tie for Winchester in the fourth quarter and brought the score to 2-1.

At the end of the fourth quarter Concord came back to end the game with the final score of 2-2.

Winchester High soccer team blasts way to 4-0 record

And the march is on...

The Winchester Sachem soccer team opened the 1978-1979 season in fine fashion, steamrollering over its first four oppents: Melrose, Watertown, Burlington, and Reading.

Winchester, coached by Gene Bouley, has established itself as a major contender for the coveted Middlesex League championship.

The victories will compose the foundation of the Sachem's drive to the championship, and include the drubbings of Melrose, 5-1, Watertown, 8-0, Burlington, 6-0, and Reading 4-0.

Gene Bouley, though satisfied with the wins, expressed some skepticism about the future. "I'm basically concerned that we do not become overconfident," noted the Sachem mentor. "We won our first four, but there were several scoring opportunities that we missed."

Coach Bouley's observations are important. The Sachems have just finished the lighter part of their schedule, winning with relative ease. In the next two weeks though, Winchester's strength will be put to the test as they face powerhouses Stoneham, Lexington, Belmont, and Wakefield in succession.

"Our greates advantage against all these clubs will be our depth," remarked Bouley. "We have good, top quality players throughout our bench. Gary Tedesco and Barry McQuillen could start for any team in the league. McQuilen in fact, is one of our top scorers coming off the bench."

The first Sachem contest was a home victory against Melrose. The first half tended to obscure what Winchester had in store for the Red Raiders as each team suffered opening game butterflies.

Winchester finally broke the ice with under four minutes remaining in the second quarter with a goal by Jim Olivier. The play originated deep in Sachem territory where Jan Franck broke up a Melrose scoring attempt and fed the ball upfield to Robert Horne. Horne winged the pass to McQuillen on the left side who crossed the ball back to the middle where Olivier finished the play.

Melrose was not to be shut out, unlike the next three Sachem opponents, as Peter Thompson tallied to knot the score at one goal apiece as the second quarter ended.

The second half began slowly, but within a few minutes Winchester opened the floodgates and the onslaught was on. By the end of the game the Sachems had pumped in five goals and had allowed only six shots on net as they battered the beleagured Melrose squad.

Winchester's second victory came at the expense of a depleted Watertown squad, whose first line p ayers had been suspended for disciplinary reasons.

For Watertown's second string, the game was a loss before the opening whistle even sounded, as the Sachem booters performed a clinic-outrunning, outhustling, outmaneuvering and of course outscoring Watertown.

And on to the third contest. Winchester' second home game was against Burlington. The Sachems moved out slowly, a habit which worries Coach Bouley, as they hardly tested the Burlington defense for about five minutes.

Once they did apply pressure, the Burlington defense collapsed and the goals poured in. By the fourth quarter Horne, Olivier, McGlaughlin, and McQuillen, had tallied for Winchester.

Reading suffered the same fate as its predecessors, as Winchester again registered a shut-out. The pattern of the game was also similar. Slow Winchester starts at the beginning of the first and third quarter followed by a flurry of goals — this time four.

Winchester, en route to its 4-0 record, has been able to substitute extensively with no apparent effect on the quality of play.

The increased depth of the bench has in part been the result of the addition of two new players, Sergio Guillen, and Jan Franck. Sergio, an exchange student from Mexico, broke into the starting lineup as an inside forward, and Franck starts as a fullback.

"Both Franck and Sergio are quality players," commented Bouley. "Sergio provides scoring potential up front and Franck helps anchor the defense along with Jim Kohr and Stew McCord."

Another indication of the Sachems potential is that this year's team is precisely that, a team.

"We've got no superstars, no players who stand out by themselves. The team functions well together with a good mixture of team play," emphasized the coach.

But even with a strong team game, the exploits of versatile and finesse players like co-capting Bubba Sanford and William Strazzulo do not go unnoticed.

So Winchester's drive to the Middlesex League championship has begun, and its effects have already left some opponents throughly convinced.

Field hockey evens record

By KELLY GATELY

The Winchester High School girl's field hockey team evened their record at 1-1-1 by beating Watertown 3-0 and then losing a heartbreaker to Melrose 1-0.

Winchester clearly proved the superior team in their 3-0 rout of Watertown. Kathy Heffernan broke the ice with an excellent diving shot on a slow rolling ball across the crease.

Her effort gave Winchester a 1-0 lead. Kathy scored again later in the game, sandwiching her second goal around Beth Noble's second goal of the season. In their first three games, Beth and Kathy are the only Sachem scorers, each with two.

In the Melrose game, Winchester dominated throughout the entire game but just couldn't seem to find the handle while around the Melrose goal.

The Sachem's forward line of Beth Noble, Kathy Heffernan, Debbie Bosco, Tricia Shanley, and Caroline Twomey provided strong offensive pressure during the entire game. An early goal by Melrose's Donna Marchant stood up though and proved to be the game winner.

Sachem halfback Sue Flaherty played an outstanding defensive game highlighted by a diving stop of a Melrose scoring threat. As usual co-Captains Beth Noble and Nella Barrow each turned in strong performances. Nella made several spectacular saves when Melrose had their paucity of scoring chances. She has allowed only two goals in three games for Winchester.

Women's doubles champions defeat Cowen, Cunningham

A new Women's Doubles Champion was crowned at the William S. Packer Tennis Courts Saturday. Peggy Wiseman teamed with Cynthia Daley to defeat the defending champion duo of Sue Cowen and Dee Dee Cunningham, 6-3, 6-4.

Steady pressure on the No. 1 seeds produced many unforced errors and a number of unreturnable shots as the No. 2 seeded pair won the title in a solid fashion.

After running off with the first set, Wiseman and Daley battled tooth and nail to end the match in straight sets, and carried the final game to eight "advantages" before they finally emerged with the cup.

Earlier, the mixed doubles championship saw another defending champion dethroned as unseeded Paula Dilorio and John Meade scratched and scrambled to a deserved 6-3, 7-5 victory over the No. 7 seeded Pinky and Al Samoiloff.

After serves went to the serving team to a 2-all tie, the ultimate winners reeled off four straight games before allowing the Samoiloff's a break-serve and then won the first set on the next game.

The Samoiloff's turned the tide, temporarily, in the second set when, after the score reached 2 all, again, Al and Pinky won four straight games to lead 5-2. Meade and DiIorio reached back into their reserve, however, at this point, and won the next five games, finally winning it all in a 9 point deuce-add marathon.

Form again received a jolt in the Men's Doubles final at 4 in the afternoon when the No. 2 seed Bill MacNeill and Parker Gray team soundly trounced the defending champions, Wil Aldrich andCarmen Elio, 6-0, 6-2. The winners started off vith a decimating attack, allowing the losers only 10 points in the first set.

Breaking Elio in the first game of the second set, the juggernaught of MacNeill and Gray forged to a 5-0 advantage before relenting a bit and allowing their opponents games 6 and 7.

MacNeill iced the cake with a 4-1 serve game and the Men's Doubles had a new pair of champions.

Girls swim team wins first meet

Unlike the other Winchester High Girls sports teams, the girls' swim team started off their season with a victory. While the girls' soccer team lost, and the field hockey team tied, the swim team completed the cycle with a 43-40 win over Burlington.

Sometimes the final score can be deceiving and doesn't actually reveal how close the meet really was. Although it was only three points, Winchester seemed to dominate in every race. Coached by Vincent Palumbo, and sparked by outstanding individual performances by Laurie Grant, Mary Cresse and Maryellen Kennedy, they went on to place first in eight of 11 events.

Winchester took an early lead when the 200 yd. medley relay team of Jennifer Karp, Margie Roll, Maryellen Kennedy, and Carla Gulino touched first in a time of 2:17.9. The lead was increased to 12 as Winchester won 4 straight events.

Jackie Hart in the 200 I.M., Laurie Grant in the 50 yd. freestyle, Susie Girard in the diving, and Mary Cresse in the 200 yd. freestyle.

In the latter race, Mary came from behind in an exciting finish after trailing slightly for most of the race. Mary also finished first in the enduring 500 yd. freestyle after falling behind.

In the 100 yd. freestyle, Winchester took first and second with Laurie Grant and Carla Gulino taking the honors respectively. Susie Girard won the diving competition with a total of 110.5 points, 3 points in front of her nearest Burlington opponent, while in the 100 yd. butterfly Sachem Jean Cresse just missed taking a come-from-behind thriller as she placed second, six-tenths of a second behind the first place finisher.

With Burlington closing in, Maryellen Kennedy delivered the coup de grace by breezing to an easy victory in the 100 yd. breast stroke to clinch the victory.

Other laudable swimmers for Winchester were Beth Brickley, Ada Pollino, Susie Harris, Linnea Carlson, Ann Donahue, Julie DeCarlo, Lynn Fodin, Martha Johnson, Lynn Melilli, Dottie Dobbins, Heidi Cane, Ann Buimiller, and Lisa Wright.

They are not only talented, but also very dedicated. Since there isn't a pool at the high school, they must travel to Wakefield every morning to practice from 6-7 a.m.

Cynthia Daley and Peggy Wiseman, (l. to r.) defeated Dee Dee Cunningham and Sue Cowen, (on right) 6-3, 6-4 to become the new Women's Doubles Champions in the Winchester Tennis Association's Fall Town Tournament Saturday.

Kadesch to play in tennis clinic

Phl Kadesch, of 15 Mayflower rd., will compete in the first Sundial Pro-Am Tennis Classic Sept. 29-Oct. 1 at the Boston Tennis Club, 653 Summer st. Kadesch is one of 32 top New England pros and international satellite players who will compete for $3,000 in prize money.

Sixteen amateur players were selected in each division in qualifying rounds in August and September. Amateurs will be teamed with pros by random draw for doubles play in both men's and women's divisions. Prizes for amateurs, totalling $1,200 have been donated by Spalding.

The Sundial Classic is a function of Boston's Eye Research Institute of Retina Foundation which is involved in a new research program to combat macular degeneration, a leading cause of blindness in the United States. Founded 28 years ago, the Institute is a world leader in the field of eye research and development of surgical procedures to prevent and cure blindness and crippling eye diseases.

Tournament activities will begin Friday, Sept. 29 at 6 p.m. at the Boston Tennis Club. Weekend events include a silent auction, raffles, fashion show, press tournament and exhibition match. Jess Cain of Boston's WHDH Radio is honorary tournament director, and will be on hand to minitor all events. Admission is free.

George and Margaret Miller

'We're not joggers--we're runners'

By BILL HART

"Morning," I said, standing in front of my home on Grove street on a crisp, sunny fall Saturday morning.

"Morning," said Peggy Miller, with that familiar big smile of hers.

"Mind if I jog along with you two this morning and ask you both a few questions on jogging?" I said, looking down at their Nike and New Balance footwear.

"Sure, come on along," said George Miller with an impish smile. "However, we're not joggers - we're runners."

"Joggers, runners - whatever?" I said.

"Whatever?" questioned George. "Listen, run along with us and we'll tell you whatever?"

With that, I listened and learned a great deal about running in the next four painful miles.

George and Peggy Miller began running about the same time, a year and a half ago. George smoked a pack and a half of cigarettes every day for years. He was out of condition for doing anything - well almost anything.

Last year, August, 1977, George tried to run around the Manchester track. He ran a quarter of a mile, one lap, and had to quit. The next day he tried to go a little farther. He did. He started to train, without strain, day after day. He quit the cigarettes, changed his diet, and took to running, seriously.

Seven months later, in April, George Miller, a man who could barely make one lap around a quarter-mile track, ran from Hopkinton to Boston, 26.2 miles, in 3:28.00.

That's the difference between runners and joggers. Runners are serious. They train every day; run less than eight minutes to the mile; change their diet; run an hour or more, rain or shine, and when they finish they log the number of miles they ran on their wall calendars. They win the big races and also the small ones.

Peggy is over 40 years of age. She is disappointed that more women over 40 aren't running. She said that too many women think that the health spas are the answer to exercising. According to Peggy, this is not true. The answer to exercise is aerobics. This is what will make you feel better, physically and mentally, she said.

Peggy is over 40 years of age. She is disappointed that more women over 40 aren't running. She said that too many women think that the health spas are the answer to exercising. According to Peggy, this is not true. The answer to exercise is aerobics. This is what will make you feel better, physically and mentally, she said.

Peggy mentioned to me, as we turned the corner, going into High street in Medford, that a person can lose 100 calories for every mile he or she runs. She said that she can eat anything and still maintain her weight. Along the same line, Jerry Ferro, of the Winchester Recreation Department, told me that he went from 210 pounds to a running weight of 139, in only nine months.

Peggy ran the Winchester Mini-Marathon last May 21. She came in third in the 5.9 mile race with a 53:54 time. She has won many other races in the past year and a half. She held up four fingers signifying the four trophies she has at home. However, it's not the trophies that are meaningful, it's beating your own time that's more important.

Peggy mentioned that Peg Cade, 56, of Winchester is an active and serious runner. She won the Winchester Mini-Marathon last May in 62:12. Running begins at 50 - 40 - 30 - 20 and even 10 years of age.

In just one mile, I had already learned a great deal about running.

George started another conversation as Peggy ran a few yards ahead of us. He said that the Boston area is the "hot bed" for runners. There are more events for runners in this area than in any other area of the United States except, maybe, California or Oregon.

George became philosophical at the two-mile limit. He said that running is dumb. You have nothing to show for it. You run miles and miles a day and you cannot tell anyone about your run. When you play tennis, you can share that overhead smash or baseline lob that won a point or game with a listener.

When you run, you run by yourself - for yourself - and share your own thoughts. You're alone. That's its appeal. You're alone with yourself. What peach and tranquility!

We turned and started running down Mystic Valley Parkway into Winchester.

Peggy took up the conversation. She said that she is running in the Kennedy Floating Hospital 5-Mile Road Race on Sunday. It's 10,000 meters and starts at Sandy Beach off the Mystic Valley Parkway in Winchester. She feels good and thinks that her time will be good, too. She won the masters event in 39:56.

Peggy and George talked about the many serious runners that are in Winchester. George mentioned Jim Fixx's book, "The Complete Book of Running" as a starting point if I was serious about running. Jim Fixx's sister, Kitty Davis of Winchester, is a serious runner. She won the Winchester Mini-Marathon last May with a 49:24.

They turned their attention to the many other serious runners that live in Winchester. Some of them ran the '78 Boston Marathon. They are Bert Hirschhorn, Bob Wagstrom, Dr. Ochm, Frank Virnelli, Bruce Hill, Peter Denatle, Leo Chandler, Ann McLaughlin, Fred and Marja Wright of Arlington, Bob Cooper and so on. There must be, according to the Millers, over 40 to 50 serious runners in Winchester. We arrived at Sandy Beach. I informed the Millers, gasping, that I'd had it! George understood. He was a little tired, too. He ran the Casco Bay Marathon, 26.2 miles, in Portland last weekend with a clocking of 3:18 - respectable. John Cade of Winchester, running in the same race, was clocked at 3:01.

George and Peggy Miller convinced me that there is a difference between a jogger and a runner. I told George after our run that he looked good. George quickly informed me that that is the worst thing to say to a runner. He or she should look sickly. With that, he sucked in his cheeks, inhaled and sunk his chest, rounded his shoulders and stooped just a little. Man, he looked sick - great runner!

These two people have it all together. They contribute their awareness of themselves and to others through running. See you on the streets.

If you're not running - look out your window. You'll see George and Peggy Miller - open the door - wave to them and they'll give you a big wave and a bigger smile.

Margaret Miller captures women's masters race

Margaret Miller, of 3 Marshall rd., captured the women's master contest of the New England Medical Center's five-mile road race around the Upper Mystic Lake Sunday.

She was the only Winchester resident who placed first in the four races conducted for the benefit of the Boston Floating Hospital.

More than 450 participated in the day's races, according to race organizers.

Paul Gorman, 22, of Swampscott, won the men's open race with a time of 26:12. Na,cy Buguey, of Falmouth, won the women's open in 30:11. Fred Wright, of Arlington, captured the men's masters and Ms. Miller won the women's masters.

Gorman said this was his second race after tendon injuries curbed his running in the winter. He said he runs "only about 50 miles a week."

The event was held in conjunction with the Tufts University Department of Athletics and the Employee Council of the med center.

Other winners include:

Men's masters, second place John Howland; third place, Robert Smith.

Women's masters, second place, Jeanne Schlichte; third place Joanne Rigazio.

Men's open, second place, Bernie Lancaster; third place, Phil Pelletier.

Women's open, second place, Marja Wright; third place, Laurie Glinn.

REAL ESTATE
by Ann Blackham

WHITE ELEPHANT SYNDROME

In the real estate trade it's called a "White Elephant". An excellent house for sale which just sits and sits. Often you can recognized it by the tall grass and weeds overrunning the front yard; an occasional broken window here and there. The cause of this blight is always the same. OVERPRICING!

This story always has a sad ending, for the seller. Eventually, he has to reduce the price to sell. By this time, it's too late. The good prospects have waved goodbye and bought elsewhere. The appearance and condition have deteriorated. The eventual selling price is far below what it could have realized had it been valued realistically from the outset.

You don't have to increase the "White Elephant" population. There is a safe way to establish the RIGHT price. When you're ready to sell, see a local Realtor. He'll know the true value and what it will bring in the market. Top price, yes! Overprice-No!

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

NATIONAL HOME RELOCATION SERVICE

Pennell & Thompson, Realtors are now affiliated with National Home Relocation Service. The nation-wide network of independent brokers' sole concern is to offer relocation services to their clients moving out of the member broker's area.

Pennell & Thompson's clients pay nothing for this added service. It is simply Pennell & Thompson's way of maintaining "back home" business responsibility to their clients who move away.

National Home Relocation Service has members that service over 1,000 communities, in all fifty states, and some countries. The local broker contacts a member office in his transferring client's new city. The realtor broker in that city will screen homes, pick up clients at airports, arrange temporary quarters, etc. Constant contact is made between both brokers, as well as with the home office of National Home Relocation Service. In this way, independent brokers can remain independent and yet be connected with a nation-wide referral network.

Girls cross-country team defeated

By DONNA FARRELL

In the cross cross country season opener held at home Friday, the Winchester girls' team was soundly beaten by a powerful Wakefield team.

Although competing without their ace runner Martha Ring, who is out injured, the Wakefield girls outran the Winchester harriers 34-21.

Winchester's Sara Fotsch crossed the line first however, in 20:36. She was followed by four Wakefield runners. It was this depth which allowed the Wakefield girls to win, despite Fotsch's winning time.

In sixth place was Winchester's Michelle deMars, finishing in a strong 21:46. Crossing the line third for Winchester was Beth Clower in 22:23. Beth is a rookie Cross Country runner, although she has had running experience in spring track.

Finishing close behind Clower were Lauren Fryklund in 22:37 and Sally Weylman in 22:39. Both Fryklung and Weylman are new to the Cross Country team this season.

Winchester has a youn , team, with many girls running distances for the first time. Although they lost Friday, the team put in a fine showing against a tough team. Many of the girls improved their finishing times and show a lot of promise for the remaining season.

Led by seniors Fotsch and deMars, the Girls Cross Country team should have a winning season.

Boys cross country team loses opener

By MARK COSTELLO

With little fanfare and less excitement, the Winchester High School cross country team opened its competitive season last Friday with a loss against Wakefield. It was a disappointing day for the team and for Coach Joe Cantillon. They were defeated by only one point, 28-29.' Initially, things appeared to be well in hand for Winchester. Andy Wilsak easily outdistanced the rest of the field in what for him is an only moderately fast three-mile time of 16:36.

In winning the varsity race, Wilsak exhibited his impressive ability to lead the team in victory and in defeat Wilsak was followed at a distance, by Wakefield's Norm MacDougall. MacDougall's time was 16:53.

Jim Wilber of Winchester was third in 17:00. Fourth and fifth finishers were from Wakefield. Finishing in 17:17, sixth place, was Joe Flynn. Flynn came into this season with people expecting a lot from him. Through a great deal of hard work, he has still managed to run beyond all expectations.

Finishing seventh in 17:25 was Tom Derry. While his time, viewed against overall standards, is fairly fast, the astonishing fact is that Derry is only a sophomore. For a sophomore, 17:25 is extremely fast This was his first varsity race and with continued dedication and training he has a luminous future as a runner.

In cross country, the correlation between work and performance is as direct as in any other sport. If a runner decides he will take Monday's, Tuesday's and Wednesday's practices easy, then he had best be prepared to run poorly in Friday's race. Closing out the scoring for Winchester was Rob Flynn. He finished twelfth with a time of 17:59 Mark Costello finished 13th in 18:06 and Greg Cummings finished 15th in 18:37.

If Joe Cantillon was somewhat disappointed by the less-than-inspired performance of the varsity team, then he must have been considerably cheered by the fine showing of his junior varsity squad.

The JV's soundly defeated the Wakefield JVs by 14 points Tom Doocy, the temporary junior varsity captain, showed the team how to do the pre-race warm ups. He then went out and showed them how to run a race. Doocey's gutsy 18:26 performance earned Winchester a second (Mike Gigilotti, a former Winchester resident, won it.)

Dave Demars, flashed to a third in 18:53 It was his first competitive race. Sophomore Rick Jarvis was fourth in 19:07 followed by Steve Quinn at 19:12.

A Wakefield runner, David Allen was sixth. Winchester's John Provinzano, another good-looking sophomore, was seventh in 19:28. James Connolly finished eighth. Phil Kirkpatrick was ninth despite starting the race from a prone position, (he was tripped up at the start).

Jim O'Brien, Jon Haber and John Ward paved the way for the Junior Varsity win. Peter Delgreco and ex-manager Jim Cullen contributed, as did Greg Brown and Mark Mongiello.

The next race for both cross country teams is tomorrow. It is a2ay against a strong Watertown team All Middlesex League dual Cross Country meets start at 3 p.m.

Sally Warford and Richard Deroo, both of Winchester, display Richard's pair of winning jeans. The two are winners of the "Best-Worst Levis" contest sponsored by Chitels of Winchester, 6 Mt. Vernon st. They are also sporting a new pair of Levi's and a Shetland sweater won in the contest.

New recreation director begins duties Oct. 10

The new recreation director in town doesn't want to create any false impressions about his plans for the recreation department.

In other words, he's "laying low" until he gets a chance to "get a feeling for the community."

Thirty-year-old Dennis Mullen of Maynard is wise. He's diplomatic. He doesn't want to make promises that can't be fulfilled. "I have to see what resources are available in Winchester before I can commit myself," he said recently.

That's why he has asked the selectmen for a three to six-month term to "learn the community."

He said, "I want to meet the needs of Winchester."

Mullen, a 1970 graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst where he received a bachelor of science degree in municipal recreation, seems to specialize in self-supporting programs and this is one reason why Town Manager Thomas Groux appointed him.

He has set up self supporting programs in Concord where he now serves as recreation director and in Sharon where he worked as a program director of its recreation department. "The financial analysis of a program is important," Mullen said, "but it's not the only thing."

When asked by selectmen last week if he would cancel programs if he saw fit, he answered quickly, "Certainly." He continued, "If a program is losing interest, then I would be the first to admit it."

He cited a hockey program in Concord as an example. He said, "After Bobby Orr left for another team and we experienced fiscal restraints, I saw that kids were losing interest in the program and I curtailed it considerably."

On the other hand, Mullen said he has "revitalized" dying projects as well.

Mullen came to Winchester for several reasons but mostly because he wanted a change of atmosphere. "I've been with Concord five years now, and Winchester is a promotion because it is slightly larger than Concord." He admitted that Winchester pays better too.

"At the risk of sounding a bit cliche-ish, I wanted to ignite another spark of enthusiasm in my work. I think by moving to Winchester, I can do this."

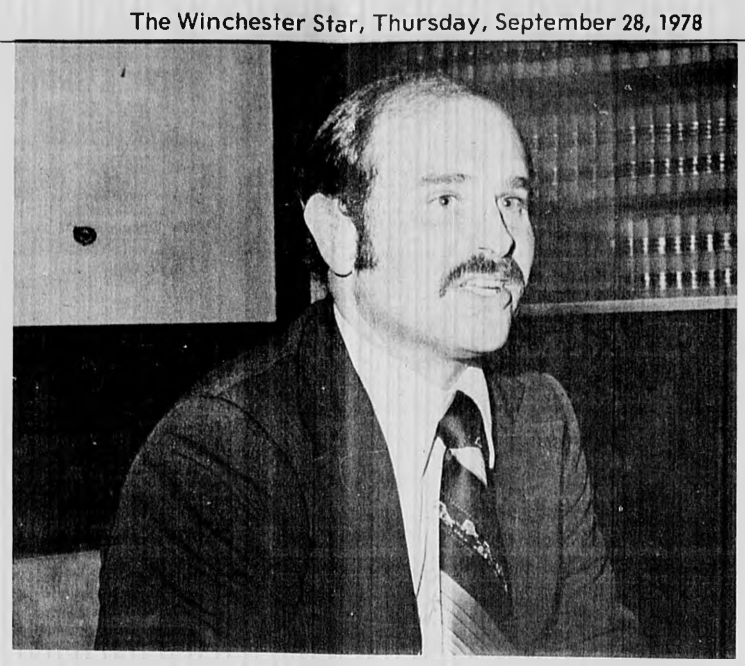
Mullen plans to buy property in Winchester with his wife and soon-to-be-born child. Selectmen Harry Chefalo, a supporter of appointing Winchester residents, said the new director should live in town if he is expected to be called in at different times of the day.

Chefalo said he examined Mullen's resume along with a resume of a Winchester resident and said Mullen's credentials were "FAR SUPERIOR." He said, "All things being equal, we should appoint Winchester residents. However, if we can't get the best qualified applicant from Winchester, then we should appoint from outside." Chefalo said he was "very impressed" with Mullen when he met with him last week.

In addition to the self-supporting programs, Mullen has developed programs for the elderly. He said he has initiated a drop-in center for senior citizens and a luncheon program.

Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell said he would like to invite Mullen back before the board in a couple of months to hear his assessments of the town's resources.

Although Mullen's job takes effect Oct. 1, he begins his duties Oct. 10. "I have about six weeks work to do in two weeks time in Concord before I can leave there.



Dennis Mullen

Bloodmobiles at Elks Hall, Sons of Italy over weekend

The next day, Sunday, from noon to 4:45 p.m. the Red Cross bloodmible will visit the Independent Order of Elks at the Elks Hall, 375 Cambridge st.

John Mawn, who is in charge of the event for the Elks says, "This bloodmible visit is open to the public. We extend a cordial invitation to the public to visit our hall to donate. Everyone will be most welcome. In fact, the donors will be invited to join us in the buffet lunmcheon being served."

Appointments to donate at either of these bloodmobiles may be made by phoning the Red Cross, at 729-2300 or 2301. Walk-ins will also be accepted.

This coming weekend, Saturday and Sunday, two of Winchester's leading fraternal organizations will host Red Cross Bloodmobile visits.

On Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. the Sons of Italy sponser a bloodmobile at their hall on Swanton street. This is the bloodmobile's semi-annual visit to the lodge.

Antonio Saracco, who is 8n charge, invites everyone, 18 years old (17 with written parental consent) and under 67 to participate. At the bloodmible last March, 86 men and women volunteered to donate.

"This fall we hope to set a new record," said Saracco, who is planning to serve a macaroni and meatball dinner to all donors.

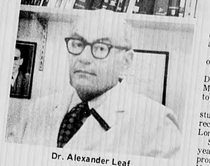
Dr. Leaf studies aging around world, practices his findings



Dr. Alexander Leaf

There's probably as many gimmicks used on the market today for lengthening one's life as there are people believing them.

Nevertheless, as one philosopher said, "No one gets out of this world alive."

And an expert on longevity, Winchester's Dr. Alexander Leaf, chief of medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital, is the first to admit it.

For eight years Dr. Leaf has been studying aging around the world and just recently returned from a trip that took him to London; Bali; Singapore, and Jakarta.

Specializing in kidneys for most of his 34 years as a practicing physician, the Jackson professor of clinical medicine at Harvard University said, "People are more interested in longevity than kid.. ys." And that's why, in 1970, Dr. Leaf began 's longevity hobby, as he calls it.

The doctor has bec.. me such an authority on aging, that Dannon yogurt Co. asked him for pictures of some of the world's oldest people for the yogurt advertisements. "They (Dannon) wanted some pictures I had of old people in Russia. I told them they could have them, but that the Soviet Union would not allow them to use them for such a capitalist venture."

Leaf spent six weeks in southern Russia in 1973 as a writer for National Geographic magazine on ancient people living on the Caucus Mountain range between the Black and Caspian seas. Leaf's report on his Russian expedition appeared in the January, 1973 edition of National Geographic.

He said in all the societies he has studied, there are basic similarities and reasons why some people live so long. "There are some general characteristics that seem to point to greater chances for longe- lives," Dr. Leaf said.

He explained that in societies where the diet depends very little on red meat and very much on unrefined grains, such as legumes and beans, the citizens tend to live a long life. He also said geographic locations of some societies helps longevity too. "Mountainous areas where people get . lot of good exercise and farming areas, where people start work at an early age lend itself to longer lives," he said.

The unassuming, soft-spoken man of small but healthy build said there's no retirement in these type societies. "Old people continue to be active in these places and they command a lot of respect."

In 1975, Dr. Leaf travelled with his 26-year-old daughter, Rebecca, now living in Cambridge, to Mexico. There Leaf studied old people who mainly live long because of endurance exercises. "These indians would run more than 100 miles kicking a wooden ball in front of them," Dr. Leaf reported.

He suggests Americans participate in endurance exercises also, but warns against running 100 miles the first time out. "People can improve their chances of living longer by walking more, jogging, or even rowing," Leaf said.

Dr. Leaf is himself a practioner of his suggestions. He says he is "not a fanatic" about eating certain foods and exercising but he says he is a "moderate."

"The best medical judgment is to avoid sugars, cakes, pastry, excessive smoking, drinking, and red meats," Leaf said.

Although some people have been reported to be about 130 to 140 years old, Dr. Leaf said many ages are "exaggerated." Because adequate and accurate record-keeping procedures in countries where the doctor has travelled is rare, exact dates of birth are unknown. Dr. Leaf said, however, that a man alleged to be 134 years old recently died at the age of 93.

He said there's no way of knowing how old some people are unless specialists check protein levels in the teeth. The doctor said he believes the oldest people alive are about 110 years old and "that's very rare." He said that the oldest people in America probably live in Nebraska, where the diet is largely of grain and their style of living is mostly farming.

But, no matter what you eat or where you live, there are other ways to improve your chances for a longer life. "If you're happy, and have a positive point of view and find something that is satisfying to you, then you considerably improve your situation," Dr. Leaf said.

Born in Japan, Dr. Leaf was raised in Seattle where he met his wife Barbara. The couple has lived in Winchester for the past 22 years. Besides Rebecca, they have two other daughters, Tamara, 25, of Winchester, and Carolyn, 32, of Montreal.

Dr. Leaf graduated from the University of Michigan and interned at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., in 1944. He also spent three years at Oxford University, England and is now a full professor at Harvard.

Coming events

Newcomers to hear 5 representatives of organizations

Opportunities to participate in a variety of community activities will be described at the October meeting of the Winchester Newcomers Club

The program will include five speakers, each representing a loca charitable, civic, cultural or social organization. They are Edward Haddad, president of ABC (A Better Chance); Dee Ruta, membership chairwoman of the Winchester League of Women Voters; Leila-Jane Roberts, town librarian, and Susan Keats, both representing the Winchester Public Library; and Rose Capacefalo, past president of the Winchester Young Woman's Club.

Each speaker will describe the role of his or her organization and explain how members of Newcomers can participate. In addition to discussing the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Ruta will provide information on referenda to be voted upon in the forthcoming election.

Mrs. Roberts' presentation will include information about the library's orientation program for new Winchester residents. Mrs. Keats will discuss the house survey, which she is coordinating for the Winchester Historical Commission.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boyer, 13 Norwood st.

Susan McGonagle, Newcomers president, said all women who are new to Winchester will be welcome at the meeting, as will husbands of all members and prospective members.

Light refreshments will be served following the program.

Mini-college shop Oct. 4, 11 at WHS

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the guidance office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Oct. 4, the following institutions will be represented:

Troop 503 recruits for more scouts

Boy Scout troop 503 still has room for boys age 11 and over who enjoy camping, canoeing and mountain climbing.

Anyone interested may attend the weekly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in First Congregational Church.

At their meeting Tuesday, the troop made plans for a camping trip to Harold Parker State Forest this weekend.

Senior patrol leader Brian Feeney and quartermaster Tim Howard explained to new scouts the equipment needed for camping.

Scouts have to provide their own sleeping bag and pack, but the troop provides tents. Because Troop 503 raises funds by selling Christmas wreaths (close to a thousand last year), there are no dues or other expenses for those who join the troop.

The new Scout Master is John Cirignano.

Father, daughter cruise Sunday

On Sunday, the Winchester Girl Scouts are sponsoring a Father-Daughter Cruise from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The cruise will begin from Rowe's Wharf, 334 Atlantic ave. (between Harbor Towers and Nor5 .ern avenue), sail through Boston Harbor, and arrive at Georges Island for a picnic lunch.

Tickets may be obtained from troop leaders or the co-chairmen, Mrs. Robert Chebook and Mrs. Joseph Twichell. Rain date is Oct. 8.

Troop 507 to hold season's first camp

Troop 507 will open its outdoor season with a camping trip this weekend.

The troop will spend Saturday at Camp Oak in Bedford, and attend a "Giant Friendship Campfire" with other troops in Minuteman Council that evening.

Pre-opening activities will include games, demonstrations with prizes, patch trading, Indian (order of the arrow) dancing, Indian costume making, fire by friction demonstration and jousting contest, followed by the friendship campfire program which will feature songs, slides, skits, music and more.

After the campfire, the troop will 4eturn to Camp Oak for the night.

In October, scouts will invite their fathers to spend a night with them in barracks at the Army's National Guard Camp Curtis in Reading. A November trip is tentatively scheduled for Camp Onway, N.H.

Troop 507, the oldest in Winchester, meets each Thursday evening at the Lincoln School at 7:15. New boys are welcome.

Girl Scouts uniform resale

The annual Girl Scout uniform resale will take place Oct. 3rd from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Louis Bruno, 7 Washington st.

Anyone wishing to donate any Girl Scout or Brownie uniforms, please bring them to Mrs. Bruno or call her anytime before Oct. 3rd.

She will price them and, following the resale, forward the proceeds to you or the troop designated by you or the Winchester Community Girl Scout Association.

Hungary is rightly associated with its wonderful Hungarian goulash, and when dining in Hungary, you will find many other gourmet delights, such as Halaszle (fish soup), Rantottcsirke (chicken roasted in bread crumbs); and Borju Porkolt Tarhonyaval (veal stew with egg barley). A local red wine called Bull's Blood is a favorite drink there, and also offered are apricot, plum, and cherry brandies. In addition to fine dining, Hungary has an opera house and other unusual entertainment to offer, such as the Folklore center, which has folk dancing and traditional Hungarian music; night cruising on the Danube or the Budapest-by-night tour; and carriage rides over the Puszta, the great Hungarian plains?

Make any trip more delightful when you make your reservations through MCGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn. Budapest, one of the world's most beautiful capitals, is the romantic Europe most tourists never see. It has a rare beauty, nostalgia and greatness. Call 935-0600. The Mystic Valley Mental Health and Retardation Area Board will hold its regular monthly meeting Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Winchester Town Hall, Board of Health Room.

The area board, made up of citizens from each of the six communities in the Mystic Valley Area, including Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, is charged with the responsibility for management and oversight of mental health and mental retardation services in the area.

Citizens are invited to attend the meeting and bring questions about services to the Board.

Members from Winchester currently serving on the Board are Mrs. Katrin Cooper and Mrs. Deborah Cary.

Government series to start Tuesday

On Tuesday evening, the Winchester Adult Education Program and the Winchester High School Social Studies Department will present the first lecture in a five-part series entitled: "Our American Government: Its Origins, Current Problems and Future Prospects.

The first lecture will be given by William P. O'Connor, director of Social Studies for the Town of Winchester. His presentation will trace the historical evolution of our governmental system through a careful examination of our English antecedents.

O'Connor will discuss, in some detail, the British Constitutional form of government, the Massachusetts Bay Colony, growth of the Virginia House of Burgesses, and the Great and General Court of Massachusetts. He will also stress those factors that led to the American Revolution and ultimately the creation of a new form of government.

Participants will be encouraged to ask questions as they arise during the lecture.

Future sessions will focus on the development of our constitutional government through to the present day as well as several panel discussions dealing with important current domestic and foreign problems and the ability of American government to respond to these problems.

The series will be free of charge and will take place in the Social Studies Open Area at Winchester High School from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

3000 to run in Freedom Trail race

On Sunday at 11 a.m., Boston once again becomes the national road racing mecca as 3000 world-class and local runners cover the historic course in the second annual Labatt's Freedom Trail Road Race.

Sponsored by Labatt Importers and the Greater Boston Track Club, the eight-mile race starts at Waterfront Park and continues along the historic Freedom Trail. As they journey through Boston, Charlestown and Cambridge, runners will pass the Bunker Hill Monument, the Massachusetts State House, the old State House, King's Chapel, the Old North Church, the Paul Revere Mall, the site of the Boston Massacre, Faneuil Hall and Quincy Market.

Distance runners of national and international caliber have registered for the race. Leading contenders are local favorites Bill Rodgers, last year's winner, and last year's second place finisher Randy Thomas, who placed sixth in last year's NYC Marathon, the first marathon he had run, and fifth in the 1978 Boston Marathon.

Rodgers, the 1977 New York City and 1978 Boston Marathon winner, outpaced fellow Olympian Frank Shorter and Don Kardong to win last year's Freedom Trail Race in 38 minutes. Neither Shorter nor Kardong will run this year since both are sidelined with injuries.

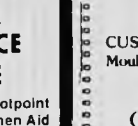
The race directors had to turn away thousnads of would-be entrants in order to limit the field to 3,000. They urge non-registered runners not to run. In fact, in order to provide for the safety of official entrants, steps will be taken to prevent non-registered runners from competing.

The Race directors praised Boston Mayor Kevin White, the staff of the Parks and Recreation Department, and both the Boston and MDC Police for the cooperation they have given race organizers.

Though he may not challenge Rodgers' record on the course, Johnny Kelley will represent a different generation of Boston Marathoners. Kelley, BAA Marathon winner in 1935 and 1945, who ran on two Olympic teams, has donated two of his paintings as prizes in the 40 and over category. Kelley at 71 years of age will don number 71 for the event.

Other top runners are Mary Decker of Colorado, a leading female track and distance runner; Joan Benoit of Maine, the first woman across the finish line at this year's Falmouth Race; Gary Tuttle, the two-time National AAU Marathon Champion; Amby Burfoot, the 1968 BAA Marathon winner; Mike Roche, this year's Atlanta Peachtree Race winner; Bob Hodge of the Greater Boston Track Club, record breaking winner of the eight mile Mount Washington Race for the last two years; and dark horse Mike Slack of Minneapolis who has had some excellent finishes in road races this summer.

After the race, the festivities will continue at City Hall Plaza where competitors will be feted and fed and prizes will be awarded. The Exchange Restaurant, 99 Water st., Boston, will conduct a block party outside the restaurant while a band provides music with various refreshments available for purchase.



NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Winchester BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a public hearing at 7:30 P.M. on THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1978, in the MEETING ROOM OF THE WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY to review and consider action upon the following petition:

PETITION NO. 2400 — That of the amended application of the WINCHESTER HOUSE COMPANY, 370 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA 02215, for a Comprehensive Permit, pursuant to MGL Chp. 40B, Sections 20-23, inclusive, so as to permit the construction and maintenance of a proposed six (6) story building containing one hundred and five (105) units of low or moderate income housing upon an approximate two (2) acre site located adjacent to WATERFIELD ROAD AND RANGELEY ROAD IN WINCHESTER CENTRE. The proposed site consists of Winchester Board of Assessors Parcels 9-148, 9-175 and 16-003 and the present owners of record of these parcels are RICHARD REALTY TRUST (Parcels 9-148 and 9-175) and WATERFIELD ASSOCIATES TRUST (Parcel 16-003). This property is presently zoned within the CBD (Center Business) and RDB (Single Family Residential) zoning districts. The Chapter 40B Comprehensive Permit procedure permits a waiver of local restrictions and regulations pertaining to the proposed development with respect to use, site conditions, density, height, size or other applicable developmental or dimensional requirements when such a proposed development is shown to be consistent with local needs.

★ Voke Supt. Connolly defends himself and school in statement frequently require some matching of federal funds by the grantee school system.

Grants managed by the LEA for the Division of Occupational Education in planning and implementing its projects have never required input of funds by the LEA. It was for this reason, that compensation for services of local staff was included in the grants as administrative overhead.

Committee vote

The Northeast School Committee voted at a special meeting of June 7, 1973 as follows:

Mr. Wallace moved that Dr. Buzzell's request, as presented by Superintendent Connolly, for the use of Northeast as a repository for federal funds for a state E.P.D.A. proposal be granted. Mr. Barry seconded the motion. The motion was declared carried on a voice vote.

On November 21, 1973, Mr. Lot H. Cooke Jr., project director, wrote a letter which I called to the attention of the Committee. In the letter, he stated among other things, "I expect that you and your business manager, and possibly others such as the head of your data processing unit, will probably spend more time on the project, outside of your regular school duties than you could be compensated for, under the overhead amount.

However, I trust that it may at least partially repay you for the work which you will be performing for the project. While the many prior servces you have given us (as in facilitating the design and submision of the proposal) can not be so recompensed, retroactively, I can again thank you for this valuable assistance, for which we in the division are deeply grateful."

It was with this knowledge and agreement, that we entered into a series of cooperative ventures with the division of Occupational Educaion.

The foregoing describes the emergence, purpose and relationships involved in State-LEA cooperative projects. The concept was good cdonsidering problems which it elminated and results achieved through this approach.

I can only relate to the projects in which Northeast has been involved. To my best knowledge each and every one of them has been successful in achieving its purpose. The repeated requests of state officials to have us as LEA is indicative of the satisfaction of the Division of Occupational Education with our performance as LEA: as are many letters which include specific accolades for members of our staff.

During the period when Northeast first became LEA and receipt of Dr. Manning's letter outlining "disallowances," we have proceeded in the same manner as originally approved by the committee and continually approved time and again at the request of the Division of Occupational Education. When we received Dr. Manning's letter, we immediately ceased disbursements from the overhead account pending resolution of the matter.

The procedure

Proposals were prepared by the staff official assigned to the project in consultation and with the assistance of superintendet-director and other staff as appropriate.

Proposals set forth all anticipated costs including an allocation to compensate for administrative services provided by LEA staff. This was categorized as Other Cost and was usually set at 8 percent of direct costs.

The superintendent-director submitted proposals to the school committee recommending approval by the committee for the district to enter into agreements with t e division of Occupational Education as LEA.

Subsequent to approval by the state board of Education, notification of funding and agreement forms were exchanged between Division of Occupational Education officials and LEA officials. Sometimes they were signed by superintendent-director and at other times signed by the superintendent-director and chairman of the school committee. This depended upon the forms used at the particular time by the state.

Following execution of agreement, funds were sent to the LEA and project activity would begin. These funds would remain in the LEA treasury in interest-bearing accounts while being disbursed during the life of the projects. Northeast gained substantial income in this way as these grants were generally fully funded at the start.

During the periods of activity of the projects, the state-assigned official or project director supervised the project activity. That official and-or his staff worked closely with LEA administrative staff in the aras of payroll; requisitioning supplies, materials and equipment, in leasing furniture, space copiers, etc. In making reports that may hve been required by state and-or federal agencies.

During periods of activity of the projects and in accordance with the agreement and committee approval, compensation was paid to LEA staff as provided in the committee approved proposals and state approved grants. The payments to staff members which includes your superintendent were based on time spent on these projects outside of their regular school duties.

Upon completion of the projects, LEA staff completed administrative services, meeting commitments on purchases, etc. and prepared for audits of accounts. Audits were made in accordance with Department of Education directives and in compliance with the Federal Register, Vol. 38, No. 213, Sec. 110b 301 (b) dated Nov. 6, 1973, and the Massachusetts State Plan, Part I, Administraitve Provisions, Sec. 2.52.

★ All kinds of shop courses at vocational school electronic, and industrial. The students receive training in the use of drafting tools and equipment, in lettering, tracing, blueprints, detailed drawings, layout assemblies, basic metallurgy, and the designing of machine parts. The drafting and design shop designs the house the carpentry class constructs every year.

Electricity

The student learns the theory and installation of residential, commercial, and industrial wiring. This shop also contributes to the house built every year by wiring it.

The electricity shop has a "fantastic" record of passing the journeyman electrician examination, according to Kenerson, and the students receive 50 percent of required time towards their license.

Electronic accounting

Designed for students who want to become proficient in the use of several business machines, the course is run in conjunction with a comprehensive bookkeeping accounting presentation. Students use unit record equipment, small computers, and bookkeeping machines.

Food service

Bakeshop, buffet catering, decorating, food operations, kitchen and menu planning, management and supervisory development, meat cutting, nutrition, purchasing, sanitation, personal hygiene, storeroom stewarding, and dining room service are instructed in this shop course.

Shop students work in the teacher-visitor dining room and 15-year-old sophomores provide more efficient service than many professional restaurants. Eighty percent of the cafeteria's costs are taken in direct cash from customers, Kenerson reports. The auto body shop is nearly self-supporting too. According to Kenerson, customers pay 95 percent of the shop's costs.

Graphic communications

Instruction is offered in hand, machine, computer, and photo composition, p$ge mark-up, paste-up, job and automatic press operation, offset press, stripping and platemaking and continuous and halftone photography, as well as in all phases of design, layout, copyfitting and production control.

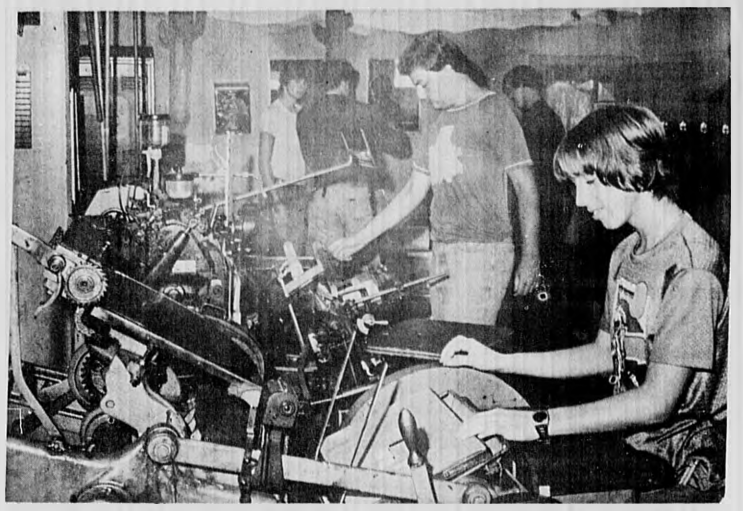
Machine shop

Students learn how to maintain, adjust, repair, and operate complex machines as well as learn machine operations. Students use hand tools as well as precision measuring instruments.

Plumbing and pipefitting

Piping systems for hot and cold water, compressed air and gasses, drainage and sewage disposal are studied and plumbing fixtures, gas and electrical appliances, pumps, restaurant and kitchen equipment are worked on by the students.

The plumbing students also work on the house built every year by the school's students. Placement of the plumbing students is almost 100 percent and a graduate of Northeast's plumbing program is the country's youngest master plumber at age 20.



Two Northeast Voke students work press machines in the school's graphic arts department.

Sheet metal

Instructional projects include duct work and fittings for heating and ventilating, foundations, metal guards, furniture, lockers, cylindrical and conical work. The shop builds latice work in other shop areas of the school just as carpentry students build furniture for the school. Because the students also repair school damages, the vandalism rate in the school is "almost nil," Kenerson said. "It's the best deterrent for the student's to work on their own school," he said.

Welding and fabrication

Metals such as mild steel, stainless steel, galvanized steel and aluminum are used in this shop. Shop machinery includes heavy punches, power shears, rolls and press brakes, and power punches. Welding processes are also studied in the shop.

Kenerson said, "There are so many fringe benefits to this school that are not counted when it comes budget time."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Govostes

Jean Marie Austin marries Robert C. Govostes Sept. 3

Miss Jean Marie Austin, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Robert Kirk of Reading, became the bride of Robert Charles Govostes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Govostes of 118 Wendell st., on Sept. 3 at Grace Episcopal Church, Medford.

The Rev. Durkee performed the two o'clock, double-ring ceremony and Cris Gent was soloist.

Given in marriage by her step father, the bride wore an A-line gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline with Bishop sleeves with the bodice enhanced by heart-shaped cutouts and appliques of roses and daisies.

The skirt terminated in a full-length train bordered by matching lace. Her headpiece was Victorian of four tiers. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and pink roses trimmed with stephanotis.

Mrs. Carol Perry of Malden was her niece's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Veronica Kirk of Reading, sister of the bride, Mrs. Beverly Austin of Winchester, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Diane Doyle of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, Miss Linda Govostes of Winchester, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Angela Barletta of Everett, and Miss Jill Collier of Medford, cousin of the bridegroom.

All the attendants were attired in pastel pink quiana gowns with matching Venetian lace jackets. They carried a long-stemmed pink rose and wore a pink rose in their hair.

Flower girl Jennifer Perry of Malden wore a southern bell dress designed by her mother and the bride.

Robert DeTeso of Woburn was the best man, and ushering were three brothers of the bride: William Austin of Winchester, and Peter and Robert Kirk of Reading; Michael Govostes, brother of the bridegroom, Tony Fiore of Winchester and Fred Nova of Cambridge. Ronnie Andelman of Burlington was junior usher.

A reception was held at the Woburn Lodge of Elks, and Cheryl Doyle and Wendy Lane registered guests from Masssachusetts, New Hampshire, and Florida.

The bride attended Solari School of Hair Design and is a hairdresser at Antoine of Berut in Reading.

The bridegroom is employed at Performance Veichilla Speed Shop in Malden.

After a wedding trip to Disney World, Orlando, Fla., the couple will live in North Reading.

New Mystic parents get acquainted

The Mystic School Parents Association held a coffee for parents new to the Mystic School last week.

The coffee hour was held to acquaint the parents with the school, the school staff, and the school board members.

Mrs. Sally Cusato, president of the Community School Association, presented a five-minute talk about the association's role and obligation to the parents of the Mystic School children.

Kathryn Marini

Kathryn Marini to marry

Mr. amd and Mrs. Anthony E. Marini, of 49 Swanton st., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn, to Stephen A. Lauretano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas A. Lauretano of Boston.

Miss Marini is a 1970 graduate of Winchester High School and is currently employed at the Camp Dresser and McKee Co. in Boston.

Her fiance is a 1971 graduate of Charlestown High School and is currently employed as a dental technician in Quincy.

A June wedding is planned.

John Puffer weds Trudi Wiegand

Trudi Lee Wiegand of Newmarket, N.H. married John Emerson Puffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Puffer of Winchester, Sept. 10 in Newmarket.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Claire Wiegand of Mahwah, N.J., and Herbert Wiegand of Jackson, N.H.

The bridegroom lives in Newmarket.

The bride attended Colorado State and the University of New Hampshire and the bridegroom attended Duke University.

The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lee of Glens Falls, N.Y., and the bridegroom's grandparents are Mrs. S. Bruce Clark of Winchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Puffer of Delray Beach, Fla.

Following a reception at the Exeter Inn in Exeter, N.H. and a wedding trip to Cape Cod, the couple will live in Newmarket.

The Rev. Winthrop Puffer officiated.

Washington mothers welcome newcomers

The Washington School Mothers' Association recently held a coffee in the school library to welcome all mothers who are new to the school.

Mrs. James Cusato president of the Community School Association, was guest speaker. She explained the purpose of CSA.

Births

Carey child

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Carey of Millis announce the birth of their second child and first daughter, Maura Christine, Sept. 18 at Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Carey of 161 Mt. Vernon st., and Mr. and Mrs. John J. McDonald of 320 Washington st. are grandparents.

Jason Paul Huberty

Mr. and Mrs. David Huberty, of Medford, announce the birth of their first child, Jason Paul, Sept. 14 at the Winchester Hospital.

CPR course trains 12 in technique

Hubert LeFever, chairman of Health and Safety Services of Winchester Red Cross, reports that two Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation or CPR courses have been completed this fall at the Red Cross Chapter House.

A total of 12 Winchester men and women completed the course, passed the examination, and received certificates.

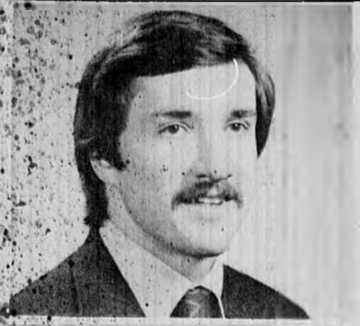
CPR is a combination of artificial respiration and artificial circulation which should be started immediately when cardiac arrest occurs, by those properly trained to do so.

Used successfully in recent years by medical personnel, it is now recommended for use by the general public, after thorough training. Red Cross sponsors classes throughout the year in CPR.

Those who received certificates in September in classes taught by Jan Dinan and Paul McLaughlin were Linda Barille, Elizabeth Cole, Cathy Cook, Dorothy Dwyer, Janice Eyden, Nancy Falzano, Jean Marhoefer, Joan Mongiello, Lola Peterson, David Poole, Stewart Poole, and Thomas Wahl and Mrs. Anita Podlet.

CPR is currently being taught by Red Cross instructors in the Winchester Adult Education program in four 3-hour classes held two nights a week for two weeks. The course is challenging and requires some study as well as participation and practice on manikins provided.

The first CPR course in the Adult Education program began Tuesday, Sept. 26, and will end Thursday, Oct. 5.



Denis M. O'Donnell, son of Mrs. Alice R. O'Donnell of 84 Sheridan cir., starts classes this fall at the Tulane University School of Medicine in New Orleans.

Religious classes commence Monday

Religious education classes for high school students of St. Mary's Parish will begin Monday, Oct. 2, at 7:30 pm. in St. Mary's School.

A pre-marriage seminar for couples planning to be married within the next six months will start Sunday evening, Oct. 1, at 7 o'clock at the Religious Education Center located in the lower level of St. Mary's School.

The Evenings for Parents Program will feature a session on listening Wednesday Oct. 4, at 8 p.m. at the Religious Education Center. The presentation by a couple is to be followed by a time for sharing with your husband or wife and then sharing in small groups.

Wine and cheese will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. James Walsh

Joan Sullivan of Brookline marries James Garry Walsh

Joan Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Sullivan of Sudbury, was married Saturday to James Gary Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Walsh of 23 Hutchinson rd., at Our Lady of Victory Church, Centerville.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Barbara Sullivan of Sudbury.

Brother of the bridegroom, Robert Walsh of Winchester, was best man

Ms. Nora Carroll of Hingham, Ms. Nancy Stone, of 85 Canal st., Mrs. Jeanne Jokisaari, sister of the bride from Arizona, and Mrs. Sally Sullivan, of Connecticut, sister-in-law of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Ushers were David Sullivan, brother of the bridegroom, Charles Burchall, of Hartford, Conn., William Horsley of Cambridge, Barry Kaplan of Beverly Farms, and Richard Tambone of Wakefield.

The bride's gown was by Priscilla of Boston — white silk organza, Queen Anne neckline on pier bodice with cap sleeve of white venise lace, A-lined skirt which terminates into a chapel train.

The bridesmaids wore iced mint green chiffon long dresses with scalloped sleeves and belt.

The bride's mother wore a deep-blue lycra long dinner dress with a full, A-lined skirt with a draped neckline.

The bridegroom's mother wore a copper quiana long dress with deep drape in the back and three-quarters full bell sleeves.

The bride is a graduate of Boston University and the bridegroom attended Babson College and Boston University. The bride is a docket clerk and assistant bookkeeper at the law office of Dike, Bronstein, Roberts, Cushman and Pfund.

Walsh is an administrative assistant to the Boston Municipal Dept. and a stockbroker at Kidder Peabody and Company. He's a member of the Winchester Country Club.

Following a two-week honeymoon trip to London and Scotland, the couple will reside in Melrose.

Northeast voke school: Excellence amid turmoil

Carpentry students work six hours a day on a project in a room filled with up-to-date tools.

The other side of the story

The Northeast Metropolitan Vocational School, a 6.4-acre large, low-level modern complex, serves 12 Middlesex County communities with a combined population of 360,000 residents.

Winchester is one of those communities and, according to a town official, the cost to the town of educating a pupil at the voke school is less than it is to educate a student in a Winchester public school.

Winchester has been assessed $160,000 by the voke school this year for educating about 80 Winchester youths and for the use of school facilities and post-secondary programs. Winchester residents seem to be getting their money's worth and more.

However, the school has been plagued recently with "negative publicity" as a result of $14,000 in state funds deemed "disallowed" by a state Department of Education audit, an impending federal audit of "questionable financial practices," and an investigation of the school by the state attorney general.

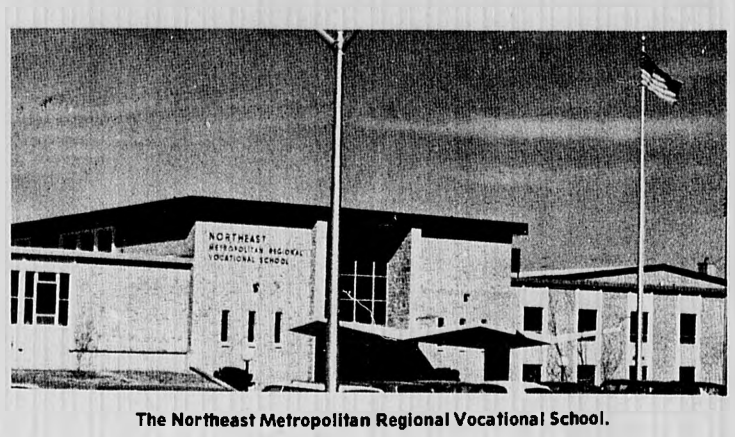
The Star and other local newspapers have reported these incidents and other school-related problems.

It is the intent of this report to focus on the most important part of the school — the students and their work. At the same time, the school superintendent's defense of school practices is also contained here.

It is "The Other Side of the Story," so to speak. Even though The Star has tried to be objective in reporting the school's problems, the school's qualities, for reasons of proximity, timeliness, and space, have often been omitted.

This report in no way condones any alleged school abuses and merely tries to assure Winchester parents that their children are receiving a quality education at Northeast Voke.

An editorial on the subject appears on page four.



The Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School.

Shop class students recipients of awards

In addition to a full academic schedule, voke school students spend half their school year in shop. Ninth graders spend half their school year visiting four shop areas while upper classmen spend their non-academic time in one shop area, an area they selected after a freshman exploratory program.

Most of the shop programs at the school have won awards in national competitions for a student's work in a particular field. Carl Kenerson, the school's principal, said, "We run the gamut of shops winning awards in national competitions."

State wide, the school last year entered in competitions with a potential of winning 48 awards. Voke school students captured 28 of the awards. Of the 28, 10 students were gold medal winners, enabling them to enter national competitions.

Internationally, in the summer of 1977, two of 10 students who represented the United States in an electrical and machine shop competition in the Netherlands were from Northeast.

In Vocational Industrial Club of America skill olympics competition, Northeast has had three gold medalists in five years.

"Each department head is as enthused about their particular program as the next department head is about his," Kenerson said

Applied design shop

This shop attracts students who have demonstrated a "reasonable degree" of artistic ability, imagination, and creativity. Technical illustration, commercial art and illustration, advertising layout and display for newspapers and magazines and other art skills are developed in this course.

Applied design merged with graphic communications under one graphic arts coordinator, Lewis Generazzo. The move to combine the two areas "enables cluster teaching whereby the student is able to learn the mechanical processes involved in the graphic arts field," according to the school's course manual.

The graphics and applied design areas develop school materials, such as stationery and office forms, as well as complete outside projects for non-profit organizations.

The graphics room of the school has more up-to-date equipment than some local newspapers. The school has the capabilities of publishing its own newspaper.

Auto body repair

Work in this course includes repairing and replacing sheet metal, upholstery, frame, trim, and glass. Spray painting and working with acrylic lacquer, enamel, and vinyl top paints is also accomplished by most students.

Automotive technician

Basic jobs, operations and skills needed in the servicing of motor vehicles are stressed in this coulse.

In this two-semester shop, the student learns to use meters and measuring instruments, to interpret sketches and schematic wiring diagrams, to overhaul automatic transmissions, to operate the dynamometer, and to use shop materials.

The shop has a full engine rebuild area, one of only a few in the country's voke schools

Very few girls are enrolled in this shop. Only 20 percent of the school's students are female and most are in drafting and design, food services, cosmetology, and community service aide fields.

Kenerson said part of the reason girls do not go into areas such as auto body is "tradition." The fields have traditionally been dominated by men. "How many auto body shops would hire a gal?" Kenerson asked.

Nevertheless, Kenerson said girls are not discouraged from entering any field. "It's just that the girls are aware that employment opportunities in some fields, such as auto body, are limited," Kenerson said.

Basic electronics

Students are afforded theoretical knowledge in electronics as well as hands-on experience of working with transistors, solid state devices, power supplies, amplifiers, oscillators, and modulation circuits. In the past five years, three voke students have gone to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in electronics. Kenerson said some students are "turned off" by what their local "regular educational" facility offered them, "so they came to Northeast," he said.

Cabinet making

Specialized training in design, manufacture, and finishing of fine furniture, showcase work, and detail millwork is geared to make the student highly skilled in the woodworking area. At present, the canbinet making shop is building office furniture for the principal. They have already built him a cabinet for his stereo. Kenerson said the Colonial desk they are completing for him is "done better than the professional industry because they (students) don't have the demands of the market and, as a result, do not need to take shortcuts as industry sometimes is forced to make."

During the week students spend in shop, they work six hours a day on a project. "You can bet they accomplish something," Kenerson said.

Carpentry

The course instructs the student in all types of house construction and remodeling work. Each year, carpentry students contract with a private party and build a house within the voke's district. For the past six years, a house has been built by the carpentry students, and this year is no exeception. The cost of the house is much less than those built by private contractors. This year's house is being built in North Reading.

Community service

Community service aides are assigned to outside experience in selected hospitals and public and private schools. The students of5en work as nurse aides and teacher aides.

Cosmetology

Offered only in the 11th and 12th grade because of state law, cosmetology students prepare for state cosmetology examinations and to hold positions in beauty salons.

After two years or 1000 hours of work, the students receive a permit to go to work as long as they are under the supervision of a licensed cosmetologist. After two years of work under the supervisor, they automatically become licensed to open their own shop. They must first pass a state board exam for their operator's license and voke school garduates have a near-perfect record of passing the exam.

Mrs. Irene Duguay, cosmetology department head, said "if the girls are smart, they'll get their education degree in cosmetology." Mrs. Duguay has been teaching for 19 years and has been a hairdresser for 38 years. Mrs. Duguay said she interviews the parents and the students before accepting them into the program.

Drafting and design

This area concentrates on three major areas of engineering drawing: Architectural,

THE EXCELLENCE:

- 20-1 student-teacher ratio
- Recipient of national awards
- 100 percent placement of its grads
- Full accreditation
- Near perfect journeyman exam rate

THE TURMOIL:

- $14,000 in 'disallowed' state money
- Investigation by attorney general's office
- Federal audit of 'questionable' practices

Superintendent's defense

Connolly stands by position

Payments to five voke school administrators from ferderal funds earmarked for the disadvantaged and totaling $13,599 were authorized over the past two years by voke Superintendent Director John Connolly.

The payments were recently "disallowed" by the state Department of Education, the agency that administers the federal money.

The education department ruled that unless the payments are ratified by the voke school committee, the funds would have to be returned to the state, but the money has already been dispersed to the five administrators.

Besides Connolly, who received about $6000 of the questioned funds, Anthony Moschella Jr., the school's property accountant and son of school Treasurer Anthony Moschella, Data Processing Manager William Lofgren, Data Processing Programmer Dennis Holland, son of school committee Chairman Marguerite Holland, and Business Manager Louis Sanville received the funds.

The following is Superintendent John Connolly's defense:

Statement

In no case was an audit exception taken on overhead payments to administrators or staff. From 1973 to this time, approximately 50 audits were made of federal grants at Norhteast. The grants collectively amounted to several hundred thousand dollars. The total amount of audit exceptions taken was $425.95.

The statements and references found in Dr. (John) Manning's letter of March 10, 1978 are nowehre to be found in final audit reports mentioned above or received to this date.

I have yet to be told who made the judgment that certain expenditures were to be disallowed as of March 10, 1978 subsequent to our notification by the Bureau of External Audit that receipt of a check totaling $425.95 would close the audit.

In consideration of all of the foregoing, I stand on my original position clearly stated in my letter to Dr. Manning dated April 11, 1978.

In that letter Connolly said "we are convinced that we acted in accordance with the agreements and approved proposals exchanged between Northeast as local Education Agency and your office (Dr. Manning's) as agent of the Commonwealth."

Chronology of events

Officials of the Division of Occupational Education first approached Northeast to act as LEA (local education agency) in the latter part of 1973. At the time, the division had need to develop and implement programs and services to improve its operation and thereby improve delivery of services to vocational education programs.

The grants were of federal funds and the programs were extensions of services which the division was or should have been providing. The concept of having an LEA act as repository and disbursing agent for project funds was based upon the ability of an LEA to expedite all administrative services such as payroll, requistioning, purchasing, arranging leases, etc.

State officials saw this as a way to avoid the hamstringing effects on programs imposed by the massive state bureaucartic system.

To distinguish between federal grants received by school systems to develop and implement programs within their school and grants for which school systems cooperated as LEA, we should know that regular or "operational" grants were made extensively prior to the emergence of the LEA concept.

It was and is customary for school systems to request funding for new programs to operate under the aegis of local officials and governing boards. Such projects which I clasify as operational, offer training or services to students in various school systems. The operational type of grant would

(Connolly, page 5B)

Students work with books as much as with tools

Three out of every four students who apply to the Northeast Metropolitan Vocational School are turned away. The school gets "the cream of those who apply," according to voke Principal Carl Kenerson.

The 'cream' must achieve a C average in each subject and they must secure an approved job to graduate.

Kenerson said, "There are those who say it's easier to get into Harvard and graduate than it is at Northeast."

In the school's eight-year history, almost 100 percent of its students have been placed in a job.

The school, situated on 60 acres of the Breakheart Reservation in Wakefield behind the Wakefield High School, operates on a week-out, week-in program. In one week, grades nine and 11 work in the shop areas, and grades 10 and 12 receive classroom instruction in academic areas such as math, English, and science.

The following week, the two groups of grade levels switch and 10th and 12th graders work in shop and ninth and 11th graders hit the books.

Academics are stressed as heavily if not more heavily than shop work at the voke school. Twenty pages of the school's book on studies is devoted to academics while only six pages highlight the shop courses offered.

The courses

The academic program of the ninth grade is standard English I, American Civics and Urban Problems, mathematics, science, and physical education.

The American Civics and Urban Problems course is a two-semester study that examines the operations, organization, and functions of the federal, state, and local governments. In the second half of the course, persistent problems confronting the governments in urban America are also examined.

Students entering the ninth grade are placed in a year-long Occupational Exploratory Program. Through this program, the freshman student investigates a given career area for nine weeks and then moves on to explore another course which interests the individual. During the year, four career areas are investigated by the student.

According to Kenerson, 60 percent of the ninth graders change their mind about the field they would like to "major in" during the exploratory phase. As a result of the special program, 92 percent of the students are in areas "they like and want," Kenerson said.

All physical education classes at the voke school are coeducational. Each student is assigned an average of two classes per week for phys ed, but the student may supplement these classes with athletic participation. Physical education is required by stat3 law and it must be taken in the student's four years at the high school. An up-to-date medical excuse fulfills the state's requirements, but it reduces credits towards graduation by two points.

A special needs program at the school is also offered through the student's four years at the school.

The Special Needs Department offers remedial training to students who are below grade level in areas of reading, spelling, and vocabulary.

The program is open to all students on a referral or volunteer basis. Pupils diagnosed as having a specific learning disability are offered a special program of intensive small-group instruction, while being fully integrated within the school.

10th grade

The academic requirements for 10th graders include a course in standard English II, U.S. history, mathematics, physical education, and a shop-related course.

The shop-related course concentrates on material pertaining to the individual's particular shop. This is an on-going course which carries on in the third and fourth years of school.

One half the student's schedule is reserved for the vocational training the student has chosen to pursue as a career. This becomes the student's "permanent shop."

Grade 11

The 11th grade differs from grade nine and 10 in that the student may elect crtain courses in the individual's academic program.

They may choose an English elective, and there are five options, with two courses in each option (one for each semester), and they may choose a mathematics or social studies elective. In addition to the electives, the 11th graders must also take a driver education and a safety course plus a physical education course and the shop-related course.

Some of the electives offered at the school include an English course on literature of future worlds, and social studies courses on the history of Massachusetts, and consumer education.

The driver education course is designed for classroom instruction in the rules and regulations of the road, proper attitudes, and understanding of construction, maintenance and operation of a motor vehicle. A multi-media area with programmed instruction is also utilized. Road work after school is optional.

In the safety course, the student is informed on the public law entitled the Occupational Safety and Health Act which requires employees to comply with occupational safety and health standards. After completing the course, the student receives a certificate which should enhance the possibility of future employment, according to school officials.

The senior year

Three academic courses with electives are offered seniors, plus physical education and the shop-related course.

The electives are offered in English, with five options, in mathematics or social studies, with several more options, in science. Half the school year is devoted to shop.

During the final year, the student is requ3sted to meet with his or her guidance counselor and with the placement counselor early in the year to begin making plans for employment or for continuing one's education.

Such courses as biology, physics, chemistry, physical science, crime in modern society, psychology, literature of protest, and programming are offered in the 12th grade.

The programming course is connected with the school's data processing system, one of the more highly-capable systems in the state. The course encompasses a brief history of computers, flowcharting and programming in the fortran IV language. The computer language is so popular today that it is offered in some colleges and universities as a foreign language elective. Application rather than theory is emphasized in the course.

When it's your own vehicle, repairing damage in the auto body shop is carefully completed.

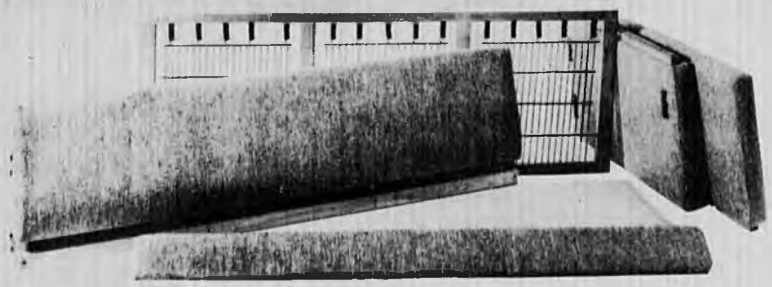
workbench



Five easy pieces.

Put them together and plunk down on a superbly crafted upholstered sofa.

Cloth-covered arm sofa $379
Matching loveseat $299

This is not the first time anyone has designed a sofa that you can put together yourself. But it is unique. Here's why

THE QUALITY IS SPECIAL. YOU'LL HAVE TO SIT ON IT TO BELIEVE IT.

And when we say special, we mean it. The frame is crafted of selected Appalachian hardwoods to insure strength and to prevent warping. The springs are tempered steel. The padding is thick quality foam. And the frame, suspension, and wedgelock fastening system are guaranteed by the manufacturer for ten years. Ten times longer than most furniture.

YOU CAN ACTUALLY PUT IT TOGETHER IN MINUTES WITHOUT ANY TOOLS.

Packed in 2 easy-to-take-home cartons, your sofa fits together in minutes without any tools. Just lock each side to the back and front panels, insert the steel spring deck, then lay the pad over the springs. Plop on the cushions and plop yourself down. Ah!

Butcher block loveseat $349
Matching arm sofa $429

THERE ARE TWO DIFFERENT SOFAS AND MATCHING LOVESEATS.

Choose from a cloth-covered arm sofa and loveseat or a handsome butcher block arm sofa and loveseat. Both styles are upholstered in 100% nylon beige tweed and both are available in a selection of special order fabrics at higher prices. (8 to 10 week delivery time on special orders.) Matching chairs are also available only on special order.

YOU CAN JUST COME INTO WORKBENCH AND TAKE THEM HOME WITH YOU.

Available only at Workbench, all 4 styles are displayed in all our stores and stocked in limited quantites. Of course, if you want, we'll deliver them. But there is an additional charge. (However, if we deliver, we assemble free. Which goes to prove how fast and easy assembly is.) So bring home five easy pieces. Spend fifteen easy minutes. And settle down for years of ease.

Last week's cover story reported that the Autumnal Equinox fell on September 21. Well, though it's traditionally the 21st, the actual Autumnal Equinox, and the start of fall, is at 4:26 am on September 23. The stars don't seem to give a hoot about our earthly conventions.

Next Week in Metroguide

The Topsfield Fair has always been a mammoth production, and now, in its 154th year, it's just as boggling as ever. Some folks might take two or even three days to take in the thousands of farm animals, the virtual warehouse of food, the competitions, midway and numerous attracttions. But that's not all. We'll also check on ways to explore this fall's foliage. Canoe and bike trips, train excursions, back roads and country trails abound — all you have to do is set your plans and head out.

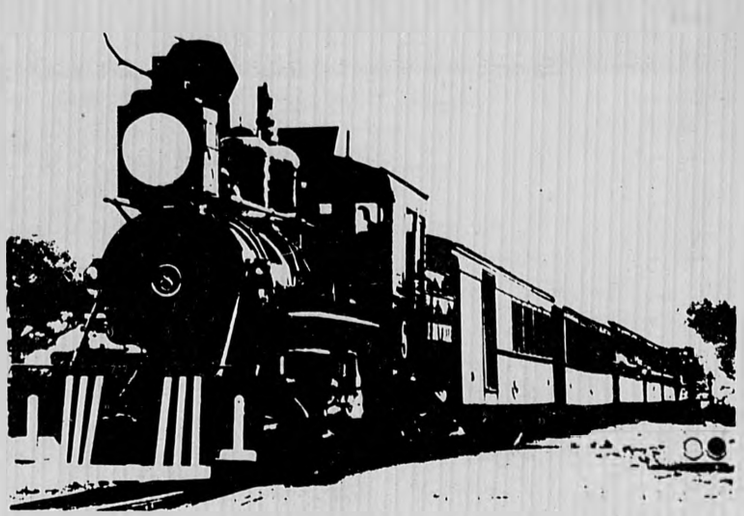
This Weekend's Cranberry Festival At Edaville Railroad



If you make the trip down to the Cranberry Festival this weekend at Edaville Railroad, you're assured of a good time — and lots and lots of cranberries.

By Liz Horwitt

This weekend, the Edaville Railroad in South Carver holds its annual festival in celebration of — cranberries.

Among the special attractions at this event are: a statewide livestock show, 4-H horticulture events and crafts; a cranberry baking contest; a cranberry exhibit and screening demonstration; cranberry cooking demonstrations and sampling; free cranberry juice; a national quilt patch contest; a "dunk tank" where contestants can try to pitch Patriots and other sports heroes into the water; the crowning of a Cranberry Queen and possible appearance of Miss Massachusetts; a Harvest Ball; square dancing; food canning demonstration; a log hewing and hatchet throwing demonstration; antique auto and antique steam and gas engine displays; a corn roast; helicopter rides; pony rides; a cake sale; clowns; the amazing Fantasy Jugglers; a fiddler hoedown; the 4-H fife and drum corps; the Plymouth-Carver School Band; the Edaville Players; Cranberry and Disney characters and "other well-known personalities" including Ronald McDonald; and "much, much more".

While all this may seem like a lot of fuss to be making about a fruit, it's a New England tradition to use almost anything as an excuse to hold a fair or festival. Throughout the summer and fall, blueberries, strawberries, clams, lobsters, cows, chickens and even potatoes have had their day. Poultry queens are crowned; blueberries glorified in pie-eating contests. Considering what an important, even outstanding role cranberries have played in American history, these small red berries really deserve a special celebration.

The cranberry is North America's only native berry. Indians used cranberries not only as food, but as a dye for their blankets and rugs, and as a poultice for arrow wounds. They introduced cranberries to the Pilgrims, and cranberries were probably on the menu of the first Thanksgiving feast, in 1621. As early as 1683, a recipe for cranberry juice was published in Compleat Cook's Guide: "Put a teacupful of cranberries into a cup of water and mash them. In the meantime, boil two quarts and a pint of water with one large spoonful of oatmeal and a very large bit of lemon peel. Then add the cranberries and as much fine Lisbon sugar as shall leave a smart." During the heyday of clipper ships, cranberries were used as the English "Limeys" used limes: as a source of Vitamin C to ward off scurvy.

Although cranberry cultivation has spread to other American states, Cape Cod has always been a major growing area. In 1816, Henry Hall of Dennis set cranberry cultivation on the road to becoming big business, when he observed that the berries grew larger and juicier where sand from the Cape dunes blew over the vines.

Cranberries also played an important role in the founding of the Edaville Railroad. Ellis D. Atwood was a prominent Massachusetts cranberry grower who happened to love trains. He built the Edaville Railroad (named after his initials, E.D.A.) partly to transport his cranberries and partly to entertain himself and his friends. This happened in 1945, when diesel engines were replacing steam. Atwood bought several railroad lines which were going out of business, and transported them to his estate. Eventually, the Edaville Railroad became the operative steam railroad in New England. At first, Atwood just invited friends and neighbors to ride on his train. Later he started charging 25 cents. The Edaville Railroad gradually turned into a paying tourist attraction instead of a freight line.

The succeeding president, F. Nelson Blount, bought more antique engines and boxcars not only for the train, but to display around the grounds. Engines and cars have been added from different eras, including the Elthea, a coach built in 1880 and named after Atwood's wife.

The present Edaville Railroad draws large crowds throughout the tourist season, from children to railway buffs. Visitors start out at Cranberry Junction Station, where they can buy homemade cranberry bread, muffins, juice, pickled watermelon rind and souvenirs. Then, you buy your ticket and enter the grounds beyond, where adults can admire and children can climb on antique engines. The Animal Farm here sports goats and peacocks to be petted. In addition to the train, there are several more rides: an operating carousel built in 1856; a Model T turnpike; a horse trolley car from the 1880s and a 1931 American-LaFrance pumper. The Edaville museum houses antique cars (including an elegant 1932 Rolls Royce), fire engines, railroad memorabilia like conductor's caps and dining car chinaware, from the days when eating in trains was still a luxury. In addition there are circus and dramatic performances by the Edaville Players, cranberry and chicken barbecues and a barbershop trio that serenades the passengers while the train is waiting to pull out.

The train travels about 5 and a half miles through the Edaville cranberry bogs. During the trip, the conductor points out the interesting sights and explains how the berries are grown and harvested, then transported to Ocean Spray. Cardboard figures appear from time to time among the bushes and bogs. Actually, a gingerbread house, "hobo junction" and the old woman who lived in the shoe have little to do with cranberries, but they are something to point out to the kids if they start to get restless.

Other features along the way include a big reservoir, Mount Urann, "the highest point on the railroad" (100 feet), and Peaceville, a close-to-lifesize replica of an old-time American town.

This Saturday, WBZ will be broadcasting live from the festival. For the regular fee you can enjoy everything Edaville usually offers, plus all of the festival events. Edaville is expecting a record turn-out of 10,000 people a day. If you make the trip down, you're assured of a good time — and lots and lots of cranberries.

If You Decide To Go. . . .

The Cranberry Festival is being held at the Edaville Railroad, off Route 58, in South Carver. By car, take Route 128 to Route 24 to Route 25 to Route 58 toward Carver; then just follow the signs.

The hours, this Saturday and Sunday, are 10 am to 5:30 pm. Admission is $3 for adults, $1.50 for children. This entitles you to everything on the Edaville grounds, including all festival events, the Edaville museum, and one ride on the train. Additional rides cost $1 for adults, 50 cents for children. Special rides like the carousel and the model T are extra. Call 866-4526.

Some Little-Known Facts About Cranberries:

According to an old legend, cranberries came to grow on Cape Cod through the intervention of a white dove. During an argument (probably over whose "medicine" was more powerful) an Indian medicine man cast a spell over the Reverend Richard Bourne, miring him in quicksand. In order to settle the argument, the two men agreed to a 15-day marathon battle of wits. Unable to move, the Reverend Bourne was kept alive by a white dove which fed him one cranberry from time to time. The medicine man's magic had no effect on the dove, and he eventually fell to the ground, defeated by lack of food and water. One of those berries took root in the soil and thus began Cape Cod's cranberry bogs.

Cranberries got their name from the Pilgrims, who thought they looked the heads of cranes while in blossom. "Craneberry" was later contracted to "cranberry".

Have you ever wondered how cranberry companies separate the good berries from the bad? An ingenious process is used: all the berries have to bounce over a small barrier before they are accepted. Each berry has seven chances to bounce. If it's badly bruised, soft or rotten, it won't bounce. It then falls into a bin with the other reject berries.

Theatre | Two Musicals

The King of Hearts is a big musical. _The All Night Strut_ is a little revue. But big doesn't necessarily mean better.

The King of Hearts
Based on a screenplay by Philippe De Broca, Maurice Bessy and Daniel Boulanger. Book by Joseph Stein, music by Peter Link, and lyrics by Jacob Brackman. Choreographed and directed by Ron Field. Produced by Joseph Kipness and Patty Grubman, in association with Jerome Minskoff. At the Colonial Theatre.

The All Night Strut
Conceived, directed and choreographed by Fran Charnas, produced by Karen Kantor, Philip Swaebe and Stanley A. Glickman. Costumes by Bernadette O'Brian, musical arrangements by Tom Fitt, Gil Lieb and Dick Schermesser. At the Boston Repertory Theatre.

By Vivian Noble

Two new shows have opened recently in Boston's newly dubbed Theatre District. One, The King of Hearts, is a huge, new musical at the Colonial Theatre, and will be heading for Broadway. The other, The All Night Strut, stakes its claim as a musical revue of the Thirties and Forties, performed by a mere four people and currently housed at the Boston Repertory Theatre. And, as proof of an old cliche, big doesn't necessarily mean better.

The King of Hearts is a show in the grand musical tradition — lots of performers in extravagant costumes, rousing production numbers and what must be amazingly expensive sets. It's based on the cult classic film of the same name, and runs pretty much along the same lines. The scene is World War I, in the French village of DuTemps and in trenches thereabouts. The Germans have planted a bomb in said village, and an American soldier, Johnny, has been sent to ferret it out before the little pastoral snatch of land blows sky high. What he discovers, in fact, is that the village has been taken over by the local asylum residents. In contrast to the war raging about them, they are as charming, peaceful and loving as can be, and Johnny ends up as king of them all.

In the film, there was a conscious effort to avoid making the story too sweet, light and so meaningless. Also, the inmates were treated specifically as adult innocents, not whacked-out children. For starters, that's exactly what's not done in this musical version; everyone is smothered in pablum and sentiment. The inmates aren't simply charming. They are cute and cuddly, and supplied with a variety of adorably loony things to say. In fact, there's no real sense of madness at all. It's more like watching a group of five-year-olds cavorting on the stage, and subsequently, the lines get boring and stale. A great score might make up for the dialogue, but, unfortunately, that's precisely what The King of Hearts doesn't have — a sad state of affairs for a musical. Most of the songs are mediocre at best, and some of the lyrics ("I feel as if I'm seeing . . . another human being") are downright silly.

What does work here is an exuberance that minimizes, though it doesn't eliminate, the flaws. The director and choreographer, Ron Field, has been smart -- the production numbers are so lavish and skillfully performed that the emphasis is on the action, not what's being said or sung. The dancing is full of verve, a circus set up by the inmates is spectacular and those dumb lyrics just sink into the background. What this all boils down to is bona fide (if not great) entertainment, despite the cuteness, weak backbone, and some minor technical bugs (sets that won't move properly, some bad microphone placement and so forth).

The cast helps, too. Gary Morgan, as the asylum deaf-mute (named, of all things, Demosthenes), is lucky enough not to deal with the score. Instead, he steals the show with his quick, expressive pantomime. England's Millicent Martin is here, swinging on ropes and providing plenty of energy; and Pamela Blair, who originated "Dance 10, Looks 3" in A Chorus Line, is a pert Jeunefille, the young inmate who steals Johnny's heart. The one big casting disappointment of the evening is Donald Scardino as Johnny, who might have molded his character on the Andy Griffith Show's Opie. With his harsh voice and gee-whiz style, he just hampers all the action, which will continue at the Colonial until October 7.

The All Night Strut, on the other hand, is a tightly woven musical revue, depending on tried and true songs from the Thirties and Forties. It does run the risk of being too familiar; after all, in these days of Bette Midler and Manhattan Transfer, we've been up to our necks in revival material and camp. It's to the credit of the performers involved, and director/choreographer/originator Fran Charnas, that this kind of show resists overkill.

It does so wonderfully. It cockily strides up to meet the challenge with beautifully timed, excitingly choreographed numbers, all performed under a jazzy Deco marquee. And the show is just the right length, long enough to bring a variety of classics to a willing audience, short enough to keep the pleasure from receding into boredom. All the voices are hearty, and Andrea Danford, tall and slim, is particularly delightful with her mechanized facial gestures and low, rich voice. She has worthy companions in David Montague, Nancy Gulla and Tony Rich.

With numbers like "In The Mood," "Java Jive" and "I Get Ideas," Strut can't help being slick. That, however, is the point here. This is the two decades remembered with a gloss and sheen they didn't really have. It is functioning as a wild kind of fantasy that Strut pulls together, and the glamorous illusion remains throughout. Even if the show is trendy, even if the nostalgia business has just about run its course, Strut deserves to be packing them in until its last night, October 14.

Music | What's So Great About The BSO?

Symphony has a nice meld this year of "greats" like Beethoven, Bach and Mozart, "moderns" like Strauss and Mahler, and a smattering of new works by contemporary composers.

By Stan Bicknell

A question you don't often hear asked in this town, if only because the answer is taken for granted, is: Why is the Boston Symphony Orchestra such a great orchestra? Why, in fact, is it ranked among the "Big Five" along with the New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Chicago orchestras?

A harder question you couldn't find.

Music is the ultimate in non-verbal communication, and finding exact words and phrases for musical experience is well-nigh impossible. (That's why there is so little really good writing on music.) It can only be described as soft or loud, slow or fast in relation to other music. When you get into the critical vocabulary with "voluptuous," "mellow," "glistening" and that kind of loose change, the problem becomes apparent.

The only way an orchestra can be judged is by listening to other orchestras. Several seasons ago, I commuted between Montreal and Boston and heard the Montreal Symphony on alternate weeks with the BSO. The former is a fair-to-middling orchestra of ordinary musicians who are paid low wages. The conductors are either older men finishing a so-so career or young ones just starting out.

In Montreal I heard massed violins playing a score but never a string choir in song. Never did I hear that wonderful amalgam of balance and sound that can come only from a world-class orchestra that has been at it a long, long time.

Since its beginning in 1881, the BSO has been blessed with some of the world's great conductors — Monteux, Kousevitsky, Munch, Steinberg and now Seiji Ozawa — who have had the pick of orchestral musicians and then demanded continued excellence from them. The musicians themselves have a say in the selection of their colleagues and, if anything, are even less tolerant of inadequate musicianship.

This year's Symphony season starts today (September 28); and, in scheduling, one Symphony season is like every one that has gone before it. There are 22 programs performed on Friday afternoon at 2, repeated on Saturday evenings at 8 and in most cases repeated again on the following Tuesday and Thursday nights at 8. The Tuesday and Thursday concerts are scrubbed when the orchestra travels to Providence or New York in March. There are also a series of open rehearsals on Wednesday evenings at 7:30 with a lecture beforehand by Michael Steinberg, who writes the program notes, beginning at 6:45.

Tickets have gone up considerably this year. They start at $6.50 and go up to $14.50. But have no fear; in Symphony Hall there are no bad seats, only slightly better ones. (The hall is one of the three best in the world; only those in Amsterdam and Vienna compare.)

Getting tickets is rarely a problem, though, and I can never remember being turned away from any concert I wanted to hear. Though most of the tickets, and especially the higher priced ones, are sold by subscription, the subscribers who can't make a concert are religious about calling the box office so their tickets can be resold. Go to the ticket office about an hour beforehand. While you won't have a wide selection, you will in all probability get a seat at the price you want to pay. To buy tickets in advance, go to the box office up to three weeks before a particular concert — except for the first concert of a series, when you have to buy the ticket on the day of the performance.

And what should you hear this season, if you are an infrequent concert-goer or have never been at all? Symphony has a nice meld this year — as it does every year — of "greats" like Beethoven, Bach and Mozart, the "moderns" like Strauss and Mahler, lesser known works by Haydn and Albinoni, vocal works and a smattering of new works by contemporary composers.

On November 24, 25, and 28, Seiji Ozawa conducts and Itzhak Perlman, one of the best young violinists around, will play J.S. Bach's violin Concerto in E and then, separated by 200 years, Alan Berg's Violin Concerto written in 1935. The contrast between Baroque and modern offers a fine perspective on what an orchestra does and how it does it.

On January 19 and 20, Ozawa conducts again, this time with the BSO's concertmaster, Joseph Silverstein and another young virtuoso, Pinchas Zukerman, playing violin and viola respectively. The work is Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante in E flat, one of the rare times when he turned a brown study into music. (Mozart was always an entertainer and never sought to offend.)

The last piece you might want to hear is Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on April 26, 28 and 28. The Ninth is the "War and Peace" of music, Beethoven's salute to the race, and glorious in the extreme. Often called the "Choral," the Ninth employs four soloists — a soprano, mezzo-soprano, a tenor and baritone — and the Tanglewood Chorus, standing behind the orchestra a hundred strong, and singing as if their lives depended upon it.

The first time I heard the Ninth in Symphony Hall was on a rainy Friday afternoon many years ago. I took my seat next to an old gentleman who, along with his wife, had been subscribers for years and years. His wife was ill that day, and it was her ticket I had bought at the box office. The old gentleman and I chatted for a while, and I mentioned that I had never heard the Ninth in a concert hall. He paused for a moment at this and then said, "You know the first time I heard it? I was at Harvard and I sang in the chorus right up there, 50 years ago this month."

Audiences also make great orchestras.

A Wedding
Directed by Robert Altman. Screenplay by John Considine, Patricia Resnick, Allan Nicholls, and Robert Altman. With Desi Arnaz, Jr., Carol Burnett, Geraldine Chaplin, Howard Duff, Mia Farrow, Vittorio Gassman, Lillian Gish, Lauren Hutton, Viveca Lindfors, Pat McCormick, Dina Merrill, and Nina van Pallandt. At the Cheri in Boston.

By Maggie Hall

Here is a movie worth seeing twice. What makes A Wedding interesting is its collection of character pieces, hung on the framework of a family wedding and the subsequent reception. Altman has a fine eye for detail: his "bit" players are as finely drawn as his stars; he puts "big" names into small parts, newcomers into starring roles, and still lets a small name in a small part shine. Lillian Gish, as Nettie Sloan, the matriarch of the Sloan-Corelli clan, has a brief speaking part: she is beautifully fragile. Amy Stryker plays Muffin Brenner, the bride with braces, who seems to have absolutely no idea of what is going on on what is supposed to be "her day." Part of her problem, of course, is her moon-faced groom, Dino Corelli, played by Desi Arnaz, Jr. Dennis Christopher, as Hughie Brenner, the brother of the bride, darn near steals the show whenever the camera catches him.

There is no plot. Action is determined by personality and the passage of time. Most of the characters are introduced to us at the wedding ceremony. The frozen, stiff-jawed faces of the bridal party and the acolyte who lip-synchs the service are delightful. The rest of the cast joins in at the reception, which goes astray despite the best efforts of the wedding consultant, Rita Billingsley. She is played by Geraldine Chaplin with some of the busy-body "Opal from the BBC" mannerisms that marked her performance in Altman's earlier Nashville. Poor old Miss Billingsley, she's a vicarious bride, and more to be pitied than censured, despite her schedules and her officious plans.

A Wedding is not an exposé of what Altman perceives as the last great ritual of our culture. There is nothing about it that is mean or muckraking. It isn't a tacky wedding, and it isn't a slapstick laughriot. What are exposed are the little idiosyncracies of two families and their friends. There is an addict, a homosexual, a simple-minded nymphomaniac, an alcoholic, a couple of potential adulterers, a pill-popper. Not, perhaps, your family circle, but realistic, nevertheless.

Keep an eye out for the great bits contributed by the security staff (John Considine, Patricia Resnick, Margery Bond and Dennis Franz, all in sunglasses and walkie-talkies). Lauren Hutton wanders through as a documentary film-maker, always apologizing. John Cromwell, as the antique Bishop Martin, is very funny.

A Wedding is interesting entertainment. Accept the invitation.

Bread and Chocolate
Nino Manfredi plays Nino Garafoli, introduced as a sort of vulgar klutz, a misfit in his purple shirt and perfectly awful tie. Nino is an Italian worker who, like so many of his compatriots, has left behind the land of sun and song to find his fortune in Switzerland. The dream of all these workers is to make enough money to import their wives and children, or to return home as heroes. Some live for their dream, some live on it, some lose track of reality altogether. The theme of nostalgia, the real ache for the homeland, is diluted with slapstick and satire. Manfredi has a few moments of quiet desperation: he can't seem to decide whether to be Mastroianni or Chaplin. He doesn't break our hearts, but he's a likeable guy in a likeable movie. Bread and Chocolate is sweet and filling and not, ultimately, very nourishing. With Anna Karina, John Dorelli, and Paolo Truco. Beacon Hill.

Cat and Mouse
Written and directed by Claude Lelouch, who made the Oscar-winning A Man and A Woman (1966), Cat and Mouse (made in 1975) is a traditional murder mystery with a contemporary emphasis on human relationships. The results, for the most part, are entertaining but, like human relationships, not always easy to understand. Serge Reggiani and Philippe Leotard are hot on the heels of Michele Morgan. And they have Starsky and Hutch beat by a mile. But the plot gets confusingly thick as the police get bogged down with an entwined art theft, police corruption, and CIA-type political undertones. The intricate flashbacks and character developments finally begin to make sense as the visual sight gags of director Lelouch helps smooth over the film's rough spots. Cat and Mouse has fine casting and fine acting, and is as refreshing as a hit of Perrier. Allston, Newton, Galeria.

Death on the Nile
Based on the archetypal Agatha Christie novel of the same name, produced by John Bradbourne and Richard Goodwin, who were also responsible for Murder on the Orient Express. This time, Peter Ustinov plays Hercule Poirot, the brainy Belgian detective, and the cast includes Bette Davis, Maggie Smith, David Niven, and Olivia Hussey. Cheri; Chestnut Hill, Brockton, Framingham, Dedham, Lawrence, Woburn Danvers.

Foul Play
Goldie Hawn and Chevy Chase star in this suspense comedy written and directed by Colin Higgins. Chase's famous pratfalls are limited to a tolerable few, and he and Hawn share an engaging kookieness. Hawn, who plays a librarian named Gloria Mundy (a Thurber steal), is the target of a pair of hitmen; Chase, as a police lieutenant under a cloud, assigns himself to protect her. Incidentally they find True Love. Dudley Moore, still happily beyond the fringe, and a bantam Burgess Meredith steal the show. With Billy Barty, Rachel Roberts, and members of the New York City Opera. Braintree, Brockton, Circle, Framingham, Woburn, Natick.

Girl Friends
An unusual movie with documentary feel. Ostensibly, it is the story of a mutating friendship between a struggling photographer, Susan, and a married, would-be writer, Anne. The true focus, though, is on the wonderfully real Susan (Melanie Mayron), unfolding and snatching images from the people around her. Claudia Weill directed and co-wrote the elusive and frequently sensitive story; Anita Skinner, Christopher Guest and Eli Wallach hover in the background. Pi Alley.

Grease
Entertainment and that's all; or rather, television director Randal Kleiser's idea of entertainment, the kind we've been insulted by for years. This isn't to say that the musical numbers aren't energetic, that John Travolta isn't charming, that Stockard Channing isn't proficient as the high school bad girl. But where is the heart behind the monster? And what in heaven's name is this fascination with the Fifties? Cinema 57; Dedham, Hanover, Peabody, Natick.

The Inheritance
A costume drama about a lot of extremely disagreeable people, with Dominique Sanda as a simpering schemer and Anthony Quinn in his usual Mediterranean role as a glowing paterfamilias. The Inheritance tries to be artistic and serious; it is rather shallow and sometimes downright funny. Charles; Hanover Mall, Natick.

Interiors
Proof, if anyone needed it, of Woody Allen's genius. The film is poised and distant, a cool, introverted look at a family that is trying hard to be a Family, but they are too analytical to be happy with each other. Beautiful photography and first-class acting tear at the heart. An unbelievable movie, with Diane Keaton, Geraldine Page, Mary Beth Hurt, and Maureen Stapleton. Exeter; Brockton, Danvers, Natick.

Rocky Horror Picture Show
The camp phenomenon of midnight, with the action divided about equally between the screen and the audience, whose participation is encouraged to such an extent that discounts are given to movie-goers in costume. Exeter.

Somebody Killed Her Husband
With Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Jeff Bridges, as amateur detectives, and Laurence Guittard, as the corpse in question. Also featured are Tammy Grimes, John Glover, and the Macy's Toy Department. Cinema 57; Braintree, Brockton, Burlington, Hanover Mall, Danvers.

Up in Smoke
A comedy, written by and starring Cheech (Marin) and (Tommy) Chong, two young humorists who hiterto have appeared in clubs and on records. Edie Adams, Stacy Keach, and Strother Martin co-star. Charles; Circle, Lawrence, Brockton.

Unwanted Hair?

Let's face it. Every woman has some unwanted hair. You don't have to be afraid to admit it, or to do something about it. Finally there is Depilatron.

Of course, you've heard of other methods of removing unwanted hair, but often they involve pain and irritation.

Depilatron is the alternative for safe and painless removal. It utilizes the same radio frequency used in standard electrolysis. Treatments given by licensed electrologists.

Make-up can be applied immediately and all parts of the body can be treated. Depilatron... for both men and women.

So why face this problem day after day? Finally there's Depilatron.

To celebrate our upcoming 3rd anniversary, Depilatron is offering its usual free consultation with a free introductory treatment. Let us introduce you to the painless world of Depilatron soon.

We're conveniently located at Coolidge Corner with ample parking and easy access to the Green Line.

An Historical Dining Experience

The 1798 Fiske House
RESTAURANT

Majestically overlooking the Chelmsford Common is the Fiske House . . . admired for its architectural beauty since the 18th century, and enjoyed as a tavern in the 1800's, it was later bought by the Fiskes to become their home. The Fiske House is a registered National Historic Site, almost entirely in its original form. Today, the building remains one of the most stately houses in Chelmsford with its prominent place in the center of this beautiful New England Town. The area, history, and unique architecture of the building vividly express America's past.

The Fiske House invites you to relax and partake of sumptuous cuisine in the romantic atmosphere of our six eighteenth century dining rooms, each complimented by a fireplace and candlelit tables. The Fiske House is truly elegant dining for the discriminating gourmet.

HUB

Athens Olympia-52 Stuart St, Boston, 426-6236. In the midst of the theatre district, the Olympia has service that's geared to get you to the show on time. On the menu: taramosalata, dolmas, saganiki, souvlaki, baklava. Exotic names, but they're all good Greek stand-bys. Hours: Daily, 11 am to 11 pm. Full bar, reservations accepted. AE, MC.

Benihana-201 Stuart Street, Boston, 542-1166. Japanese cooked at the table by knife-wielding chefs. Hibachi steaks and chicken. Full bar, moderately expensive. Hours: Daily, noon to 2 and 5:30 to 10:30 pm; Sunday 4:30 to 9 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Charley's Eating and Drinking Saloon-344 Newbury St, Boston, 266-3000, and in Braintree and Chestnut Hill. Good food: crab-stuffed shrimp, London broil, and excellent service, in an active, Victorian room. Full bar and moderate prices. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-1 am. AE, CB, DC, MC.

Jason's-130 Clarendon St, Boston, 262-9000. Dining among palm trees and sensational salt-water aquariums. Seafood and continental specialties: oysters Rockefeller, veal Oscar, roast Long Island duck. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-3 pm. Dinner daily 5-midnight. AE, DC.

Lily's-29 North Quincy Market, Boston, 227-4242. Stylish and expensive, continental and three kinds of French cooking: Haute, provincial, and nouvelle. Full bar. Reservations are recommended. Hours: Daily for dinner, 5:30-11 pm. AE, MC.

Lulu White-3 Appleton St, Boston, 423-3652. A New Orleans style place, appropriately in the South End: shrimp Creole, dirty rice, barbecued ribs. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Daily, 5 pm-2 am. Sun brunch 11 am-2 pm. Cover charge for entertainment.

The Magic Pan-47 Newbury St, Boston, 267-9315; also upstairs at Quincy Market, 523-6103. The magic pan in question is a revolving iron wheel that bakes the crepes; there is a wide choice of what the crepe surrounds, both as entrees and as desserts. Moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: 11 am-midnight Mon-Sat; until 10 pm Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Nick's-100 Warrenton St, Boston, 482-0930. Nick's is full of business types at lunchtime (the Ad Man's special is a deal), who yield to theatre goers at dinner. Any time, the prices are moderate. Seafood and prairie food: steaks and ribs. Full bar. Hours: Daily 11:30 am-11 pm. If you're catching a show, it's a good idea to make a reservation. AE, CB, DC, MC.

The Red Fez-1222 Washington St, Boston, 338-8446. Not a lot of elegance — the place is under the Orange Line — but good, inexpensive Syrian food: baba ganooze, hummis, vast salads. Beer and wine, including retsina. Open daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm. No credit cards.

Seaside Restaurant and Bar-188 Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 742-8728. Intimate dining in a contemporary ambiance. Specialties include fresh seafoods, salads, sandwiches, prime sirloin, lobster, homemade desserts, choice wines. International bar on two levels. Popular and correspondingly crowded, so a reservation is a good idea. Full bar. Hours: Daily 11 am-2 am daily. AE, MC, House charge.

Union Oyster House-41 Union St, Boston, 227-2750. Boston's oldest eatery, the place is aptly named: oysters and other marine life star on the menu. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11 am-9 pm, until 9:30 Fri, until 10 Sat. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

The Winery-at the Pilot House, Lewis Wharf, Boston, 523-3994. Steaks, seafood, and a lone chicken. Dinner and lunch prices, which are moderate, include a carafe of California burgundy or chablis, and there is also a full bar. Sandwich specials at lunchtime. Hours: 11:30 am-4 pm Mon-Fri; 5-11 pm Mon-Thurs, until midnight Fri and Sat; 3-11 pm Sun. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

NORTH

Andover Inn-Chapel Ave, Andover, 475-5903. On the grounds of Phillips Andover Academy, but a far cry from school fare. Some of the far-flung favorites are Locmpia, scampi flambe. Make sure that the pastry cart rolls past your table. On Sundays, the dinner feature is Rijstaffel, a Dutch-Indonesian buffet. Moderately priced, elegant. Full bar. Open Mon-Sat, 11:30-3, and 5-10. Sun, 10:30 am-3 pm, and 4-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Beef and Oyster House-143 Washington St, Salem, 744-4334. Beef and oysters, yes, but you needn't limit yourself to these eponymous delights, as there are other land and sea dishes to be had. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Michael's House-26 Atlantic Ave, Marblehead, 631-1259. The house predates the restaurant by nearly two centuries. At lunch, try the quiche du jour, or the open steak sandwich. Seafood is a specialty any time. Prices are moderate. Open daily, 11:30-2, and 5:30-midnight. Full bar, wine list. AE, MC.

Proctor House-373 Lowell St, Peabody, 531-1598. In 18th-century surroundings, the menu is Yankee con brio, American and Italian specialties. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: 11:30 am-10 pm, til 11 Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Rosalie's-18 Seward St, Marblehead, 631-9888. The cucina here is North Italian, the surroundings warmly Victorian. Veal Sorrentino, shrimp Luciana. Open daily, 11:45-2:30, and 5:30-10 pm. Reservations are advised for dinner. Fully licensed, no credit cards.

WEST

Le Bellecour-10 Muzzey St, Lexington, 861-9400. Now open under new management. Le Bellecour offers French cooking with some other touches, like an Indonesian Sate Babi at lunch, and medallions de chevreuil, which is venison. Full bar, reservations are recommended. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30-2 and 6-10; Sat, 6-10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, MC.

Sabra-45 Union St Newton Center, 527-5641. Israeli and Middle Eastern specialties, in gustatory harmony. Specialties include hamin on Saturdays, and shakshuka for Sunday brunch. Not expensive, either. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Tues, 11 am-11 pm, Wed-Sun, 11 am-midnight. AE, BA/V, MC.

Upper Crust-At the Sheraton-Tara Hotel, Framingham, 879-7200, and Braintree, 848-0600. Steaks and fish, chicken Hongroise, and the Tom Jones Dinner, a massive feast that requires two days notice. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Fri, 5 pm-10:30 pm; until 11 Sat; Sun, 3:30 pm-10 pm. Lunch, 11:30 am-3 pm, Mon-Fri. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The William Paul House-Reservoir St (Rte 31) Holden. 829-6666. The specialty of the House is seafood, with a continental accent: baked stuffed filet of sole, seafood Mornay. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Tues-Sat, 5-10 pm, Sun, noon-8 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

SOUTH

Ben While's-31 Providence Hwy (Rte 1), Norwood, 762-6740. Elegantly continental, with a greenhouse to enjoy along with things like chicken Jerusalem, veal Viennoise, and a full range of potables. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-9:45 pm; Sat, 5:30 pm-10:45 pm, Sun, noon-9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Casa Berrini-Main St, Marshfield, 834-8765. Continental embellishments on a traditional menu: veal, prime rib, seafood, and Salad Gazebo. Moderate prices, full bar. Open daily except Mon, 11 am-1 am. AE, BAV, CB, DC, MC.

The Ground Round-Kings Plaza, Braintree, 848-4848, and other locations. A multi-media dining experience, music and TV along with burgers and other sandwich specialties. Inexpensive. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-1 am. No credit cards.

Plaza Inn-Rte 1, Wrentham, 384-2800. "The pleasures of the table are of all time, and all ages, of every country and of every day." Entrees, which are French, Italian, and American, start at $5.95. Full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am. AE, MC.

Tinker's Dam-Rte 139, Pembroke, 826-5748. Cozy, candlelit dining in the upstairs dining room. A glowing pine bar provides a full range of drinks to complement a menu that is basically Continental: veal Oscar, beef Wellington, and homemade desserts. The prices are moderate. Open 11:30-2:30, Mon-Fri, and 6-10 pm Tues-Sun. Reservations for large groups only, eight or more. BA/V, DC, MC.

The Victorian-583 Linwood Ave, Whitinsville, 234-2500. Whitinsville may be off the beaten track, but if you're in the area, or even if you're not, The Victorian will reward you with period decor and a menu that is mostly French, with continental and American accents. Closed Mons, otherwise, Tues-Sat, 11:30 am-2:30 pm and from 5:30 pm onwards, and Sun, noon-8 pm. Fully licensed. BA/V, MC.

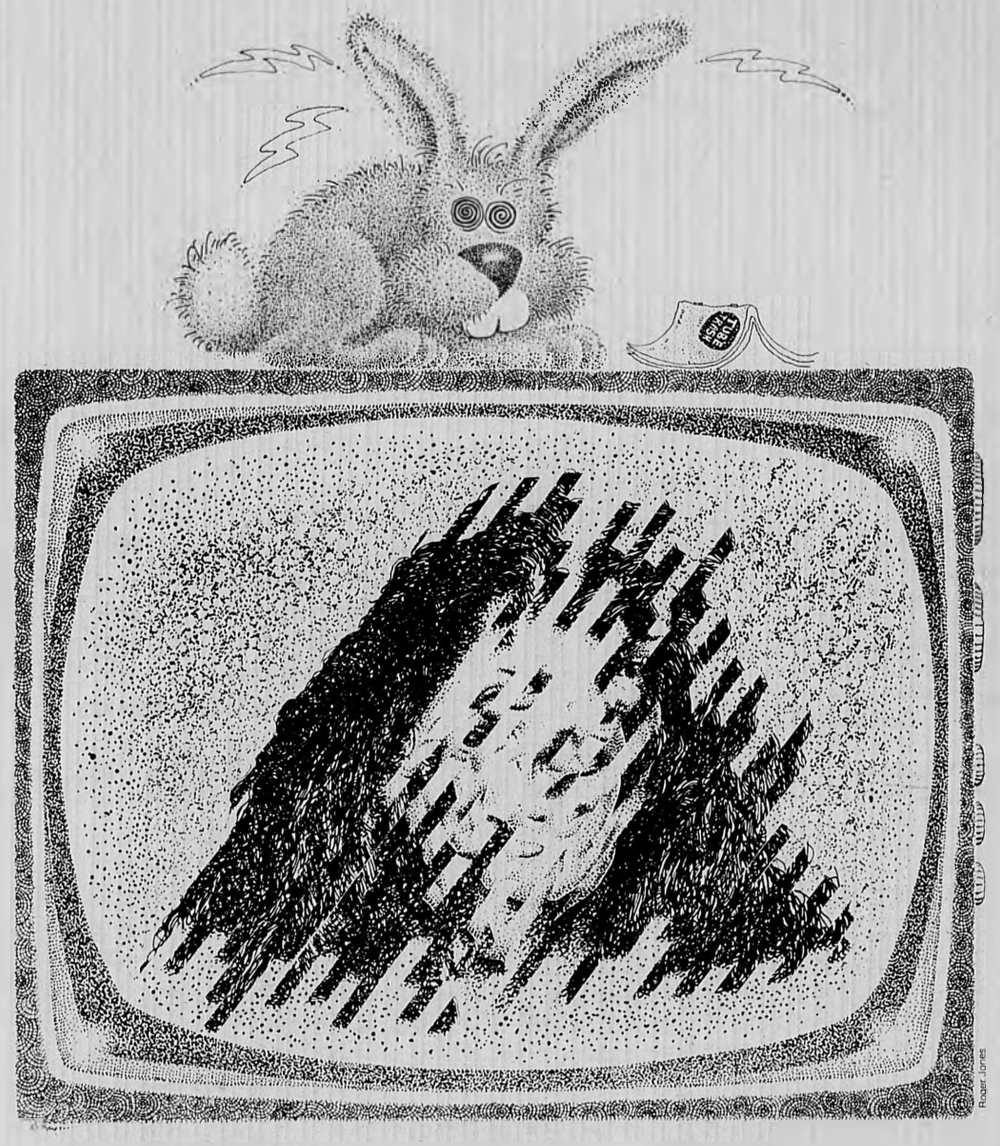
All right. No excuses this time. If you're like most people, you've probably had enough experience with this variety of puzzle to qualify as an expert. The rules, as you know, are very simple.

In a moment, the announcer will come on and tell you not to adjust your set . . . that the station is experiencing technical difficulties . . . and that every effort is being made to restore transmission and rejoin the program, which is still in progress.

You, in the meantime, will be expected to "stay tuned" while attempting to recreate the video portion of the broadcast — intellectually — to avoid missing any of the action.

It's a talent peculiar to Americans — a skill, quite frankly, we're a little reluctant to draw attention to. Still, before you turn to another channel, we'd like you to tell us what's on your screens.



Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through October 26 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Halloween Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the November 9 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a tearsheet of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Good decision-making to reduce high cost of labor

The high cost of labor and raw materials contributes substantially to the steep purchase price of a new home.

Although many homeowners opt for remodeling their existing homes, instead of moving to new ones, the cost of home improvements is also likely to be high.

The situation has given birth to a new crop of do-it-yourselfers. And even those unwilling or unable to do the labor themselves shop around more carefully for good work at a fair price.

In many instances, labor costs far more than materials, points out E.A. Reilly, Merchandising Manager of Roofing at Johns-Manville, a leading residential building products manufacturer.

"Many homeowners make the mistake of choosing inexpensive materials only to find that they have to be replaced in a relatively short time. By that time, inflation combined with costs of labor and new materials will make that initial decision a costly mistake."

Rather, premium materials that are durable and likely to last longer are well worth the higher initial cost. Reilly cites roofing materials as an example.

"Fiber glass shingles, which look virtually identical to conventional asphalt shingles, may cost a little more at the start. Yet conventional asphalt shingles have an average life expectancy of 15 years, whereas fiber glass shingles last 20 to 25 years," he says.

In the long run, concludes Reilly, the homeowner gets a premium product at considerably lower cost by choosing fiber glass over conventional asphalt shingles.

Cost, however, is only one way to determine a product's value. Performance is equally vital.

Using the roofing example once again, Reilly emphasizes the importance of a homeowner comparing the benefits of various shingle types.

"Fiber glass and conventional asphalt shingles may look identical, but closer inspection reveals that the inorganic mat of fiber glass shingles makes them resistant to rot, buckling and shrinking.

"They also have an Underwriters Laboratories fire-resistance rating of "Class A"—the highest available—while most conventional asphalt shingles are rated "Class C."

Carefully choosing the best materials from the start, then, provides a pleasing home improvement result and helps keep labor costs at a minimum.

"Best doesn't have to mean expensive," Reilly reiterates. "In the long term, it's often far cheaper."

For more information about fiber glass shingles, write to Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Ken-Caryl Ranch, Denver, Colo. 80217. (Johns-Manville fiber glass shingles are not available in Canada.)

Insulation saves fuel

Insulation can provide a hedge against higher fuel bills only if it's installed properly.

Learning how to do it right is simple, even for the relatively inexperienced do-it-yourselfer. Johns-Manville, a leading manufacturer of thermal insulations, suggests that homeowners keep in mind one simple goal: to form a complete thermal blanket around the heated portion of the home. Install insulation in all floors, ceilings and walls, fitting it snugly to retard heat flow.

The amount of insulation necessary to do the job correctly varies according to geographic region and local fuel costs. But standards everywhere are increasing as fuel costs continue to rise. For a major proportion of the United States, authorities recommend that attics have insulation with a minimum value of R-30. The higher the insulation's "R" value, the greater its resistance to heat flow.

Before purchasing insulation, check your framing. Fiber glass batts or blankets are the most common types of insulation, and they're easy for the do-it-yourselfer to install. Buy 15" wide insulation for studs, joists or rafters 16" on center; 23" wide for framing 24" on center.

During installation, the insulation's vapor barrier must always face the heated living area. Additional thermal resistance may be obtained by installing insulation with a foil vapor resistant membrane facing at least a ¾ inch of dead air space. Stretch the vapor resistant membrane tight and patch any tears that might let unwanted moisture pass through.

For non-standard spaces, cut insulation one inch wider than the space. Then peel back the insulation and use extra facing for the stapling flange.

Also remember to allow for enough attic ventilation. According to Johns-Manville, a good rule of thumb for attic ventilation is to provide about one square foot of free louver opening for each 300 square feet of ceiling area. For crawl space ventilation, figure one square foot per 15,000 square feet of crawl space where a vapor barrier has been placed on the ground in the crawl space.

Although all packages of insulation include instructions, there are additional tips and short-cuts homeowners can follow to get maximum benefit from insulation. To find out more about these, write to Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Ken-Caryl Ranch, Denver, Colo. 80217.

KRAFT-FACED OR FOIL-FACED fiber glass insulations are simple to install between ceiling joists. Push the insulation snugly between joists and staple the vapor barrier flange on both sides. Johns-Manville instructs homeowners to leave a little extra on each end to push into place above the top plate of the outside wall.

Insulate means windows, too!

If you insulate your walls and forget the windows, you've done less than half the job.

In the typical single story house, which has 1500 square feet, the total solid wall area is about 1,055 square feet and the window area is about 225 square feet. This is the statistic that makes windows seem less significant in energy conservation. But, in reality, the smaller window areas lose 118% as much energy as all the wall areas combined.

The simple explanation for this relatively unknown fact is that the materials used in windows permit heat transfer to occur at a rate that is five and one-half times as fast as it occurs through materials used in walls.

When the outside temperature is such that one square foot of uninsulated wall loses 19 Btu's per hour, a comparable single square foot of window is losing 105 Btu's per hour.

"The facts about windows and energy conservation are not well known; or at best, they're misunderstood." This is the conclusion of Fred M. Schmidt, author of "The Window Book," which is an attempt to unravel the mysteries of the subject.

"The Window Book," which identifies the ways windows waste heating and air-conditioning energy, and explains the "right" solutions to each specific problem, is generally sold for $1.95. However, it can be ordered direct at a special publisher's discount by sending $1.00 to Season-all Industries, Inc., Department MS, Indiana, Pa. 15701.

Interior decorating aid can act as an exterior brick finish

Have you considered adding the traditional look of brick to the exterior of your home, but found it was too costly to have done and you didn't have the skill or tools to do it yourself?

Homeowners are now finding they can do the job themselves with the use of Z-BRICK brand facing brick, which for years has been popular as an interior decorative wall facing.

Because of its rich appearance—without the weight, mess or expense of structural brickwork—more people are using Z-BRICK as an exterior siding product.

This unique facing brick is directly applied to any flat exterior surface, such as plywood or cement block. Lap or asbestos sidings should be removed or covered with sheathing to provide a bondable surface. And, because it is applied in individual bricks and not in sheets or panels, a solid brick and mortar look is accomplished in just a few hours.

Tools required are a hacksaw for cutting, broad-bladed putty knife, coarse rasp, small stiff brush, and paper towels or clean rags. The rasp is used to trim bricks and for mitering corners.

If you can obtain a brick cutter, it would be a handy tool in minimizing the cutting effort, but a cutter is not necessary.

Z-BRICK brand facing brick is applied in four easy steps. First, a thin coat of adhesive mortar is troweled onto a clean wall. Then, each brick is individually pressed into place with a wiggling, sliding motion. The mortar should squeeze up into the space between the bricks and should then be smoothed with a small stick or brush.

Any mortar on the surface of the brick or stone should be cleaned up immediately with a damp towel or cloth. When the mortar is set, two coats of sealer should be brushed on for protection.

Z-BRICK brand facing brick is available in three styles and 12 attractive colors. A complete line of the company's adhesive, mortar and sealer products are on hand at your local home improvement center.

For additional information on how you can give your home the rich look of brick, write, Z-BRICK Company, Woodinville, WA 98072.

Vinyl siding makes summer work easier

VALLEY FORGE, PA.,—To most of us, summer means outdoor fun. But to homeowners, it also means work: mowing, trimming, weeding, washing windows, installing screens and—worst of all—repainting the house.

Long hours of chipping, scraping, sanding, and finally painting that troublesome old wood siding seem endless. Perched up on that ladder, it seems that a homeowner's work is never done.

But painting is one warm-weather chore you can eliminate forever. This year, look into re-siding your home with solid vinyl siding.

CertainTeed's vinyl siding is made of the same tough material used in many of today's modern products where maximum durability is essential.

And, unlike aluminum siding, vinyl siding's color is molded all the way through, so it won't scratch or peel and it never needs painting. It washes clean in a heavy rain or with a garden hose.

Because it's vinyl, the siding is flexible and resists dents. It won't corrode, rust or rot. It won't conduct moisture, so it retards indoor dampness and mildew. And, of course, it's termite-free.

But CertainTeed's solid vinyl siding is attractive as well as tough. Molded with deep shadow lines and a handsome grained surface, it has the look of fine wood siding without any of wood's drawbacks.

Solid vinyl siding is available in "single-eight" or "double-four" eight-inch panels, in addition to vertical panels, to complement any architectural style. And CertainTeed offers one of the largest color lines in the industry, with more on the way.

So get down off that ladder and throw the paint brushes away. CertainTeed gives you all the beauty of wood, all the advantages of premium-grade aluminum and more—siding that will help put the fun back in summer.

For more information on solid vinyl siding, send for the free booklet, "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Roofing, Siding, and Residential Insulation," CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA., 19482.
